he has made with the Quebec companies."

A further statement was made yesterday by Revenue Minister Ilsley in reply to the repeated charge of Mr. Hepburn that Federal co-operation in the way of income tax information was not forthcoming. Mr. Hepburn had charged earlier that one of the causes of friction between the two governments arose from desire of the Federal authorities to obtain control over Ontario succession duty collections.

The Ontario Premier charged information required from income tax returns in cases of suspected succession duty frauds was not readily available.

Mr. Ilsley repeated his declaration made over the week-end that since 1936 all information on the Dominion income tax records was accessible to the Ontario Attorney-General in cases of suspected fraud. The agreement entered into in April 1936, whereby the Dominion would collect Ontario's income, tax specifically provided that this information would be available, in cases originating both before and after the agreement.

Since the agreement was reached, Mr. Ilsley said, there had not been a single instance when such information was not available to Ontario and not one complaint had been received on that score from Ontario authorities.

New Panay Story.

In Shanghai, Major-General Kumakichi Harada, Japanese military attache, modified some details of his report on the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay by Japanese planes on December 12.

Harada announced additional investigation showed Panay cannon were not fired at Japanese troops, as he had said yesterday in a report which contradicted essential details as told by survivors.

Advices received by the United States flagship Augusta said Tsingtao was quiet. Chinese, however, expected an attack in retaliation for destruction of rich Japanese cotton mills by Chinese troops. Japanese placed the extent of the damage at about $87,000,000.

Additional fears of reprisal were aroused by the Japanese spokesman's report that a number of Shantung Province coal mines owned jointly by Chinese and Japanese were destroyed. He said Chinese damaged the properties to the extent of $4,000,000.

Fears were expressed Hankow would be cut off from other Chinese cities by fighting in Shantung Province and in South China which would sever rail and air services to Hong Kong and train service to Tsingtao.

Foreign officials in Hankow attempted to arrange evacuation of the 300 refugees on board the Woosung by an international train to Canton. The British cruiser Capetown, bottled up in the middle Yangtze, was able to clear the Matung boom which held up passage of the 2,486-ton refugee steamer.

Six other men were remanded to headquarters for questioning, and Marie Carbonneau, Signer's 23-year-old secretary, was freed in $100 bail. Lucien Gendron, counsel for Canadian Bankers' Association, said the girl was merely a "tool for the group."

Five others are sought on forgery warrants. The eight arrested are to come up for preliminary hearing on December 23.

The prisoners are accused of forgery and conspiracy. The frauds are alleged to have taken place between June, 1936, and October, 1937. The complaint lists 29 cheques for $7,000 to $600 and names the banks as the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank, Montreal City and District Savings Bank, Banque Canadienne Nationale, Canadian Bank of Commerce, and the Provincial Bank of Canada.

MILLAR WILL'S STORK DERBY CLAUSE IS UPHELD

Keep Off Hong Kong Is Britain's Warning To Japan

Eden Tells House Sanctions Mean Risk of War; Hints 2 Naval Powers in League Not Enough for Job

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The government drafted a protest to Japan today against infringement of Hong Kong, British crown colony, territorial waters by a Japanese ship which fired on and seized a Chinese customs vessel Dec. 11.

Sir Robert Craigie, British ambassador at Toyko, was instructed to present the protest.

The ambassador was told also to ask assurances that Japanese henceforth would respect Hong Kong and its territorial waters.

Sanctions Mean War.

LONDON, Dec. 22—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden, on the eve of today's cabinet meeting, told the House of Commons last night that sanctions to be effective mean "a risk, if not a certainty, of war."

The foreign secretary, winding up for the government a long debate on foreign policy, stated:

"Supposing that the opposition speakers have meant that the League (of Nations) should impose sanctions in the present dispute in the far east. I reply that there are two possible forms of sanctions; ineffective, which are not worth putting on, and effective, which means a risk, if not a certainty, of war.

"No one can contemplate any action of that kind in the far east unless they are convinced that they have overwhelming force to back that policy.

"Do they really think the League today, with only two great naval powers in it—Britain and France—has got the overwhelming force? It must be perfectly clear to everyone that that overwhelming force does not exist."

That was the foreign secretary's reply to labor suggestions the league, with the United States, should bring pressure to bear upon Japan in regard to her invasion of China.

Three countries outside Geneva were "Japan, who clearly by its action does not accept the rule of law, and Germany, who would not join the League to co-operate in enforcing the law, and the United States, though sympathetic to the rule of law, not prepared to undertake commitments," Mr. Eden added.

Three things Eden suggested are:

"1. We must do all we honorably can to secure a restoration of peace.

"2. We must do our full share with others in the fulfillment of our international obligations.

"3. We must protect our own interests and, of course, British territory."

No Lasting Patience.

Mr. Chamberlain, who spoke early in the debate, warned Japan that Britain's patience was not inexhaustible.

"What we are doing now," he said, "is to await proof of the determination and ability of the Japanese government to prevent a recurrence" of attacks on British lives and property in China.

"The Government are still anxious to serve the cause of peace by any honorable means open to us, but it must not be thought that our desire for peace and our patience under repeated provocation mean that we are unmindful of our International obligations or forgetful of our duty to protect British interests."

Mr. Eden assured the House there was no truth in reports Britain sought a colonial settlement with

TOBACCO JOBBER IS SHOT TO DEATH RESISTING HOLDUP

MONTREAL, Dec. 22—(CP)—Two gunmen shot Joseph S. Benoit to death today when he attempted to frustrate their efforts to rob his wholesale tobacco shop on Jacques Cartier Square.

Benoit, accompanied by his 18-year-old son, Pierre, had just opened the jobbing plant when the two men entered and asked for a package of cigarettes. As Benoit turned to a showcase behind him the intruders drew guns and warned the jobber to put up his hands. Instead, Benoit reached for a large glass cigar jar to hurl at the men who opened fire. The storekeeper fell behind the counter, two bullets in his back.

The son told officers of the police patrol squad which responded to the alarm he had no inkling of the holdup until he heard the shots fired. He caught a glimpse of the two men as they ran from the store and fled through the narrow neighboring streets, and he was taken to headquarters to examine pictures in the police gallery. A farmer, on his way to a nearby marketplace, also saw the men and went with the youth to headquarters to attempt identification.

Benoit was rushed to hospital but died before his wife, two daughters and another son could be summoned to his bedside from their Monkland avenue home.

Daylight had hardly broken when the shooting occurred, and there were few persons in the wholesale district where Benoit was known as a successful jobber. The son said the men also fired at him when he entered the shop from a rear storeroom but the bullets entered wooden framework on the shelves.

Proposed Changes To B.N.A. Act Sent to Provinces

King Refuses to Add Further Fire to Controversy Between Self and Hepburn on Power Export

OTTAWA, Dec. 22—(CP)—A Christmas hush today enveloped Parliament Hill as the government pushed aside its cares till next Tuesday and prepared to enjoy the holiday after a week of vigorous controversy with its arch-critic, Ontario's Premier Hepburn.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King emerged from yesterday's sparsely-attended cabinet meeting with the announcement copies were being prepared for circulation among the provinces of a proposed amendment to the British North America Act, designed to give the dominion jurisdiction over a national unemployment insurance plan.

Mr. Mackenzie King repeated a previous statement that details of a bill to authorize the insurance scheme would be disclosed only when the measure reaches parliament.

(The prime minister wrote all provincial premiers November 5 asking them to approve a constitutional amendment enabling the dominion to enact the insurance legislation. Premiers Dysart of New Brunswick, Duplessis of Quebec and Aberhart of Alberta asked for details of the scheme before giving their consent. The others agreed in principle).

FRACAS AT PARTY FOR BIRTH OF SON KILLS TED HEALEY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 22 (AP).—An autopsy was ordered today to determine whether Ted Healy, 41, stage and screen comedian, died from the effects of a fist fight which, police were told, climaxed a gay celebration of the birth of his son.

Although Healy's death was announced by his studio as due to a heart attack, police said they learned he was engaged in a fight Sunday night outside a Hollywood night club with an unknown adversary.

Detectives reported they learned Healy went to the night club to celebrate the birth last Friday of a son. His wife, still in hospital, was informed of his death last night.

Coroner Frank Nance said a cursory examination of the body showed a red, subcutaneous streak across Healy's left temple, possibly caused by a blow, and a deep gash above the left eye.

Previous Decision Against Illegitimate Stands; No Hope of Christmas Box for Any of 15 Claimants

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today upheld clause nine of the eccentric will of Charles Vance Millar of Toronto. It ruled his estate, estimated in excess of $500,000, should go to the mother or mothers who gave birth to the most children in Toronto between October 31, 1926 and October 31, 1936.

The Supreme Court left to Ontario courts the task of determining the mother or mothers entitled to the money as a dozen or more women have put in claims.

Validity of the will was questioned by two relatives of the Toronto millionaire lawyer, Arabella West and Alexander Butcher, who claimed it was contrary to public policy.

The next-of-kin contested clause nine of the will which left the residue of the estate to the mother of the largest number of children born in the 10 years following Millar's death. Millar himself described the will as "uncommon and capricious" in the preamble. Other clauses left brewery shares to clergymen and race track shares to opponents of racing.

The five judges who heard the appeal were unanimous in holding the contentious clause was a valid bequest. Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff delivered a judgment in which Justices Davis, Kerwin and Hudson concurred. Justice Crocket disagreed with some of the reasons of the other judges but arrived at the same conclusion and delivered a separate judgment.

Must Be Legitimate.

"The determintaion of this controversy as to validity involves the decision of a point of construction, viz., whether the word 'children,' as here employed (in the will), includes illegitimate children," wrote the Chief Justice.

"That question was answered in the negative by Mr. Justice Middleton and by the Ontario Court of Appeal. We think it sufficient to

SILENT DIPLOMAT FRANK B. KELLOGG DIES IN ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, Dec. 22 (A.P.). — The United States mourned to-day the death of Frank B. Kellogg, son of pioneer parents who raised himself to the heights of world statesmanship.

The former Secretary of State, diplomat, and World Court Judge, died last night on the eve of his 81st birthday anniversary.

During his long career in public life, Mr. Kellogg served as United States Senator from Minnesota, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Secretar [illegible] of State, and Judge of the World Court. He was named to the latter wo posts by former President Calvin Coolidge.

It was while he was Secretary of State that he joined Aristide Briand of France in authorship of the Peace Pact for which he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1929.

He retired from the World Court in 1935, after five years of service, and returned to his private law practice in St. Paul.

News of Mr. Kellogg's death was received with deep regret in Great Britain, where the British press had termed him "the silent diplomat" and "the friendly Ambassador" during his service in London. In France, a spokesman for the French Foreign Office called him "one of the world's greatest champions of peace."

Hope Of White Christmas Fades In Britain

Queen Will Officiate At Distribution Of Presents From Tree At Sandringham

By Edwin Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 22 (CP Cable).—Frigid blasts which brought the heaviest snowfall in years throughout the British Isles faded today before mild breezes and dashed the hopes of old and young in many sections for an old-time white Christmas.

Traces of snow are likely to remain in parts of Scotland and the northern counties, but the forecast points to fair, with rain and sleet, for the rest of the week.

Today the Royal Family moved to Sandringham in Norfolk, where Their Majesties will spend a quiet Christmas with their family. Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and the Duke and Duchess of Kent will join them.

The Princess Royal and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, are entertaining their own family party at Harewood House, near Leeds. It is expected, however, they will visit the King and Queen at Sandringham early in the New Year.

Prior to Their Majesties' departure, the King was presented with a huge Christmas tree, cut from the coppices of the Sandringham Estate, which will be erected in Westminster Abbey to mark the end of the Coronation year. Lighted with colored candles and loaded with gifts for needy children, the tree will be placed near the Tomb of the Unknown Warrior.

On their arrival at Sandringham the Queen will be busy supervising the distribution of presents to many villagers and tenants of the royal estate. On Christmas Eve the servants and tenants will attend a party at Sandringham House and receive

INQUIRY SHAKES RULE IN BUFFALO TO FOUNDATIONS

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The possibility of a prolonged inquiry into municipal affairs by a special grand jury loomed today as the result of recommendations by a grand jury which indicted seven of the 16 members of the city council.

The councilmen and six other men were indicted on charges ranging from forgery to perjury, falsification of records and obtaining proceeds from fraudulent vouchers.

An "overtime" grand jury investigating city affairs shook the officialdom of New York's second largest city to its roots for the second time in seven weeks yesterday by:

(1) Indicting four city councilmen, an assistant city paymaster, a former Erie county supervisor and four others;

(2) Including a plea in its final report for appointment of a special prosecutor to carry on the investigation—this work the jury described as a "gigantic task;"

(3) Requesting the setting up of an extraordinary grand jury to work with the special prosecutor.

Supreme Court Justice James E. Norton who received the jury's report said he had ordered the plea for a special prosecutor sent to Governor Lehman.

"It is not within my power to do anything," he explained. "It is up to the governor to take any action as he sees fit, and I have ordered the jury's recommendation for a special prosecutor forwarded to him."

Councilmen Give Up.

Shortly after the jury had returned 10 sealed indictments, four city councilmen appeared at police headquarters and were taken into custody. With their arrest they joined three other city councilmen indicted by the same Grand Jury early this month.

Three of the councilmen were arraigned immediately, pleaded not

MORE TROOPS FOR GARRISON AT HONG KONG

Royal Scots Ordered From Post at Bombay

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The War Office announced to-day that the British garrison at Hong Kong would be strengthened.

Action followed a 2½-hour review of the Oriental situation by the Cabinet.

The troopship Dumera prepared to leave Southampton to take aboard the Second Battalion of Royal Scots at Bombay. It will then go to Hong Kong, reaching the colony Jan. 28.

The Royal Scots "according to the normal trooping program," it was announced, would relieve the Royal Welch Fusiliers, normally at Hong Kong but at present on duty at Shanghai.

At its last session before the Christmas holidays the Cabinet was understood to have decided what steps should be taken in the event of further incidents in China.

Meanwhile, the Government's attitude was to await proof of Japan's "determination and ability" to prevent these incidents in the Orient and at the same time to keep in close touch with Washington.

Fresh from the Cabinet meeting, Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons that the possible spread of hostilities in Kwangtung province in South China was "being carefully watched."

He gave assurance that "all possible protection is being and will be afforded to our trade interests in South China."

Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, indicated in response to a question, that the navy was ready for whatever contingency might arise.

LAST BODY FOUND OUTSIDE OF DAM

PORT STANLEY, Ont., Dec. 22.—(CP).—Body of Allan Bisbee, 24, of White Station, who perished with seven other workmen in the collapse of the cofferdam in Kettle Creek here, was taken from the water today.

It was the last body to be recovered, three being located Monday and four yesterday.

Bisbee's body was found in the tangled wreckage of the coffer dam that crashed Sunday night while the eight workmen were "mucking" at the bottom, 30 feet under the creek's surface.

Timbers were lifted last night and divers to-day explored the entire bottom of the dam and reported there were no more bodies there.

Then they went down the outside of the west wall of the dam and found Bisbee's body about three feet from the wall.

Diver Fred Montour said the body had been carried over the wall by the wash at the time of the dam's collapse.

BANK AT MAPLE LOOTED OF $300

MAPLE, Ont., Dec. 22.—(CP).—Two armed men robbed the Maple branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce of $300 to-day, escaping in a stolen car. Maple is 15 miles north of Toronto.

The branch manager, H. Bryan, told police he was alone in the office when the robbers entered. The teller, only other employee in the small branch, was out to lunch. One man stood guard over Bryan, pointing a revolver at him, while the other went to the teller's cage and stuffed all the available cash into his pockets.

Bryan called police as soon as the men had left.

ALARMS MEAN NOTHING

CALGARY, Dec. 22—(CP)—Burglars who entered the store of S. R. Cable in Ogden, a Calgary suburb, yesterday disconnected two alarms the storekeeper thought had been well concealed, knocked the combination off the safe, and escaped with loot valued at $1,018, including cash, cheques, and some jewelery.

HEPBURN IS MUM UPON CONFERENCE

TORONTO, Dec. 22 (CP)—Interprovincial problems and proposed submission to the Rowell Royal Commission investigating federal-provincial relations were discussed at the Ontario-Quebec conference concluded here yesterday, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said today.

"I have no announcement regarding the conference," said Mr. Hepburn when asked if its conclusion would be made public. "I have no statement to make and I want the public to know that anything said about the conference is pure speculation. We discussed interprovincial relations and the proposed submission to the Rowell Commission."

Asked if a joint submission would be made to the commission, Mr. Hepburn said: "I'm not amplifying that statement."

Chinese Appreciate Taggers Aid

Saskatoon, Dec. 22 (CP)

SASKATOON Chinese showed their appreciation and gratitude today when they sent presents to the 65 women and girls who sold tags for the Chinese Red Cross last Saturday. Proceeds totalled $875.

Ernest Chan, student engineer of the University of Saskatchewan, wrapped 65 parcels in Christmas trimmings. In the parcels was everything from silk bedroom slippers to tea, candy and Chinese silk articles. The gifts were individual contributions by Saskatoon Chinese, and were not bought from the money raised by the taggers.

8,000 In Two Weeks Reported To Have Swelled Franco's Army

LONDON, Dec. 22—(CP-Havas)—The Daily Herald, Labor organ, charged to-day Premier Mussolini had sent 8,000 Moors from Italian East Africa to Spain during the past fortnight.

In a dispatch from its Gibraltar correspondent, the newspaper said:

"Mussolini has found a new way of supplying Franco with troops—this time Arabs—without legally contravening the non-intervention agreement.

"The self-proclaimed Protector of Islam,' Il Duce, has sent thousands of Arabs from his North African possessions by means of a trick. The Italian authorities there (in North Africa) got them on board ship by telling them they are to visit the holy shrine of Mulai Idris, Fez in French Morocco.

"They never reach Fez. Instead they are enrolled in the Spanish Foreign Legion on the promise of about five pesetas a day—a princely sum to an Arab. It is estimated that between seven and eight thousand Arabs from Tripoli, all in Moorish uniforms, have been disembarked at rebel ports in the past fortnight and promptly entrained for the north.

"The Spanish merchant ships Lazaro Cister and Vicente Puchol and two ex-[illegible] Italian steamships

Ontario Museum Specialist Talks Of Canada 400 Million Years Ago

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—(CP).—Four hundred million years ago the climate of Canada was hotter than tropical, Dr. Madeleine Fritz said today.

Dr. Fritz, small and blue-eyed, sat at her desk in the Royal Ontario Museum of Palaeontology, and talked about things which, by a paradox, are so old they are news.

Between three and four hundred million years ago, coral reefs abounded around the south-western fringe of Ontario; sponges lived in the seas washing over Hamilton; and "sea lillies," a kind of shell-fish, flourished on the present site of Peterborough.

Dr. Fritz looks cooly back through the Aeons. The prairie provinces are about the driest places in Canada at present, but a mere fifty million years ago they were swept by a vast inland sea, she tells you calmly.

Then she takes you outside her office, shows you reconstructed skeletons and other evidence of the monstrous reptiles—half the size of street cars and larger—that swam in the lagoons and battled on the

Refuse To Declare Redfern Dead

Detroit, Dec. 22 (AP)

JUDGE Edward Command denied today a petition by Mrs. Gertrude S. Redfern asking the court to declare her aviator husband, Paul Redfern, legally dead. The petition was denied on the grounds the court does not have jurisdiction. Redfern has been missing since Aug. 26, 1927, on an attempted non-stop flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Chicago, Dec. 22 (AP)

THE feminine younger generation has gone "sensible" in wearing apparel.

It is their mothers — and grandmothers — who still think they must freeze in silver this-and-thats to be fashionable.

Their college - age daughters have gone in for such items as: Ear-muffs, hoods, mittens, wool socks, galoshes, flannel night gowns, long sleeved and high neck cotton pajamas, and woolen heavies. Some of the latter are in red.

Silk and wool underwear in the knee length variety in colors — red, green, blue, yellow—are favored by the younger generation for winter sports.

It was observed coeds crowded the counters in department stores where long-sleeved and high neck light-weight flannel gowns— some with tiny rose-bud patterns — and ski-suit pajamas were being sold.

Coyote Bags Geese, Buries Them Alive But Eats Gander When He Objects

Red Deer, Alta., Dec. 22 (CP)

A MARAUDING coyote raided the flock of geese of Mrs. S. Shock, driving them out along a snow-covered creek. One-by-one the geese were buried alive by the coyote — Mr. and Mrs. Shock claimed—probably for future dinners.

Following the coyote tracks, the farm couple found all the geese alive, each buried beneath a pile of snow.

But Eri, the gander-boss of the flock, was missing. They found his remains and the marks of a terrific battle. He had refused to be buried alive.

Spanish Loyalists Take Teruel Smash Rebel Line

Greatest Government Victory in 17-Month War; Populace Emerges From Caverns to Hail Victors

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Government forces have captured Teruel, insurgent officers said they were advised today by General Franco's headquarters.

Official government dispatches—following an earlier premature announcement that the strategic provincial capital had been occupied—indicated part of the old quarter known as "The City of Rock" remained in insurgent hands.

Only isolated bands of the garrison still were resisting, Franco's officers acknowledged. They said Salamanca headquarters considered the city as lost.

Official insurgent spokesmen refused to confirm or deny government capture of the city. Insurgent officers, however, said reports indicated Franco would re-establish his line from Albarracin across the Teruel-Zaragoza highway about six miles north of Teruel.

Government troops fought their way across a ravine to attack the old Teruel fortress where the insurgent defenders made their last stand.

The major part of Teruel was in government hands after a battle in which thousands of men were reported killed or wounded.

Bull Ring the Key Point

(Dispatches from Valencia said Teruel fell when government attackers stormed and captured a bull ring where the insurgent defenders made a last stand against bayonet charges.

(Madrid hailed the success at Teruel as the greatest in the 17 months old civil conflict. The last Teruel census showed 12,000 inhabitants but refugees were believed to have swelled the city to 20,000 or 25,000.

(The civilian population, the government said, emerged from subterranean hiding places and welcomed the government troops with "wild demonstrations of enthusiasm.") guilty and were released on bail. They were:

Fifty thousand troops took part in the government's drive to smash the Teruel spearhead which had constantly threatened to split the government's coastal territory between Valencia and Barcelona or to sever Madrid-Valencia communications.

John J. Doyle, Democrat, indicted on two counts of obtaining proceeds from a fraudulent voucher for $84.40; and John J. Kennedy, Republican; and George J. Young, Republican, both indicted on a similar charge.

A fourth councilman indicted was not arraigned immediately but was allowed time to raise the necessary bail.

Also arraigned on 11 counts of forgery, third degree, and 10 counts of falsification of records was Assistant City Paymaster Henry J. Roesch.

Roesch stopped the reading of his indictment saying:

"I know what's in it—the Grand Jury couldn't count over 21—I plead innocent."

Among other indictments were former Erie County Supervisor Stanley J. Pogrozelski, Democrat, and Charles S. Salman, former city-paid Works Progress Administration Supervisor.

Pogrozelski was arraigned on charges of perjury before the Grand Jury. Salman's indictment charged him with first degree perjury and on two counts of obtaining money for a false and fraudulent claim.

FORMER PT. HOPE LAWYER IS GIVEN 2-YEAR SENTENCE

COBOURG, Dec. 22 (CP).—Fred W. McMahon, former Port Hope solicitor, was sentenced to two years in penitentiary by Judge L. V. O'Connor in County Court yesterday. McMahon pleaded guilty to four charges of theft of money from clients involving sums totalling $5,800.

C. L. Snyder represented the Attorney-General's Department in the case. J. C. McRuer, K.C., Toronto, gave character evidence, and said he was familiar with McMahon's life.

The McMahon family was in abject poverty and, contrary to reports, there was no money put away in safe-keeping for after-use.

"His wife, a university graduate, is keeping roomers in her efforts to support herself and her children, and the children are but poorly clad," Mr. McRuer said. "The accused has put up a hard struggle to rehabilitate himself. He became mentally unbalanced when things crashed about him in December of 1933, and was at Whitby until March of 1935.

Hard Road Back.

"After his release, he worked in a relief camp for 20 cents a day, then as a laborer at Algonquin Park for 25 cents an hour. After that, he worked in the Pension Department, and when he was let out later secured a job as a mechanic's helper.

"I know the family well and I know how hard he has tried to get back on his feet again. There is no chance of his making restitution at the present time."

Mr. Snyder expressed himself as "deeply moved" by the plea made on Mr. McMahon's behalf. It was not a happy mission he had been sent down to perform in prosecuting the case, he said.

Passing sentence, Judge O'Connor said it was the most difficult task he had ever had occasion to perform. He knew Mr. McMahon personally, and had regarded him as one of the brightest young lawyers in the province. He felt a lawyer who had not received the particular experience which a law career required was in a position to make mistakes.

HOPE OF WHITE CHRISTMAS FADES

gifts at the hands of the King and Queen from a giant Christmas tree. This will be followed by carol-singing and dancing.

Turkey From Own Farm.

On Christmas Day the Royal Family and their guests will gather around the luncheon table where a turkey from the King's own farm will be served with viands from scattered parts of the Empire.

After luncheon the King will go to his study to broadcast the first Christmas message of his reign—custom inaugurated by His Majesty's late father.

Referring to His Majesty's decision to follow his father's practice of broadcasting a Christmas message, The Times says:

"The quality which made each of those addresses an emotional experience never to be forgotten can best be seen perhaps as the paternal element in the nature of Kingship.

"Then more than at any other time did the King reveal himself as the father of his people, with the privileges of intimacy as well as the authority which only a father could claim.

"The Empire will necessarily and rightly hear his son speak in accents different in kind, but no less heartening, when the wireless gathers its vast audience at the close of the Coronation year."

Their Majesties are expected to stay in Norfolk for four or five weeks before returning to Buckingham Palace.

CRASHES UP 522 IN 11 MONTHS TORONTO ROADS

More Drunk, Reckless Drivers Are Convicted

TORONTO, Dec. 22. — (CP).—There were more traffic accidents, involving fatalities and injury during the past 11 months in Toronto than over the same period in 1936, according to figures released by Chief Constable D. C. Draper yesterday.

An increase is also shown in the convictions of motorists intoxicated driving, reckless driving and speeding. Chief Draper appealed to motorists and pedestrians to exercise common sense as a remedy to reduce the number of accidents, all of which, he believed, could be avoided by motorists and pedestrians pausing to use their heads.

In the 11 months ended Nov. 30, there were 6,692 traffic accidents, resulting in 63 fatalities and 3,271 injured. This is an increase of 522 accidents, 10 fatalities and 143 injured persons as compared with the same 11 months in 1936.

From June until November, there were 994 cases of reckless driving in Toronto traffic courts and of this number, 523 were convicted. There were 40 cases of drunken driving and 30 were convicted. In 5,838 cases of speeding, 5,478 drivers were convicted.

Of 63 persons killed by cars this year, 52 were pedestrians, and of the 3,271 persons injured, all but 895 were persons travelling on foot.

say that we agree with this conclusion, which rests upon the reasons fully stated in the able judgments delivered by the Chief Justice of Ontario and Mr. Justice Riddell in the Court of Appeal and by Mr. Justice Middleton; and we think it unnecessary to add anything to these reasons.

"The remaining question, concerning which we express our views more at length, is raised by the contention that this clause is void as against public policy. In support of that contention we have had a powerful argument from Mr. Hellmuth (I. F. Hellmuth, counsel for the next of kin); but giving due weight to it we find ourselves in agreement with the conclusions of the Ontario Judges who unanimously held the clause to be valid."

Among the mothers who may benefit under the bequest are Mrs. Martin Kenny who claims she has given birth to 12 children in Toronto within the 10-year period; Mistresses Kathleen Nagle, Lucy Timleck, Annie Smith, Hilda Graziano, Grace Bagnato, and Vera Meldrum, claiming nine each; Mrs. Pauline Mae Clark claiming 10 births within the period and nine of them in Toronto; Mrs. Mary Feegan, and Mrs. A. Harrison, claiming eight; Mrs. Margaret Lescomb, claiming seven; Mrs. Manuel Darrigo, claiming six; Mrs. Isabel MacLean, Mrs. Jennie Amodeo and Mrs. Clarence Kitts with unreported numbers of children.

The judgment will bring no Christmas influx of cash to any of these families, however much it may stir up hopes. Determination of the mother or mothers who will ultimately benefit may take considerable time.

The next-of-kin may decide to appeal the judgment to the judicial committee of the Privy Council but if they do not the next step will probably be a further reference to the Ontario courts to settle how the money is to be distributed.

Some judge will probably be asked to say which mother or which group of mothers has qualified. In the event of two or more mothers being tied with an equal number of children the money would likely be divided between them.

The courts may require steps to be taken by the executors to find out whether any mother who have not come forward may be eligible. The will says the money is to go to the mother who gave birth to the largest number as shown by registrations under the Vital Statistics Act.

In discussing the question of public policy as a reason for setting aside contracts or bequests, the Chief Justice said each case should be brought within some established head of public policy. That had not been done in this case.

Failing that, before the rule could be applied it should be shown the safety of the estate, the economic or social well-being of the state or the people as a whole was involved or that the harm to the public was substantially incontestable and did not depend on the conferences of a few judges. Neither of these latter conditions obtain in the Millar appeal, he said.

Find No Harm in Idea.

"We find it impossible to affirm," he wrote, "from any knowledge we have that a policy of encouraging large families by pecuniary rewards to the parents or donations to the children would have a tendency injurious to the state or to the people as a whole; still less than anything like unanimity in favor of such a proposition could be assumed.

"It is not sufficient to say that some people may be, or probably would be, tempted by the hope of obtaining this legacy to conduct themselves in a manner injurious to wife and children . . . .

"One could easily conjure up the possibility that similar temptations might be inspired by a bequest of a large fortune to the grandchildren of a testator, to be divided equally among them, as inviting each of the children to have a numerous offspring in order to secure for his family as large a proportion as possible of the inheritance.

"Conceive the case of a bequest of a large sum of money to each child of a given woman to vest at its birth. Such a bequest might, one could imagine, in some cases give rise to temptations similar to those whose possibility, it is said, is sufficient to invalidate the disposition before us.

May Recall Jap Commanders

ADM. K. HASEGAWA GEN. IWANE MATSUI

With Japan making every effort to appease American anger at the bombing and sinking of the gunboat Panay on the Yangtse river near Nanking, possibility exists that both ranking Nipponese commanders in the drive to crush China may be recalled by the emperor and replaced. The recall, tantamount to an apology by the Mikado to whom alone the officers consider themselves responsible, would practically terminate the careers of both commanders. Gen. Iwane Matsui is the army chief and Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, the navy commander.

A new Canadian record in the 305-day, three-year-old, twice-a-day milking division was established by Supreme Ruby Echo, owned by James R. Henderson, Portsmouth, Ont. She gave 19,006 pounds milk, 650 pounds fat.

Highest production was 30,026 pounds milk and 1,081 pounds fat, made in the mature class by Springbank Abbekerk Adaline, bred and owned by T. R. Dent, Woodstock. She is followed in her class by Northcote July Fancy, bred and owned by X. Plaunt & Son, Renfrew, with 26,279 pounds milk, and 996 pounds fat.

David Krick & Sons, Stoney Creek, had the leaders in the four and three-year-old classes. First among the 89 two-year-olds qualifying was a heifer owned by H. F. Boake, Downsview.

In the 305-day division, J. T. Brown, Bowmanville, had the mature class leader, while A. J. Tamblyn, Orono, owned the best two-year-old. On a twice-a-day milking, 40 cows qualified in the 305-day division, the leader being Mona Segis Lestrange, owned by Nagel Brothers, Fisherville, with 20,966 pounds milk, and 712 pounds fat.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Wheat futures lost most of yesterday's gains in a drab session on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. It took only minor sales in sympathy with easier overseas markets to depress prices, with final quotations 1¾ to ¼ cent lower. December $1.26½, May $1.16 ¼ to ⅜, and July $1.10.

A minor export trade in Canadian wheat was estimated below 100,000 bushels, but even exporters withdrew near the close.

While premiums for Nos. 1 and 2 Northern wheat advanced slightly above 21⅛ and 17⅛ cents above the May future, the better values failed to bring about business.

Liverpool gave way to Australian new wheat hedging and United States selling to close ¼d to ⅝d lower.

Provincial Youth Training Program Aims To Solve The Problem

(This is the story of how several of the unemployed youth of Ontario lived from day to day, as told by Dr. Charles Sinclair, director of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Program. Dr. Sinclair put on old clothes, went and lived among these men for several days.—Editor)

"Unemployed youth in Canada—between twenty-five and eighteen—are numerous as combined populations of Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Trenton, Belleville, Napanee, Kingston, Gananoque, Brockville, Prescott, Cornwall, and Ottawa," states the Dominion - Provincial Youth Programme statistician, J. Irwin.

Snow slithered into mucky slush dribbling down my neck as I entered the Employment Service of Canada two Saturdays before Christmas. In the special section reserved for the Dominion - Provincial Youth Training Plan, I saw a lad uneasily sleeping—huddled against an unresponsive wall.

"Where did you hit the hay last night?" I asked, handing him a cigarette. "I did not sleep—I have no where to go." "You mean you stayed on the streets?" "Yes—I know a fellow in a hamburg stand—saw him about two o'clock and sat in a chair till six." "Had any breakfast?" "No." "Any money left?" "Not just now." Weary, blood-riddled eyes — bitter lined mouth—two days' stub covering a background of boils caused through lack of food—confirmed his story, as shown in official Employment Service records.

Bill Cheney—born in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, twenty-two years ago, unreservedly shares his life with us. He has resided in Ontario since 1927 when his father with C.N.R. came to Ottawa. Bill moved to Toronto in 1929 — attended Lester Street School — reached Junior Fourth—and left in 1930, when the cruel teeth of depression made themselves felt.

First Job Delivery Boy

Bill's first job was delivery boy. Next, two years a bread salesman for a well-known Toronto company. During two and a half years more, this plucky Canadian, battled against bitter odds selling sewing machines. For the last three months he has had no work.

All Bill's life has been covered by shadows. "Mother was ill for twelve years before she passed on." After school—after work—Bill would care for his two sisters. Wash—iron—and cook. "I can make a pie as well as a woman," he drew thoughtfully on his "tailor-made" — deep hungry puffs.

"All my life I have been pushed into everything I have done. I didn't want to leave school—didn't want to go delivering," he concluded simply, as he gave, in his downright friendly way, details of trouble at home that would permanently discourage any one less manly than Bill. He likes selling, and is ambitious to become a salesman for a reliable wholesaler.

He drew out a dog-eared pocket book. A few faded pitiful photos lay inside—one was his mother! Entirely characteristic was his courage when he remained dry-eyed for the sake of his sisters, as Mom "passed on."

Beside two greenish "pink-pongs," frayed with age, reposed a photo torn in half—his best girl. "I went with her two years—she left without a word," he muttered wearily. "I never saw her again." "She was a fine girl — I don't know why she quit."

"Do you think young folk get restless—discontented — and miserable because they can see no hope of getting married—have no work—skill—or opportunity?"

"That's right—it's only natural to want a girl of your own." Bill's cut and grime wrinkled fingers shook a moment — then he jerked himself upright in his chair—put away his pictures.

The Dominion - Provincial Youth Training Programme seeks to place him. Bill has more than earned a chance to work. Every lad has a right to at least one real opportunity in life.

The lad next to Bill attracted instant attention by his carriage. He would have held his own in an Olympic group. Harry King began life eighteen and a half years ago in Saskatchewan. He has worked in Northern Ontario in lumber camps and mines. His saw-mill closed down recently, and Harry's attempt to find work locally was unsuccessful.

One Meal A Day

"I have a comrade who has a room on Bond street. He is not working either, and is registered in the men's section of the Employment Service himself. He wrote me I could stay with him a week, and he would buy me one meal a day," Harry stated simply.

"Do you cook your own meals or eat out?" "Eat out—can get a dinner on Church street for 15 cents—leaves ten cents for breakfast or supper at night."

"Had anything today?" "No, perhaps I might get a cup of coffee. My boy friend and I eat together at night." "You and Bill better eat on me, I want to snap you; my camera is at Queen's Park." "Got anything else to do?" "You bet we'd like to come," the boys sang, without the least attempt to fake their famished eagerness for hot food and a bit of companionship.

Harry's mother died when he was very young. "Father married again; my step-mother was always good to me. I did not know about my real mother till I stumbled on some letters." Harry's experience exactly parallels the background of many fine Canadian lads. Home is broken up—too young—alone — with only Christian courage, and earnest desire to make a place for themselves —young Canadians are forced to face an environment decidedly hostile.

Harry left school in Saskatoon at 9th grade, when he was fourteen. His dad, manager of a beauty school, got him a job to learn the hardware trade. Harry worked twelve to fourteen hours a day, for two and a half dollars a week. He left the job and home—when his father "collected" his wages. For two years he paid into the home two dollars — keeping only fifty cents for himself—He tried to enlist in the Navy, but was rejected; because of color blindness.

Wye, Ontario, was his home for two years. His Toronto chum—aged 26—has little for his own needs, but like the widow who gave two mites to the Temple Treasure—two thousand years ago—gave all he had—permission to share his mean room at Bond street. It contains a doubtful looking double bed — chest of drawers—wash stand—but was so cramped it was impossible for Harry and Bill to be photographed.

"Have you ever had a girl friend?" I asked the six-foot blonde young giant, noting his white even teeth, strong enough to tear hide from a crocodile. His skin is clear, slightly transparent—red, honest blood, pulsing beneath—brings a delicate color to his cheeks. Harry can smile as well with his blue greyish eyes as his mouth; exquisitely formed into a perfect "cupids bow." Every inch of this vital Canadian cries "breeding." Character, force and purpose, lie in each unconscious gesture. He could serve as a pattern for the sacred memory every mother cherishes of lads who sleep in hushed Flanders twilight.

In spite of slush that slithered over Toronto's weary pavements, neither lad wore a hat. Harry did not have one he told me, between incessant coughs.

"Yes, I had a girl back home, but I had no money. A fellow has to buy a girl things a bit—take in a show—candies. I could not do it, so quit going with her."

"Do you think under today's conditions, when it's tough getting married—it's right for a fellow and girl to have relationships?"

"No!—I certainly don't." "That's the worst that can happen." Why?" "Well—if you do that sort of thing—I believe you would lose confidence in each other—feel miserable afterwards." "I don't know much about it—but know I would lose my own self-respect."

"Bill—you have seen more of life, perhaps, than Harry has—and certainly have knocked around more—what's your honest opinion about love—would you mind sharing it with us?"

"Same as what Harry has just said." "It's only natural to want a girl—necking is all right — but it should not go beyond that." "Why?—is it because there might be consequences of such an act—either to the girl or yourself?" "Yes, that's one reason." "As Harry said, it would hurt you more inside." "I know what mother would have thought if I did." "I haven't a job—no eats—not a red cent in the world—I have always lived the way mother wanted me to—I can look anyone in the face —anywhere."

Harry and Bill are not exceptions. Fine Canadian young people now needing help, desperately, come from the best homes in our country. Mothers of all faiths—mothers whose tears have worn furrows on faces from one end to the other of our land, as nightly these women echo the cry of Mary before the cross—"My son!—My son!"

Program is Helping.

The identity of the lad interviewed cannot be given. All facts are official—checked—and on Employment Service records—though not available except through this interview.

He was formerly with a paint factory. Apparently too much paint left through the back door, instead of the front, and "Oliver Twist," who played a most subordinate part, became the guest of His Majesty for months. He is twenty-two in December.

A Toronto boy—regular member of an organized Bible class—no father—and mother constantly sick—was the background. Earnings were needed to maintain their feeble family circle, and after becoming a Royal guest—he found no one would employ him.

"Oliver" registered under the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training program, and kindly—Christian—vocational guidance counsellors, became rapidly sensitive to the innate honesty—really sterling character, of this young man. "If we all get our just deserts, most of us would have been hanged long ago." "If we hold this lad's mistake permanently against him, how will he ever get a start," remarked Fred Marsh, director of Employment Service.

Another paint manufacturer was approached, and 'Oliver's' life shared with him. His ready and wise response has brought "Oliver" a new day—and another start. Youth always looks to tomorrow!

Ontario cities are holding Youth Rally meetings to provide support for the Dominion - Provincial Youth Training program—boards of trade, municipal authorities, and employers of labor are organizing to take apprentices when circumstances permit. It is realized delinquency and indigency have roots in economic circumstances such as the background of the lads who "shared" with you in this interview. Either work, and means to make a secure home, and raise a family must be found for youth, or the next five years will see a bill for social services of gigantic proportions. Lives of these citizens are our care. The problem is one of character adjustment, and perhaps kindly influence at the turning point in some wayward life, as well as provision of economic opportunity," stated Frank Bott, vocational guidance officer.

The method of attack is to break the province into local fronts—enlist support of citizens' committees to co-operate with the Employment Service, under the direction of H. C. Hudson. There are more than thirty Ontario branches.

Funds are available for two things —a living allowance for those taking training—and payment for instruction in some industry. Classes are formed, and instruction given, to those definitely promised apprenticeship or learnership positions, or a percentage of the wages earned during a period not to exceed thirteen weeks will be provided by the plan.

Employers can insure against shortage of skilled workers if they call the nearest Employment Service branch. A special Youth Training representative will call and explain the plan.

The Public Relations Department will assist in organizing meetings—supply speakers—and provide literature.

The present grant terminates at the end of March, 1938, and immediate action is indicated if unemployed youth are to derive the fullest benefit from funds provided.

DIFFERENCE IN SPEEDERS

LAURINBURG, N.C., Dec. 22. — (AP).—Church officials asked police to patrol a dangerous curve near the church during worship; the reason —there was too much noise.

The police obliged.

The first speeder stopped was a preacher; the second, the county judge; the third, a deacon.

The curve is patrolled no longer.

SLIPPERY ROADS CAUSE MISHAPS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, DEC. 22. — Slippery roads accounted for at least one accident in the Campbellford district to-day when Bill Wilson, of Belleville, broke over the top of a hill on the Hastings Road about three miles from Campbellford and found a car and trailer blocking the road near the bottom of the hill. The car and trailer belonged to Wilfred Spencer of Rawdon, who had slipped down the hill backwards when his car had not sufficient momentum to reach the top due to the ice. Provincial Constable D. G. Campbell was called to the scene and although no one was hurt both cars were considerably damaged.

LOTS OF TURKEY

ANTIGONISH, N.S. — (CP). — What proved to be the largest farmers' co-operative poultry pool ever held in Nova Scotia was conducted here this month, when approximately 17 tons of turkey was marketed. This is more than twice the total marketed in the turkey pool last year in Antigonish.

Husbands Who Walk Out

Relief Commissioner Conlon informed York Township Council that included in the families on relief were 105 where the husband and father had deserted. The cost of keeping these families amounts to $6,000 a month. The trouble is that officials in York township can do very little about it. In the first place they do not know where the husbands are. If they find out where one is they would have to pay the cost of transportation to bring him home. In York township they have followed the plan of having each deserted wife or mother take out a warrant for her husband on the ground of desertion, but that has produced little result.

The problem always has been about the same. If a husband is brought back he may be ordered to do certain things by the court; if he found work he might be ordered to pay a certain amount each week for the support of his family. But if he decided to desert and leave home again he could do it readily enough. In England a husband who does not make his payments as ordered is sent to jail for thirty days, but when he is in jail he is earning nothing and the state has to keep him.

It is entirely a miserable situation by which a man can found a home, become the father of children, and then pick up and leave, preferring to allow society in general to take over the responsibility which is his own. The thing is undoubtedly more acute in times of depression, but there has always been a loose end by which a good-for-nothing husband could walk out knowing that if the arm of the law did reach him it would not hurt him much. And that condition still exists and it is the explanation of why there are 105 deserting husbands among the families on relief in York township.

Doing A Great Work

There is an old saw about the men in the fire hall playing checkers, but it doesn't fit in around the Peterborough headquarters. Certainly there is time in any fire hall which has to be filled in and that could not be otherwise. It suits the community splendidly when the men on the fire department have nothing to do in the way of fighting fires.

It is hardly possible for the people of this city to go to the fire station and see the manner in which members of the department have been employing their time within recent weeks. The basement looks like a workshop of which Santa Claus himself and at his best would not be ashamed. There are children in families who will be well provided for who otherwise might find the Christmas season a trifle drab.

The dolls which come to the fire hall may have seen better days. The eyes which used to close so beautifully when the doll was placed on her back for a night's rest may close no more. Or perhaps they will not open. It may be a new set of eyes is required. Perhaps a leg or an arm has been broken or even fractured. The method of dealing with that seems quite right and proper. The doll gets a new leg or a new arm, a species of treatment which is far in advance of anything which has yet been devised for the human body. When the little lady doll emerges from her course of treatment she has become indeed a new creature. She can move in the company of other dolls without the slightest embarrassment; she need offer no apologies in any company for eyes which had been a trifle haywire or for legs or arms which had suffered a bit in the stress of juvenile endearment.

There are trains in the fire hall which run now. No longer do they stand listlessly to one side bereft of their means of locomotion; there are ducks and bears which move about instead of lying helplessly at the side of the toyland road.

And all these things are going to be given away. The firemen will not make a cent out of it. So that old saw about the firemen playing checkers will have to be laid on the shelf for a while.

Parking Problem Remains

Looking over the record of the council of 1937, Peterborough ratepayers will find to their satisfaction evidence of progress, undertakings that were contemplated and done, and some others that were obviously too ambitious for immediate approach. Early in the year there was some mention of the possibility of the federal government combining its local services under one roof with some faint vision of the city acquiring a new city hall in the shuffle. That idea faded into the background, but not into the discard. Adequate marketing accommodation was also sketchily discussed, but was edged out to the rim of civic affairs under the necessity and pressure of clipping items from the budget as it was translated into a lower tax rate.

While ambition was still on the wing before it was brought down to earth by municipal realities, the council had paused a while to speak about the need of finding enlarged and convenient parking space for automobiles. Most ratepayers are perhaps content that nothing was done about that matter, but some others will be inclined to regret that the council failed to tackle it. Central parking spaces are a universal problem born of the highly productive automobile factories. In the big cities the providing of parking accommodation involves heavy expenditure of money. Peterborough may not escape without some cost, but at any rate nothing is being gained by delay and postponement.

This city is the hub of a wide area of central Ontario. It has an established reputation as an attractive and profitable trading and shopping centre. An added incentive to people of the district to come here would be ample and convenient parking spaces for automobiles. This year's council admitted this problem exists. They even talked of the possibility of buying the large area of vacant land behind the row of roughcast stores on Charlotte Street. There must be other blank spaces in the centre of the city, apart from the market square and the yards around the C.P.R.

Nothing of this problem will be found in the list of projects left over for the council of 1938, but it has not diminished in the least since it was mentioned nearly a year ago. A committee of three or four men might do Peterborough a fine service by assuming the community's parking problem, and devising means by which local and visiting motorists can obtain handy space for their cars close to the business section.

A Hard Thing To Do

Oshawa's tax rate for 1938 has been tentatively placed at 31 mills which is an increase of half a mill over the present year. The reason for the increase is that there has been a reduction of $123,000 in the total assessment, and that reduction meant the wiping out of $12,000 taxation.

And that system of course means there will be two classes of taxpayers for 1938, (1) those who will pay the higher rate of taxation upon a decreased assessment, and (2) those who will pay the higher tax rate on an assessment which has not been reduced. That is where the difficulty of changing assessment comes in. When there is a reduction made it is never on a scale which touches all the property in the community. Those who are able to show good cause for reduction or who are insistent in looking after such matters may have their assessment reduced, while other ratepayers who never darken the doors of the court of revision are apt to keep on paying at their former rates.

Changing an assessment rate in a community and then changing the tax rate so the amount raised will be none the less is too much like a bit of financial juggling which is going to do the taxpayer no good.

Britain's Way Of Peace

Prime Minister Chamberlain spoke in the British House of Commons, and it was the troubled international situation which claimed his attention. There has been an exchange of notes between Britain and Japan, and the points at issue between these nations have not been settled.

The British Prime Minister spoke quietly but with emphasis. And about what? We quote:

"We have a definite objective in front of us. That objective is a general settlement of the grievances of the world without war. We are still anxious to serve the cause of peace by any honorable means open to us, but it must not be thought that our desire for peace and our patience under repeated provocation mean that we are either indifferent to our international obligations or that we are forgetful of our duty to protect British interests."

That is a form of world leadership for which this troubled old sphere can be profoundly thankful. It had within it that courageous sort of dignity which does not cherish an affront neither is it indifferent to it. If the world is to have peace it is no idle boast to say that it will be British-made peace.

His Art Perished With Him

Antonio Stradivari died 200 years ago. During his life—and it was a long one for he died at 93—he is known to have produced 1,100 violins. He knew nothing of what we call mass production. He made one violin at a time and it was good. In Europe today there are 540 of his instruments known to exist and in United States there are 170. The other 390 violins made by Stradivari are listed as having been lost or destroyed.

Covering a wide range which takes in many countries of the world there is scarcely a week passes without the claim being made that some individual has found another "Strad." Generally the story says it has been in the attic of some old home for many years and has been handed down from some previous generation, and the people had no idea they were in possession of a violin made by the famous Italian. These stories almost without exception are not according to fact. The real "Strad" has a transparent mellow varnish, shading delicately between orange and yellow. One secret of the tone is contained in this peculiar varnish, and the formula for that varnish and the method of its application has so far baffled science. It is something that perished with Stradivari. It is said that the great violinists of the world today, even blindfolded, could tell a Stradivari with the first stroke of the bow. All these violins are registered and they have pedigrees as exacting and authentic as those of a thoroughbred horse.

The world has made a great many advances since Antonio Stradivari died at Cremona, Italy two centuries ago, but the world has not learned how to make a violin equal to his. That is why his instruments are valued as high as $50,000 today.

Back To His Cabin

"Grey Owl" the noted Indian naturalist is returning to his cabin 100 miles north of Prince Albert from England—a disappointed man. He was booked to give a farewell broadcast during the British Broadcasting Corporation's children's hour but refused to go on the air when portions of his script were delated on the grounds that he was referring to blood sports.

The passage scored out by the BBC read: "Will you promise never to take advantage of the weakness of another human being or animal; never take the life of a weak or defenceless animal for your own amusement? Never join in a chase where foxes, stags, otters, or hares are driven for miles and miles by crowds of dogs and men—and sometimes I am afraid, by women and children. Is this fair play? Is this sport?"

Having heard "Grey Owl" over the CBC we know that he simply could not cave in and we felt that he would be ashamed to face the wild animals and trees back home.

What better remarks could have been addressed to children from a man who has done so much for the wild life of Canada? We feel certain it is the children of Britain who are the losers in not hearing this timely advice. "Grey Owl" was fully aware that he was dealing with blood sports, but are not the children of today reading of greater acts of slaughter and terrorism than his simple remarks could ever have characterized?

NOTE AND COMMENT

Max Schmeling had no trouble in winning his fight in New York the other night but it looks as if the income tax authorities have won a clean knockout over the German heavyweight.

It is reported that Major Douglas has been engaged as financial advisor to the Alberta government. There is probably no administration more in need of advice along that line.

HE'LL BE MISSED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Steve's moving out of town I hear, and that will leave things rather queer, when Steve has gone away; for no one wants to see him go, and if they took a vote I know, they'd ask that he might stay.

¶ And folk are dropping in on Steve, since hearing he was going to leave, and they're all sorts of men; they talk of Steve upon their way, and every one has much to say, on what Steve did for them.

¶ One man who's old and rather bent, who hardly ever has a cent, whose way is rather sad; said when he'd lost his claim to luck, that Steve had never seen him stuck, best friend he ever had.

¶ A younger man stopped in to say, he wished so much that Steve would stay, he'd met with Steve before; Steve talked to him in kindly way, when life was leading him astray, and touched him to the core.

¶ Another said Steve stayed with him, when life was getting rather dim, when he was short of stores; Steve almost ran his place a spell, while he was busy getting well, and he did all the chores.

¶ There's lots of folk who leave I know, and no one minds it when they go, to stop them none will coax; they tell me they'll miss Steve always, I guess because he spent his days—just helping other folks.

ACCORDING to Richard E. Conley, director of the world's largest tree nurseries at Ridgefield, Conn. the perfection of a tree is measured in four points, the degree of straightness of the trunk, the grace of the branches, the spread of the branches and lastly the rich dark green coloring of the leaves.

Native elm, maples and pin oaks, he says are the easiest trees to transplant because of their many fibrous roots. They are also the most permanent and the hardiest. On the other hand white oaks and hickories are two of the hard trees to transplant because of their sparse root systems and hard wood. It is said of the white oak that it takes 400 years growing, 400 years living and 400 years dying.

The fastest-growing trees are poplars. They grow from six to seven feet a year but they are the shortest-lived of all trees, having an average span of between ten and fifteen years.

The longest-lived trees are the gaint redwoods of California and the Oregon firs. These trees live from 4,000 to 5,000 years. There is however a Eucalyptus tree in Australia, reputed to be well over 5,000 years old.

The tallest trees in the world are the giant redwoods of California which attain a height of 600 feet.

Contrary to the popular belief Mr. Conley says the chances of a tree living after it has been transplanted (provided, of course, that the operation is carefully performed) are about 99 per cent.

Trees get disease just like human beings and also get a form of sunburn if they are improperly protected after transplanting.

At Darby Dale in Derbyshire, England, there is a yew-tree that goes back before the days of the Romans and at Fortingall in Perthshire there is another yew which is 3,000 years old and in 1769 measured 56; 1-2 feet round the trunk.

Why They Die Young.

JOHN KEATS, considered one of the twelve greatest poets in the English language died at the age of twenty-six. His death was undoubtedly hastened by the fact that literary reviewers of his day harshly criticized his poetry.

Jack London, author of "The Call of the Wild," "The Sea Wolf and many other novels and short stories is said to have accumulated a five-foot stack of rejection slips before one of his stories was accepted.

Joseph Hergesheimer, author of "The Black Pennys," "Java Head" and other novels wrote for fourteen years before any of his manuscripts was considered seriously by a publisher.

"Lightship" a best-selling novel by Archie Binns was rejected by every New York publisher before it was finally published.

Nathaniel Hawthorne whose masterpiece "The Scarlet Letter" is considered one of the few nineteenth century classics was on the verge of starvation when, through the influence of his friends, he was appointed American consul at Liverpool. Herman Melville, American author of sea stories, sought a similar appointment to relieve his financial straits.

Continually receiving rejection slips for twenty-five years Gamaliel Bradford, author of "Lee, the American" and other biographies finally achieved success.

Even the successful American novelist Rupert Hughes asserts that he has received more than 2,000 rejection slips.

In 1904 Theodore Roosevelt gave Edwin Arlington Robinson employment in the customs house where the earnings of this great poet took care of his financial obligations.

A Few London Facts.

ALTHOUGH the largest city in the world, London has no sky-scrapers and its tallest buildings run only to nine or ten storeys. During the past twelve years its population has decreased to the extent of more than 185,000.

It has been estimated that 20 years from now London will be only the sixth city of the world in point of population. By that time it is said that Tokyo, Japan will be first with a population of 11,000,000 and that New York with 10,000,000 will hold second place. The prediction that Shanghai, China would be third by that time with 9,000,000 may have to be altered in view of recent developments.

Houses once occupied by London celebrities rank in popularity as to the number of visitors, as follows. First that of Dr. Samuel Johnson, lexicographer and writer, second, that of Thomas Carlyle, essayist, third that of Charles Dickens, novelist and fourth, that of William Hogarth, painter.

A block-long double row of empty camp chairs, each bearing its owners' name "stands in line" as the owners, temporarily absent, await purchase of tickets for seats in Covent Garden Opera House, London. An unwritten law forbids the misappropriation of such an unguarded chair.

Rats like celluloid. They can sit for hours looking at it. Once some rats tunneled a mile and a half to a celluloid factory. They made away with over a thousand celluloid articles before the loss was discovered.

The United States army has not executed a man before a firing squad since 1870.

English ivy will do better on the west side of the house as a year vine than on the south where it is apt to be burned by the winter sun.

The Little Lad Riding On His Tricycle

The Motorist Who Drives Too Fast Yelled at Him; A Kindly Talk to Motorists Who Drive That Way

George Malcolm-Smith,
In The Travelers Protection

Open Letter to a Motorist Who Drives Too Fast Through Our Street:

I SAW YOU barely miss a little boy on a tricycle this afternoon and heard you yell, "Get the hell out of the way! Don't you know any better than to ride in the street?" He didn't answer because he hasn't learned to talk yet. So I'm going to answer for him.

No, the little boy doesn't know any better than to ride his tricycle in the street. He has been warned not to, but little boys don't always heed warnings. Some adults don't, especially traffic warnings for example, the one limiting the speed of automobiles in city streets.

I'm going to tell you something about that little boy: He has a mother who endured considerable inconvenience, anxiety, and suffering to bring him into the world. He has a father who has worked hard and made many sacrifices to make him healthy and happy. The supreme purpose of their lives is to have their little boy grow up to be a useful and prosperous man.

Now stop a minute and think. I know your minutes are valuable and I know it will be hard for you to think. But try. If you should kill a child, how would you feel facing its parents? What excuse could you give them for having robbed them of their dearest possession? More important: What excuse could you possibly offer Him whose Kingdom is made up of little children?

"Children, my hasty friend, were here long before you or your automobile were ever thought of. All the automobiles on earth are not worth the life of one little boy on a tricycle. Any competent garage mechanic can put a car together, however badly it's smashed, but nobody on earth can put a child together once its life has been crushed out. We don't know what that little boy may some day be. But we know what you are, and it's unimportant. We could get along without you, but we can't spare a single little boy on this street.

Here is a Man Who Collects Motor Cars

Indian Resident Makes a Hobby of Automobiles Has Gathered 15 Rolls Royces For His Collection

(From the Calcutta Statesman.)

EVERY country in the world has its ardent collectors of postage stamps, curios, birds' eggs and pictures, but India must be unique in possessing a man who collects motor cars purely as a hobby.

The man is Mr. P. K. Mullick of Calcutta who has got together a collection of something like 50 cars housed at his palatial residence in Chitpore in Posonno Commar Tagore street.

Serious collectors have a way of paying high prices for anything that takes their fancy, and Mr. Mullick's fancy has been captured so many times by Rolls Royce cars that he now has 14 of them in his collection. They are not all, of course, of the latest design, but most of them are endowed with handsome and expensive coach work of either limousine, touring or semi-sporting design.

Some of those garaged behind the Chitpore road residence give the impression of not having been used for a considerable time, but one, a monster tourer engaged in brass plating, has been a familiar sight in the streets of Calcutta.

Here also are expensive American and European models, most of them magnificently fitted up, though perhaps showing signs of the lack of usage.

The large painted sign on the garage wall, "Mr. P. K. Mullick's Rolls Royce Collection", is redundant for the eye, perhaps somewhat enviously, rests immediately upon the impressive and stately array of some of the finest and fastest cars turned out by the leading firms of the world's motor industry, cars whose superiority has been established on the race tracks of many countries. And here they stand like thoroughbreds which seldom if ever see the open road.

Close by, on an open piece of ground, are the pensioners, cars which will never move again under their own power. Here are included very early models in advanced decrepitude.

All is decay; vegetation threatens completely to engulf some of these ancients, and amid the rambling undergrowth are protruberances that suggest other and even older vehicles have had at last to give nature best. They are decently buried.

Perhaps even Mr. Mullick himself does not know precisely how many cars he has, but the total is put at around 50, and when he left Calcutta for his Madhupur residence three Rolls Royce cars accompanied him.

It is fairly certain that no other ordinary private citizen anywhere in the world has such an astonishing array of cars. Five cleaners have a job for life, looking after them, and there are three chauffeurs.

NO MAGIC ROAD.

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

A LOCAL young man with steady employment got married just as the depression started and soon found himself out of work. He managed to eke out an existence for himself and wife by temporary jobs. Finally he got a job that was good for six months of the year. His wife a thrifty woman, had laid aside small sums, and a year ago the husband started building a modest home in his spare hours, securing some expert assistance at odd times. He had the misfortune recently to develop pneumonia which carried him off. But to his wife and young family he left a snug home in which to live, as well as the heritage of a good example.

Such a spirit of self-reliance and determination to do for oneself is surely what this country needs as much as anything today. In the early days of the depression people disliked to accept relief. They were ashamed to appeal for personal assistance. Today able-bodied people have come to rely upon the municipal, provincial or federal governments for subsistence as well as assistance in a great variety of ways.

We need to get rid of the idea that here is some magic way by which we can get along without work. Such an attitude not only undermines the character of our citizenry but in the long run it would force our country on the rocks.

HOGGING THE ROAD.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE "world's safest truck driver," Allen B. Hill, a 56-year-old Texan, who has driven trucks about 1,400,000 miles in the past thirty years without an accident or an arrest, has practised the following safety rule: "Give all the road you can and take all they'll give you, but I've had to take to the ditch many a time to keep from getting hit."

Unfortunately, many drivers in Ontario do not practise this rule, at least, the first part of it, although there are many others that do. If all drivers were to give all the road they can with safety, the highway casualties would be markedly reduced, and driving would be more pleasant than it is now. The road hog is a constant annoyance and often a decided menace.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AND A RIVER went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads. The name of the first is Pison: that is it which compasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold; and the gold of that land is good: there is bdellium and the onyx stone. And the name of the second river is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia. And the name of the third river is Hiddekel: that is it which goeth toward the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates.—Gen. ii, 10-14.

There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High.—Ps: xlvi, 4.

And it shall be in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name one.—Zech, xiv, 8, 9.

CHRIST IS BORN IN BETHLEHEM

Come to Bethlehem's lowly manger,
Where the infant Jesus, lay,
Bring your gifts, adore, and worship,
Kneel, and pray.

View the mystic incarnation,
Come, behold the Holy Child,
Bringing, us, to God our Father,
Reconciled.

God in love, has brought redemption,
Giving up His well loved, Son,
That through Him, our soul's salvation,
Might be won.

Oh what matchless condescension,
Oh what love, conceived the plan,
Letting Christ, the Lord of Glory,
Die for man.

Ring ye bells, in glad abandon,
Singers, loud your voices raise,
Let the day, be spent in worship,
Love and praise.

An Explanation to CITY VOTERS

There are eight aldermen to be elected to the City Council for 1938. Five of these aldermen will serve for two-year terms and three for one-year terms. The three aldermen elected for one-year terms will be completing the unexpired terms of the three aldermen who tendered their resignations to the City Clerk in accordance with Ontario Statutes, 1933, Chapter 91, Sec. 2.

At the nominations for Aldermen, which will be received by the City Clerk in the Council Chamber on December 23rd, 1937, between the hour of 7.30 o'clock and 8.30 o'clock in the evening, there will be separate nominations of candidates to be elected for two-year terms and of candidates to be elected for one-year terms.

It is well to remember that the two offices, that is the two-year term and one-year terms, are separate and distinct.

At the election on New Year's Day there will be two ballots for aldermen to be marked by voters. One ballot will carry the names of candidates for the two-year term as aldermen, and on this ballot the voters must vote for at least four candidates but not more than five, otherwise their ballot will be spoiled. The second ballot will carry the names of candidates for the one-year term as aldermen, and on this ballot the voters may vote for one, two, or three candidates, but not more than three.

If on Nomination Day the same candidate is nominated for both the two-year term and the one-year term, he may qualify for one office only, and his name will appear only on the ballot for which he has duly qualified.

LONGER WHOOPEE

TOROSTO, Dec. 22.— (CP). — Toronto's New Year welcome to 1938 will be longer, and probably louder, than any year-end celebration in a long time, thanks to the police department's decision to switch the curfew for dancing to 1.30 a.m. or later.

The old city by-law providing a 1 a.m. deadline for dancing will not be enforced this New Year's. So a New Year's even, large and lavish and boisterous, is predicted. Hotels and clubs are preparing entertainment at rates ranging from $15 a couple down to the price of an average theatre ticket.

N.Y. Red Missing

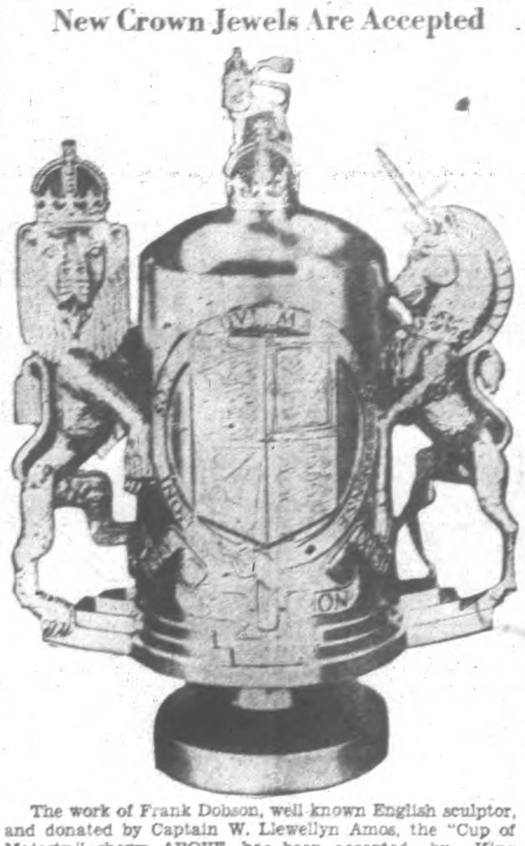
New Crown Jewels Are Accepted



The work of Frank Dobson, well-known English sculptor, and donated by Captain W. Llewellyn Amos, the "Cup of Majesty," shown ABOVE, has been accepted by King George, according to reports from London. The cup, the obverse side of which is shown, will be added to the crown jewels, reportedly the most valuable in the world.

Hungry Indians Flag Fliers Down With Smoke Signal – Stop Sign

Edmonton, Dec. 22 (CP).

INDIANS in Canada's northland have learned to use "stop signs," Pilot Ernie Kubicek reported yesterday. He said an elaborate one, consisting of spruce boughs flanked by two bonfires, had been used to stop him while he flew his United Air Transport mail plane in the Yukon just north of the Alaskan boundary.

"We were flying from Lower Post to Whitehorse and were just about 100 miles out when my co-pilot, Danny Trowsdell, saw the smoke and then the sign," said Kubicek.

"We didn't know what to make of it, but decided that it must be an emergency of some kind, so we went down to see. The Indians told us they wanted grub. We took their message and delivered it to the right persons. I expect they will get their grub all right."

He left a few day's supply before resuming his flight.

Christmas Time Briefs

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 22. — (CP).— Mrs. Santa Claus is in Hamilton this week—wearing the same red clothes with white trimmings as old St. Nick himself, but minus, of course, his flowing white beard. She stands beside a Salvation Army "pot" and keeps it "boiling."

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Dec. 22.—(CP).—Santa Claus likes variety, especially in his mode of entry to Kirkland Lake. This year he made a pre-Christmas visit on a fire truck, causing one old-timer to remark: "When I was a kid he used to come by sleigh and reindeer. Back in 1914 he came by dog-team. Now he comes on a fire truck. Next year, I suppose, it'll be by airplane."

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 22. — (CP)— The Christmas spirit is evident, even now, on Kitchener streets. As a drunk weaved an uncertain course over an ice-covered sidewalk with a turkey, won at a raffle in his hand, he slipped. As he fell his arm swung around and the turkey hit a policeman on the jaw, causing him to slip and fall. After a few preliminary glares, the two burst out laughing.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., Dec. 22. —((AP).—Christmas is just around the corner, and Indians of the south-west are getting ready to make the most of white man's seasonal generosity.

Accustomed to driving hard bargains with their paleface neighbord 364 days a year, the Redskins find Christmas by long odds the most acceptable of the white man's holidays.

To be sure of prompt delivery, they will be around bright and early with baskets and sacks for gifts they know will be forthcoming from traders, homesteaders and missionaries.

MAINTAIN MOTOR CARS NO LUXURY

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Dec. 22. — (CP)—Should a farmer in the drought areas on relief operate his automobile or truck?

This is a live issue in southeastern Alberta where this year many farmers, for the first time in years, are on relief.

On many farms, even if the owner is on relief, automobiles are considered a necessity—where the farmer lives many miles from town; where power has replaced horses and in emergencies, where illness strikes and medical aid is needed.

The regulations are: Where a farmer can show that either the automobile or truck is necessary in farming and only used for that purpose, he may retain his license plates. If a car is to be used for pleasure only, no relief will be granted until its license plates are turned in.

"We have no money to spend for pleasure," was the comment of one drought area farmer who lives 20 miles from the nearest town.

"With a wagon a trip to town and back would take two days; there would be feed for the horses with a stop over of one night in town. It would be more expensive than using a few gallons of gasoline."

"Eve" Broadcast May Bring Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP).—Mae West's radio characterization of Eve in the Garden of Eden resulted to-day in suggestions for a Congressional investigation of United States broadcasting companies.

Representative O'Toole (D-N.Y.), in a statement in the Congressional Record, denounced the program as "an all-time low" in radio entertainment and proposed that Congress investigate broadcasting activities to determine whether government censorship was necessary to insure decent, clean and entertaining programs."

O'Toole said the program featuring Miss West, which was broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company Sunday, Dec. 12, was "indecent" and climaxed a gradual decline in the "good taste" of radio entertainment.

NORTHERN BISHOP DISLIKES CROWDS

WINNIPEG, Dec. 22 (CP).—Arriving in Winnipeg recently, Most Rev. Armand Ciabaut, O.M.I., First Bishop Co-Adjutor of the Vicarate of Hudson Bay, largest and most northerly Catholic Mission in the world, told tales of a near-disaster at sea and of an airplane mercy-flight that saved the life of a four-days-old Eskimo baby.

Travelling from Chesterfield to Quebec on the missionary boat Mary Frances Therese, collision with a towering iceberg was narrowly avoided by quick thinking on the part of the captain. The huge iceberg passed within 10 feet of the Therese.

The German "Flying Priest," Rev. Paul Schulte, O.M.I., played a leading role when he chanced to land at Mystic Bay on his way south to Churchill, Man. Upon learning of the serious illness of the Eskimo baby Father Schulte flew to Chesterfield to bring back Dr. Thomas Melling, Dominion medical officer, who was aboard the Therese. Within 10 hours a life was saved, the baby had been Christened by Father Schulte and Dr. Melling was back at Chesterfield.

Bishop Ciabaut does not like civilization. "Too much noise, too many cars, too many people," he complained.

BATTLESHIPS TOP FLEET BUILDING IN BRITISH PLANS

LONDON, Dec. 22—(AP). — The scope of world naval armaments was reviewed to-day with publication of the 1937 edition of the authoritative yearbook, "Jane's Fighting Ships."

An editor's foreword declared: "In the 12 months that have elapsed since the 1936 edition appeared there has been no abatement in the flood of orders for new warships. In the whole world there is scarcely a naval Power of any importance which has not felt impelled to join in the common impulse to bring its fleet up to date."

The book cited big warship building activities in Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy, Russia, Japan, and Germany. It added:

"Thus all seven of the principal Powers now are committed to a policy of building capital ships, a sufficient commentary on the enthusiasm shown in uniformed quarters for substitution of cheaper weapons such as torpedo boats, submarines or aircraft for bigger ships whose future existence has so often seemed to be threatened."

The new edition said the 1937 British program was the "most important undertaken since the war ended." The program includes three 35,000-ton battleships, two aircraft carriers, seven cruisers, 16 destroyers, and six submarines. Many other craft, Jane's reported, have been authorized for 1938.

"A good deal of activity is being devoted to construction of small motor craft for various duties and to the increase of anti-aircraft armament for heavier cruisers as they fall due for refit," the editor wrote.

What Others Are Doing.

Naval rearmament in other countries drew the following comments:

In the United States "steady progress is being made with many cruisers, destroyers and submarines in hand."

Outlining Germany's heavy building program, Jan's said the "German navy continues to expand. Additional personnel has had to be recruited in such numbers that at the present time practically every German warship in home waters is a training ship; otherwise the present fleet would be an even more formidable fleet than it is."

The Italian navy recently has "concentrated on the expansion of flotillas. With the possible exception of Russia, Italy will soon have more submarines than any other fleet. Its new destroyers and torpedo boats, especially of motor type, are also very numerous."

In Japan "as far as can be ascertained no new battleships have yet been begun though four are believed authorized under the Third Fleet Replenishment Law. For some reason cruisers of the Mogami class (8,500 tons) have taken a long time to complete, probably owing to alterations necessitated as a result of trials."

Reports of the strength of the Soviet's navy "undoubtedly have been exaggerated. But there is a considerable substratum of truth behind them. In the number of her motor torpedo boats and her submarines Russia appears to be making a bid for first place."

The opposing factions in Spain have split the country's naval forces between them. Jane's editor said the Spanish insurgents hold most of the heavier warships, but the government has the best lighter ships.

Liner In Collision Makes For Port

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 22 (AP).—United States Lines offices here said to-day the United States liner City of Hamburg was heading for Cuxhaven under her own steam after a collision in the North Sea with an unidentified vessel.

Apparently no one was injured. The City of Hamburg left Bremen early this morning for Southampton. She carried freight and only one passenger, Miss Herta Peters of New York City.

The liner earlier had asked aid, saying she was sinking rapidly.

WALKERTON, Ont., Dec. 22 — (CP).—Billy Merchant lost a thumb while attempting to do a good turn for a motorist whose car was stranded in the snow near here. A team of horses bolted while he was hitching them to the car and his thumb, caught between two links of chain, was severed.

GIRLS SHOW SKILL IN DRESSMAKING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Dec. 22. — The dressmaking course which has been held in Warkworth for the past four weeks under the leadership of Miss Caudwell and Miss Watt came to a close on Friday evening when the girls gave a splendid demonstration of their work in the Masonic Temple, the guests included the parents of the girls and members of the Women's Institute.

Mr. A. H. Martin opened the meeting and gave a brief outline of the work. Twenty-one girls took advantage of this splendid opportunity of learning to sew and during the course made two dresses, one remodelled, besides taking up plain and fancy stitches such as hemming, faggoting, smocking, making of bound and plain button holes, etc.

The program opened by all singing "Oh Canada." This was followed by community singing of old familiar songs.

The dress parade of the girls in the smart, cottons that they had made was very fine also the parade of the remodelled dresses. Miss Watt explaining to the audience the changes the girls had made to their dresses to make them up to date.

The girls chorus and yell was heartily encored also the comic number put on by their teachers, Miss Watt and Miss Caudwell. Piano solo, "Sun Flower Dance" by Jean Scott; recitation, "Down on the Farm," by Doris Weatherson; piano solo, "Little Boy Blue," by Ruth McGredie; piano solo, "Twinkletoes," by Clara Helson; chorus by several of the girls; vocal solo by Helen Black; recitation, "My First Trip," by Lillian McCleary; recitation, "Down on the Farm," by Doris Weatherson. Community singing of Christmas carols was enjoyed and the singing of the National Anthem brought this part of the program to a close.

Diplomas will be given to the girls who have successfully completed this course.

Miss Watt and Miss Caudwell expressed their appreciation for the hearty co-operation of the girls and the public in making their stay so pleasant while in their vicinity.

Swindler Returns

Deported from United States after serving a prison term and brought back to Toronto to face three charges, Lucius A. Parmalee, notorious swindler and confidence man, waxes philosophical as he declares that "crime doesn't pay." Parmalee eluded American and Canadian police for 14 years before falling into the toils of the law though he was wanted in dozens of cities on both sides of the line for cheque and other frauds.

'SWING' TO INVADE CLASSIC CIRCLES

NEW YORK, Dec. 22. —(AP). — Swing music is about to make its official bow to the world.

On Jan. 16, in Carnegie Hall, sanctum of classical music, Benjamin D. Goodman and his associates will proceed to blow the roof off with blasts of music's latest child.

The circumstances are similar to those one night in the fall of 1923 when Paul Whiteman marched his band into staid Aeolian Hall and with Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" officiated at what is regarded as the first public acknowledgment of jazz as an American institution of classic proportions.

And Benny Goodman, a leading exponent of swing, hopes the coming occasion will do the same for swing—popularize it as an established United States art.

And it ought to do even better than Whiteman's concert," he said to-night. "They had a great composition, but we're going there without one—all we have is s-w-i-n-g."

The essence of swing, Goodman said, is that you don't blow the written notes but, knowing what they are, blow "around them," expressing yourself in variations. The measure of your excellence is how well you convey to your audience that rhythmic thrill—that "umph"—that is swing's main attribute.

Rev. Fr. Stringer Tells Of China

(Examiner Correspondence)

DOWNEYVILLE, Dec. 22.—On Sunday Rev. Father Stringer, a priest home from China, delivered a special sermon in St. Luke's church, Downeyville. He told of the customs, habits, etc., of the Chinese and what hardships the missionary and others who went to China to try and Christianize the Chinese had to undergo. Father Stringer's sermon was very interesting as he was known here. Before he went to China a number of years ago he preached his first sermon in this church, and his mother was a former organist of St. Luke's church, Downeyville. His stay was short as he left for Peterborough at two o'clock in the afternoon. A large number were glad to see him and wished him God speed and good luck on his return to China to resume his work.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

In most quarrels there is a fault on both sides. A quarrel may be compared to a spark, which cannot be produced without a flint, as well as steel. Either of them may hammer on wood forever, no fire will follow.—Cotton.

Dear Friends:

There is another quotation which tells us, "It takes two to make a quarrel." But, it is very evident that some are much more quarrelsome than others.

And when they are like that, and the other cannot get out of range of their tongue, the spark is generated and a quarrel ensues, for a human being can stand just so much, unless they are the door-mat type who crave peace at any price.

Just try it out some day. Make up your mind you will not quarrel, you will bear and forbear if it kills you. Let the quarrelsome one keep on nagging, their words beating against your brain until you feel like shrieking, shut up.

Give the soft answer, and see it add fuel to the fire of the other one's desire for a row, and then, all of a sudden the lid of your forbearance blows off, and there's your quarrel.

I find it a far better way (rather than have anyone strike me with words until they draw a spark) to draw a spark from myself and show them I am not taking any of this stuff, so I squelch it at the beginning.

Pussyfooting around saying "Now, dear," and "Don't get all worked up, dear," does no good whatever. If I find I cannot squelch it at the start and they seem to want a royal row, then I give them what they want. You might as well be obliging.

There are many people in this world who desire peace above all else, yet find quarrels forced upon them, and the fault is not their own. Why not take a firm stand?

If the thing is getting the better of you, if reasoning does no good, nor the "soft answer" turns away no wrath, then put your coat and hat on and sashay around the block for awhile. Never mind the house. It'll be there when you come back.

If you are utterly unable to do that, go into another room and lock the door. What, no lock on your door? Then get one, or a bolt will do, and stay there until that one has talked himself or herself out. They'll soon get tired talking to themselves. Then, when they have cooled off, lay the law down in no uncertain terms. Show them you will not tolerate this eternal spirit of quarrelsomeness, and that it must stop.

You will be able to command respect and attention, because you are not speaking just from a provoked temper. You will also be able to speak more to the point because you have your emotions under control.

No doubt, it does take two to make a quarrel, but one can start the thing and keep it up until they drive another frantic. You can "hammer on wood forever, and no fire will follow," but unfortunately we are not made of wood.

Have we not all met sometime the one whom Shakespeare tells us of in Romeo and Juliet? "Mercutio. Thou! Why thou wilt quarrel with a man that hath a hair more, or a hair less, in his beard than thou hast. Thou wilt quarrel with a man for cracking nuts, having no other reason but because thou hast hazel eyes."

So, recognizing that there are those who would taunt us to rid themselves of some spleen, let us refuse to bear with them.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

"Does the road wind up-hill all way?
Yes, to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole long day?
From morn till night, my friend.

But is there for the night a resting place?
A roof for when the slow dark hours begin.
May not the darkness hide it from my face?
You can not miss that in."
—Christina G. Rossetti.

Dear Friends:

And if only we would adjust our thoughts to that idea of the road being up-hill all the way, we would do as they do with a car, and put ourselves in high gear so that we could climb it proudly as we should.

But so many of us want to relax by the way and take it easy, or we turn aside into some byway, and all the time the hill of life is waiting to be climbed. Sometimes we get so tired of so much steepness, and wish it were more level, so we park by the ditch of laziness and sometimes topple into it, and never reach the top.

After a hard day's journey, we are glad to come to an inn or hotel where we can stretch our weary limbs and rest. After a hard day's work, bed feels good to us. And so, we shall find an inn and a bed at the end of the climb and enjoy it more because we did not give up too soon.

"Shall I meet other wayfarers at night?
Those who have gone before.
Then must I knock, or call when just in sight?
They will not keep you standing at that door."

And be sure we shall meet those we knew at the end of the trail, those we loved and who reached the top before we did. We shall not be kept waiting, nor have to call for the door to be opened for us, if only we have done our best.

"Shall I find comfort, travel-sore and weak?
Of labor you shall find the sum.
Will there be beds for me and all who seek?
Yea, beds for all who come."

Isn't that a lovely poem by Christina Rossetti? Does it not strike a chord in your heart, a desire to keep on climbing until you reach the top of the hill, so that you will be amongst those who seek comfort after labor, and a bed to lay their weary body on?

Will you not want to join your friends, your mother or father, brother sister, son or daughter, whose passing left such anguished emptiness in your life?

Then fix the car of your life so that you will be ready for the long climb. Get the oil of faith, the gasoline of courage, see that the sparkplugs of your life are not all clogged up with the carbon of laziness and shiftlessness.

Fill your tires with the air of hope, see that the heater of your love for God is working, so that it will warm you on cold days, and take along anti-freeze in the shape of the memory of all He has already done for you.

Then, get behind the wheel, and steer a straight course. Don't take along fear as a hitch-hiker, for he is a poor companion who will keep telling you you will never reach the top in THAT car.

Take interest in all you see, stop long enough to help some one with a flat, sing as you go, and lo! you have climbed to the top.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Former Local Girl Is World Authority On Cacti Species

Recognized as a world authority on the cacti species, Mrs. Margarite Shiner, owner and operator of the Shiner Cactus Nursery in Laredo, Texas, has made a big name for herself in the botanical world since she left Peterborough as a girl. The nursery is one of the largest of its kind in the world.

"To some people cacti is an avocation, others make it a vocation; but I make it both and have a lot of fun at each," Mrs. Shiner states in an interview in the Laredo Times. "The cultivation of cactus and its many drouth resistant friends of the desert is coming at last into a prominent place in home beautification plans for Texas and their climatic neighbors across the southern states. I am coming in contact with so many more cactus admirers since moving my nursery to the Pan American Highway and have been noting a rapidly increasing interest in these odd and often spectacular plants for use in display beds and landscaping plans."

Leaving Peterborough for a new home in Texas after receiving her schooling here, Mrs. Shiner started collecting cacti about 1927 just for the fun of it. She was used to taking long hikes and on these hikes she came in contact with many different species. It was interesting to stop and study the different kinds and compare their likeness and differences. She would run across cacti of all shapes and sizes which she would take home with her and it was not long before she realized that she had quite a sizable collection for a beginner.

Cacti was then just a hobby with her. Different collectors from all over the country would write to her asking to trade the kinds from her locality for kinds from other localities. This she did. Gradually her collection grew until it included many rare species and to house all of the various varieties, she built a cactus garden which became one of the show places for visitors to Laredo.

Visitors to the cactus garden would persuade Mrs. Shiner to sell them some cactus that attracted their attention for some curious reason and it was not long until she realized that her cactus garden was no longer merely a hobby, but was an industry as well. Mrs. Shiner became so intensely interested in her cactus that she turned her entire attention to the raising of these plants and now all her time is spent propagating new kinds of cacti and raising the plants for shipment to all parts of the country.

Matches Colors North and East

PORT CREDIT, Ont., Dec. 22 — (CP)—Bishop A. L. Fleming of the Arctic drew smiles unusual for an Anglican church service, when in the course of a missionary sermon here, telling of the pagan women in the north as well as the eastern women he had found with painted cheeks and lips.

"They are 'wilder' women than I have seen here," he said, "for their adornments will not come off, while my inquiries show that the young Canadian girl I meet so often can rub off the paint, which seems so needless to me, to enhance her natural beauty."

How did she team them to lie down so obediently at her command? She trained each pup by itself. She let no other person help or even look on. While Jack, for instance, was sitting, she grasped his collar with one hand and with the other gently stretched his front legs out on the ground. Meanwhile she repeated "Down! Down!" After several trials Jack proudly took the proper position himself, at the word "Down!" Then she rewarded him with a pat on the head!

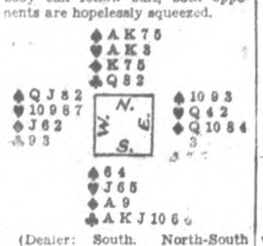
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

SQUEEZING A PAIR

EVERY PLAYER should know the identifying marks of the standard double squeeze play, which should be made much oftener than actually does occur. First, the squeezer must have a card on which nobody else can follow suit. Second, he must have a singleton of another suit which is lower than a singleton at his right. Third, he must have a card of the next suit which can be led to the top outstanding card in the opposite hand. That top card must have with it a small one which either opponent can beat with a guarded card. Also, in that hand must be a singleton of the fourth suit which is smaller than a singleton in the hand which plays just before it. With that situation, when the player lays down the card on which nobody can follow suit, both opponents are hopelessly squeezed.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Against South's contract of 7-Clubs West led the heart 10, which declarer won with the A. The clubs A and Q were now cashed, followed by the spades A and K and a spade ruff. Next the declarer cashed the heart A and the diamond A. With the heart Q placed in the East hand from the original lead, and with West probably holding the spade Q, South now proceeded to force each opponent to unguard the diamonds in order to retain the winning spade held by one and the winning heart by the other.

After running the remainder of his trumps, he had West squeezed down to the spade Q and the diamonds J-6 and East with the heart Q and the diamonds Q-10. On the last club each opponent let go a diamond, so that the K-7 in dummy won the last two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem

With the club 4 led against South's 6-Spade contract, how should South plan the hand?

Perennial Youth Defies the Years

TORONTO, Dec. 22 (CP)—It is worth while to note that youth and age are relative terms, says the Evening Telegram, speaking of the visit to Toronto of E. Cora Hind of Winnipeg as that of a notable Canadian woman.

"There is a perennial youth which defies the years and in which the flame of lively interest continues to light the way to useful service long after the Osler limit has been left behind. Such perennial youth is Dr. Cora Hind's whose book "Seeing For Myself" has just been published."

The editor describes Miss Hind's long experience as an agricultural reporter, the prominence she achieved through the "uncanny accuracy of her crop estimates" and recalls she was in her 74th year when she started on a two-year tour reporting agricultural conditions throughout the world.

"She discussed wheat and cattle with millers and farmers in the British Isles, inspected the collective farms and advanced experimental stations of Russia, covered the agricultural situation in Europe from Norway and Sweden to Italy, and then departed for Africa.

"From the Cape to Rhodesia she collected a lot of information and then flew by way of Cairo to Delhi in India. From Ceylon she passed to Australia, looked down on three sides of the island continent from the air, and then made a closer examination on terra firma. And so to New Zealand, the Argentine and Uruguay.

"Dr. Hind's remarkable survey is a highly-valuable contribution to the Canadian bookshelf. From England to Uruguay she looked over man's basic industry with a keen and experienced eye and presents the story of what she saw with clarity and a salty humor which makes it at once instructive and entertaining."

She Was "Tilly" Among Neighbors

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(CP)— A young woman in a white evening gown with a train got out of a taxi in one of New York's shabbier sections and waited while pouring rain beat on her light wrap and tiara of metallic braid.

It was not much of a homecoming but two hours later Natalie Bodanya, Metropolitan Opera singer, was having the "time of my life," as she sang to "the most appreciative audience of my career" in a neighborhood settlement building.

Miss Bodanya was born and brought up in a house across the street from the settlement. She took part in its activities and went to its summer camp. She got her start in singing at 16 through the teacher at the neighborhood music school who arranged an audition with one of the music greats of the day.

Miss Bodanya told her audience she was "a settlement baby," adding: "This is your concert; if you want to whistle or hiss—go ahead." She was cheered through a program of 20 songs.

They called her Tilly, her neighborhood name, all evening and took all the encores she had the strength for. Old friends swept her up and kissed her. After three bunches of flowers were presented she exclaimed: "That's what I call a real homecoming."

THE STARS SAY

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, December 23

Much liveliness and pleasant activity are read from the predominate planetary influences. Business should be satisfactory, with signs of heightened holiday spirit. The spirit of jubilation gives the key to the excitement, and there is a corresponding spiritual growth.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of much enterprise and activity, with all pertaining to writings, contracts and new business flourishing. However, there is an element of subtlety, intrigue or cunning to guard against.

A child born on this day may be versatile, energetic, constructive and at the same time subtle, mystical, romantic and altruistic. It may have peculiar alliances in life.

Miss Lila Deyell entertained nearly seventy-five of her friends on Tuesday afternoon and evening at a delightful trousseau tea at the home of Mrs. C. A. Gilers, 272 Thomas street.

The tea table was charmingly arranged with a cloth of Italian cutwork centred with carnations in a silver services at either end. In the afternoon, tea was poured by Mrs. G. Edmison and Mrs. E. Knight, and in the evening, by Mrs. T. L. Edwards and Mrs. O. Deyell. The Misses Edna Allen and Louise Thompson served in the afternoon, and in the evening, Mrs. J. Anderson and Miss Margaret Johnston. On the buffet, the three-tiered wedding cake was surmounted with a decoration of white and silver, used first forty-three years ago to decorate the wedding cake for the bride's aunt, and used also for her cousin's wedding cake.

The trousseau and gifts were displayed by Mrs. H. Dugan and the Misses Maretta Sanderson and Ann Eagleson. Miss Doreen Gilders opened the door to the guests.

MARY MOORE'S HELPFUL HINTS TO THE HOSTESS

Christmas Dinner Menus Designed To Give Few Different Courses

Will Relieve The Monotony Of The Traditional Christmas Dinners

By MARY MOORE

"Dear Aunt Mary: There are only 16 more days until Christmas and I have not decided if I want a tobogun or a horse the most.

"It is getting so close I am getting anxious aren't you.

"That is all I have to say, Love Beverley."

I found that note under my typewriter this morning—typed on it by my 7½-year-old niece yesterday, and left there for me to find this morning.

I am getting "anxous" yes—but not for the same reasons.

Our Christmas dinner menus are designed not for you to follow in every detail, but to give you a few deliciously different courses to relieve the monotony of the traditional Christmas dinner. To my child mind Christmas dinner was Turkey with sage dressing, mashed potatoes, peas, celery, plum pudding for the big folks, "shivering jelly" for the little ones. That was because we always had dinner with my uncles and cousins at my Grandmother's—it was a grand meal mind you, but unimaginative to say the least.

Let's change our method this year in the smaller items.

Many of you who are used to it may want to take the turnip souffle out of the second meal and serve it with the turkey in the first. I don't care as long as you make it with loving care.

Christmas Dinner Menu No. 1

In living room:
Christmas Cocktails
Canapes with Cicken Paste
At table:
Oyster and Celery Bisque
Hors-d'oeuvres Salad Platter consisting of Celery Sticks stuffed with Roquefort
Shrimps and Stuffed Olives on Toothpicks
Radish Roses Raw Radish Slivers
Roast Turkey
Giblet, Sausage and Celery Stuffing
Potato Roses
Midget Green Beans or Brussels Sprouts with Hollandaise
Plum Pudding with Delicate Sauce
Walnuts in the Shell
Raisins on Stems
Coffee

Such a menu looks so long and rich that one would wonder that a human stomach could endure it, but if you make your canapes on tiny puff paste crackers, serve no bread or rolls, make the potato roses small, and the servings of plum pudding small, everybody can have comfort after dinner if they want it. And if they want that overstuffed feeling let them fill the crevices with a second helping of turkey and stuffing.

Christmas Cocktails

Cook lightly until tender 1 pint cranberries in 1 pint water with 2 whole cloves, then strain. Add 1 cup and cook 3 minutes and cool and add ½ cup orange juice and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. This is strong so must be served with ice.

Oyster and Celery Bisque

Three cups finely chopped celery and leaves, 2½ cups water, 4 tablespoons butter 4 tablespoons sifted cracker crumbs, 4 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, 1 pint oysters. Add the water to the chopped celery and cook for 15 minutes. Strain the celery from the water and discard the celery. Add the oyster liquor to the celery stock. Melt the butter in top of double boiler and add sifted crumbs to it. When stir in the milk which should be hot to shorten stirring period, until thickened somewhat. Add salt and pepper and cook over boiling water with oysters until edges curl and oysters are plumb. Garnish soup plates with shake of paprika.

Roast Turkey

Giblet Sausage and Celery Stuffing

For a 12-lb. turkey grate or crumb one loaf of stale white bread, melt ½ cup butter and stir the crumbs around in the pan in which butter is melted, then add 1 large grated onion, 1 cup finely chopped celery, the finely chopped liver, heart and gizzard from the turkey which have been boiled, covered, until tender, then ½ lb. ground sausage meat, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons sage, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Mix these well in the pan the butter was melted in and stuff into turkey.

Delicate Sauce

Beat ¼ cup butter, and ¼ cup icing sugar until they are very creamy. Whip one cup thick cream until stiff and fold it into the butter and sugar, then stand it over hot water and beat while heating. When smooth and thick add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 tablespoon orange juice. Serve warm over hot pudding.

Christmas Dinner Menu No. 2

(Less expensive). All courses at table:

Fruit Spears
Sirloin Roast of Beef Popovers
Franconia Bermuda Onions
Turnip Souffle
Pear and Pecan Individual Salads with Cheese Balls
Apple and Cranberry Open Face Pie
Toasted Chesnuts Mints
Coffee

(The above is a fine meal to serve to folks who love food but are not noted for their Epicurean taste—although it could be served to an Epicure with confidence.)

Fruit Spears

On the brightest plates you have arrange four sections each of grapefruit and orange—from fresh fruit—having the thin edges of each two matching pieces facing, arranging them in groups of two on four sides of the plate. Place small mound of beaten pistachio jelly in centre (this can be bought in dime packages as any jello dessert.)

Sirloin Roast of Beef

We will describe how to treat this roast next week but you should order it and have the butcher hang it way carefully wrapped in cloth for you this week.

Turnip Souffle

Two tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, one-third cup cream, 1½ cups mashed turnip, 3 egg yolks, 3 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon salt. Melt butter, add flour and salt and cook for 1 minute, then pour on slowly the cream and stir until it thickens. Add potato then yolks which have been beaten until pale, then fold in stiffly beaten whites. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake at 300 deg Fahr. until firm about 40 minutes.

Cheese Balls

One and one-half cups grated mild cheese, 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, whites 3 eggs, cracker dust. Mix cheese with flour and seasonings. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and add to first mixture. Shape in small balls, roll in cracker dust (sifted rolled crackers) fry in deep fat at 390 deg. Fahr. and drain on brown paper. Serve with salad course.

Tested Favorite Recipes

By Mrs. McK.

This recipe is sent in by a reader who recommends it highly—especially since the price of cranberries is so low this year.

Cranberry Pudding

Two cups cranberries, 1 cup each raisins, chopped suet, bread crumbs, ½ cup white sugar, 1 cup flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

METHOD: Wash and cut berries in half, mix all dry ingredients together, add enough water to make a stiff mixture, brush mould with butter and place in boiling water or live steam for 3½ to 4 hours. Serve with any desired sauce.

Wife Preservers

Protect the children's blankets with washable cotton covers. Then you won't be so much annoyed if muddy feet are carelessly put on the bed.

Touches That Make It A Feast

By MARY MOORE

AFTER all these years it would be logical to suppose I could roast a turkey or a choice cut of beef with my eyes shut, wouldn't it?

But I can't and don't attempt to—one minor reason being because I enjoy the sight so much.

So except these directions in the spirit in which they are given. I want your turkey or your roast of beef to be the best you ever had.

How to Roast a Turkey to Perfection

Have the butcher dress the fowl. Wash it by scrubbing the skin with brush and baking soda and rinsing well. Stuff and truss it, and dry it.

Rub entire surface with salt. Mix to a paste one-third cup butter and ¼ cup flour. Spread the wings, breast and legs and thighs with the paste. Dredge bottom of pan with flour. Lay turkey on its side on rack in roasting pan. Place in oven of 550 deg. Fahr. (extremely hot), and as soon as flour in pan is medium brown, add ½ cup water to pan, baste turkey with part of basting mixture consisting of ½ cup butter melted in ½ cup of boiling water. Reduce heat, cover and roast at 350 deg. Fahr. without disturbing for 1 hour. Then baste with more of the basting mixture and turn bird over to other side. Cover again and let roast for 1 more hour then baste, and place bird on back and cover for 1 more hour, then remove cover, baste and leave cover off to brown breast skin, basting every 5 minutes. Any turkey over 10 pounds needs 3 hours; some very large birds will need four hours. Serve on hot platter garnished with parsley, celery tips or carrot curls.

Sirloin Roast of Beef Done to Perfection

For the roast to be in prime condition it should come from a beef that has been hung at least three weeks, and weigh at least 10 lbs.

Patiently rub 2 tablespoons salt mixed with 1 tablespoon of paprika into all the cut surfaces of the meat, until you feel that some of the salt has been soaked into the meat, after it dissolves with rubbing.

Place roast in open roasting pan which has been rubbed with some of the beef fat and place in oven of 600 deg. Fahr. or hotter if your oven will register greater heat than this. In 20 minutes reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr., baste meat with what drippings there are in the pan, and in 1 hour turn meat over and baste well with drippings in pan. Do not add water. Baste again and again. A thirteen-lb. roast requires 3 hours, a 10-lb. roast about 2½ hours. Serve very hot. Slice with very sharp knife in large thick slices.

Richmond corn cakes—made not an instant too soon before serving—or popovers, or individual Yorkshire puddings make a grand accompaniment and garnish for a platter of roast beef.

Turkey Giblet Gravy

Pour off liquid in pan in which turkey has been roasted. Skim 6 tablespoons fat from the top of it and put in saucepan with 6 tablespoons flour; pour on gradually 3 cups stock in which giblets and wing tips have been cooked, and use some of the fat free stock from pan. Stir until it thickens then cook over double boiler for 5 minutes and strain. Add chopped heart liver and gizzard.

Roast Beef Gravy

Pour excessive fat from roasting pan leaving as much of the dark brown pan gravy as possible and a little of the fat in pan. To this add 5 tablespoons flour and stir offheat until blended, then pour on 3 cups boiling water and stir until thickened, then strain and season with pepper (no salt is necessary because so much was rubbed into the roast), reheat and serve in hot gravy boat.

To Carve Roast Turkey

Turkey should be placed on its back on hot platter with legs at right of platter for carving. It is a strict duty of every hostess to see that her carving knife is newly sharpened for such occasions as Christmas dinner. Introduce carving fork through breastbone, and holding firmly in left hand begin carving through the skin between leg and body.

With a backward pull of the knife extend leg from body and with point disjoint at thigh. Or if turkey is so large that a drumstick or thigh is too large a serving for one, slice the dark meat from the legs and thighs.

If drumsticks and thighs are to be served in separate pieces not sliced disjoint them while they lie flat on the platter holding the thigh part firmly with the fork.

Remove the wings by disjointing with point of knife.

Carve breast meat in thin slices crosswise. On either side of back bone just below ribs are two oyster-shaped pieces of dark meat that are very choice.

For a small family carve only one side of turkey so that leftover turkey is in better condition for second serving.

To Carve Roast Beef

Sirloin or rib roast are cut at right angles to the ribs or bones. All beef is sliced across the grain.

Host should enquire of guests their preferences for well done or rare beef—for the world seems to be divided into these two classes—although I always want a piece of both (just to make it complicated.)

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am wondering if you could help me secure a good recipe for Apple Cider? I would be so grateful if you could.

I am a new bride and my cooking problems are many and varied as I spent 12 years working in offices and therefore have very little experience in cooking. I feel I cannot hold my head up in local society until I am able to bake an angel cake. Two attempts have proven an expensive failure so could you give a recipe plainly stating each step of the method and baking process, as in the cook books it does not very plainly describe them. With my limited experience I can hardly guess what my mistakes have been.

I would appreciate it so very much if you could help me as I can't ask any of my new friends here, for I have known them such a short time. —(Mrs.) J.E.M.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

Apple cider is made in a cider press which is a large machine, having a very large grinder at one end in which the washed apples are ground. From this they drop into a wooden tub-like container — the staves of which are slightly spread to allow juice to escape through the slits when the apples are pressed. When the tub is full a plunger is fitted into the top and wound down to pres sthe juice from the apples which flows out through the cracks around the bottom and sides into a tray with a trough at one end.

Cider making is not a household process. Usually only one farmer in a small district has one. Other farmers using his press.

Angel Cake

(Many expert angel food bakers will raise their eyebrows and say that many of the directions in this recipe are contrary to all their teachings, but I have discovered that slow ovens, cake flour (which is deglutenized) and ungreased pans do not make successful angel food cakes constantly.)

Whites 8 eggs, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar fresh, 1 cup powdered sugar, ¾ cup pastry flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon vanilla. Beat whites of eggs until frothy, add cream of tartar, and continue beating until eggs are stiff, then add sugar gradually. Sift the flour and salt four times together then sift into the first mixture, then add vanilla. Bake 45 or 50 minutes in buttered angel cake pan at 350 deg. Fahr., reducing heat to about 300 during last 15 minutes of baking.

We hope this works for you—it does for us—a tall tender cake resulting. Do let us help you whenever you need it. I was an inexperienced bride once myself and know the helpless feeling.

QUESTION: In your cookery page of November 15 you gave an interesting article on rice cooking and mention the use of a rice ball for better results.

I should be so much obliged if you'd let me know where I could buy a rice ball. I have tormented the clerks of every suitable place in town where I thought I'd be most likely to get one and no one seems to have heard of one and explanations couldn't seem to give them understanding.

I have had lots of splendid recipes and hints from your page and if at all possible I make a point of trying out your special recipes. Most of them are very enjoyable and give fine variety.—Mrs. J.W.C.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

I have called the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. on the telephone and their Hardware Department advises me that their Toronto store stocks rice balls. By telephoning their shopping service and asking for one they will order one from their Toronto store for you.

I hope you are successful in procuring a rice ball through this source.

QUESTION: I would like to know if you can find me a recipe for Grandmother's Xmas Fruit Cake. I had the recipe for it but I have lost it. I got it the year 1935, and I would like it again.—Mrs. O.E.I.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter. I think the following is the recipe to which you refer.

Grandmother's Fruit Cake

Four cups flour, 2 large cups butter (standard measuring cups), 3 cups white sugar, 9 fresh eggs, ½ lb. finely sliced mixed peel, ¼ lb. candied cherries, 2 lbs. each raisins, currants, figs, dates, 1¼ lbs. almonds, 2 teaspoons each powdered cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg, 1 teaspoon soda, ¼ cup brandy. Mix in order given with the hands. Bake in paper lined pans well greased for 4 hours. This makes 4 or 5 cakes.

The above recipe is not described in the manner I approve for it is quite old fashioned, but if you are a good cook you will know how to go about it. Write again if I can help you.

Produces Cat Of New Color

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—(CP).—A kitten of an absolutely new color, predicted by Dr. Clyde E. Keeler, Harvard Medical School authority on genetics, attended the annual meeting of the Boston Cat Club, captivating all hearts. He is a "blue smoke" Persian with black fur flimed with silver.

Although Dr. Keeler predicted the color in a paper he wrote for a cat magazine, it appeared quite unexpectedly according to the owner of the cat, who will exhibit specimens of the new color at the cat show, January 13 to 14.

Pedigreed mice and rats will be shown along with the cats, as was done at last year's show, though none appeared at the annual meeting. Another novel feature this year will be a class for pet cats lacking genealogical background. They will come under the classification "A.O.C." (any other color) and eligible for prizes.

JAPS NOW ADMIT PANAY DIDN'T FIRE ON THEIR TROOPS

SHANGHAI, Dec. 22 — (AP). — Mapor-General Kumakichi Harada announced to-day further investigation showed the sinking United States gunboat Panay had not fired its cannon at Japanese troops as his report had stated yesterday.

The military attache added, however, additional study had not changed his denial the Japanese army boats had machine-gunned the vessel, despite American official reports to the contrary.

Investigation by Lieutenant-Colonel Yoshiaki Nishi, War Ministry staff officer, was the basis for the new statement on the bombing of the Panay and three Standard Oil Company boats on the Yangtze River above Nanking on December 12.

Nishi explained at a press conference that the commander of a small Japanese army unit had heard sounds of shelling, but that the officer of a larger unit on the scene of the bombing considered that report in error since no shells had exploded nearby.

Machine-gunned Chinese.

After a detailed explanation, the two officers insisted that no shots had been fired on the Panay by army units. They added, however, that Japanese boats had machine-gunned Chinese launches attemping to flee from the vicinity, one of which the Lidah, reportedly was captured and taken to Nanking.

They emphasized the chief reason Japanese machine-gunning of the Panay or fleeing survivors was "impossible and inconceivable" was that Japanese had no enmity toward Americans.

They said Japanese troops on the scene had treated the wounded and attempted to prevent further bombing of one of the vessles by waving Japanese flags from its deck.

ENJOYABLE TALK BY BIRD FANCIER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 22.—Jack Wilmink, local bird fancier who keeps in his apiary some twenty-seven different species of native and foreign birds from Asia, Africa, Australia and Europe, gave an interesting talk on the breeding of birds to Rotarians at their noonday luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday.

The speaker, who was introduced by Rotarian Charles Calver, told of how his interest in birds had grown from finding a wounded nightingale in a meadow near his native home in Holland. Although formerly a difficult task to find sufficient food such as insects and ant eggs for the birds kept in captivity, it is now much simplified with prepared foods available.

The only Canadian to successfully breed the European bullfinch, Mr. Wilmink told of his experiences in mating different species of birds. Despite the fact that much criticism has been directed toward the bird fancier for keeping birds in captivity, it is interesting to note that the average life of some birds in their native haunts is but two years, while the same birds may live for as many as twenty years protected in their cages by man.

A vote of thanks was moved to the speaker by Mr. H. N. Carr, who thanked Mr. Wilmink on behalf of the club for his interesting address.

PROPOSED CHANGE SENT PROVINCES

Mr. Mackenzie King declined to say what his government would do if it failed to obtain unanimous consent to a B.N.A. Act amendment.

No Reply To Hepburn

He said he had nothing to add to the controversy between his government and Mr. Hepburn's regarding Ontario power problems and Mr. Hepburn's desire for permission to export electrical energy to the United States.

He said he had no knowledge of a reported government intention to launch an intensive housing program next year, and no immediate knowledge of reports the national employment and relief commission headed by A. B. Purvis would soon be abolished and its work transferred to the labor department.

The commission, he said, was preparing a report which would be presented to parliament and decision regarding the administration's future policy toward it would be decided later.

Most government ministers will spend the holidays elsewhere than Ottawa. The prime minister will stay home and probably entertain members of his family.

NORMAL BLOOD has a count of 4,500,000 red corpuscles. If your blood count is below this you just can't feel well, because only these tiny cells can carry the necessary nourishment from your food and the energizing oxygen from your lungs to every part of your body. With a low blood count you're found to be always tired, easily upset, nervous and depressed, without appetite, sleepless, under weight. Everything is drudgery.

You needn't go on in this way! Take Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Originated by a Canadian physician, this tested tonic quickly raises your blood count. You get new energy and vigour, your depression and nervousness disappear, your appetite and normal weight return, you sleep soundly, and your life is worth living again. If this is not your experience your money will be refunded by all druggists.

Renew Talks

Hepburn, of Ontario, at the latter's office in Toronto in a renewal of the inter-provincial conversations which began when Mr. Hepburn visited Montreal. The respective premiers have already announced an economic alliance and they are seeking an accord on power exports. It is also reported that the governments may prepare a joint brief for presentation to the Rowell Commission investigating provincial-federal relations.

He concluded with a plea against defeatism.

"This nation has weathered worse anxieties than this. We hear much of our re-armaments, but there is something even more important than re-armament, and that is the spirit behind re-armament.

"In this respect nobody should make the mistake of thinking the spirit of tenacity of the people of this country has in any way changed in recent years."

The comedian's second wife, who gave birth to their first son, John Jacob, last Friday, was not immediately notified of her husband's death. Healy had termed his son's birth the greatest excitement in his life.

His first wife was Betty Braun, a dancer, with whom he toured in vaudeville. They were divorced in 1932. Last year Healy eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with Betty Hickman, 21-year-old Venice, Calif., girl. They later separated but were reconciled before an interlocutory divorce decree became final.

Healy was born in Houston, Tex., on October 1, 1896, son of a hotel man and cattle dealer. He was educated for the law in New York, but turned to the stage, becoming a comedian in the burlesque show "Cuddle Up," in 1917. For 15 years he was a familiar figure in vaudeville houses of the United States and Europe.

Healy and his boys were featured in Earl Carroll's Vanities in 1925, and scored successes later in "A Night in Spain" and "A Night in Venice." They reached the top of 05,000 weekly vaudeville salary in New York and $6,000 on the road.

TORONTO — Smashing down a door on the second floor of a large and expensively decorated west Toronto home, police today arrested Arthur Kidden, 26, charged with registering and recording bets. Police said they found Kidden locked in a room on the second floor.

Board Of Health Winds Up Business For The Year

Forty-Six Cases Of Scarlet Fever Treated At Isolation Hospital

Forty-six cases of scarlet fever have been treated at the Queen Mary hospital since November 1 in a minor epidemic that has waned, Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., told the Board of Health last night.

It was the final meeting of the Board for the year with Alderman Stocker presiding, and the other members present were Mayor Macdonald, Alderman Dutton and Dr. Fraser. Reports of milk tests made by M. R. MacPherson, Sanitary Inspector, were referred to by Dr. Fraser as "very good." Several samples showed bacteria counts that required Mr. MacPherson to visit farms from which the supply had come to the city, and certain recommendations were made there in regard to greater care in keeping cans and other utensils clean.

Dr. Fraser suggests that Mr. MacPherson be permitted to spend a week or ten days with members of the sanitary inspection staff of the Toronto Board of Health observing their practices in various phases of the work as it might be applied to Peterborough. On Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Dr. Fraser, Mr. MacPherson will be allowed not to exceed ten or twelve dollars a week.

Holiday for Nurse

Miss Zeta Kearney, Public Health Nurse, asked for leave of absence during the holiday season from December 23 to 31, on condition that this concession must not be regarded as a precedent. Miss Kearney mentioned her seven months' service since coming to Peterborough, but the opinion of the Board was that it was all part of her duties. Alderman Dutton said he did not wish to oppose Miss Kearney's application for leave of absence, but he pointed out that a principle was involved which the Board could not lightly consider.

The charge for treating patients at the isolation hospital was fixed at $1.50 a day for residents of the city. For those living outside the city the rate wa salready determined at $2 a day exclusive of any cost of nursing service.

Chest Clinic Report

The diagnostic chest clinic maintained by the Ontario Department of Health examined 250 persons during the ten days recently allotted to Peterborough. Cases were referred to the clinic by local doctors and by several others in nearby towns and other municipalities.

In her report of the clinic's survey, Miss Kearney wrote that the number of persons to be re-examined within one year's time was 153; and the number of persons found with associated conditions, such as diseased tonsils, defective teeth, enlarged thyroid, heart condition and so on was 101.

Forty-nine of the persons examined had defective tonsils, and Miss Kearney reported this number to be "very large."

The following summary of the case findings was given: active tuberculosis cases 7; suspected 3; quiescent cases 4; arrested cases 21. Result of the tuberculin skin tests were —132 positive, 91 negative and 27 not read.

The Board instructed the secretary to convey its appreciation to the Department of Health for sending the clinic to Peterborough and requested that plans be made for the return of the Departmental doctors to the city at regular intervals.

An infant boarding home conducted by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy will be given a license thereby providing for visits by the nurse. Mrs. A. Price, wife of the caretaker of the Queen Mary hospital will be given a gratuity of $10 for the additional work she had to do during the last two months.

Congratulated by Mayor

In retiring from the Board, Mayor Macdonald complimented Dr. Fraser "upon the splendid work he has done as our Medical Officer of Health." His Worship said that a great deal of progress had already been accomplished in improving public health conditions and if this local department was carried on as at present the city could look forward with assurance to further improvement in future.

Alderman Stocker added his commendation. "It is a pleasure to work with an official like Dr. Fraser. He never makes any move without consulting the chairman, and in all matters except emergencies I have always consulted the Board. I believe in putting the cards on the table, and let everybody know what is going on. I don't know whether I'll be back next year, but I feel that this Board has done good work for the citizens. When you think that we now have a full time Medical Officer of Health, a Public Health Nurse, various clinics and so on, we realize that there has been a real transformation in this department. I have been through the whole thing, and I know something about it."

Alderman Dutton spoke of the cordial co-operation of Dr. Fraser and his staff with the Board. "That is the only way we can get anywhere. I think Peterborough is fortunate in having a man like Dr. Fraser as our M.O.H. His suggestions are always made in a kindly way, and from the very first I was very favorably impressed by him."

Cost of Sickness

Ald. Dutton incidentally remarked that he believed the next few years would bring about changes in hospital services especially in assisting people who were unable to meet the heavy bills incurred by illness that required hospitalization. The financial burden placed upon the people in such circumstances set them back for years. Ald. Dutton said that state medicine might not be the solution, but something would have to be done for the benefit of people of ordinary means when they needed hospital service.

Dr. Fraser expressed his appreciation of the reference to himself and the local health department. "I have enjoyed working with the Board," he said. "The position of Medical Officer of Health is no bed of roses as you all realise. If you do nothing you are accused of neglect, and if you go ahead with what has to be done you are called arrogant. However, certain things have to be done, so I try to do the best I can. I have certain ideas about public health in Peterborough. I don't hit the target every time, but eventually we should have as good a health department as other cities of this size. There is no reason why our department should not be as efficient as those others even in cities larger than Peterborough."

Dr. Fraser said that the appropriation for the Board of Health this year was $10,000. Some years ago the sum spent on the Queen Mary Hospital alone was from $12,000 to $15,000.

"It was always a mystery to me what they did with it," Ald. Stocker remarked, "and how they got away with it."

Canadian Legion Notes

The monthly meeting of the Legion took place on Monday evening last with a very fine attendance of members. The first feature of the evening was the presentation of a Coronation medal to President Max Sloan. The medal was pinned on the president's breast by Lt.-Col. Gordon Hall. The honor to their president was much appreciated by the members, who consider it an honor to themselves.

The second feature was the presentation by the president on behalf of the members of a pipe and tobacco to Com. H. Coit in recognition of his services to the Legion in the capacity of sick visitor. In season and out of season, in fair or stormy weather for seventeen years Co. Coit has trudged to hospital and homes to cheer sick comrades, and to encourage them with the knowledge that they were not forgotten.

The members went on record heartily endorsing the candidature of Com. Wilfrid Huycke for the City Council, and urge every ex-service man to do their utmost to secure his return. Since the retirement of Max Sloan ex-service men have had no representative on the council, and it was the opinion of the members it was desirable to secure such representation.

The draws for turkeys, geese and chickens produced some delightful surprises and a good deal of crossfire and raillery directed at the winners who were not slow at answering back and giving a roland for their oliver, the winners were Comrades Hardie, Kiff, Cutmore, Kernaghan, Bristow, Huycke, Rutter, Sloan, J. Mitchell, Jr. and R. Mitchell.

The reports of the various committees were very encouraging, especially the membership committee and applications were received from seven new members. We are growing very steadily and each month sees an increase in our strength. So to those interested we say just watch us grow for the stronger we are the more we can do to help the lame dog over the stile. Quite a gallery watched the carpet bowlers in action and the interest in the game manifested by the onlookers certainly encouraged the bowling committee who have very ambitious ideas for the future, at present Nokes team is leading the field.

FRANK FAIREN IS LAID TO REST

A large congregation of old friends and of children from the Separate Schools of the city, of which he was attendance officer for the last 12 years, assisted at the requiem high Mass in memory of the late Frank Fairen. The celebrant was Rev. Edward Welsh, assisted by Rev. Father Grant as deacon, and Rev. Dr. Masterson as subdeacon. Reference to Mr. Fairen's kindly interest in children was made by Rev. P. J. Kelly, rector of St. Peter's. The pall bearers were James Lynch, E. H. Bartlett, R. M. Glover, Fred J. Overend, Roland Denne and Fred Morrow. The prayers at the cemetery were said by Rev. V. J. McFadden of Downeyville and Rev. W. P. Meagher of Lindsay. The funeral to St. Peter's cemetery was largely attended.

BIG FIELD LIKELY.

From present indications the field of aldermanic candidates to be nominated tomorrow, Thursday, night promises to be one of the largest in years. Among the new candidates mentioned today as almost sure starters are Herb. McCannan, Herb. Bradburn, William Rose, Jacob Low and Dr. Ralph Honey.

COLLEGIATE TEAM IS GIVEN RINGS BY SCHOOL BOARD

Hailed by their fellow students, members of the Collegiate Ontario championship rugby team were accorded the official commendation of the Board of Education in the packed Collegiate auditorium this morning. Coach Harvard Bamforth and 20 players received gold school rings in token of the Board's appreciation of their feat.

"We have had some wonderful rugby teams and some wonderful coaches," Dr. G. R. Scott, president of the Board, told the assembled student body. "But I want you to know we have never had a better coach than Mr. Bamforth or a finer team."

At the request of the chairman, W. A. Richardson, board member, carried out the presentation of the rings. Prolonged applause resounded in the auditorium as Coach Bamforth was summoned to the platform first. Applause diminished little as Captain Haig Kelley and his team followed individually.

Of an oval crest design, the rings bear a representation of a football encircled by the school name. The year is indicated by a "37" raised on the football.

Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal, presided. Members of the Board present in addition to Dr. Scott and Mr. Richardson were Charles Shaw, D. G. H. Melton and H. G. Walker.

LIQUOR HEARING IS ADJOURNED

Because he is to appear before a special meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners, Maxwell Vincent this morning obtained further adjournment on a Liquor Control Act charge.

Asked by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., if he was ready to proceed with the hearing after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of unlawfully keeping or having liquor for sale while being an interdicted person, Vincent declared: "I was ready, but I got word to be at a meeting tonight and would like an adjournment".

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall raised no objection to the request of the accused, and the hearing was enlarged until January 5.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., acting for Constable Joseph Wheeler stated to be under suspension from the force by his chief for alleged breaches of police discipline, confirmed the report the meeting. Vincent had reference to was a special meeting of the Police Commission tonight under chairmanship of Judge Sheldon L. Smoke.

"I am acting on Wheeler's behalf", Mr. Gordon is quoted "and I have summoned a dozen or two dozen witnesses to appear before the Commission. I have not the subpoenas before me and could not give you the exact number of witnesses".

TOO MANY TOPPERS

ETON, England, Dec. 22—(CP).—"Toppers" at Eton have many uses it seems.

Hence the following notice by the headmaster: "Lower boys are reminded that hats are not to be kicked or knocked about. Offenders will be severely dealt with."

Parents have complained hat bills of their young sons are excessive. Four "toppers a term are quite common for a lower boy.

GHOST COAL TOWN IS SILENT AGAIN FOR THIRD TIME

BROUGHTON, N.S., Dec. 22. — (CP).— Idleness settled over this Southern Cape Breton mining community to-day and once again Broughton, scene of an ambitious coal-mining project in the early part of the century, became the ghost-town it was for more than 20 years.

Miners walked the gross-grown streets of a town site laid out by the first mining company to operate here, a member of which was a brother of William Gladstone, English statesman. They had seen three years of steady work on the long-abandoned project and then misfortune which followed previous operators struck at the latest venture.

The operators, a grou pof Sydney businessmen, who re-opened a small part of the original lease three years ago, were forced to cease operations when trucks carrying the output to markets bogged down in the muddy roads. A railroad was not available. Then attempts to keep the mine dewatered failed as pumps broke and dropped down the shaft several weeks ago. The mine closed and 42 miners became idle.

No Shipping Outlet.

It was lack of transportation facilities that caused the failure of the original project started by the English syndicate about 1901. Two outlets for the production were available. Coal could be shipped over the Sydney and Louisburg railway. With the payment of freight rates to the rival company which operated the road, or a new railroad could be opened. The latter project went before a government board and was abandoned by the company.

The mining district with its surface plant, through which only a few tons of coal had been raised, the company houses, hotels and offices then became idle until inflated coal prices during the war caused resumption of operations by a new operator. Coal was shipped over the S. & L. lines but even with the high prices, the company could not stand the burden and again Broughton lapsed into idleness.

Main Hotel Burns

War-time brought the only extensive activity seen in this town, built by more than 300 Italian laborers. Then troops were billeted in the two hotels and company houses. The night before the arrival of the 184th Battalion from Winnipeg the larger and finer of the hotel burned to the ground.

For 20 years after that, the streets were silent except for the footfalls of the caretaker left there by the original company, until the Sydney operators stepped in as demand for coal increased in 1934. The Sydney firm which gave work to more than 40 miners with 150 dependents still holds the lease on the newer part of the workings.

Indicative of the ambition of the early syndicate was the furnishing of the hotels, one of which still stands, old and weather-beaten. The hotel which burned, known as the Broughton Arms, had silverware bearing the coat-of-arms adopted by the operating company. Now the deserted company houses, the hotel and office building, and surface workings are all that remain of what was once hailed as the most ambitious mining undertaking in Nova Scotia.

CAROL SERVICE AT CAMPBELLFORD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 22.—An estimated 375 people attended the Christmas carol service held under the auspices of the Campbellford Ministerial Association in the Hollywood Theatre on Sunday evening. Each of the local service contributed at least one number of the program, and Mr. Charles Allan and Mr. Harold Kitney led in the singing of many beautiful carols which were flashed on the screen for the audience to sing.

Mayor F. F. Long spoke briefly, thanking Mr. Rapport, manager, for the use of the theatre and also reminded the audience that last year nearly $153.00 had been raised in cash by means of the Christmas concert. This year there would be approximately the same number requiring baskets, so he requested the audience to be as generous as possible. The proceeds totalled $23.00.

The program opened with a group of carols, following which Captain D. Sharp of the Salvation Army contributed a trumpet solo. Mrs. F. de Free sang "Star of Bethlehem," and was accompanied at the piano by Miss Gertrude Maynard. Following a second group of carols sung by the audience, Mrs. Allan Watson rendered a vocal solo and was accompanied at the piano by Mr. Charles Allan. A vocal duet by Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol, and Miss May Bell brought the program to a close.

Following a few words of welcome to the audience by Mrs. Black, Jack Thompson, 1st vice-president of the Mission Band, spoke briefly of the work done by the society of which he was president in 1937. Mrs. Black thanked all those who had assisted in decorating for the entertainment and assisted in its preparation, particularly Mrs. J. Storie, Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. F. G. MOULDERS' UNION PART OF COUNCIL

Declaring the Trades and Labor Council is the legislative body of all Peterborough trades unions and is therefore representative of all affiliated locals, Nora M. Adams, secretary of the Labor Election Committee, today issued a statement to the press in reply to a recent story in which an official of the Moulders' Union flatly denied the report the Moulders' Union was backing the C.C.F.-Communist-Labor candidates for council.

"Owing to the misunderstanding which may arise from the statement issued by an official of the Moulders' Union, the Labor Election Committee wishes to issue the following statement," Miss Adams said.

"The Labor Election Committee was formed at a meeting called by the Trades and Labor Council for the purpose of exploring the possibility and advisability of sponsoring candidates at the coming municipal election.

"It was definitely understood the final selection of candidates and the platform upon which they would appeal to the electorate must meet with the approval of the council.

"Therefore in answer to our brother of the Moulders' Union we wish to state the Trades and Labor Council is the legislative body of all Peterborough trade unions and does therefore represent and speak with authority for all affiliated locals.

"It is to be understood these candidates represent organized labor and professional and small businessmen in Peterborough, but in no sense as municipal candidates are they representing any political party or group."

2 LINDSAY MEN HELD FOR THEFT

BARONESS SPENDS WINTER IN NORTH

THE PASS, Man., Dec. 22 (AP)—Anne Guigot de Mishaegen, writer and traveller, is bound north to Granville Lake to spend the winter. She is a baroness with a palatial home, the Chateau de Mishaegen in Belgium, but the simple life in the north attracts her.

The baroness is writing a travel-book, based on life in the north. She has written two along similar lines, both in French, and hopes to have her third completed this spring. The work will be done in her lonely cabin, 200 miles north of The Pas.

A tour of Africa was added recently to her lengthy jaunts about the globe. She crossed the Sahara desert by automobile and during hunting expeditions in Africa's wilds bagged a water buffalo, lions, antelopes and other game.

The north drew her in 1931 and she staked several mining claims on reaching Manitoba. Then she glimpsed Granville Lake and the winter of 1934 saw he busy trapping. Usually the trek to the cabin is made by dog team in winter and canoe in the summer but this year a plane will take her to Granville Lake and months of study and writing.

YEARNS TO RETURN TO FIRE BATTLES

WINNIPEG, Dec. 22 — (CP). — "Fighting Billy" Code, the man who became a fireman because "it made me feel like a man," is 89 years of age. A sparkle still remains in his eyes and he only has one wish, which he'll never get—"chip 60 years off my life and let me go back to firefighting."

Code staged open-house on his 89th birthday. Forty years in Winnipeg fire department, six as chief and 26 as assistant chief, earned him many friends, and about 100 of them were on hand to wish him the best.

He recalled how he could handle three horses on a mad gallop through downtown Winnipeg as the fire engine lurched and swayed beneath him. His automobile upset once, but he crawled out from under and finished the trip to the fire by street car.

In the good old days a fireman was always on the job. Even when Code went to church he sat near the door so he could hear the fire gong.

The veteran's hearing is bad, but if a fire engine passes within blocks of his home he can hear it.

Crushed and burned under blazing timbers, overcome dozens of times by smoke, Code is active, erect, independent and still full of spirit. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, and lived in Marquette, Mich., before coming to Winnipeg.

PLACE LAWRENCE IN HIGH COMPANY

LONDON, Dec. 16 (CP)—A presentation copy of Lawrence's "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," flanked on either side by the last books read by George V and Albert, the Prince Consort of Queen Victoria are given a position of honor in the Royal Library, Windsor Castle.

King George's book, a novel by a well-known author, bears an inscription by Queen Mary on the fly leaf, but neither the inscription nor the book's title nor author have been made public. The Prince Consort's book is one of Scot's Waverley novels.

By special permission of the King a party of friends of the National Libraries was shown over the library by O. F. Morshead, the King's librarian. He showed them what he described as the most thrilling letter ever written—Napoleon's letter of submission to George IV, which he wrote from Rochefort, dated July 13, 1815.

The letter has been mounted together with two drawings of the house in which he was exiled in St. Helena, a lock of his hair and the actual star of the Legion of Honor which he wore at St. Helena.

Nearby there is the shirt which King Charles I wore at his execution, his first folio copy of Shakespeare and what was described as the most valuable book in the world —the King's copy of Mainz Psalter, dated 1457.

PLEASANT PLAINS SCHOOL
(Examiner Correspondence)

Pleasant Plains School, S. S. No. 4, Dummer, staged their annual Christmas concert and Christmas tree on Friday evening, December 17, when the pupils, under the direction of Miss Rosetta Frankish, teacher, provided a splendid program of recitations, dialogues and musical selections. They were assisted by members of Zion church, who presented the dialogue, "Marie Misses Marriage."

The program opened with a chorus by the school, the selection chosen, being "O Canada" and "Some Folks"; little Vernon Moore then recited the piece "Christmas Eve," and was rewarded with hearty applause from the audience.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, who acted as chairman, spoke welcoming the audience, after which the little folks of the school sang a medley of Nursery rhymes, including "The Train," "Kitty" and "As I was going to Bonner." The dialogue "Lem Heck's Horse," was presented by seven school pupils, the actors being Leah Little, Doris Carveth, Margot Clysdale, Royce Little, Milton McCracken, Liverne Mathews and Russell Carveth. This was followed by a tableau entitled "Days of the week" in which a number of pupils appeared.

A trio, "We Three Kings of Orient Are" was sung by David Millar, Milton McCracken and Liverne Mathews; Margot Clysdale gave a humorous reading, "Licenses and Permits" which was a take-off on the number of licenses and permits which the average man is required to take out in order to live a normal life in this day and age.

A second dialogue "Readin' the News" was presented at this point in the program, when Ivah Little, Lila Mathews, Margot Clysdale, Alvin Little and Donald McCracken gave a creditable performance.

Margot Clysdale and Liverne Mathews then favored the audience with a vocal duet which was followed by a seasonable recitation delivered by Doris Carveth. The older pupils sang two part songs "Will you come and join us singing?" and "Hark the Lark," and Barbara Parsons gave a humorous moriologue entitled "Miss Prim's Christmas Shopping."

A star drill, in which were Margot Clysdale, Doris Carveth, Lila Mathews, Ivah Little and Leah Little, was followed by a recitation by William Darling, "A Conundrum."

A third dialogue "The Truth-Telling Machine" proved, possibly, most popular of all with the audience. There were ten characters in this sketch, the parts being taken by Margot Clysdale, Leah Little, Ivah Little, Lila Mathews, Doris Carveth, Milton McCracken, Royce Little, Liverne Mathews, Russell Carveth and Alvin Little.

A piano duet by Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Alex. Darling was followed by carols by the older pupils, "God Rest ye Merry Gentlemen" and "Good King Wenceslas."

The dialogue "Marie Misses Marriage" was then presented by four members of Zion United church, Violet Darling, Mrs. George Crowe, Ronald Mathews and Trevor Little.

At the conclusion of the dialogue about fifteen of the older school pupils made up a Kazoo Band which played a medley of popular tunes on these primitive instruments and pleased the audience because of its novelty.

Santa Claus then made his appearance, being welcomed by a chorus of school children, who sang "Hello Santa Claus." He distributed the gifts from the tree. Christmas tree and stole away again into the night, bringing a delightful evening to a close.

PONTYPOOL SCHOOL

On Friday evening, December 17, the annual Sunday School and Public School Christmas concert was held in the Orange Hall, Pontypool. The hall was filled to the door for a splendid program which was provided by the pupils.

Rev. W. F. Riding acted as chairman for the following program: Opening chorus by the school "Oh, Canada"; opening recitation, Evelyn Mantle; two carols by the school; recitation, Morris Nimigeon; dialogue, "How To Tell The Bad News"; recitation, Yvonne Hudson; chorus, Junior room; recitation, Earl Richardson; chorus, ten boys; son, "By The Whitmee children; tap dance, Brenda McGill and Pauline Finney; recitation, Norman Fisher; dialogue; Christmas gifts; trio, three boys; recitation, Velma Masters; play; spelling class; recitation, Oscar Davey; duet, two boys; song, six girls; mouth organ selection, George Golleen; song; youngman children; recitation, Teddy Fisher; play, "A Christmas Lesson; chorus, Senior room; monologue, Mike Nimigeon; Cowboy songs, Barnyard; recitations, dialogue, Rastus Rambles On; recitation, Joyce Hudson; play "Uncle Hiram's Cold"; athletic stunts; pantomime, "The Old Rugged Cross"; two carols by the school; closing speech, Earl Masters; song, "Good Night Friends"; "God Save The King."

Santa Claus then arrived and after reading his mail distributed the presents of a tree placed in the corner of the hall and decorated with colored lights.

When the presents had all been distributed and after wishing everyone a Merry Christmas, Santa disappeared into the snowy night.

ORANGE CORNERS SCHOOL

The annual Christmas concert was held at Orange Corners school on Thursday night, December 16th, with a large attendance of people from the surrounding district.

The school was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the children were well trained and all acted their parts exceptionally well, under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Dorothy Dayman.

The following program was given with Mr. Samuel Carew acting as chairman: Chorus, by school, "Good King Wenceslas"; chairman's remarks; recitation, "Welcome," Clifford Faulkner; "Silent Night," instrumental in two parts, Mr. Oullette; "Santa's Soldiers," a drill by five boys; pantomime, "As With Gladness," by four girls, sung by Lila Dunlop and Jean Faulkner; recitation, "Christmas," by Gerald Hutchison; duet, Audrey Harrison, Mildred Casey and Sherman Harrison; recitation, "Christmas Presents," Mabel Dunlop; rooster parade, a drill by four boys; recitation, Mildred Casey and Neva Casey; chorus by school, Toyland; recitation, "I Wonder Why," Kenneth Hutchison; Daisy Dell Doll Dance, by four girls; recitation, "When Father Carves the Duck," Melton Dunlop; dialogue, "Christmas in Paradise"; monologue, "Patsy's Parsley," Daisy Magee; duet, "Santa's Helper," Audrey Harrison and Mabel Dunlop; a negro get-together, by five boys; recitation, "Santa," Sherman Harrison; chorus by school, "Who Is Coming"; God Save the King.

Then came Santa, which was great excitement for the smaller children; Mr. William Howden quite capably acting the part of Santa, and distributed the parcels, also candy from the tree.

Divers Seek Bodies At Port Stanley

Seeking the bodies of the eight "Muckers" who met death when a temporary dam collapsed upon them at Port Stanley, Ont., Pete Montour, diver, descends into the muddy, wreckage strewn water, where jagged steel and splintered beams make his own work hazardous. The diver brought three bodies to the surface, but five more were buried under the tons of steel and timber which fell when the dam gave way. Crews were attempting to remove the debris so that the bodies could be released.

THEATRES FULL WRITER YEARNS FOR SUBSTANCE

LONDON, Dec. 22 (CP)—One prevalent opinion on the state of the London stage was reflected in the statement in The Observer the other day by St. John Ervine, the prominent author and playwright, that these were melancholy times for the lover of the drama.

"It seems to become harder and harder for a dramatist to obtain performance for a play of more substantial quality than a macaroon," wrote Mr. Ervine in his weekly column.

Yet a sufficient number of people think pretty highly of London's stage this fall, enough to pack the theatres so that it is something of a problem to find a house for a new play.

To look no further than the same copy of The Observer one could find, for instance, the views of Hubert Griffith, the newspaper's theatre correspondent: "The autumn season has started strongly and steadily and there are now a number of good plays that people are keenly anxious to see."

Mr. Griffith listed the successful plays now showing, plays old and new but each with a good future: "French Without Tears," "George and Margaret," "Victoria Regina," "Old Music," "Time and the Conways," "Bonnet Over the Windmill" —and more.

Yet the regrets of so established a critic and writer as St. John Ervine perhaps warrant attention in the face of box office hilarity. "Why is it," he asked, "that in a time when so many fine novels are being published so few plays to match them are being produced?" "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell; "And So Victoria," by Vaughan Wilkins; "Act of God," by Fryn Tennyson Jesse; and "They Seek a Country," by Francis Brett Young—these four books had been published this year.

"But has the playgoer any hope of finding four new plays equal in quality to these novels staged in the West End in one year?

"The disparity is not due to the limitations which the stage imposes upon the dramatist. Shakespeare and Shaw can say more in five acts than the majority of novelists can say in 700 pages. Sean O'Casey tells us more about Ireland in 'Juno and the Paycock' than is told by all the contemporary Irish novelists put together. An author does not need space; he needs imagination."

Nor is the fault all in the public's taste, for, as Mr. St. John Ervine contends "if the public is willing to read a novel in which the author makes a serious effort to interpret life, we may suppose that it will, if it is well enough trained, be willing to witness a play in which the dramatist attempts the same task."

Production Cost Factor

"The supreme cause of the disparity between the novel and the play is the cost of production. A manager will not attempt to change the taste of the public because he runs the risk of ruin if his attempt is not immediately successful. Twenty novels can be published for the cost of a single play, and the publisher can hope to make his expenses and probably a profit on the whole 20, but the theatre manager cannot be certain of recovering what he has spent on the play.

"There's money in laughter; so the theatre manager produces lighter and lighter comedies. As his plays become increasingly trivial, at last we reach a point at which he thinks it wants. His house is frequented only by the boneheads and numbskulls who must always be tittering and giggling, and he dare not drive them out by producing better work.

"The circumstances of the theatre are such that the cost of producing a play must be greater than the cost of publishing a book, but until we have reduced the costs of play production enormously we cannot hope to make the theatre the entertainment of the community; it must continue to be the luxury of the trivial-minded and the resort of all boneheads."

Which from St. John Ervine is a castigation not flavored with sour grapes for he is the author of "Anthony and Anna" a comedy that in its 800th production this month is enjoying the longest run in London.

Makes Gadgets

The world's No. 1 gadget-maker is caught by the camera in one of his gadgeting moods, and from his efforts will probably spring something new to make every-day life more livable. He is Carleton Ellis Montclair, N.J., inventor, whose genius has produced 700 original things on which he has patents. The 700th was a new type of lacquer said to approach the "perfect paint", but his inventions cover a varied field from dog biscuits to materials used to make war aeroplanes immune from incendiary bullets.

The War Zone In Far East

To the east and to the north of the area shown on this map lies the first arena of Japanese aggression in China, Korea in 1910. The next bit was Manchoukuo — in 1931. Tokio then began on Tibet, but was repulsed with a defence of passive resistance. What amounts to guerilla warfare is being waged with Russia at the inner Mongolian border, with Japan, so far, stalemated.

This map drawn by Artist Lou Hanlon, shows the current war arena in the Far East, where Japan is again biting a huge chunk of valuable territory from China. To the north and the east lies the first arena of Jap aggression in China, Korea in 1910, and Manchoukuo in 1931. The gradual, but steady advance of Jap forces in the newest theatre of war is thoroughly pictured.

Taj Mahal Dome To Be Repaired

AGRA, India, Dec. 22 (CP)—Plans to make the dome of the 300-year-old Taj Mahal damp-proof are under consideration by the authorities here. While there appears to be no danger of the great dome in the centre of the famous white marble mausoleum giving way, carved stones placed on it in recent years have added greatly to its weight and may be removed.

Concrete added to the original roofing has not achieved the main purpose of making it damp-proof to the extent anticipated. The great monument, one of the world's most beautiful buildings, was recently inspected by Rao Bahadur Dikshit, Director-General of Archaeology.

VICTORIA ASKED TO VOTE REFORM OF UPPER HOUSE

Irked at having his United Country Party legislation vetoed in an opposition Upper House, Premier A. A. Dunstan is going to the people on October 2.

Chief issue at stake is reform of the Upper House or Legislative Council which now is predominated by the United Australia Party in opposition to the government.

After a recent election for the Upper House the U.A.P. held 17 of the 34 seats, the remainder being divided between the U.C.P. with 10, Labor with four and Independents three. The council is elected on the rotation system, half its members retiring every three years.

This has resulted in a legislative stalemate. So a vote for Dunstan will be a vote for the reform of the Upper House. He claims half the Upper House is always outdated and therefore does not represent the will of the people. He further maintains an oppositionist Upper House is a stumbling block to popular government. His reforms are aimed, not at cutting down the council's power to originate and amend legislation, but at giving it the same complexion as the government of the day.

His opponents declare this to be a purely political move threatening the constitutional status of the Upper House. They say the council's present constitution gives it a party-free and independent status.

Following the election in February, 1935, for the Lower House or Legislative Assembly, the United Country Party had a party majority with 23 seats. The United Australia Party under Sir Stanley Argyle had 20, Labor led by Thomas Tunnecliffe had 19 and there were three Independents.

Sir Stanley, with the support of members of other parties, formed a government but later was forced to resign on a vote of non-confidence. Dunstan then formed a government on the promise of Labor support although no Labor members were included in the cabinet. But with the Upper House controlled by the Argyle group, Dunstan found his legislative program was closely curbed so he decided to take the issue to the people.

Victoria uses the preferential system of voting used in Australian federal elections and also observes the compulsory voting law by which abstainers are fined.

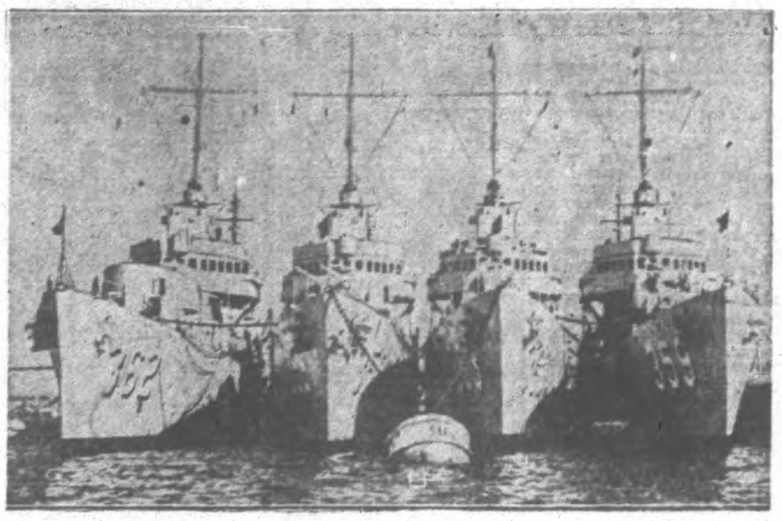
Live Happily In Old Japanese Garden

MELBOURNE, Dec. 22—(CP). — Nobishiro Katayama, the Japanese pianist and his Australian wife, formerly Betty MacDonald of Sidney, N.S.W., have not adopted the Japanese system of the husband being the master. "If he tries it I shall walk out immediately," Mrs. Katayama said when interviewed in Tokio, according to a despatch to The Melbourne Argus.

"I am just a musician's wife, and we understand each other perfectly," the young Australian girl assured the reporter.

The musician and his wife are living in an Occidental house in a Japanese garden in Tokio. They said their respective fathers needed much coaxing before they would sanction their marriage.

Part Of Uncle Sam's Pacific Poker Fleet



Four of a kind—each a speedy, hard-hitting destroyer—shown moored to a buoy at San Diego, Calif. They are the U.S. destroyers Moffett (362), McDougal (358), Balch (363) and Winslow (359), latest additions to Uncle Sam's first line of defence in the Pacific. These destroyers have the appearance of small cruisers. Capable of a speed of better than 35 knots, they have terrific hitting power. Note the twin turrets for'ard, which house 5-inch guns. They also carry eight torpedo tubes. They are considered the most formidable craft afloat for their size.

Old Tree Reveals Unchanged Nature Rings Of Spruce Tell 'Sun' Story

VICTORIA, Dec. 22 — (CP). — A glacier-bound spruce tree found in Northern British Columbia has shown scientists the present 11¼ year cycle of sunspot activity has been unchanged for more than 60,000 years, Dr. W. E. Harper, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on nearby Saanich Mountain, said in an address here.

Dr. Harper said trees were studied because their rings clearly record most vigorous growth in years when there is most ultra-violet light—that is, in years of greatest sunspot activity.

He said scientists first cut down living trees, then went further back by examining the timber of old Indian dwellings. Earlier still were the 4,000-year-old sequoias of California.

But the oldest record of all came from the British Columbia spruce trunk. It dated back between 60,000 and 100,000 years, and its rungs told the same story of an 11-year cycle.

Referring to various "sunspot theories"—that wars, epidemics, crops and even the number of rabbit skins on the market were directly connected with the cycle, he said:

"One ought to be conservative until more information is on hand...It is easy to prove almost any relationship by picking the right data.

50,000 LOYALISTS ASSAULT TERUEL

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Dec. 22 (AP)—The Spanish government today hurled 20,000 more men into the struggle for strategic Teruel, radio advices said, and the reinforced army of 50,000 was ordered to take the provincial capital at all costs."

This force and the Insurgent defenders were locked in a hand-to-hand contest within the city on the seventh day of the government's offensive. Insurgent reports said the Teruel garrison still was holding out.

Thousands of attackers and defenders alike were reported to have fallen. Teruel's radio was silenced and the city's other communications were cut off.

SEES BARTON DOOMED

BARTON, Ont., Dec. 22—(CP)—Reeve Charles Sydney Bird of Barton township believes the day will come when the township is no more. Expansion of the adjacent city of Hamilton, he believes, will out into the township's limits so deeply it will be unable to retain its status.

Straight Path Was Too Rough

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Dec. 22 (CP).—Never hit a man when he's down is a hackneyed axiom, but it will be engraved on the tombstone for Clarence Thomas, reformed convict who believed fate crossed him in the game of life.

Following his release from prison Thomas became a devout churchgoer. He formed a close friendship with a Methodist minister and frequently spoke from the pulpit. He was bitter in his allegations against the police whom he charged with persecution.

When Thomas was again arrested, on a charge of consorting with criminals, the minister fought hard for his acquittal. Thomas told the magistrate he had tried to go straight, but his every movement was closely watched by the authorities. He won his release.

But Thomas brooded. While walking along a crowded street he whipped out a revolver and shot himself through the head. "Now they can't hound me any more," he whispered before he died.

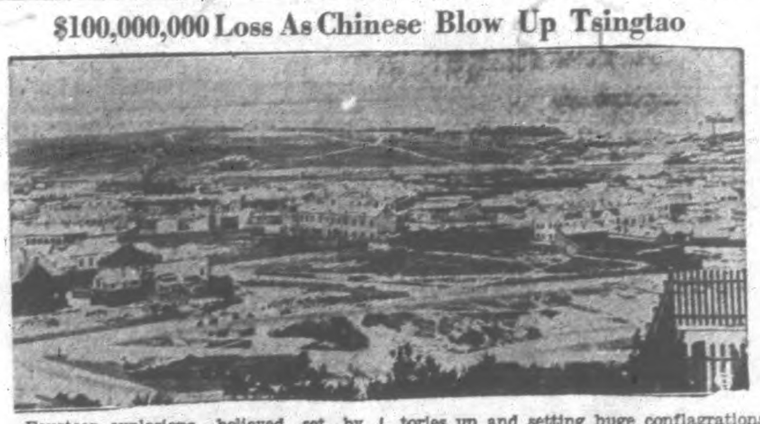
$100,000,000 Loss As Chinese Blow Up Tsingtao



Fourteen explosions, believed set by Chinese Communists in reprisal for Japanese military successes, wrecked the busy industrial city of Tsingtao, in North China, blowing the Japanese-owned textile factories up and setting huge conflagrations burning among the wrecked buildings. Losses in the almost complete annihiliation of the business section of the port were estimated to reach $100,000,000. This is a view of the harbor and city of Tsingtao.

REEVE FAIRMAN IN FIELD AGAIN

HASTINGS, Dec. 22. — In municipal office since 1932, H. G. Fairman, reeve of the village, in an interview with The Examiner, stated he was seeking re-election for the coming year. He was councillor from 1932-36 and for the past two years has been reeve.

As reeve, he cited numerous instances where he has saved village and county many dollars. In 1936 Reeve Fairman said he played a part in having the town of Cobourg bill passed by the Legislature setting aside for five years the equalized assessment of Judge O'Connor and saving Hastings about $720 a year, county rate. He also had an important role in having the county road from Norwood to Cobourg taken over for a highway, in fact was thanked in a resolution from the counties council for what he had accomplished. Through his efforts too Hastings now pays only one-fifth of division court costs instead of one half as formerly.

The next item was the Zoo Songs when five of the children were dressed as various animals of the zoo and sang a song showing whom they represented. The last number of the Junior department was a drill by the boys, "Changing the Guard at Buckingham Palace."

The first number presented by the Senior department was a Christmas Bell drill by eight girls. An interesting dialogue, "The New Hired Man," was presented by the Senior boys. A Christmas exercise depicting the story of the "Birth of Christ," was presented by the Senior girls and boys. The last number was a chorus by the Senior girls, "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," after which Santa appeared and gave all the children candy from his pack.

Charms Play Big Part In Lester Patrick's Bid For N.H.L. Title

Breaks His Nose

REG. HAMILTON

During a game between Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Americans, Reg. Hamilton, young defence star with the Leafs, suffered a badly gashed and broken nose. According to club physician, Dr. J. W. Rush, the wound could only have been caused by the butt-end of a hockey stick. Hamilton will be out of action for a couple of weeks at least.

Four-Leaf Clovers And 'Lucky' Pennies Among Possessions Of Fox

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 (CP).—He's one of the smartest gents in the business, truly the silver fox of hockey, but you couldn't persuade Boss Lester Patrick to discard the little charms—not to mention the "hat trick"—he thinks he'll keep his New York Rangers riding high in the National League parade.

Lester, who guided Rangers into 10 playoffs in 11 campaigns, says he's not superstitious, but in a cellophane envelope he carries four, five, six and seven leaf clovers. The Boss' son Lynn tapes a four-leaf clover to the stick he wields so expertly for Rangers.

Just to make sure the fates are with him, Lester carries an 1927 United States "lucky" penny, sent by an anonymous fan several years ago with a note: "I've got all the good luck I want out of this life. I want you too to have good luck."

Bad Luck For Dutton.

"But wait till you hear the one I pulled on Red Dutton in Ottawa before our exhibition game with his Americans this season," the grey-haired mentor chuckled. "I threw my hat on his bed and Red got raging mad—I knew to him that was the worst of omens. If it was bad luck for Red I figured it must be good luck for me. Anyway we won the game."

Lester still figures Rangers would have won the Stanley Cup last season if his baggy suit had held out. The team won five straight games but hit the skids in the finals with Detroit the night the seat fell out of his pants.

Back in the early days of the Rangers, a black cat the players named "Ranger," was their constant mascot and luck seldom failed. She was found burned to death in the Madison Square Garden furnace and the club went into its worst tailspin of the season until the last kitten from her last little became Ranger II.

"She also disappeared mysteriously a few seasons ago, so I figured clover leafs would be easier to keep track of than cats," said Patrick.

Kerr Superstitious.

Nels Stewart declines to discard the heavy underwear issued him when he joined Amerks last December.

You couldn't bribe Americans' net-minder, Earl Robertson, to skate over a blueline. He skips them and it all started in Earl's play days in Regina where the kids say "Step on a crack and you break your mother's back" as they skip down the pavements.

Parents Would Have Don Budge Turn Pro

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 22 (AP).—The parents of Don Budge, world tennis champion, who wants to remain an amateur long enough to defend the Davis Cup, urged him today to turn professional and "reap some material benefit from years of hard work."

This advice emanated from the family kitchen, where Mrs. John Budge was doing dishes. It found the racket star on an exhibition tour of Australia.

"When Donny returns home, his father's going to give him a good talking to," Mrs. Budge told an interviewer. "We're going to try and convince him that the wise thing to do would be to turn professional and reap some material benefit from years of hard work he has put into his tennis."

Quicly Mrs. Budge added: "We may talk ourselves blue in the face—but the final decision will be up to him."

DUCKS HAND AROUND

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 22.—(CP).—Thousands of wild ducks that should have flown south weeks ago are still fluttering around between Palmer's marsh and Fort Erie. A large school of minnows is believed to be the attraction.

Canuck Athletes Sail For South

VANCOUVER, Dec. 22.—(CP).—Seventy-five Canadian athletes sail from Vancouver to-day aboard the liner Aorangi to wear the Maple Leaf in British Empire games at Sydney, Australia, in February.

All provinces but Prince Edward Island are represented on the team. Assistant Manager John Leslie of Edmonton says it is undoubtedly the best ever to represent the Dominion. Thirty are from British Columbia, 26 from Ontario, eight from Quebec, five from Manitoba, three from Alberta and one each from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan.

Hamilton Defeats Regina To Win Junior Title

On a water-logged gridiron, Regina Dales, Junior Rugby champions of western Canada, and Hamilton Italo-Canadians, eastern titleholders, met in a Dominion football championship game at Hamilton. Although the match was not sanctioned by the C.R.U., it was considered by both teams as a title affair. Big "Toar" Springstein, Regina Dales ace plunger kicker and plunger, failed to live up to advance billing, and along with several Regina fumbles, was a big factor in Hamilton's 27-2 win. Wright, of Italo-Canadians is pictured here carrying the ball with Regina tacklers surrounding him. Some idea of the condition of the field can be gained from a glance at this picture.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'uckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

TWO PUCK practises are called for tonight at the Brock St. rink, if the ice holds out. Senior and intermediate prospects practise from seven to eight o'clock, and then the juniors go on for an hour—unless the ice is in too bad shape. All prospective players are invited to these drills, and the workouts will continue nightly at the rink, always provided there is ice. The hockey season is rapidly approaching and the local players have had practically no chance so far to get their skating legs in shape. They'll have to hustle now, especially the senior squad, as the first game is Monday in Belleville. The managers will not lose much time cutting out the deadwood, so guys wanting a chance had better not muff any nights when open workouts are called.

* * * * * * *

ABOUT A dozen puck prospects beat the gun by having an unofficial drill last night at the Brock, just skating around for a little time and playing shinny till they were chased to save the ice. The surface has some bad spots yet, but Pat Calladine and Jack White were hoping to get in a lot of work on it last night and today—unless the temperature climbed too much. We noted two of the newcomers on hand, Barnes and Grattan, and both gave indications of class—despite the poor opportunity which presented itself. Ford Loucks, ex-Lindsayite, was on deck, too. Also Vic Brown, though he's been here since last spring and seems almost a homebrew! Also a couple of other chaps whom we didn't know.

* * * * * * *

SEVERAL OF the local players spotted skating around were Red Creighton, Shrimp McDougall, Bill Calladine, Eddie Starr, Archie Weir, Les Burton, Gord Clarke and a few more. None of 'em seemed to be doing any more than just loosening up and getting a bit of wind. These are the wise gees who fairly haunt the Brock St. rink and get in a bit of a workout every chance in an attempt to get in shape fast. But the real practises start tonight (we expect) and the rest of the gang will be on deck, no doubt. Bun Kingdon has a sprained ankle which will hold him back a bit, and the Colts will miss Don Crowe plenty for a time, till his injured back heals.

* * * * * * *

THIS IS the way our first O.H.A. games shape up away and at home in the different classes: Senior 'B'—Petes at Belleville on Monday, Petes at Fliers Jan. 4th, and Fliers here Jan. 7th; intermediate 'B'—local Bees at Port Hope Jan. 6th, Bees at Oshawa Jan. 10th, and Whitby here Jan. 17th; junior 'B'—Belleville here Jan. 4th and Colts at Havelock Jan. 10th. So the first O.H.A. game that Peterborough fans will see here this winter is the junior joust with Belleville a week from next Tuesday—sort of a longish time, eh?

* * * * * * *

IN A boost for the opening tussle there Monday p.m., the Belleville writer says: "We understand there are three imports included on the Liftlock City roster this season, Barnes and Brown from Western Canada and Loucks from Lindsay. Whether Honey Tompkins will be with the Petes here next Monday night or not we have not heard. Tompkins would give considerable to line up with the Petes against his old teammates. Incidentally, so would Buster Whitton, who is located at Lakefield near Peterborough. At any rate, the fans will have their first peek at senior hockey here next Monday night." If it is a holiday in the Quinte town, the game should draw extra well, it being an opening fray and then, too, a Peterborough-Belleville scrap.

* * * * * * *

ONE OF the local hockey coaches told us recently that several of last year's junior Colts would be hard to keep off the higher O.H.A. squad here this winter. Due to their ability to battle. Whereas a couple of the other ones weren't likely to advance this semester. Why? Well, according to him, about half our Colts turned it on at a terrific clip right to the final whistle in that last playoff game with Barrie in Oshawa last season. But some of the boys became discouraged in the final five or 10 minutes and eased up. "What we want," this coach remarked, "is fight in our players, no matter what the score. A real puckster stays in there battling to the bitter finish, regardless of how the game is going or has gone, and refusing to ease up." Which just proves that a battling spirit—even though in a losing cause—is really appreciated.

* * * * * * *

RIVERVIEW A.C. officers here are busy with boxing plans these days. Not only have they lined up an ambitious program for the local Armouries on Jan. 6th, bringing down Toronto boxers, but they are checking on the possibility of putting on a card or two in Lindsay and in Oshawa. 'Tis just possible, too, that Belleville might be a good spot with some of the Trenton R.C.A.F. mitt-slingers worked in on the show. We wouldn't be too surprised to see the sour science—as Damon Runyon terms the ring game—do a comeback around Centra, Ontario this coming year. If run right, it will do okay as folks dearly love to see two guys trying to whale the daylights out of each other.

* * * * * * *

THE NEW Ontario Athletic Commission has been appointed, and Peeney Mills of Belleville has been retired. P. J. Mulqueen is chairman yet whilst others include Lioned Conacher, W. A. Fry and Toad Farr, ex-lacrosser. We trust that the new crop of badgers will do something toward keeping the popular sports in the fold, what's left of 'em, or toward bringing back some of the big rebels. Forget the emphasis on track and field, worthy enough sports in their own right but not the kind that attract the crowds of customers. The Big Train should be a fine chap on this Commission, and also Farr. As for Mulqueen and Fry, we are inclined to view with alarm!

* * * * * * *

HITHER AND yawn: Six teams have now entered the Junior City Puck Loop, All Saints, P.C.I., St. Peter's, Monarchs, Bombers and Canadiens . . . They hope to start their schedule within a couple of weeks at the Brock . . . . Oshawa scribe states the Motor City intermediate "B" hockey team this year will be much stronger than last winter . . . . It is a five-team group of Oshawa, Whitby, Cobourg, Port Hope and Peterborough . . . . Hockey Club draw here is tonight at the Capitol Theatre . . . . About two weeks ere the inter-city cage contests commence around these parts . . . . Looks like four teams in the West End Loop, probably Keene, Warsaw, Canadiens and All Saints . . . . Darned if the lacrossers here aren't still waiting for their windbreakers . . . . If Monday is Boxing Day, we'd better steer shy of all boxers.

Eskimos Grid Coach Afraid Ice Field

KING ISLAND, Alaska, Dec. 22 (AP).—The timekeeper at the ice bowl game here New Year's Day will have to use a sextant—one of those things sea captains use to "shoot the sun" — as well as a watch, or the game may wind up on January 2. Two Eskimo teams are to clash for the Arctic championship.

"What we're afraid of now," said Ed. Levin, coach of the King Island Polar Bears, "is that in the heat of battle, the ice field may break away. Then if Pigiok, my star fullback, makes a wide sweep around end, he may end up on the other side of the international dateline"—75 miles west.

Schmeling Ranked As No. 1 'Heavy'

PARIS, Dec. 22—The International Boxing Union Tuesday ranked Max Schmeling the world's No. 1 heavyweight, and placed champion Joe Louis second.

The union emphasized however, that it recognizes no one as world heavyweight champion, and that it will not recognize Schmeling as titleholder until Maxie fights within the union's jurisdiction, which does not include the United States.

South Africa will spend $500,000 a year in attracting tourists.

ULSTER TO SEND THREE ATHLETES

BELFAST, Dec. 22 (CP).—Ulster's hopes in the 1938 British Empire Games in Sydney, Australia, next February, will be carried by a middle-distance runner, a pole vaulter and a hop, step and jump artist.

Of the three 23-year-old Alex Haire would seem to have the best chance of bringing the Dominion an Empire title. Haire has run 880 yards in 1:55 and the mile in 4:18. Canada's best half-milers have bettered Haire's time and England and New Zealand have the milers who will beat the Ulster man unless he uncovers a great burst of speed.

John Clarke, 26, has a pole-vault mark of 11 feet 6 inches to carry into the Games and a javelin throw of 163 feet. Bert Shillington has done 47 feet 5¼ inches in the hop, step and jump.

Crimson Tide Of Alabama 'U' Not Wonder Football Squad

"Cottonfield" Team a Great Defensive Squad—Depart For Rose Bowl

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 22—(UP)—It's not a wonder team, this Alabama eleven that left here to-day for the Rose Bowl.

But down in the lan dof cotton and cornfed collegians, football fans think it's as good a team as has ever gone West for the Pasadena classic.

A somewhat streamlined edition of previous Alabama Bowl teams, the 1937 crimson tide is light but powerful. With not a man on the starting eleven weighing more than 200, the team averages only 185.

But don't let such figures mislead you into believing that Alabama is a will-o'-the-wisp outfit. For despite his featherweight lineup, Alabama is perhaps the strongest defensive squad in all of the university's long history of superfootball squads.

Good on Offensive

Offensively, the 1934 team, which conquered Stanford in the Rose Bowl, was probably the best. But this 1937 team also has an offense—one which will make short work of sleepy opposition.

Undefeated in two years, Alabama has been scored on only three times this season—by Tennessee, Tulane and Vanderville. The Tidesmen have entered 225 points in their favor in the history books while holding the opposition to 20.

Alabama has an average gain of 4.9 yards per play; has gained a net total from running and passing of 2509, compared to an all-opponents total of 780. Of this yardage, 1,992 came from running and 517 from passing.

Alabama has two good starting teams, each capable of handling the game and a reserve squad that often pushes the regulars for their berths. Here's how the stars shape up:

Charlie Holm of Birmingham, fullback, is brother to All-America Fullback Tony Holm of 1929. A junior, Charlie leads the team with an average of 5.2 yards in 117 running attempts.

George Zivich, at right halfback, is known as the "id Reliable" when it comes to kicking. He has averaged 43 yards per try.

Starring at the other half is Joe Kilgrow, a senior, who is one of the best passers in the land. Joe has completed 20 passes for 302 yards, and has carried the ball 594 yards in 128 tries. He is the leading scorer with 42 points.

In the line, All-America Captain Leroy Monsky is the answer to a coach's dream for a guard. Lew Bostick at the other guard, good tackles, better than average ends, and a reliable centre complete an Alabama line which is expected to give California a tough afternoon.

Not to be forgotten in any check-up is Sophomore Heywood (Sandy) Sanford, who kicked field goals that beat Tulane and Vanderbilt.

By HERB MARTIN

The draw for the 'Attrill' cup has been made and is hanging in the club lounge room. This is for scheduled rinks only and is meant more or less as a 'feeler.' The play will commence on Monday evening next and skips are asked to look up the draw, it will be 12 ends and straight elimination. The competition never got past the first few games last season.

The weather probs for to-day (Wednesday) are fair and mild with rain and turning much colder to-night and this should be just about right for us curlers.

Our bonspiel last night (Tuesday) was a big success and considering the time of the year the attendance was good. The ice was fast and in fair condition and the boys seemed to be having a good time. The winners:

Second: Cigarettes—T. McDonald, A. Archibald, H. Clegg, C. Giroux, skip. 3 wins plus 10 points.

Third: Cigarettes—A. Robinson, M. Fletcher, W. Widdess, J. Richmond, skip. 2 wins, 1 tie, plus 5 points.

SAILORS GAIN THIRD POSITION IN SENIOR RACE

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—(CP)—Port Colborne Sailors were in third place in the Senior A division of the Ontario Hockey Association today, an 8-2 victory over Kitchener Greenshirts pulling them out of the cellar to trail Toronto Goodyears and Oshawa, tied for first place.

The Sailors, led by Gooney McGowan, Doug Runions and Red Reynolds, were too good for the Greenshirts in the only scheduled Senior A game last night. After the first period, which ended in a 2-2 draw, the Sailors hided their time until scoring opportunities appeared then shot true to the net while holding back the Kitchener attacks.

The loss put the Western Ontario contingent in the loop, Kitchener and Brantford, at the bottom of the heap. The singletons earned when the two teams fought to a 2-2 draw are the only points earned by the teams so far this season.

Chance for Kitchener.

Kitchener will get a chance for revenge Thursday when the Sailors play at Kitchener. The other Senior A game this week is at Oshawa when the league leaders meet.

Kitchener and Sailors alternated goals in the first period when play was fairly even but after the second started the more experienced Sailors took command and scored four times in the second period and twice in the final.

But the game didn't develop into a slow affair. Sailors kept on the offensive and the Greenshirts grew more eager for points as the game advanced. The Kitchener forwards were able to penetrate the Sailor defence but Goalie Brownlee stopped their shots. And when Brownlee couldn't stop the flying pucks, luck was with the Sailors. Carlo Kuntz and Bauer, spearheads of the Greenshirt attack, both came close to scoring in the third on a ganging attack. One shot from Kuntz' stick hit the goal post and bounced out on the ice when he shot at an open net.

FRANK STUKUS MAY JOIN BROTHER ACT FOOTBALL FRONT

TORONTO, Dec. 22 (CP).—Radio announcers and rugby teams who had a lot of trouble with the Stukus boys this fall may be in for considerably more grief in the 1938 season. There is a possibility that Frank, 19-year-old brother of Annis and Bill, will join Toronto Argonauts of the Interprovincial Union and constitute Canada's first one-family end-run combination.

After sharing quarterback chorus with his brother all season, Annis suffered a back injury in the Eastern Canada final against Sarnia and did not play in the Winnipeg game. Climaxing his sophomore year in senior rugby, 21-year-old Bill played 60 minutes and few stadium-strategists found anything wrong with his generalship.

Forced from competition by a knee injury sustained in high school play a year ago, Frank contented himself with toughening up at his foundry job. Broad-shouldered and deep-chested, there is every likelihood he will outweigh his 184-pound brothers by next season.

While each is considered a quarterback, the brothers are versatile enough to fill any half-line spot. All show fair speed and trickiness in ball-carrying and are effective tacklers but feature a variety of aerial attacks.

Although they have practised together and exchanged the football lore drilled into them by their various coaches, the three Lithuanian-Canadians have developed individual forte. Annis is ranked among the country's best placement kickers and Bill has few superiors as a forward-passer. Frank goes in for punting and pass receiving.

Bruins Boost Victory Streak To Four Straight, Beat Hawks

Weiland And Charlie Sands Combine For 2-1 Boston Win

BOSTON, Dec. 22—(CP)—Boston Bruins ran their National Hockey League win streak to four games last night by beating the third-place Chicago Black Hawks 2-1 to move out four points in front of their division.

Before 12,000 fans the speedy comoination of Cooney Weiland and Charlie Sands gave the Bruins their victory.

Sands scored the first tally late in the second period while the Bruins were playing short-handed. A sudden sweep out of a scrimmage near the Boston net by Weiland paved the way for that success. The second counter came during the last three minutes of play, when the Hawks were pressing with five forwards.

Sands made the jump on that occasion and, with Weiland on his left, beat the visitors to their zone. There he passed to the little centre, who fired past Goalie Mike Karakas.

The Chicago goal came nine seconds before the final bell. The Black Hawks, in a last deperate raid, sent Lou Trudel inside the Boston defence and while the rivals were scrimmaging, (Paul Thompson, brother of the Boston goalie, slapped in a close-up shot.

PARSONS GOES TO THE CHIEFS IN LEAF SHIFT

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—George Parsons, who has been subbing on left wing for Toronto Maple Leafs, was en route Tuesday night to the farm club at Syracuse, because either Bingo Kampman or Chuck Shannon is coming up to the Leafs as a defense replacement for the injured Reg Hamilton.

Before leaving Toronto Tuesday evening to attend Wednesday's N.H.L. meeting and testimonial dinner to President Frank Calder in New York, Manager Conn Smythe of the Leafs said he had instructed Eddie Power, Syracuse coach, to send up his best right defenseman. Powers is to choose between Kampman or Shannon after Wednesday night's game at Providence.

Decidon to ship Parsons back to the minors was made at the end of Tuesday's practice session of the Leafs—a workout that found Hamilton still parked in hospital, and Horner again absent while nursing his lame leg. The redhead may get back on skates Wednesday, but there is no assurance that he will be in shape to go the route in the week-end games. And, although Hamilton is expected to go home from hospital on Wednesday, the Leafs' management will not consider rushing him into action. His twice-smashed nose is to be protected by some sort of mask when he does return.

Pro Football Shows Outstanding Growth

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Thanks chiefly to air-minded Sammy Baugh and Washington Redskins, the growth in popularity of professional football was the outstanding sports development of 1937 in the opinion of a majority of the writers participating in the seventh annual Associated Press poll.

Recalling that Baugh and the Redskins closed the season with brilliant exhibitions against New York Giants and Chicago Bears to win the National League championship, twenty-two of the fifty-three experts cast their ballots for the pro. gridiron game.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

By—Temple Bailey

READ THIS FIRST:

Jerry Chandler, son of a country clergyman in modest circumstances, has asked Mimi Le Brun, a St. Louis society girl, to marry him. She is virtually engaged to Andy Fuller, a wealthy young man of her own set. Jerry met Mimi through her cousin, Lionel Clark, his closest friend at Yale. An uncle sent Jerry through college and led him to believe that eventually he would inherit his ranch in the west. Jerry hopes to take Mimi to the ranch and write plays. He is called home from a house party in Maine just before his mother's death. Jerry goes to St. Louis to pursue Mimi. He learns that Mimi's mother is opposed to him because he has neither background nor money.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 21

TO HEAR that Mimi's mother was opposed to me before we even had met loomed as a tragedy. "Do you mean that the latchstring won't be out?"

"Oh, no. I made a bargain with Mother. I told her I wouldn't go anywhere with Andy until I could entertain you in my own house. And you are to come Sunday night for supper. The crowd will be there. I always have informal things. Our apartment isn't big enough for anything else—and big things cost a lot—"

I hardly heard her. My mind was on her mother. "I am not sure that I care to go where I am not wanted."

"If I want you, isn't that enough?" She was very lovely as she leaned towards me.

"More than enough, my dear."

"Oh, Jerry, you mustn't call me that. You mustn't count on anything—? I'm a will-o'-the-wisp. I never know my own mind—" quick tears came to her eyes.

"I'll make you know it, Mimi."

At that moment, I could have died for her. I had no fears. The tears in her eyes were enough for me.

Bernice's home was charming. There were old portraits, French furniture in gilt and faded rose, pale carpets, long mirrors. Bernice's mother in faint blue was a part of the picture. She was the first of those vivacious, youthful-looking mothers of whom I was soon to see so many. Her hair was touched with gray, but was waved and puffed into an elaborate coiffure. She poured the tea and made me sit beside her. She had very clear, dark eyes, and I felt that they weighed me; that she know I did not belong to the drawing room with its old portraits and French furniture. So clairvoyant did she seem, that I was gripped by the fear that she might see as in a crystal ball the background of my boyhood days, that bare simple parsonage.

Neither then nor ever after was I at my ease with her. And I do not think she tried to set me at my ease. She was one of the women to whom the fact that her grandmothers had brought their ball-gowns from the old world was a matter of immense importance. She felt separated by impregnable barriers from all those whose grandmothers had not worn ball-gowns!

The tea-table set with heavy old silver on a silver tray—and there were all sort of delicious things to eat—muffins, and tiny sandwiches, and fragile French cakes. It was a new function to me. Tea in our town had been the evening meal—the hearty supper. At college I had been invited to few homes. It was to me a rare and exciting experience to be one of this gay and sparkling group.

So it was with something of a shock that I heard Stiles Sanderson say when I drifted over to him a little later. "You should never have come here, Jerry."

"Why not?"

"Oh, we shall spoil you. This isn't your atmosphere. You got your gifts in less complicated surroundings. Instead of sending you to the city the gods should have transported you to the top of a high mountain. You might have given a song to the world. But they'll stop your singing."

Katharine Merrill was listening. "Why don't you talk plain English Stiles? What he means, Jerry," she explained, patiently, "is that with us you'll gambol on the green. It is much better than piping alone on the top of a mountain."

"Is it?" Stiles demanded. "I wonder if Jerry will find it so?"

Bernice came over just them, and took me away so I left them to argue it out alone. But years later when the conversation recurred to me, I knew that while in some ways Stiles was right, I was glad that the gods had taken me to the city.

Bernice carried me off to a little card-room beyond the drawing room. "I simply must talk to you, Jerry," she said, and I saw with surprise that she looked anxious and worried.

"What is it?" I asked.

"Lionel." She paused and plunged in. "I simply must talk to somebody about him. And you are to be with him all this winter. Jerry, is the play going to be a success? Is it?"

I hardly knew how to answer her. "I hope it may."

"Oh, it's got to be Lionel is depending so much on it. He is spending more money than he should. And Father has heard of it, and he's furious. He told me last night that if Lionel didn't pull up, he wouldn't let me marry him."

The vision of the clear-eyed figure in faint blue made me ask, "What does your mother say?"

"She agrees with Father. She adores Lion's family, and she isn't hard on his sins. But his grandfather's death made a great difference, Dad's not willing to give us a large allowance to live on. He says Lion must dig in and do something for himself."

"Have you talked to Lion?"

"Yes. But—you know him, Jerry. He'll never see danger ahead, until he's hurt. He doesn't realize that if Father won't give us an allowance, we can't marry."

"Why can't you?"

The bright color swept her cheeks and throat. "Because—oh, I love him enough, Jerry, to marry him. But he can't take care of a wife—without outside help. His tastes are too extravagant."

I saw then for the first time the womanliness of her. A womanliness which had been covered by a crust of artificiality. She loved Lionel with a deeper, more self-sacrificing devotion than he gave her, and she knew it. It was not an easy thing for her pride to know.

"I thought—Jerry, if you could help . . . about the play. Keep him at it. He's playing cards—too. And he loses . . . and he isn't like himself . . ."

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S WREATHS.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, I nearly forgot!" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the rabbit gentleman's hollow stump bungalow one day.

"I hope you didn't forget Saturday is Christmas," said Mr. Longears and he twinkled his pink nose at Nurse Jane twice as fast and twice as quickly as before.

"No danger of me forgetting Christmas!" laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "But I forgot about the wreaths. Your wife wants some to hang in the windows and on the door with bows of red ribbon. Do you think you will have time, while you are out adventuring, to get some Christmas wreaths, Mr. Longears?"

"I shall make the time," said Uncle Wiggily, positive like. "You know, Nurse Jane, Christmas comes but once a year."

"And when it does it brings good cheer!" laughed Nurse Jane. "Well, don't forget the wreaths. Can you get them in the woods where you go for adventures?"

No Answer

"I think so," answered the rabbit gentleman as he hopped away.

He went to the place of the big pile of leaves, where, the day before, he had found Santa Claus asleep and where the jolly little man had hidden some of his Christmas presents.

"Hello, Santa!" called Uncle Wiggily as he stood outside the pile of leaves which were as high and round as an igloo, or the snowhouse where the Eskimos live near the North Pole in Santa Claus land. "Hello, St. Nicholas! Where are your reindeer?"

No answer came from the pile of leaves.

"I guess he is asleep again," said Uncle Wiggily. "Well, he needs all the day sleep he can get for he will have a lot of night work soon."

"And he will soon be at my bungalow," thought Uncle Wiggily as he hopped away. "I hope he doesn't forget any of my little bunny children, or the other animal children of Woodland. And I hope he remembers all the boys and girls all over the world. Yes, I am sure he will, Santa Claus never forgets."

Then Uncle Wiggily remembered about the Christmas wreaths and he hopped here and there in the woods gathering leaves and red berries from which to make them.

He gathered some soft ground pine, he gathered laurel, he gathered sprays of dogwood branches, which had red berries on them. He gathered sprays of mistletoe and, last of all he gathered holly with its red berries and shiny green leaves.

Handle With Care

"My, but that holly is prickery and stickery," said Uncle Wiggily after he had stuck his paws several times on the spikes of the holly leaves. "I must be careful how I handle it."

He made different sorts of wreaths from the material he gathered in the woods, leaving the prickery holly until last. Then, tying his wreaths together with a dried strand from an old honeysuckle vine, Mr. Longears started back to the bungalow. He could hardly hop, he had so many Christmas wreaths and his paws were loaded with them.

All of a sudden the Bob Cat, who had been sneaking around in the woods, saw the rabbit gentleman.

"Ha!" mewed the Bad Chap. "Uncle Wiggily has so many wreaths I can easily catch him. His paws are full—he can't hurt me!" So the Bob Cat made a jump for the bunny gentleman.

"Oh, ho! No you don't! Scat!" cried Mr. Longears. He swung a prickery stickery holly wreath against the Bob Cat's soft nose.

"Wowchie! Scowchie! Bowchie!" howled the Bad Chap. "Oh, my nose!" And away he ran leaving Mr. Longears to take home the Christmas wreaths.

Now if the box of candy will be real sweet to the dill pickle when they go to the movies I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the trees.

Lure Of Gold Greatest Factor In Opening Any Country

Geology Expert Claims Canada Advancing Faster Than Dictatorship Nations

TORONTO, Dec. 22—(CP).—Development of Canada's vast northland is proceeding faster and more effectively under the Dominion's democratic government than it would under dictatorship, Dr. Elwood S. Moore, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Geology, said today.

"The lure of gold—not dictators—is the greatest factor in history for opening up new country," he said. Dr. Moore also is Profesor of Economic Geology at the University of Toront and a specialist in the mineral resources of Canada.

The seemingly spectacular colonization and development by the Soviet dictatorship of Russia's Far-Eastern and Arctic regions has been over- emphasized he believes.

"An exaggerated impression has been given to the world regarding the gold output and a number of other developments in Russia," Dr. Moore said.

Impartial scientists and engineers attending the meeting of the International Geological Congress in Russia last summer, and who travelled extensively under the guidance of Russian geologists, seem agreed that stories regarding gold production in Russia have been greatly exaggerated. Dr. Moore said, however, that credit must be given for remarkable progress in some lines.

Actual figures on gold production in the Soviet are a State secret.

Much Prospecting Done

"Most people would be surprised at the amount of exploration and prospecting that has been done in Canada's Northwest Territories," Dr. Moore said. The idea that a vast northern area containing great riches is lying fallow is not accurate. Prospectors have at least scouted through many parts of this new land.

In the Royal Ontario Museum, Dr. Moore pointed to an exhibit of pitchblende from the Great Bear Lake area. Men first went into that country seeking gold. Then they discovered radium deposits and today the district is one of the two great centres of radium production in the world. The other is Belgian Congo. Because of the development at Great Bear Lake, the price of radium—invaluable for curing diseases—has been reduced to nearly half its former price.

At present there is activity near Great Slave Lake, where gold has been found in several places and also some zinc. Nickel exists on Rankin Inlet, and some gold has been mined on Baker Lake. There is coal on the Arctic Islands, with copper deposits along the Coppermine River.

Near Fort Norman are good supplies of oil, and far to the south in the McMurray district of Alberta, the tar sands contain a great reserve of oil.

As conditions of population and transportation warrant, development of these natural resources will proceed, and it will move along far more effectively under Canada's democratic system than under an authoritarian regime, Dr. Moore declared in some respects, the vaunted efficiency of dictatorships is a myth.

KEENE

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Robert Wilson was hostess to the Ladies' Club at her home. The meeting, which was in charge of Mrs. Earl Doris and Mrs. Fred Eason, took the form of a Christmas party. Games contests, carols and Christmas readings were greatly enjoyed. Later in the evening Santa Claus came and distributed gifts to all. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Miss Betty Brown was hostess to a bridge party at her home. Ladies high score was won by Mrs. Jack Gall and Miss Helen Nelson won consolation prize. Mr. J. M. Holsey won gent's high prize and Bill Wood won the consolation prize. Dancing, followed by a dainty lunch, concluded the evening.

Japs Ban Santa Festivities

Japan, although not a christian nation, had been celebrating the day with growing ardor annually, with department stores featuring Santa Clauses.

Shopkeepers have announced that instead of the usual decorations their establishments will display Japanese, German and Italian flags. (The three nations are signers of an anti-Communist agreement.)

GIFTS PRESENTED BY MADOC WOMEN FOR NEEDY CASES

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Dec. 22.—Madoc Women's Institute held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. B. Tanner on Friday afternoon, with an excellent attendance. Mrs. T. L. Nickle presided and after singing of the Institute Ode and "O Canada", roll call was answered by placing "White gifts" for the needy ones on the beautifully decorated Christmas tree which adorned the centre of the room.

The dainty white-wrapped packages when afterwards removed filled to overflowing a large wicker clothes basket and were topped with a generous cheque from the Community Club for twenty-five dollars for the relief fund presented in their behalf by R. F. Bristol, president of Madoc Community Club. These gifts were placed in the care of the relief committee for distribution. with Mrs. W. E. Connor as chairman, assisted by Mesdames G. Hill, A. Smith and B. Tanner.

Arrangements were discussed for a sewing club to be held during the early weeks in January, when a complete layette will be made, and other sewing and re-modelling done for needy children. Donations of warm clothing, shoes, stockings and rubbers are earnestly requested and may be left in care of Mrs. B. Tanner or Mrs. W. E. Connor.

The secretary was requested to forward the thanks of the Institute for the generous cheque.

The Sunshine committee reported a good balance on hand and suggestions were made that this Christmas flowers and dainties be sent to Madoc friends who will be confined to the Hospital in Belleville during the Christmas holidays.

Reports were presented by Mrs. Hulin for the cooking class; by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. C. Whytock for relief; by Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Hulin for the girls' club; and by Mrs. Nickle for the Memorial fund.

Secretary and president were instructed regarding the purchase of a 1959 Bond for the Memorial fund. And bills presented were ordered paid.

Current events of the month were reviewed by Mrs. W. E. Connor. Mrs. James Aylsworth, in charge of the Christmas program, presented first a series of Christmas hymns, led by Mrs. L. Ashley and a solo by Mrs. W. Hulin. Mrs. R. Wickham read a beautiful Xmas poem "One of the Shepherds"; a piano duet was given by Mrs. James Aylsworth and Miss Eleanor Aylsworth, after which Mrs. Aylsworth gave an article on Christmas as observed by our new Canadians." Mrs. B. Alexander then took charge with an interesting and instructive series of Christmas carols energetically led by Mrs. Alexander and interspersed with bright notes regarding the time and age of these age-old productions of the Old Country we still call home. "First Nowell, "Infant-Lowly" and "Good King Wenceslas" were sung. The meeting closed with the National Anthem and a social tea hour.

Arab Terrorist Is Condemned

Heavily guarded to prevent possibility of forcible release by his followers, the Arab chieftain Sheik Farhan es Saidi is taken from the military court sitting at Haifa, Palestine after hearing sentence of death passed upon him for possession of firearms and munitions. The Sheik was seized by British authorities as a leader of Arab terrorists, in their drive to clear the Holy Land of pillaging bands. The condemned man is pointed out by the arrow.

Gets Gunshot Wound In C.I.O. Clash

Leroy Ross, 32, a C.I.O. worker at the Fisher body plant at Kansas City, shows policemen the buckshot wounds he received in the leg as 300 C.I.O. men attempted to stop a caravan of 150 Ford motor cars bound for the Ford plant in the same city and carrying Ford employees. Although Ross would not tell under what circumstances he was injured, a Ford employee who is not a member of the C.I.O. union had reported earlier he fired a shotgun twice at fleeing men who had thrown rocks through his bedroom window.

I cannot tell you how touched I was by her revelation to me of her deeper nature. We talked it over with the almost pathetic seriousness of youth. I promised that I would do what I could.

The card-room, in which we sat, was one in which I was, in the days that followed, to see Mrs. Barry and her cronies often at bridge. It was a gem of a room—decorated with three painted panels of the King and the Queen and the Knave of Hearts in the powder and perukes of the French court. The little tables were covered with rose-colored baize and had borders of dark, rich wood. The gilt chairs were patterned in hearts and diamonds, clubs and spades. The whole thing had been done, it seemed, for one of the ball-gown grandmothers. It was a monument to her frivolity as well as to her fine sense of beauty.

I wondered if the grandmother had ever faced heartache as this lovely young granddaughter was facing it. Knowing Lionel as I did, and with all my deep affection for him. I could not see him giving happiness to a loving woman.

I went back to the drawing room and for the first time had Mimi to myself. She seemed a boyish figure in her riding clothes among all the delicate feminine frills, but no one matched her beauty. "She is mine," my heart sang, and it was heavenly music.

We could talk only of ourselves. There were so many things she had not told me. I was eager to know what had happened while she was still in Maine. How she and Andy had made up after I left.

"He acted as if nothing had happened, and went right on being nice to me."

"Do you know what he did with the pin?"

"No."

I told her that he had thrown it into the pool.

"It is like him," she said, "and he was in a mood to throw you in after it. I am glad he did not see you."

"I am as strong as he," I boasted. "I should have liked to see him try it."

We parted to meet that night at Olga's. The Ogre had, Mimi explained, entertained them a lot since they came back. And it wasn't polite to offend her. "You'll know why when you see her ballroom."

I must confess that the thing jarred. I felt that I would rather never accept Olga's hospitality than do it as the rest of them did, with a shrug of the shoulder and an air of scorn as if she owed them more than they asked.

That night I saw the peacock portrait. I had arrived at Olga's earlier than the others, for Lionel was to call for Bernice, and I walked over.

Olga greeted me with her slow enthusiasm. "It's nice to see you; I want to have a talk with you. Can't you stay for a little while after the others go?"

I promised; and presently when she was called to the telephone, I strayed through the gorgeous rooms until I came to the balcony which Mimi had described in her letter. The picture hung alone on the wall beyond, flanked by a tapestry or two, and lighted by concealed electric bulbs.

Seen thus it fairly blazed with color. Mimi's arms and neck were bare, and the scant blue of her long bodice melted into a train of peacock feathers. Her face was turned a little so that she looked over her shoulder with a veiled inscrutable glance. In the banded hair of her proud little head was a high carved comb which gave the effect of a peacock's crest, and the great fan which she carried was of the same burnished plumes.

This was not the child Mimi whose memory I cherished. The artist had given, rather, a hint of what she was to be—"The proud Lady." Pride was in every line of her. I felt a sudden cold shock of separation. What had I—a crude country boy—to do with this rare creature? How could I ever hope to possess her? The thing was preposterous!

OFFICER GUILTY DOUBLE MURDER

DETROIT, Dec. 22—(AP).—William Hawthorne, charged with shooting to death his secret wife and the man for whom she professed love, was convicted of manslaughter last night by a Recorders' Court jury.

Judge George Murphy remanded the former college track star and probationary Detroit policeman to jail without bond to await sentencing on Thursday.

Hawthorne was tried on a first degree murder charge for the shooting of John M. Barrett, 23, at the home of Barrett's mother on October 1. He also was indicted for the death of Catharine Fox Hawthorne, 21, shot at the same time.

SEVEN SCHOOLS PARTICIPATE IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

(Examiner Correspondence)

APSLEY, Dec. 22.—The annual rural schools Music Festival of this district was held in the Parish Hall on Friday evening under the direction of the supervisor, Mrs. G. Kilborn, seven school taking part. Mr. G. K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls being chairman for the occasion.

A varied program illustrated the progress made by the pupils in the past two years in part singing, instrumental music and folk dancing, all the number being well executed. An ambitious work for rural schools "The First Nowell" sopranos and descant, deserves special mention for the excellent rendering of a comparatively difficult number, as also does the solo "The Vagabond" sung by Douglas Dunford. All the teachers were present with their pupils, and Mrs. Kilborn at the conclusion of the concert cordially thanked them for the co-operation and enthusiastic help they had given her in her duties as supervisor of music.

St. George's Service

A large congregation attended St. George's church on Sunday evening to hear the Rev. Dr. McElheran, principal of Wycliffe University, who delivered a very inspiring sermon on the subject of "What is God Like" taking for his text the words, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father," from the ninth verse of the fourteenth chapter of St. John's Gospel. The question: What is God like? said the preacher is always being asked and in various ways but there is only one way to answer it. There is no other way to know what God is like except through his Son.

"I venture to say that in every congregation, large or small, there are some who are sorrowing, some who are sinful, some who are straying." To show what God is like to these three classes the speaker proceeded to show how Jesus dealt with them by illustration with incidents in the life of Christ relative to each individual class.

BACKING FROM LONDON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP). — Alf. M. Landon gave President Roosevelt to-day a pledge of "co-operation and support in the difficult foreign situations confronting your administration."

In a telegram made public at the State Department the 1936 Republican standard-bearer and former Kansas Governor criticised members of the United States Congress of both parties who he said "by their actions helped create the impression on foreign nations that they do not trust your administration of foreign affairs."

Britons, Foreigners Flee Hankow As Japs Approach

300 Refugees Head for Hong Kong on Special Train; Evacuation of Canton, Tsingtao Speeds Up Daily

HANKOW, China, Dec. 23—(AP)—Three hundred Britons and other foreigners fled a feared Japanese attack on this temporary seat of Chinese government tonight. They were aboard an international 'Christmas express' evacuation train.

The flag-draped train, of which both Chinese and Japanese had been informed in advance, was expected to reach Hong Kong on Christmas day or the day after.

Of the 300 refugees, many were the wives and families of missionaries at Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang.

All foreigners have been urged to evacuate Yangtze valley areas as soon as possible. Another international train will leave here next week with several hundred additional refugees.

Other Centres Warned.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 23 (A.P.). — Japanese authorities warned foreigners to-night to evacuate Hangchow, Chekiang Province capital and seaport, to escape the danger of rapidly approaching Japanese siege.

Great Britain and the United States, both of whom have nationals in the area south of Shanghai, were among the Powers whose Consuls received the warning from Japanese consular officers.

The notification also included Shaoshing, near the Gulf of Hangchow, about 35 miles south-east of the provincial capital.

The Japanese said the defenders of Hangchow would be trapped or compelled to withdraw by forces steadily completing encirclement of the seaport from three sides.

Other Chinese and foreign refugees, meanwhile, were in flight from Canton, Tsingtao, Hankow, and other Chinese cities where Japan's spreading attack appeared aimed.

Chinese military commanders in Tsingtao said they would resist a Japanese attack they expected in retaliation for the destruction by Chinese of Japanese property valued at $87,000,000.

AT LEAST 2 DEAD AS QUAKE ROCKS MEXICO CITY AREA

Communications with cities in the interior were disrupted, and it is thought possibly they may have been harder hit.

One report was that Toluca, in Southern Mexico, was damaged. Puebla and Cuernavaca were among the cities from which no reports could be obtained.

One aged woman was fatally injured here when the roof of her adobe home collapsed and a man was electrocuted by a broken high-tension wire.

A number of adobe huts at the edge of the city collapsed. The people were calm, however, an occasional Indian praying in the middle of the street being the only sign of alarm.

A few rock walls also tumbled under the temblor which began at 7.18 a.m. (8.18 a.m. E.S.T.) and lasted one minute. There was no damage to the busines ssection.

The 30 old jake beds upon which the capital is built served to soften the shock and it was believed these prevented greater damage.

MINISTERS ASK RELIEF INQUIRY

TORONTO, Dec. 23.— (CP). — The Toronto Ministerial Conference to-day demanded a judicial investigation into city relief administration.

Rev. John Coburn presented the clergy demands to a meeting to-day between the Toronto Board of Control and nearly 100 church social workers.

He read a resolution calling for a "competent and independent inquiry to draft recommendations for more humane and efficient relief methods." Another resolution approved the city's agreement to an increase in food vouchers.

"We don't know where the trouble is," Dr. Coburn said. "We make no charges. It may be the regulations are wrong and it may be incompetent administration. But we have found enough to say we are convinced that there is at least a widespread opinion that relief is not on a humane basis. We will put these people who make charges on the spot.

"We deplore the relief rental system. It is unfair to the landlord, humiliating to relief recipients and highly prejudicial to family life."

WOMAN PATIENT DIES OUT IN SNOW

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP) — Preliminary inquiry was scheduled today into the death of 41-year-old Mrs. Florence Cavers whose body was found last night in the snow at the rear of Victoria Hospital.

Mrs. Savers, wife of W. D. Cavers and a patient at the hospital, is believed to have run to the shallow section of one branch of the Thames River, climbed back up the steep bank and collapsed in the snow.

The hospital staff had searched the building before a woman's footprints were found leading from a ward door to the area at the rear of the institution. Mrs. Cavers was in hospital some weeks ago and was discharged only to be brought back five days ago for further treatment. She was reported to have been suffering from a nervous ailment.

MAID HURT BADLY AS HOTEL BURNS

WESTREE, Ont., Dec. 23.—(CP). —Sulma Johnston, 19-year-old Swedish maid, was in serious condition here to-day suffering burns received when the Wheeler house, a 16-room hotel where she was employed, burned to the ground last night.

Her employer, W. Wheeler, also suffered burns on the hands, face and head in the fire here, 60 miles north of Sudbury.

The fire started in the kitchen when some gasoline exploded while Miss Johnston was preparing supper. Her clothes caught fire and she ran from the hotel a mass of flames.

Wheeler was proprietor of the Wheeler House for the past 12 years. This town is a distributing point for the Shining Tree Mining Area.

Parachuting Santa Perishes In Bay

BOSTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—Army planes and police boats searched Boston harbor today for the body of United States army corporal Harold Kraner, 35, of Winthrop, Mass., whose parachute descent as a flying Santa Claus turned to tragedy last night over Boston's oceanside airport when a freshing wind blew him into the water.

Veteran of more than 100 successful jumps within eight years, Kraner plunged to death while his young wife and their 18-month-old son looked on in the midst of a group of army wives and children to whose Christmas party he was making his annual contribution.

Kraner bailed out over the airport administration building at 1,500 feet, from a plane piloted by Captain Richard Cobb. Carried seaward by the wind, Kraner sideslipped his 'chute desperately, but only a few spectators realized he was in danger.

The Christmas party's gayety changed to horror when Cobb suddenly released flares, first indication the jumper had landed not at the airport's edge beyond its floodlights, but in the water.

BUFFALO SCANDAL SYSTEM IS AIRED

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 23—(AP). —The president of Buffalo's Civic Service Commission testified in the City Affairs Investigation to-day that certain candidates for city jobs seemed to "float right to the top" when a change in the examination system was put into effect.

The witness, Stanley S. Jenkins, said he inaugurated the practice of having answers supplied to the commission by experts in advance of the examinations, so that the answers would be available in the event the experts died or were incapacitated.

"And as soon as the rule went into effect, the provisional candidates seemed to float right to the top of the ratings?" asked Frank G. Raichle, counsel for the Common Council Investigating Committee.

"It seems that was true," Jenkins replied.

"Provisional candidates," the Civil Service Commission's offices here explained, are candidates who have been tentatively assigned to certain work pending examination.

A witness testified earlier this week that he once obtained answers to a civil service examination from "Democratic headquarters."

Board Of Education Utilities Chairman Are Also Returned

Very Little Interest Taken By Ratepayers In The Civic Nomination Proceedings

Peterborough's ratepayers manifested approval of three branches of the city's administration by electing by acclamation this morning candidates for the office of Mayor, Utilities Commission and Board of Education.

James Hamilton, with an experience of 14 years as alderman, was unopposed for the mayoralty, and becomes the successor of Mayor George A. Macdonald.

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, was re-elected for a fifth term of three years by acclamation.

Five members of the Board of Education, Mrs. Kate Morris, John R. Marshall, Harold G. Walker, David G. H. Melton and Dr. G. Raymore Scott, were returned for two years without a contest.

Small Attendance.

Less than a score of citizens attended the nominations at the city hall between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning. City Clerk Armstrong was in charge of the official procedure which will be concluded this evening with nominations for aldermen between 7.30 and 8.30 o'clock tonight.

The elected candidates this morning and the citizens who proposed them were as follows:

For Mayor

James Hamilton, nominated by G. N. Gordon, seconded by H. G. Walker.

Utilities Commission

Board of Education

CANADA FROWNS UPON DOWN TOWN BETTING OFFICES

OTTAWA, Dec. 23 (CP).—Downtown betting offices in connection with race tracks legalized in Chicago yesterday are frowned upon by the law officers of the Dominion Government. So far there have been no attempts at establishing them in Canada although a couple of years ago the late Abe Orpen announced he would open a betting office in Toronto to take bets on his Long Branch and Dufferin tracks.

Mr. Orpen did not proceed with the plan. Under his plan, bets would be taken at a down-town office and the money sent to the track. The bets would be put through the pari-mutuel machines in the same way as money wagered at the track.

Generally speaking, betting on races is illegal in Canada under the criminal code. This makes bookmaking illegal. As an exception to the general provisions, betting at race-tracks on the pari-mutuel system, under government supervision, is legal.

As the law is interpreted, bets must be made at the track and must go directly into the pari-mutuel machines.

Same As Bookmaker.

Dominion Government officials have taken the stand bets taken outside the track cannot be put through the machines. That would leave any down-town betting office in the same position as a bookmaker as it would

Clock "Nightmare" Greets British Commons

Members Think One Isn't Enough But "Yell" When Five Are Hung Up

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

A fortnight ago some members had the idea that one clock in the chamber of the House of Commons was not enough. They began an agitation for another. Officialdom demurred, talked learnedly of lost lost architectural harmonies. Then it yielded to widely-signed petition.

Today startled members saw clock enough for Santa Claus. Immediately under the Ladies' Gallery hung a clock, its face adorned with gilt hands and gilt cutout figures. Immediately below it was a lozenge-shaped clock with a white face with hands, but no figures.

Over the Speak's chair was a wooden contrivance with neither hands nor figures. To its right hung a fourth clock. Altogether the House had five clock with only one going.

A "Dummy Moon"

An indignant Conservative asked "Mr. Speaker" to undertake to see that "the terrible wooden structure" should not be made permanent, during the Christmas recess. An equally indignant Labor member unkindly referred to the "dummy moon" over the Speaker's chair.

From an adherent of the left-wing Independent Labor party came the ironic suggestion that the side galleries might also be equipped with clocks.

Sir Philip Sassoon, First Commissioner of Works, rather wearily explained that none of the clocks was permanent. They were only there so that members might give their opinions.

The House rises this afternoon until February 1. During the month's recess numbers will have further time to consider clocks.

Two Acclamations In N. Monaghan

Reeve James Milby and Deputy-Reeve Melville Johnston were returned this afternoon by acclamation at the North Monaghan nominations held in May's School. Five were nominated for councillors, R. A. Dobbin, John Barnes, and A. J. Arnott, the three retiring members, and W. J. Grady and Alex. Archibald, candidates nominated by the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association.

Re-elected

who has been elected for a fifth term of three years on the Utilities Commission. Mr. Matthews for the past 10 years has been chairman of this municipal body.

PAY INCREASE IS GIVEN EMPLOYEES OF THE WESTCLOX

Stating that the move is simply in accord with the company's policy of paying the wages considered fair for the work done, J. H. Vernor, Western Clock Company general manager, announced a general increase of from 3 to 5 per cent. in the company's hourly, piece and premium rates and a boost in the minimum rates today. The advances will be effective on the first day of operations in the New Year, January 3.

Giving the company virtual leadership of Peterborough industry in the matter of wage minimums, the new schedule of wages will assure men workers a minimum of $20.24 for a 44-hour week as compared with the present minimum of $18.92. The minimum for women will be $12.32 as compared with $11.44 at present, and for boys, $13.20 as compared with $12.32. Hourly rates of the new minimum schedule are 46 cents for men as compared with the present 43 cents, 28 cents for women compared with 26 cents, and 30 cents for boys compared with 28 cents.

Only a small number of the plant employees are at the minimum, Mr. Vernor said. Any new help employed will be started at the new minimum rates.

Will Post New Rates.

The hourly, piece and premium rates will be advanced from 3 to 5 per cent., depending on the class of work, the announcement indicated. "It is the aim of the company to base rates upon the amount of work produced, the quality of work, and the responsibility which the job carries with it, as well as the value of both the worker and his or her job to the company. Over 4,000 different rates have to be figured when a change of this kind is made. It was hoped that the new rates could all be posted on bulletin boards when this announcement was made but the time is too short to figure all of them. They will be posted as soon as possible so that employees can figure for themselves just how they will be affected."

Mr. Vernor stated the advance will put into effect the highest wage scale in the history of the company here

HEPBURN-KING TILT LABELLED 'SMOKE SCREEN'

Broken Power Pledge Cloak, Says Macaulay

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—Leopold Macaulay, Ontario Conservative House Leader, issued a statement to-day charging Premier Hepburn had broken his pledge to the people by negotiating new power contracts with Quebec companies without the consent of the Legislature.

Dispute between Mr. Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King was called a "smoke screen" to distract the public's attention from the broken pledges.

Now that the long-range duel between Mr. Hepburn and Mr. King has died down for the moment, I would like to draw the attention of the people of Ontario to something that might be overlooked in the general melee, namely the breath-taking breach of faith perpetrated by Mr. Hepburn in connection with the power contracts.

The row about export of power and the calling of names by Mr. Hepburn is only a smoke screen on, as called in military tactics, "a diversion," to district the public's attention from the broken pledges by Mr. Hepburn on the power question.

Three Years Preaching.

For three years, and especially prior to the last general election, Mr. Hepburn had been preaching about the original Hydro contracts being "conceived in iniquity and signed behind closed doors, without the knowledge of the Legislature or the union of Hydro municipalities." He even had it put into the preamble of the repudiation Bill that the original contracts were "illegal, void and unenforceable" because they were not approved by the Legislature or the union of Hydro municipalities.

Now we find that Mr. Hepburn has negotiated new contracts for substantially the same amount of power and for the same or longer periods of time without the consent of the Legislature or the union of Hydro municipalities — and I might add also without the knowledge or consent of his own supporters in the House.

Negotiated During Election.

This reversal of policy is startling enough but it becomes scandalous when we know, as we now know, that Mr. Hepburn had negotiated for the renewal of these contracts during the election while at the same time he was campaigning for votes on the war cry of "back to Niagara."

Therefore, let the people of Ontario ponder a few of the historical facts of the last four months, rather than get diverted by the ballyhoo and circus tactics of the power export controversy. These basic historical facts are as follows:

In the honeymoon days of his first term of office Mr. Hepburn declared that none of the Quebec power was wanted and that he would go 'back to Niagara." The Quebec contracts, therefore, were thrown out of the window. This was great stuff for those on the back concessions. Ontario's man of action was fighting the power barons.

Power demands continued to rise and Mr. Hepburn, through his Hydro Commission, re-negotiated 456,000 horse power with the Quebec power companies, which he had said he wouldn't need.

Along came the general election. Mr. Hepburn secretly negotiated with the power companies for new and more extensive contracts. The C.I.O. issue and the secret power agreements would hold Bay street and St. James street, but he had still to get the people on the back concessions. Nothing would hold them except that "back to Niagara" pol-

The Cabinet was unwilling to dissolve the organization on its own authority, but agreed to submit the question to the Wafd Executive Committee and Nationalist members of Parliament to-morrow. It was believed both would approve.

Couldn't Afford Expedition So He Sends Chinese Hunter Who Bags Four

TORONTO, Dec. 23—(CP)—The giant Panda, black and white creature which looks balefully out of a glass case in the Royal Ontario Museum today, owes his betrayal and present status of being stuffed to the patriotic fervor of a Canadian doctor in faraway, war-ridden China.

It was, he said, Dr. Leslie G. Kilborn, a graduate of the University of Toronto, now teaching at West China University, Chengtu, who decided on his own initiative that the Provincial museum should have a Panda.

Dr. Kilborn watched a number of expensive, elaborately outfitted expeditions pass through Chengtu on the way to the interior in search of the Panda, an animal much in demand for museum of natural history. He knew the Royal Ontario Museum couldn't afford to pay thousands of dollars to send an expedition into the Himalaya

Ontario Ready To Crack Down On Yuletide Drunk Drivers

Branded Reflection and Stigma On Our Civilization—All To Be Jailed

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (CP)—Ontario mapped the most vigorous campaign in its history today to crack down on drunken automobile drivers during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Faced with possible recurrence of the high death toll that took nine lives in 166 accidents within a 48-hour period last Christmas, the provincial government and police authorities planned every precaution to prevent such loss of human life.

Police said the majority of accidents last year were caused by liquor-toting celebrants who climbed into their cars and mowed some one down or ploughed into another vehicle.

There will be no leaves for provincial police during the holiday. Leaves have been cancelled for the Toronto police force and Police Chief D. C. Draper has issued an ultimatum that all intoxicated drivers will be jailed.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant, in the forefront of the drive for public safety, declared: "The toll in most deplorable loss of lives, injuries, suffering and property damage resulting from accidents on the

Calgary, Dec. 23 (CP)

SPORT of pioneer days—coyote hunting with hounds—is coming back in Southern Alberta but a modern touch is added today. The hunters chase behind the speedy hounds following the tricky coyotes in automobiles. The sport is not only popular but profitable.

Pelts sell at $10 to $12 and some bring as much as $20. Youths of the foothills rangeland country, speeding over snow-covered fields, are combining business with pleasure.

Parental devotion is not missing in coyote hunts. The story is told of a big grey pair that eluded hunters for years. Then, a son brought death to the father.

Chased by greyhounds the parents were well ahead but the coyote pup lagged behind, winded and soon to fall victim to the dashing hounds. The old fellow deserted his mate and drew the dogs away from the warmest offspring. Mother and pup escaped but "dad" was caught and killed.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 23 (A.P.). — Japanese authorities warned foreigners to-night to evacuate Hangchow, Chekiang Province capital and seaport, to escape the danger of rapidly approaching Japanese siege.

Great Britain and the United States, both of whom have nationals in the area south of Shanghai, were among the Powers whose Consuls received the warning from Japanese consular officers.

The notification also included Shaoshing, near the Gulf of Hangchow, about 35 miles south-east of the provincial capital.

The Japanese said the defenders of Hangchow would be trapped or compelled to withdraw by forces steadily completing encirclement of the seaport from three sides.

Other Chinese and foreign refugees, meanwhile, were in flight from Canton, Tsingtao, Hankow, and other Chinese cities where Japan's spreading attack appeared aimed.

Chinese military commanders in Tsingtao said they would resist a Japanese attack they expected in retaliation for the destruction by Chinese of Japanese property valued at $87,000,000.

AT LEAST 2 DEAD AS QUAKE ROCKS MEXICO CITY AREA

Communications with cities in the interior were disrupted, and it is thought possibly they may have been harder hit.

One report was that Toluca, in Southern Mexico, was damaged. Puebla and Cuernavaca were among the cities from which no reports could be obtained.

One aged woman was fatally injured here when the roof of her adobe home collapsed and a man was electrocuted by a broken high-tension wire.

A number of adobe huts at the edge of the city collapsed. The people were calm, however, an occasional Indian praying in the middle of the street being the only sign of alarm.

A few rock walls also tumbled under the temblor which began at 7.18 a.m. (8.18 a.m. E.S.T.) and lasted one minute. There was no damage to the busines ssection.

The 30 old lake beds upon which the capital is built served to soften the shock and it was believed these prevented greater damage.

MINISTERS ASK RELIEF INQUIRY

TORONTO, Dec. 23.— (CP). — The Toronto Ministerial Conference to-day demanded a judicial investigation into city relief administration.

Rev. John Coburn presented the clergy demands to a meeting to-day between the Toronto Board of Control and nearly 100 church social workers.

He read a resolution calling for a "competent and independent inquiry to draft recommendations for more humane and efficient relief methods." Another resolution approved the city's agreement to an increase in food vouchers.

"We don't know where the trouble is," Dr. Coburn said. "We make no charges. It may be the regulations are wrong and it may be incompetent administration. But we have found enough to say we are convinced that there is at least a widespread opinion that relief is not on a humane basis. We will put these people who make charges on the spot.

"We deplore the relief rental system. It is unfair to the landlord, humiliating to relief recipients and highly prejudicial to family life."

WOMAN PATIENT DIES OUT IN SNOW

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP) — Preliminary inquiry was scheduled today into the death of 41-year-old Mrs. Florence Cavers whose body was found last night in the snow at the rear of Victoria Hospital.

Mrs. Savers, wife of W. D. Cavers and a patient at the hospital, is believed to have run to the shallow section of one branch of the Thames River, climbed back up the steep bank and collapsed in the snow.

The hospital staff had searched the building before a woman's footprints were found leading from a ward door to the area at the rear of the institution. Mrs. Cavers was in hospital some weeks ago and was discharged only to be brought back five days ago for further treatment. She was reported to have been suffering from a nervous ailment.

MAID HURT BADLY AS HOTEL BURNS

WESTREE, Ont., Dec. 23.—(CP). —Sulma Johnston, 19-year-old Swedish maid, was in serious condition here to-day suffering burns received when the Wheeler house, a 16-room hotel where she was employed, burned to the ground last night.

Her employer, W. Wheeler, also suffered burns on the hands, face and head in the fire here, 60 miles north of Sudbury.

The fire started in the kitchen when some gasoline exploded while Miss Johnston was preparing supper. Her clothes caught fire and she ran from the hotel a mass of flames.

Wheeler was proprietor of the Wheeler House for the past 12 years. This town is a distributing point for the Shining Tree Mining Area.

Mayor-Elect James Hamilton who for 14 years has served the city as an alderman has been promoted to the mayor's chair by acclamation. Mayor-elect Hamilton has served on every committee of the city council and for the past two years has been chairman of the finance body.

Parachuting Santa Perishes In Bay

BOSTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—Army planes and police boats searched Boston harbor today for the body of United States army corporal Harold Kraner, 35, of Winthrop, Mass., whose parachute descent as a flying Santa Claus turned to tragedy last night over Boston's oceanside airport when a freshing wind blew him into the water.

Veteran of more than 100 successful jumps within eight years, Kraner plunged to death while his young wife and their 18-month-old son looked on in the midst of a group of army wives and children to whose Christmas party he was making his annual contribution.

Kraner balled out over the airport administration building at 1,500 feet, from a plane piloted by Captain Richard Cobb. Carried seaward by the wind, Kraner sideslipped his 'chute desperately, but only a few spectators realized he was in danger.

The Christmas party's gayety changed to horror when Cobb suddenly released flares, first indication the jumper had landed not at the airport's edge beyond its floodlights, but in the water.

BUFFALO SCANDAL SYSTEM IS AIRED

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 23—(AP). —The president of Buffalo's Civic Service Commission testified in the City Affairs Investigation to-day that certain candidates for city jobs seemed to "float right to the top" when a change in the examination system was put into effect.

The witness, Stanley S. Jenkins, said he inaugurated the practice of having answers supplied to the commission by experts in advance of the examinations, so that the answers would be available in the event the experts died or were incapacitated.

"And as soon as the rule went into effect, the provisional candidates seemed to float right to the top of the ratings?" asked Frank G. Raichle, counsel for the Common Council Investigating Committee.

"It seems that was true," Jenkins replied.

"Provisional candidates," the Civil Service Commission's offices here explained, are candidates who have been (tentatively assigned to certain work pending examination.

A DOG-MOVER

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23—(AP) —A 150-pound dog blocked traffic in a restaurant here by sitting down and refusing to move.

A waiter ended the impasse by producing a hot dog tied to a string. He dragged the steaming weiner to the street and the dog followed, nose down.

Board Of Education Utilities Chairman Are Also Returned

Very Little Interest Taken By Ratepayers In The Civic Nomination Proceedings

Peterborough's ratepayers manifested approval of three branches of the city's administration by electing by acclamation this morning candidates for the office of Mayor, Utilities Commission and Board of Education.

James Hamilton, with an experience of 14 years as alderman, was unopposed for the mayoralty, and becomes the successor of Mayor George A. Macdonald.

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, was re-elected for a fifth term of three years by acclamation.

Five members of the Board of Education, Mrs. Kate Morris, John R. Marshall, Harold G. Walker, David G. H. Melton and Dr. G. Raymore Scott, were returned for two years without a contest.

Small Attendance.

Less than a score of citizens attended the nominations at the city hall between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning. City Clerk Armstrong was in charge of the official procedure which will be concluded this evening with nominations for aldermen between 7.30 and 8.30 o'clock tonight.

The elected candidates this morning and the citizens who proposed them were as follows:

For Mayor

James Hamilton, nominated by G. N. Gordon, seconded by H. G. Walker.

Utilities Commission

Board of Education

Mrs. Kate Morris, proposed by Alexander Mowat, seconded by H. J. McCannan.

Harold G. Walker, proposed by G. A. Gillespie, seconded by Roland Denne.

CANADA FROWNS UPON DOWN TOWN BETTING OFFICES

OTTAWA, Dec. 23 (CP).—Downtown betting offices in connection with race tracks legalized in Chicago yesterday are frowned upon by the law officers of the Dominion Government. So far there have been no attempts at establishing them in Canada although a couple of years ago the late Abe Orpen announced he would open a betting office in Toronto to take bets on his Long Branch and Dufferin tracks.

Mr. Orpen did not proceed with the plan. Under his plan, bets would be taken at a down-town office and the money sent to the track. The bets would be put through the pari-mutuel machines in the same way as money wagered at the track.

Generally speaking, betting on races is illegal in Canada under the criminal code. This makes bookmaking illegal. As an exception to the general provisions, betting at race-tracks on the pari-mutuel system, under government supervision, is legal.

As the law is interpreted, bets must be made at the track and must go directly into the pari-mutuel machines.

Same As Bookmaker.

Dominion Government officials have taken the stand bets taken outside the track cannot be put through the machines. That would leave any down-town betting office in the same position as a bookmaker as it would

Clock "Nightmare" Greets British Commons

Members Think One Isn't Enough But "Yell" When Five Are Hung Up

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

A fortnight ago some members had the idea that one clock in the chamber of the House of Commons was not enough. They began an agitation for another. Officialdom demurred, talked learnedly of lost lost architectural harmonies. Then it yielded to widely-signed petition.

Today startled members saw clock enough for Santa Claus. Immediately under the Ladies' Gallery hung a clock, its face adorned with gilt hands and gilt cutout figures. Immediately below it was a lozenge-shaped clock with a white face with hands, but no figures.

Over the Speak's chair was a wooden contrivance with neither hands nor figures. To its right hung a fourth clock. Altogether the House had five clock with only one going.

A "Dummy Moon"

An indignant Conservative asked "Mr. Speaker" to undertake to see that "the terrible wooden structure" should not be made permanent, during the Christmas recess. An equally indignant Labor member unkindly referred to the "dummy moon" over the Speaker's chair.

From an adherent of the left-wing Independent Labor party came the ironic suggestion that the side galleries might also be equipped with clocks.

Sir Philip Sassoon, First Commissioner of Works, rather wearily explained that none of the clocks was permanent. They were only there so that members might give their opinions.

The House rises this afternoon until February 1. During the month's recess numbers will have further time to consider clocks.

Two Acclamations In N. Monaghan

Reeve James Milby and Deputy-Reeve Melville Johnston were returned this afternoon by acclamation at the North Monaghan nominations held in May's School. Five were nominated for councillors, R. A. Dobbin, John Barnes, and A. J. Arnott, the three retiring members, and W. J. Grady and Alex. Archibald, candidates nominated by the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association.

Stating that the move is simply in accord with the company's policy of paying the wages considered fair for the work done, J. H. Vernor, Western Clock Company general manager, announced a general increase of from 3 to 5 per cent. in the company's hourly, piece and premium rates and a boost in the minimum rates today. The advances will be effective on the first day of operations in the New Year, January 3.

Giving the company virtual leadership of Peterborough industry in the matter of wage minimums, the new schedule of wages will assure men workers a minimum of $20.24 for a 44-hour week as compared with the present minimum of $18.92. The minimum for women will be $12.32 as compared with $11.44 at present, and for boys, $13.20 as compared with $12.32. Hourly rates of the new minimum schedule are 46 cents for men as compared with the present 43 cents, 28 cents for women compared with 26 cents, and 30 cents for boys compared with 28 cents.

Only a small number of the plant employees are at the minimum, Mr. Vernor said. Any new help employed will be started at the new minimum rates.

Will Post New Rates.

The hourly, piece and premium rates will be advanced from 3 to 5 per cent., depending on the class of work, the announcement indicated. "It is the aim of the company to base rates upon the amount of work produced, the quality of work, and the responsibility which the job carries with it, as well as the value of both the worker and his or her job to the company. Over 4,000 different rates have to be figured when a change of this kind is made. It was hoped that the new rates could all be posted on bulletin boards when this announcement was made but the time is too short to figure all of them. They will be posted as soon as possible so that employees can figure for themselves just how they will be affected."

Mr. Vernor stated the advance will put into effect the highest wage scale in the history of the company here

HEPBURN-KING TILT LABELLED 'SMOKE SCREEN'

Broken Power Pledge Cloak, Says Macaulay

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—Leopold Macaulay, Ontario Conservative House Leader, issued a statement to-day charging Premier Hepburn had broken his pledge to the people by negotiating new power contracts with Quebec companies without the consent of the Legislature.

Dispute between Mr. Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King was called a "smoke screen" to distract the public's attention from the broken pledges.

Now that the long-range duel between Mr. Hepburn and Mr. King has died down for the moment, I would like to draw the attention of the people of Ontario to something that might be overlooked in the general melee, namely the breath-taking breach of faith perpetrated by Mr. Hepburn in connection with the power contracts.

The row about export of power and the calling of names by Mr. Hepburn is only a smoke screen or, as called in military tactics, "a diversion," to distriet the public's attention from the broken pledges by Mr. Hepburn on the power question.

Three Years Preaching.

For three years, and especially prior to the last general election, Mr. Hepburn had been preaching about the original Hydro contracts being "conceived in iniquity and signed behind closed doors, without the knowledge of the Legislature or the union of Hydro municipalities." He even had it put into the preamble of the repudiation Bill that the original contracts were "illegal, void and unenforceable" because they were not approved by the Legislature or the union of Hydro municipalities.

Now we find that Mr. Hepburn has negotiated new contracts for substantially the same amount of power and for the same or longer periods of time without the consent of the Legislature or the union of Hydro municipalities — and I might add also without the knowledge or consent of his own supporters in the House.

Negotiated During Election.

This reversal of polic yis startling enough but it becomes scandalous when we know, as we now know, that Mr. Hepburn had negotiated for the renewal of these contracts during the election while at the same time he was campaigning for votes on the war cry of "back to Niagara."

Therefore, let the people of Ontario ponder a few of the historical facts of the last four months, rather than get diverted by the ballyhoo and circus tactics of the power export controversy. These basic historical facts are as follows:

In the honeymoon days of his first term of office Mr. Hepburn declared that none of the Quebec power was wanted and that he would go 'back to Niagara." The Quebec contracts, therefore, were thrown out of the window. This was great stuff for those on the back concessions. Ontario's man of action was fighting the power barons.

Power demands continued to rise and Mr. Hepburn, through his Hydro Commission, re-negotiated 456,000 horse power with the Quebec power companies, which he had said he wouldn't need.

Along came the general election. Mr. Hepburn secretly negotiated with the power companies for new and more extensive contracts. The C.I.O. issue and the secret power agreements would hold Bay street and St. James street, but he had still to get the people on the back concessions. Nothing would hold them except that "back to Niagara" pol-

KING WINS IN EGYPT

CAIRO, Dec. 23—(AP). — The deadlock between King Farouk and the Egyptian Cabinet was broken to-day when the ministers agreed to the ruler's demands that the blue-shirted youth organization of the Wafd (Nationalist) Party be dissolved.

The Cabinet was unwilling to dissolve the organization on its own authority, but agreed to submit the question to the Wafd Executive Committee and Nationalist members of Parliament to-morrow. It was believed both would approve.

U. of T. Grads' Patriotic Fervor Gives Museum Rare Panda

Couldn't Afford Expedition So He Sends Chinese Hunter Who Bags Four

TORONTO, Dec. 23—(CP)—The giant Panda, black and white creature which looks balefully out of a glass case in the Royal Ontario Museum today, owes his betrayal and present status of being stuffed to the patriotic fervor of a Canadian doctor in faraway, war-ridden China.

It was, he said, Dr. Leslie G. Kilborn, a graduate of the University of Toronto, now teaching at West China University, Chengtu, who decided on his own initiative that the Provincial museum should have a Panda.

Dr. Kilborn watched a number of expensive, elaborately outfitted expeditions pass through Chengtu on the way to the interior in search of the Panda, an animal much in demand for museum of natural history. He knew the Royal Ontario Museum couldn't afford to pay thousands of dollars to send an expedition into the Himalaya

Branded Reflection and Stigma On Our Civilization—All To Be Jailed

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (CP)—Ontario mapped the most vigorous campaign in its history today to crack down on drunken automobile drivers during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Faced with possible recurrence of the high death toll that took nine lives in 165 accidents within a 48-hour-period last Christmas, the provincial government and police authorities planned every precaution to prevent such loss of human life.

Police said the majority of accidents last year were caused by liquor-toting celebrants who climbed into their cars and mowed some one down or ploughed into another vehicle.

There will be no leaves for provincial police during the holiday. Leaves have been cancelled for the Toronto police force and Police Chief D. C. Draper has issued an ultimatum that all intoxicated drivers will be jailed.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant, in the forefront of the drive for public safety, declared: "The toll in most deplorable loss of lives, injuries, suffering and property damage resulting from accidents on the

Calgary, Dec. 23 (CP)

SPORT of pioneer days—coyote hunting with hounds—is coming back in Southern Alberta but a modern touch is added today. The hunters chase behind the speedy hounds following the tricky coyotes in automobiles. The sport is not only popular but profitable.

Pelts sell at $10 to $12 and some bring as much as $20. Youths of the foothills rangeland country, speeding over snow-covered fields, are combining business with pleasure.

Parental devotion is not missing in coyote hunts. The story is told of a big grey pair that eluded hunters for years. Then, a son brought death to the father.

Chased by greyhounds the parents were well ahead but the coyote pup lagged behind, winded and soon to fall victim to the dashing hounds. The old fellow deserted his mate and drew the dogs away from the wornout offspring. Mother and pup escaped but "dad" was caught and killed.

icy. Therefore out came the old slogan and the old stage properties of previous Hydro battles.

Down With The Power Barons

In 25 places in Ontario Mr. Hepburn asked for a mandate to continue the fight against the power barons and to overrule any court decisions in their favor.

He pictured the Conservatives as tools of these power interests, while knowing that at that precise moment he and his representatives were negotiating with these same power interests.

Hon. W. L. Houck, now his "yes man" on the hydro commission and then fighting for re-election in Niagara Falls, said on 23rd September last and on many other occasions prior to the election:

"Mr. Rowe says there is a power shortage. I say there is no power shortage but if there is a new hydro development we should follow the 'back to Niagara' policy of the Hepburn government."

"Mr. Houck now jumps through the hoop and makes no statement other than to say that he is following orders of the 'higher-ups.' Mr. Smith, the other commissioner, puts his O.K. on what Mr. Houck says and does.

The Doublecross

I am informed that prior to the election Engineer T. H. Hogg unknown to his chairman—Mr. Lyon—but under orders from Mr. Hepburn, negotiated the new agreement with Beauharnois. This was so that a doublecross could be put over the voting public as Mr. Lyon was still talking about plenty of power being available without any new Quebec contracts.

Before and during the election, Mr. Hepburn allowed his commissioner, Mr. Lyon, to keep on saying that there was no power shortage. Mr. Lyon being a sincere man believed it. After the election, Mr. Lyon was forced out, so that a complaint board would carry out what was secretly arranged before the election.

It is obvious that Mr. Hepburn did not go to the country because of a C.I.O. crisis, as he had planned the election long before that issue arose. The election was brought about to put over a new and secret power deal. This is made clear by the Hepburn-King correspondence in the revelation that early in March of this year, Mr. Hepburn told Mr. King that he was planning an election during 1937.

Yet during the election in October last, Mr. Hepburn said he had no idea of an election when he brought down his budget and announced a reduction in motor license fees last March.

Therefore, I want the people of Ontario to get this straight. The issue is not export of power to the United States but Mr. Hepburn's broken hydro pledges.

6 SMOKE VICTIMS SAVED IN 2 FIRES

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (CP) — Six persons were carried unconscious from their homes in two separate fires here early today. Firemen rescued Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace from a burning house in the east end and in north Toronto a man and woman and their two young children were saved. All six were overcome by smoke.

The barking of a neighbor's dog led to discovery of the blaze in the home of Torrance Griffith. The family had retired and were found by firemen who forced their way through dense smoke. The children, Patsy three and Catherine one, were quickly revived, but Mr. and Mrs. Griffith were more seriously stricken.

The Wallace house was also in flames when firemen arrived. Mrs. Wallace was found lying unconscious in an upstairs bedroom, her husband on the first floor. He suffered facial burns and both were given hospital treatment.

Enforcement of the Criminal Code provisions against gambling and book-making is in charge of local and provincial authorities so Dominion jurisdiction really ends with the prohibition against putting through the machines bets taken outside the track.

One of the reasons for restricting betting to individuals at the tracks is that large sums wagered downtown might be put through the machines just before a race and after the odds had been posted.

Bettors at the track would not be able to get a true picture of the actual odds.

Castle Wall Falls Killing Nineteen

Forli, Italy, Dec. 23 (AP)

NINETEEN were killed and two injured early today as a stone precipice, foundation for the medieval castle of Fusercoli, collapsed on three modest homes in the village of Civitella di Romagna.

The greater part of the castle, on a cliff above the homes, remained standing, but its fall was feared imminent because of the lost foundations. One squad of workmen threw supports against the structure while others extricated bodies from the ruins below.

The castle was the unoccupied property of Marquis Giuseppe di Bagnp-Guidi, a Senator, who lives in Rome.

LAY HEALY DEATH TO ALCOHOLISM

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23 (AP) — Screen comedian Ted Healy died of acute toxic nephritis, induced by acute chronic alcoholism—not as a result of fistic blows—the county autopsy surgeon reported today, ending a police investigation into the "stooge king's death."

Police said they learned Healy struck at Albert Broccoli, 29, at the height of a gay celebration Sunday night of the birth of a son to the comedian's wife. Broccoli told officials he pushed but did not strike Healy.

Police said that since the autopsy showed Healy's death was not caused by blows, they would drop their investigation.

Funeral services were to be held today at Culver City. His widow, the former Betty Hickman of Pasadena, is in a hospital. She gave birth to a son last Friday.

"I was standing in the Trocadero (Hollywood cafe) Sunday night when Healy entered," Broccoli said. "I knew he had become a father a few days before, so I asked him to have a drink. He seemed quite unsteady, turned to an attendant, and asked: 'Who is this fellow?'

"I laughed that off and extended my congratulations. He stagged toward me and struck me on the nose. My nose began to bleed. The next thing I knew, he had hit me in the mouth, and followed this with a blow to the chin that almost floored me.

"I shoved him away, because I didn't want to hurt him, and attendants took Healy to an ante-room. Later, the attendants came back and told me Healy wanted to see me. I went in and we shook hands. He got into a taxicab and that's the last I saw of him."

JAPS MAY WANT CANADIAN NICKEL

QUEBEC, Dec. 23—(CP).—Nubuhiko Iwasaki, New York representative of Sumitomo Honsha, Ltd., Japanese Industrial Corporation, said last night his firm might be in the market for Canadian chrome and nickel.

Iwasaki stated though that the visit of himself and four countrymen to Canada this time is strictly one of pleasure. "We were in Montreal yesterday and went to Ottawa for a short sight-seeing visit. We expected to call at the Japanese Embassy there but did not have time and came right on to Quebec." They will leave for New York tomorrow night.

Questioned as to the prospects of his firm buying chrome, nickel and aluminum in Canada, M. Iwasaki said:

"We have already purchased and are still buying aluminum in this country. There's a possibility also we might be in the market for nickel and chrome."

Asked if they were ready to spend $4,000,000 on purchases in Canada, the Japanese business man smiled. "Nobody" he said "can specify a figure." He admitted though that his firm is in a position to buy on a large scale and could expend that amount.

LA ROCQUE FINED $88

PARIS, Dec. 23—(CP-Havas). — Colonel Francois de la Rocque was today found guilty of preserving his semi-military Croix de Feu within the framework of the political party he heads, the French Social party. He was fined 3,000 francs ($88).

The correctional court found that the French social party continued to have the character of a private military organization; for which reason the Croix de Feu was disbanded.

CLIPPER TO OPEN AUCKLAND SERVICE IN 4,000-MILE RUN

Honolulu, Dec. 23 (A.P.)—Captain Edwin C. Musick, veteran aerial explorer of the Pacific, pioneers another new commercial route over that vast ocean to-day — the Samoan clipper service to Auckland, New Zealand.

He is scheduled to take off at dawn (11.30 a.m. EST) on a round trip flight designed to add 4,000 miles to commercial air lanes over the Pacific. He is scheduled to arrive on Christmas Day.

The flying boat, on its return hop from Auckland on December 29, will inaugurate bi-weekly commercial air service from Australia to the United States. Mail and express taken aboard at Auckland will be transferred at Honolulu to California-bound clippers of the United States-Philippines route.

Kingman Reef, 1,060 miles south of here, will be the clipper's first stop. The second stop will be 1,521 miles farther, Pago Pago, Samoa. Auckland lies 1,763 miles beyond Pago Pago.

DENIES WESTERN RIVERS TO SHRINK

EDMONTON, Dec. 23 (C.P.). — Forecast the Bow and Saskatchewan Rivers of Alberta might become mere rivulets was described here to-day by Professor P. S. Warren of the University of Alberta Geology Department as "crossing bridges several hundreds of years before they have ever been built."

Dan McCowan, widely-known Canadian naturalist, stated in an interview in Toronto that "glaciers (in the Rocky Mountains) have been receding and shrinking so steadily that if they maintain the present pace for the next 50 years, the Saskatchewan and Bow Rivers will become nothing more than rivulets."

Prof. Warren said there was "most certainly nothing to worry about. Although there was no specific date, he added, it was generally believed the glacier recession or shrinkage runs in cycles.

"It may keep on receding for the next 100 years," he stated, "but it will be so slight that there will be little effect on the water supply.

"Even disregarding the fact that glaciers are not the only source of water supply for those rivers, because they are fed by rainfall and springs, the ice fields will probably return—after another couple of hundred years."

mountains of West China, so he organized a shoestring expedition of his own.

Dr. Kilborn delegated a native Chinese hunter to go out and bring home a panda. The hunter was obliging. He came back with four and also two Chinese takins, also rare animals, related to the antelopes and the goats.

Just Something for Hunter.

Then Dr. Kilborn wrote a letter to the Museum in Toronto, offering the six animals. He suggested that the trustees might send a small amount of money to reimburse the Chinese hunter, but if they couldn't afford it, he wanted the Museum to have the pandas and takins anyway.

Officials of the Museum decided Dr. Kilborn must be a pseudonym. The man who wrote the letter must really be Santa Claus. They sent the money for the hunter. The best panda and the best takin were put on display.

All the way from the highlands of West China, where he used to feed on stalks and shoots of bamboo, the sad, moon-faced panda, something between a bear and a raccoon, stands in his glass case. Just behind him is the gentle-looking takin. People come and stare, sit on th floor around them and sketch.

TRIPLETS CELEBRATE

TECUMSEH, Ont., Dec. 23.—(CP) —Only a black eye mars the sixth birthday celebration to-day of Charles, Edward and Henry Mansell, triplets of this Essex county town. And Charles, the lad with the "shiner" is not letting it worry him unduly. Mrs. Leo Mansell, the lads' mother, indicated that the bruise was a trophy of a scrap with a neighbor lad.

CLAMS PAY

DEER ISLAND, N.B.—(CP). — Clams in the shell are selling for $1.60 a barrel here, a record high price in this district. It was offered by a Maine cannery. As a result of keen demand and good prices, clam fishermen are doing a profitable business.

HOPING FOR THE BEST

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP). —Chief of Police R. J. Beatty has his fingers crossed as he ticks off the dying days of 1937 on his desk calendar. On January 1 Chief Beatty hopes to be able to point to a record of two full calendar years unblemished by a fatal traffic accident in the city.

It's more than two years now since there was a fatality. The last one was on November 8 ,1935.

JAPANESE ADMIT MACHINE-GUNNING; SAY NO FLAG SEEN

TOKYO, Dec. 23. (AP). — The Japanese army today admitted for the first time the machine-gunning of foreigners in the Yangtze River Panay incident, but did not mention firing on the United States gunboat.

Lieut.-Colonel Yoshiaki Nishi ed scribed at length the incident in which the Panay and three other American vessels were attacked. He had just returned from an investigation held at Pukow, across the Yangtze from Nanking.

(Nishi's investigations had formed the basis of previous official Japanese army statements on the Panay incident.

(Previously, Major-General Kumakichi Harada, military attache at Shanghai, had issued a denial of American charges that Japanese army boats had machine-gunned the Panay).

Emphasizing Japanese humanitarian actions when it was discovered the Panay and launches evacuating its crew carried foreigners, Nishi declared the entire incident resulted from efforts to cut off Chinese troops fleeing Nanking.

He said Japanese troops had failed to see identification or flags of any kind.

The Jap Explanation

Nishi's version of the firing was:

HAVELOCK FREE OF DEBT IN '47

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 23.—The several debentures to which Havelock has been indebted for some time are rapidly disappearing and if nothing happens to require further issues, the village will be entirely debt-free by 1947. Two debentures were paid off this year and another will expire early in the New Year. These were a school debenture contracted for in 1907, amounting to $4,000 at 5 per cent., and an unemployment debenture contracted for in 1932, amounting to $3,000 at 6 per cent., which have already been paid, and a debenture for drainage, contracted for in 1928, amounting to $5,000 at 5½ per cent., which will be met during 1938.

The cement walk debenture of 1931, amounting to $10,000 at 6½ per cent., will be cleared away in 1941. The unemployment relief debenture of 1934, amounting to $5,000 at 5 per cent., the last to be contracted for, expires in 1944, and another school debenture of 1932 of $5,000 at 6 per cent., expires in 1947.

Of the village Hydro debentures debt, which totals $12,170, the largest expires in 1940 and the last in 1942.

The running expenses during this year have been lower than for several years past, despite an increase of $432.33 in the school requisition. A saving on carrying charges for bank loans, this year, as compared with 1936, amounted to $206.96. For the first eleven months in 1937 the total amount of the municipality's share of relief costs has been $538.94, as compared with $1,432.33 in 1936, a saving so far of $893.39. Last year the maximum number of relief recipients in one month was 209, this year the highest was 40. During the past three months, there has been a minimum of 19 persons registered for relief. The standing of the village on December 15th was: Receipts outstanding, $8,733.98; liabilities, $4,845.74; receipts over liabilities, $3,888.19.

JAMES HAMILTON ELECTED MAYOR BY ACCLAMATION

W. R. Morris, seconded by R. M. Glover.

His First Acclamation.

Mayor-elect Hamilton entered the council in 1919 for two years and was re-elected in 1921. For six years after 1922 he was out of municipal affairs, but returned in 1928, and since then has been a member of the council for ten years, the only blank in his period of civic service having been in 1930. Mr. Hamilton had to run the gauntlet of elections for his various terms as an alderman, amounting to fourteen years, but this morning when he offered himself to the ratepayers as successor to Mayor Macdonald he was given the major honor with his first acclamation.

Only half a dozen men stayed for the usual post-nomination speeches this morning. They were hardly episodic. Ratepayers were apparently willing to "taking as read" the record of the three branches of the municipal service that were represented in the newly successful candidates.

Mayor-elect Hamilton went ahead with an expression of appreciation which presumably would have been expanded into a review of the council's work this year if the circumstances had warranted it.

"I thank you very much for the trust you have shown in me by electing me by acclamation for Mayor," he said. "There are not many here ——"

"But the quality is good," Alderman Gordon interrupted, and the responding laughter, in which Mr. Denne's jovial note was heard, nearly terminated the speech.

"I want to thank Mr. Gordon and Mr. Walker especially for nominating me," and the longest speech of the brief public meeting, with City Clerk Armstrong once more presiding, ended.

Fourth Acclamation.

Gordon Matthews was ready to carry out his part as the re-elected Commissioner of Peterborough's Public Utilities, but by that time there were only seven persons in the Council Chamber, and the customary meeting was running close to the edge of farce in the absence of a substantial audience.

Mr. Matthews said he was grateful to the ratepayers for re-electing him by acclamation, and incidentally it is the fifth term of three years with which the people have honored him. He remarked that he had tried to carry on the affairs of the Commission as efficiently as he could, and would endeavor to continue that service in future.

There was a touch of humor in his closing remark two of the audience had gone, and when John R. Marshall's turn came, as the last speaker, he said, "And I'm gone too."

It transpired later that Mr. Marshall had been elected nine or ten times, and no; once has he had to win by a contest. His successive candidatures have invariably resulted in elections by acclamation.

At any rate, the post-nomination meeting sparkled with good humor for the few minutes it lasted after eleven o'clock.

On the street afterward, a former Mayor of some years ago said to The Examiner: "I don't know whether the people are indifferent or whether they are quite satisfied that the city's business is being run well, but it certainly wasn't like this when I went into the council in 1907. The Council Chamber used to be crowded for the nominations."

DIETRICH BREAKS WITH FILM STUDIO

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23—(AP) — Marlene Dietrich, 33-year-old German star, parted company today with the studio which paid her $250,000 a picture for her blond charm.

The rift between Miss Dietrich and her studio was disclosed in Paramount's announcement it has "indefinitely postponed" filming of "French Without Tears."

Behind her formal separation from the studio, film industry observers cited the factor of million-dollar production costs and waning box office receipts of Dietrich pictures.

Two of her films in the last five years, "Morocco" and "Shanghai Express," were outstanding money-makers, the remainder not so successful.

Berlin-born, the daughter of an army officer, Miss Dietrich is married to Rudolph Sieber, who resides in Paris. Her 13-year-old daughter, Maria, is in school in Switzerland.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Wheat trading on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day was a holiday affair providing one of the smallest business volumes of 1937. Prices eased through lack of support and in sympathy with lower outside markets to close ¾ cents lower to ¼ higher: December $1.25¾, May $1.16½, and July $1.09¾.

Export interest in Canadian wheat was reported to be confined to a little four Northern grades for May shipment from Atlantic ports. Purchases, however, were small.

Low demand for wheat brought out sufficient liquidation to send Liverpool prices to new season lows, 1d to 1¼d lower at the close. Buenos Aires in mid-afternoon dealings was ¼ to ¾ cent off.

with the level a general 5 per cent. above 1929. He recalled that in April this year standard hours through the plant were reduced from 47 hours a week to 44, and wages were raised to more than compensate. The company payroll will reach an all-time high of $476,000 for 1937 by the end of this year, $68,000 more than the total 1936 payroll. About $34,000 of the increase will be the result of the April adjustment and $34,000 the result staff increases during the year. The factory now employs 530 people.

"Business is good and 1937 has been better than 1936," Mr. Vernor commented. "But our present adjustment has not necessarily been inspired by improved business. A review of our wages indicated to us we should be paying more money so we are doing so."

Strive To Pay Fair Wage.

The manager stated the company is not reckoning too far in advance in its wage policies since a serious business recession in 1938 seems to be a possibility. Though a recession should come and wage reductions be found necessary, the company will strive at all times to pay a fair living wage to all employees, he said.

Simultaneously, the company announced today renewal of the group insurance covering all its employees of six months' service or more for 1938. Ever since 1920, employees at the Westclox have been insured at no cost to themselves under this annual plan.

200-FOOT FLAME OF GAS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23 (A.P.) — A 200-foot tower of flames from a wild gas well defied El Segundo oil field experts to-day to dynamite it out of existence.

With loss of $100,000 worth of derrick and drilling equipment, the well was burning 60 to 70 million cubic feet of gas a day. The well blew in on Tuesday as a gasser and became ignited by friction yesterday.

TERUEL GARRISON HOLDS SEMINARY DEFYING ASSAULT

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Survivors of the Teruel Spanish insurgent garrison defied conquering government troops today from a barricaded seminary overlooking the ancient Aragon city.

The defenders mounted machine-guns in the huge structure's twin towers. Government forces rolled field guns into the city and shelled the citadel, which insurgents said might become another Alcazar. The government's newly-organized fast tank corps, which had played a major role in the Teruel offensive, joined in the assault.

"The Teruel garrison is resisting heroically," said an insurgent communique issued at Salamanca. Insurgents announced that relief columns pushing toward the beleaguered diehards were "shattering enemy resistance" near Villastar, five miles southeast of Teruel.

Government forces, however, said they were determined to bring a quick end to the siege and prevent a duplication of the insurgent successes early in the war at Toledo, where the Alcazar garrison held out until relief arrived.

Civilian refugees were being evacuated from shell-torn objective in Teruel. The Teruel residential section, the outskirts, and a part of the centre of the city were in government hands.

The main column of government forces was said to have pushed northwest along the Zaragoza highway toward the road leading to Albarracin, the hill town which was the supply centre for last summer's unsuccessful insurgent push against Cuenca.

Government advices reported capture of Mansueta Hill, five miles northwest of Teruel, after short skirmishes in a blinding snowstorm.

AFRICA SEEKING QUEBEC TOBACCO

QUEBEC, Dec. 22 (C.P.) — The Gold Coast, British colony in West Africa, is ready to import 500,000 pounds of black leaf tobacco from Quebec Province, Hon. Joseph Bilodeau, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said last night.

The Minister said the African country's offer to import the tobacco had been made by Hon. Theodore Assare, president of the Gold Coast's Legislative Council, as a conference with him to-day.

"This offer," Mr. Bilodeau said, "is sure to result in the development of the tobacco industry in this province and the Joliette County growers who undertook the cultivation of tobacco on a large scale this year will reap the initial benefit." Most of Quebec's tobacco is grown in the Joliette district.

The Quebec Minister said President Assare had told him his country in all probability would increase its imports eventually to 1,500 tons yearly.

Barney eats seven pounds of food daily, often at one sitting. He comes from a noted line of St. Bernards and one of his predecessors belonged to the film star, Harold Lloyd. Barney has a strong protective instinct and shields his little playmate from all danger. His master is Bruce Baker of Dublin street, Joan's uncle.

Schoolmaster Prefers 7 Days In Jail To Paying Taxes For Arms

Bromley, Kent., Dec. 23

F. C. Ade, schoolmaster at Eltham College, went to prison today rather than pay taxes to be spent on armaments.

Ade refused to pay income tax amounting to about £5 ($25), which was the proportion of his total assessment he estimated would be spent on war materials.

He paid the balance of the tax, but refused despite a court order to pay the remainder.

The magistrates sentenced him to 21 days' imprisonment, and then reduced the sentence to seven days so that Ade could serve it during the holidays and keep his teaching post.

Owl Gives Judge Ducking Practice

Miami, Fla., Dec. 23

Judge Norman N. Blakley, after several minutes of dignified ducking, called a 15-minute recess.

Spectators threw hats and coats into the air in attempts to capture the intruder. The owl was snared in mid-air with a well-aimed hat.

Glimpse Of Far Eastern Scene Given By Cavan Township Girl

Miss Ruth Sharpe Describes Scenes In Japan And Conditions In China

A revealing glimpse of the Far Eastern scene is afforded by a lengthy letter written by Ruth Sharpe, United Church missionary who gained her early education in Peterborough, which was recently received by her mother, Mrs. Bruce Sharpe of Cavan township. Miss Sharpe was on board the French vessel "Felix Roussel" proceeding from Japan to the war area of China as she prepared the account of her experiences.

A graduate with distinction of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, she obtained a bachelor of arts degree at Queen's University and a master of arts at Western. On July 31 she sailed for France, bound for her station in China, Chengtu.

Among interesting portions of the letter are following excerpts:

"A French destroyer is to take us in from this ship. It would be just our luck to have to go down below and miss seeing the Whangpoo where everything has been happening lately. The Japanese hold it now But they might have it armour-plated and use sandbags. What was I thinking of, not to get a tin hat?

Long Rainy Season

"As a matter of fact, the Japanese have not more than half reached their objective in three times the time expected for attaining all of it. Now figure that out! What has been of tremendous assistance to the Chinese is the delay of the usual summer rains. All north China is flooded and you can understand how that would affect a mechanized army.

"In the northern parts now occupied by the Japanese, they are swiftly taking over control of the government and schools. Mr. Fejchney, a Scotch Canadian minister in Tientsin Union Church, while spending his holidays in Japan visiting the United Church missions, reported that city now very quiet. He says the missionaries are trusting their safety and that of their property to the Japanese; that the worst for their interests would be for a victorious Chinese army to sweep north. They would probably expel everything foreign along with the Japanese. The final outcome has never been doubted to be a victory for Japan, but just how large or soon is the question. The Chinese have surprised none more than the Japanese by the stiffness of their resistance.

"While crossing the Pacific, our radio newscasts were all from Japanese sources, and we could not tell how much to believe until we went by motor from the train to the mountains that I realized how general the mobolization is. For we met procession after procession following troops who were being sent off even from up in the country villages. Later, travelling by day to Kofu, the frenzy of flag-waving and cheering continued. School children go to the stations and all the women of Japan belong to a patriotic society and don a white apron and badge and march to the station waving a flag when requested to help with a send-off.

Training is Short

"The women do not show their real feelings. Only indirectly does one learn the real fear and sorrow of the homes where a soldier is ordered out. It is all conscription. A maid has to leave to go home to stay with her mother because an only brother has been called out. Farmers have been called mostly so far, fine strong fellows they are, too, and either middle-aged fathers from their homes or very young lads. They undergo a training, often brief, and in perhaps two weeks or a month are sent to the front. The best men have not gone to China, but are in Manchuria. It is popularly believed in Japan that the operations in China are only manoeuvres, that they are not fighting the real enemy yet. And everybody understands, of course, who is meant by the "real enemy"—Russia.

"The geat Japanese dread is of Communism. The argument they give their own people for the war is that they have to wedge in between Russia and China to prevent Communism sweeping China and later spreading to Japan. Japanese institutions are fundamentally opposite to Communism one can understand how a Fascist-like state should be the natural one in Japan because the Emperor is worshipped personally, and he and his predecessors and the nobility have led all cultural enterprises, as well as the policies of government from early days. It is interesting to note that the date of the Meiji Restoration almost coincides with the birth of the Canadian nation, 1868. Both Canada and the modern Japan are young and enthusiastic lands. But the population of these islands is eleven times that of our vast Dominion.

"The strange thing is that in professedly trying to combat Communism, Japan has succeeded in bringing about the union of the Communists of North China with the other Chinese forces. To meet the common enemy, all China is united in an unprecendented fashion.

No Persecution

"In their characteristically well-ordered fashion, the Japanese are beginning already to consider how to deal with the peace which is to follow. They do not wish to aggravate the Chinese against their rule, and are not persecuting the Chinese students and workmen and business men now in Japan. I did not feel any sense of hatred of Chinese among the Japanese, though they feel superior and laugh at the Chinese ways of bumbling along. But there is a much broader, more tolerant spirit in regard to China than we had toward Germany during the Great War. They do not hate China. What the Chinese side of this picture is, I can not say.

"As colonizers, the Japanese have not been a tremendous success and they know it, though if one were to compare their attempts with the early British ones, I think the balance would be in favour of Japan. The British accomplishment of political liberty for her colonies has been a revolution born of anguish and only granted under force of circumstances. The British tradition is personal liberty. But in Japan the people are accustomed to confiding in their superiors. Everything has been dictated from the top. So their ideas of colonization are to dictate from the top. They develop the resources, increase the comfort of living, and try to make the conquered land truly Japanese. They have educated the Formosans, gradually supplanting the Chinese language with Japanes. All instuctions must be in Japanese now. So in Korea. But they do not give colonists any above a primary school education.

Fighting for Peace

"While it is hard to reconcile the bombing of non-combatant Chinese in their cities by Japanese military, I could not help feeling in Japan that the Japanese people believe it is for the peace of the East they are fighting, that they have a mission in promoting the development of China, and that they are in it for the good they can do. Doesn't it sound like what we said in 1917?

"In one way it is a relief to be out of Japan, for in Canada one says what one thinks, whereas in Japan, one doesn't. The newspapers write up evey Japanese gain to sound like a great victory. No unfavourable news is published. Only totals of casualties are published—names are never given. Only men unfit for all time service are sent back. A train-load of wounded comes in, or four hundred boxes of ashes, to some small town. These are the only ways they have of knowing that the Japanese forces are not completely invulnerable.

"It is in business circles especially that things are jittery, and it is here they are going to get caught. They see their trade falling, the yen going down, and under the surface there is really a dreadful fear. Many foreign business people are leaving, partly because of no trade, partly because they fear air attacks from Russia."

Toronto Buying Less Milk

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (CP)—Recent increase in the price of milk in Toronto has resulted in reduced consumption and from a health standpoint was not in the best interests of the citizens, Dr. Gordon P. Jackson, medical officer of health, says in the protest against the increase presented by the board of control to Premier Hepburn today.

The controllers contended prices obtained by farmers for milk of fluid standard used for manufacturing purposes are too low as against prices obtained for milk delivered to consumers.

Reasons given by city officials for the higher price of milk in Toronto compared to other Ontario cities included: higher wages paid drivers, increased hauling costs because of distance of farms from the city, rigid inspection of herds and Toronto's demand for 100 per cent. pasteurized milk.

Indian Takes To Wilds For One Month To Live By His Knife Alone

Canton, N.Y., Dec. 23 (AP). IN the interests of science, Alton Draper, a Seneca Indian, will test his theory that man can live for an extended period without implements or food. He will spend a month in the heart of the Adirondacks, carrying only a hunting knife and no food or blankets.

After a four-day "test" stay, he said today, he was confident he can keep from freezing indefinitely but still was uncertain whether he can find food enough to sustain him during a 30-day period in mid-winter.

Last week Draper said he shook two porcupines out of trees and ate them. The only other food he had, he added, was yellow birch bark.

Draper said he slept on the ashes of a fire he made by rubbing two sticks together. This, he added, kept him warm. He used his hunting knife to cut the sticks.

HUMANE SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Humane Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Tuesday. The president, Thomas Sargent presided.

In spite of this being an exceedingly busy time, there was a large attendance of members and those interested in the society's work.

In presenting his monthly report, the inspector, Dr. Thomas Johnston spoke enthusiastically on the performance of the electrical chamber in destroying animals. "The public" he said "should be made aware that Peterborough owns and operates such a chamber, the best of its kind in Canada".

The Humane Society is deeply greatful to the donors who made its possession possible.

Dr. Johnston also reported that motorists are showing more consideration toward animals as there is a decrease in the number hurt with cars. Seven warnings were issued to boys using air rifles to shoot birds and squirrels. If this practice is not discontinued court proceedings will have to be resorted to. There are three unclaimed dogs at the shelter.

Horses examined 50, destroyed 3, dogs brought to shelter 12, destroyed 7, placed in homes 1. Cats brought to shelter 26, destroyed 26. Animals examined 200. Warnings issued 10. Complaints investigated 15. Emergency calls 7. Stables inspected 2. Telephone calls 150. Dr. Johnston remarked that this was the first month he had had to destroy three horses.

Nauseating All Through

The Supreme Court of Canada has decided that the will of the late Charles Vance Millar of Toronto is all right, and that means that over $500,000 will go to the mother or mothers in Toronto who gave birth to the most children between October 31, 1926 and the same date in 1936.

And in making that decision the Supreme Court passed back to the courts of Ontario the delicate matter of deciding who shall receive the money. And that will be a miserable decision to make because it will have to be handed intact or broken into pieces for the benefit of people who are experts in squabbling and proficient in advancing their own small claims.

Apart from that we believe the province of Ontario should protect itself out of the proceeds of this strange and unlovely will. For this reason: It may well be that a number of the children born during this contest will become charges upon the state, and no man has a right to start a contest and then have the results of that contest paid for out of public funds.

We also hope the courts of Ontario make their decision as quickly as possible so this whole business can be wiped out and forgotten. It has been a nauseating chapter from its inception, bringing human beings down to the basis of barnyard stock.

Quick On The Trigger

Now that Premier Hepburn has made all his charges against Prime Minister Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, we believe it can be fairly stated he has not made out much of a case, and Mr. King will stand just as high in public regard as before Mr. Hepburn began his barrage.

Mr. Hepburn claimed and stated openly that Mr. King was operating on a made-in-United States policy, he was willing to sacrifice Ontario in order to win favor by falling in with President Roosevelt's plan for deepening the St. Lawrence waterway. It was also charged that Ottawa was planning to secure control of the collection of succession duties. Mr. Hepburn also stated Mr. King had sought during a personal visit in his office to try and put on some pressure to force Mr. Hepburn to support the St. Lawrence scheme.

Mr. Hepburn is quick on the trigger when he decides to shoot, and when he went gunning for Mr. King he had not changed. When he made the statement that "Mr. King, with his usual cunning, has marked his communications with respect to the St. Lawrence waterways 'confidential' and therefore temporarily tied my hands on the veracity of one of us," Mr. Hepburn said something which might much better have never been said. Mr. King explained he had so marked the correspondence because there was a third party—the government of United States—mentioned and therefore international amenities dictated that such correspondence be considered confidential. That appears to be right enough. There are letters passing between business houses and between individuals every day in the week which are marked "personal" or "confidential," and there is nothing improper in such a method.

Whatever Mr. King's faults may be, they do not include saying anything behind a closed door which he would not later reveal in public utterance. The Federal Prime Minister has seen a great deal of public life and is well versed in its ways. He knows all the rules and customs better than Mr. Hepburn. And apart from all that we fail to see where the attacks directed by Mr. Hepburn against Mr. King are going to benefit the people of this province or the people of the Dominion. The whole thing commenced when Ontario made a contract recently for more Quebec power than it could handle, and it wants to sell the surplus in United States, and in entering that field the province comes into a place where it must deal with the Federal government which has the right to regulate the export of power. Plain business reasoning would suggest it is poor tactics to quarrel with the agency which has to consent to the putting through of a deal which the Ontario government desires to see consummated.

Ottawa Gets A Bill

The city of Ottawa has been presented with a bill which it will probably have to pay, and this bill is quite like others which cities receive now and then. And which they have to pay.

This particular bill is for $1,076 for witness fees and mileage expenses connected with police and High Court costs for the trial of Captain Freeman Hatfield. The Captain does not reside at Ottawa, nor was the offence for which he was tried and convicted committed in Ottawa. Hatfield comes from Parrsboro' in Nova Scotia, and he was convicted of having fraudulently collected over $70,000 by causing it to appear that the sinking of his schooner, the Gypsum Queen, was the result of being hit by a torpedo from a German submarine. That was back in 1915.

The ratepayers of Ottawa actually had nothing to do with the making of the case, nor was the offence against the city of Ottawa any more than it was against every other community in the Dominion. But the case was heard in Ottawa probably because all the records in connection with the Gypsum Queen were there.

Ottawa will protest the payment, but other cities have done the same thing. It is strange how this form of assessing a municipality for a trial from outside has survived so long. It is wrong in principle and in fact and the municipalities have had to put up with it because they have not had the power to shake it off.

Not Much Change Here

Toronto people are going to give the year 1938 quite a welcome. The police regulations have been loosened so the welcome can be longer than before. In other years regulations have been such that people who danced had to cease at 1 in the morning. That was not considered sufficient, so when the New Year comes along Toronto folk can keep on dancing until 3.30 in the morning and if they are not through then nothing will be done about it.

We read too that several of the larger places of entertainment have been sold out for the occasion. One hotel will collect $15 per couple from 1,500 people, and that means $11,250 as a starter for the evening. Another much-frequented place has reservations for 1,000 at $15 a couple. We learn too from reading of these New Year plans that some include an early morning breakfast before the people start for home. In between the lines we read it is quite possible that some of those who celebrate the coming of the New Year will require a little assistance as their sense of direction may be none too keen. But evidently there is plenty of money to pay for it all.

In other reports from Toronto we read where there are extensive plans being made to provide a bit of Christmas cheer and a Christmas dinner for some thousands of folk who have no money to pay their own way. They cannot walk forth and whack down $15 in advance for their entertainment; they will enjoy what measure of cheer and goodness comes their way and many hours before 3.30 in the morning they will have gone to bed and to sleep. So it looks as though the year 1938 were going to be welcomed much the same as other years. That is, with some people having a great deal of money to pay for their entertainment and their hilarity, while others have almost nothing at all.

The "Proclaimed" Holiday

Peterborough City Council briefly considered making the Monday after Christmas a holiday. The idea died in the suggestion stage and it is just as well that it passed out that way. There are two Saturday holidays in succession at Christmas and New Year's, and to try and insert a third would not be wise. If the holiday were generally observed it would make it hard enough for men who are working by the day and who draw no pay for holidays.

Ald. Dutton said he had noticed that holidays which are "proclaimed" are not generally observed, and by a "proclaimed" holiday is meant one which is not in the statutory class.

If the "proclaimed" holidays are not generally observed, then it must be that there are a large number of people who do not desire to observe them. They prefer to go ahead and do a day's work, and it is quite possible they take that stand because they cannot afford to take any other. And if a majority of our people are ignoring what is termed a "proclaimed" holiday then it would indicate that a majority do not sanction such holidays.

The Damage Has Been Done

An insector from the Criminal Investigation Department is to make an inquiry regarding the accident at Port Stanley where the lives of eight workers were taken due to the collapse of a coffer dam in the building of a $250.000 bridge. The men were trapped when working thirty feet below the water level. The Examiner has been informed that work of that nature is difficult enough, and that it calls for the best there is in engineering skill.

The trouble with such an investigation is that it may reveal little. It may reveal nothing at all. All the work which had been set up in the construction of the coffer dam under the protection of which the trapped men were working has been reduced to a pile of wreckage, twisted and bent stuff which can be searched probably in vain for marks of inherent weakness or for defective steps in construction.

The damage has been done and the eight lives have been taken. It may well be another of those cases where instead of having probes and investigations after the tragedy there should have been more probing and investigating and inspecting while the work was under way.

Alberta man was sent to jail for 10 minutes for not paying sales tax collections. He would hardly have time to complain of the room service before he would be out again.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Apparently the Government is anxious that the people should buy their Christmas headaches early.

Up to the present no foreign military observers have been assigned for duty to the Premier King-Premier Hepburn war.

Winston Churchill hit the centre of the target when he said that the only service Italy could render the League of Nations was to get out of it.

A shortage of paper in Japan will make the Japanese express their New Year greeting orally instead of by cards. Messages to China will mostly take the form of bombs and shells.

Hamilton magistrate is impounding the markers of reckless drivers. In that plan he seems to have hit upon the only effective way of keeping the culprits off the highways.

The most unkindest cut of all to Mr. Hepburn must have been when the Globe and Mail dug up this quotation from Kipling "If drunk with sight of power, we loose wild tongues."

562,402 Russians crossed off the names of all the candidates on the ballot paper, and no doubt the Ogpu would like a nice type-written list of the rebellious electors.

A story from Caledon tells about a wolf there eluding a party of 25 hunters. Jim Curran will probably claim the animal as an Algoma wolf that has strayed far from home.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett has paid off the mortgage of the Calgary Junior Red Cross Hospital for Crippled Children and that is the sort of Christmas gift that blesses both the receiver and the giver.

Twenty members of the newly elected Supreme Soviet in Russia may be executed. The folk who voted for them will probably be sent to Siberia and the whole thing will be in the name of liberty.

A war-chest of $500,000 is being collected by the Automobile Workers' Union to wage a campaign against the Ford Company. We imagine a lot more than that sum will be needed before the drive gets very far.

Choirs sang Christmas carols on street intersections in the Danforth district of Toronto the other night, no doubt with a wary eye upon motor traffic. Some of the driving in that city is enough to alarm the most courageous choir singer.

A statement from Mr. Bennett on the reorganization of the Conservative party is predicted. What is needed of course is machinery that can win elections and that is a tough nut, even for Mr. Bennett.

County clerk in Greensburg, Ind., is a real business man. He has been advertising marriage licenses, suggesting that 500 couples get married immediately. Such enterprise should not go unrewarded.

Reckless driving is expensive in more ways than one. Now we are told that because there have been so many traffic accidents in Ontario this year insurance rates in 1938 are likely to jump 25 or 30 per cent.

According to a story from Washington the slump has hit the C.I.O. and 200 organizers are being laid off because of the business recession. The Lewis organization seems to have the same technique as business and industry in a time of stress.

The Globe and Mail wants to know whose Confederation is it? And come to think of it, that is a timely question for Mr. Hepburn and Monsieur Duplessis to do a little pondering over. At present they are acting like two-thirds of the Three Tailors of Tooley Street.

WEE ANGUS

¶ Wee Angus has a shopping list, he holds it hard inside his fist, as he goes here and there; he hasn't very much to say, as he goes quietly on his way, mysterious is his air.

¶ But now and then his funds run low, he's slower then to come and go, and he looks worried too; for there are people on his list, he fears that some of them he's missed, and he's not nearly through.

¶ 'Tis then Wee Angus states his case, there's joy and gloom upon his face, he needs a little more; and then of course I take his word, that comes in joyous noun and verb, he hastens on his chore.

¶ I've never seen that list he made, I do not know what plans he's laid, his tongue is in his cheek; I must not pry in his affairs, nor solve the mystery of his airs, nor should I ask or seek.

¶ Wee Angus touched me just today, he said he had some bills to pay, he hardly had enough; he said that he was almost through, about three things he had to do, 'twas all for Christmas stuff.

¶ I greeted Angus with a smile, and argued but a little while, perhaps some light I'd see; what could I say to his reply, that he was starting out to buy—a Christmas gift for me.

BURGLARY has long been one of the poorest paid of professions but two recent inventions promise to reduce it to an irreducible minimum. A room may now be protected by a celenium cell apparatus which projects an infra red ray. When a burglar crosses this ray things begin to happen. Sirens sound—a warning signal lights in the police station—the doors behind him are electrified with high-voltage current—the lights are turned on—a concealed camera takes his photograph and tear gas is discharged.

The Story of Flags.

THE WHITE flag is used universally for truce; the black in early times was a symbol for piracy; the red symbolizes mutiny or revolution and the yellow is a sign of infectious disease.

Red appears in all but a few of the flags of civilized nations.

In California a patriotic audience waving American flags found that the ensigns had been made in Japan.

Prior to the revolutionary war there was no flag representing all the American colonies. Before the revolution the pine-tree flag was used by the Massachusetts colony and the rattlesnake flag by South Carolina. The flag of Rhode Island bore the design of an anchor and the flag of New York the design of a beaver.

The flag of Denmark, a red ensign bearing a white cross is undoubtedly the oldest flag in existence it having come into use about 1219.

The last great fire swept through the city a year after the Great Plague and destroyed some 13,200 houses. Samuel Peps in his famous diary writes vividly of his impressions of this fire. In the following year fire insurance was started for the first time in history.

Castor Oil.

CASTOR OIL is obtained by pressing the seeds or castor beans of the castor-oil plant which is of the genus Ricinus and is also known as palma Christi. It is believed that it was given this latter name because branches from it were placed before Christ as he rode into Jerusalem.

The castor-oil plant is native to India. Many attempts were made during the world war to grow it in the warmer sections of the United States because of the prime importance at that time of castor oil for the lubrication of airplane motors.

One of the few vegetables oils that can be dissolved in alcohol, castor oil is employed as a constituent in many cosmetic preparations as it lends itself to perfuming in an alcoholic solution.

Also yielded by the castor bean is a protein substance known as ricin, so poisonous, it is said, one grain of it is amply powerful, if properly administered, to kill a score of men. A purification process removes ricin from castor oil.

For many centuries castor oil has been used as an article of food among the Chinese people.

Castor oil serves as a better laxative than other fixed oils because it is broken down in the body to a ricinoleic acid, a substance capable of stimulating the intestines.

A common method of punishing criminals in Italy, even at the present time is to force them to drink large doses of castor oil. Some of these doses are said to exceed a pint.

An Old Story Told In Another Way

It Was Written For Children But Adults Can Read It With Profit—Learning to Give Is the Meaning of Christmas.

Written for the Examiner by E. D. Hood, of Savannah, Ga., vice-chairman of the Newspaper Boy Welfare Society of the International Circulation Manager's Association.

ONCE UPON a time there lived a little Princess whose name was Theodocia. Early one morning as Theodocia lay in her small white bed she heard the bells ringing. "Ah," said Theodocia, "I know why the bells are ringing. It is Christmas morning. I must see what Christmas has brought me."

She was so eager that she forgot to say her prayers, she forgot to call good morning to the King, her father or the Queen, her mother. In her little bare feet she ran down the marble stairs to the palace dining-room. As she passed before the door she heard rushing of water. Theodocia paused for a moment and then opened the door.

It was not yet day and the only light in the room was a light from a large pearl that hung suspended from the ceiling. "I hope my gifts are pearls," said Theodocia. And then she saw on the walls some plaques and on them were names in gold letters. There was one for the King and one for the Queen and one for every lady in the Court. Under each name was a pile of presents.

"I do not care what the others have," said Theodocia, "I want to see what I have." And then she saw her name on a plaque across the room. On the plaque was written, "For the selfish Theodocia." Under her name was a black bag. Theodocia was so angry that she stamped her foot in rage. She thought, "Perhaps there is something in the bag." But alas, the bag was locked and there was no key. On the lock was the inscription, "I am of great benefit to the one who can find the mystery."

THEODOCIA was angry and disappointed. Just then she looked in the mirror behind her and saw an angel whose robe was as white as snow and whose face was the most beautiful she had ever seen, and whose smile was as bright as the noonday sun.

"I am not afraid of you," said Theodocia. I know who you are, you are the Christmas Angel." The angel looked sadly at Theodocia and said, "Poor little Theodocia, I will help you solve the "mystery" if you will come with me."

So Theodocia, one hand in the hand of the angel and the other holding her ugly black bag, went out into the streets. And then the angel began to tell Theodocia the story of the first Christmas morning. How the shepherds heard the angels songs, how they went to see the Mother and Babe. As they went along the angel told Theodocia about the Four Wise Men who came from the far East to bring gifts to the babe.

And then the angel said to Theodocia, "Little Theodocia, do you know the meaning of Christmas?" Theodocia hung her head, because in thinking of herself she had forgotten the meaning of Christmas. "Yes, she said, it means that Christ was born." And then the bells began to chime out, "Glory be to God in the Highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

After a while the angel and Theodocia came to a little cottage. Now angels have the power to make themselves invisible. So the angel threw her cloak around Theodocia and they entered the cottage. A little weary woman sat sewing at the table, a little boy was on the floor trying to build a fire out of chips he had gathered. The only light in the room was from a candle. As the mother sewed she kept repeating, "Give us this day our daily bread."

Theodocia had never seen anyone like this. So she thought, "I will tell my father, the King, and he can do something to help them. Just then she looked down at the black bag and behold! it was slowly opening. In it she saw quantities of silver money. Theodocia took a handful and threw it out. The scene changed, the fire burned brightly and crackled on the hearth. The mother and boy were well dressed and sat at the breakfast table with plenty of food, they were offering thanks for their benefactors.

THE ANGEL then led Theodocia away and as they went the bells chimed out, "I was hungry and ye fed me, I was naked and ye gave me clothes." The angel led Theodocia to a far distant part of the city and they entered an attic room where a poor factory girl was teaching some little boys and girls. She came each morning before day to teach these children. They were reading from scraps of newspapers that they had gathered out of the trash cans. "We must study and the girls and then we may go to the city and look in the windows and maybe the King and Queen and the little Princess may pass." Theodocia's heart ached for the little children whose only pleasure was in seeing the happiness of others.

She looked down at her bag and it was wide open and filled with gold. "Ah," thought Theodocia, "This will be enough to buy my pearl necklace." As she looked the bag was slowly closing. Theodocia quickly grabbed a handful of gold and threw it. As she did, the scene changed and she was standing in a beautiful school room and a gentle refined woman was standing before a group of nicely dressed children. The children were trimming a Christmas tree. Theodocia wanted to stay but the angel led her out. As they went away the angel said, "Theodocia, do you know the meaning of Christmas?" Theodocia did not answer. The bells rang out, "It is not what we get but what we give that makes up our happiness while we live."

Then the Angel took Theodocia in her arms and they travelled over land and sea and in every land they visited there were thousands of little children who had never heard about the Christ child. "Ah," thought Theodocia, if there is anything left in my bag I will give it to these." As she looked there was only a beautiful pearl necklace. Theodocia threw it out and as she did, it broke. Wherever a pearl fell a Mission School sprang up and Theodocia could hear the thanksgiving and praises of the people. Then the angel said, "Do you know the meaning of Christmas now, little Theodocia?" Theodocia said, "Yes."

THE ANGEL took Theodocia back over land and sea to the palace. It was not yet day and the King and Queen were not yet down. As Theodocia entered the drawing room, she saw a great pile of presents under her name and on each of them was an inscription. On a beautiful bouquet of flowers was the inscription, "The prayers of the Saints." And then Theodocia saw a beautiful pearl necklace, on each pearl was an inscription such as, kindness, gentleness, friendliness, etc. On the largest pearl of all was the inscription, "Charity." And now, said Theodocia, "I know the meaning of Christmas."

Our hearts are like the black bag, when we are selfish it is closed, but when filled with love it is open. Theodocia turned to thank the Christmas Angel but she was gone. Just then the bells began to ring, "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

And so may you have a Happy Christmas, indeed.

And Now They're Wanting Night Caps

Thousands of Northerners Ready to Wear One Even if it is Made From a Shirt Tail

(From the Sault Ste. Marie Star.)

WON'T SOMEBODY along our undefended frontier of 3,500 miles consider the plight of those worthy souls.—thousands and thousands of them.—who crave a chance to acquire a nightcap made of anything from burlap to the tail of a shirt?

The callous disregard of gentlemen whose hair is scanty,—or perhaps even absent—look to this column like the crime of the century. And while this great void exists, the missionary societies and the women's circles ship tons of flannel petticoats to the heathen in hot climes or fans to the Eskimos. So it is claimed.

Talk about modern comforts and conveniences is sometimes justified, of course. But in the old days a man could buy something to ensure an untroubled night's rest by tying it under his chin. Those days are gone forever. Nowadays the bald head is driven to tying a towel around his head or sticking it in a leg of his underwear. "The advance of civilization" is only a hollow mockery to him.

It may be, of course, that somewhere along the vast stretches of our undefended frontier,—it may be on the U. S. side where the woes of mankind are specialized in,—there exists a kind heart or a factory which will deign to turn out a nightcap. Kind hearts are more than coronets as is well known, and a lot of us are waiting to get acquainted with one. Because Winter is almost here and cold pates are now indicated for the next while.

Fifty factories could make a fortune, take up the slack of unemployment and practically solve the unsolvable problem of work by getting busy as herein outlined. There are millions of us waiting for the new day. Right now this column has definite information where a nightcap could be sold or otherwise disposed of.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

O LORD GOD of hosts, who is a strong Lord like unto thee? or to thy faithfulness round about thee? Thou rulest the raging of the sea: when the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them. . . . The heavens are thine, the earth also is thine: as for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them. . . . Thou hast a mighty arm: strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand.—Psalm lxxxix, 8, 9, 11, 13.

Who hath ascended up into heaven, or descended who hath gathered the wind in his fists? who hath bound the waters in a garment? who hath established all the ends of the earth? what is his name, and what is his son's name, if thou canst tell? Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him.—Proverbs xxx, 4, 5.

Now it came to pass on a certain day, that he went into a ship with his disciples: and he said unto them, Let us go over unto the other side of the lake. And they launched forth. But as they sailed he fell asleep: and there came down a storm of wind on the lake, and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy. And they came to him, and awoke him, saying Master, master, we perish. Then he arose, and rebuked the wind and the raging of the water: and they ceased, and there was a great calm. And he said unto them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid wondered, saying one to another, what manner of man is this! for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.—Luke viii, 22-25.

THE RIGHT TO WORK.

(Detroit Free Press)

JOHN L. LEWIS says that labor believes in the right to work and that somewhere someone will have to solve the problem of how willing Americans are to be given the right to work when they want to.

Why not start solving that problem right at home?

Within the last year tens of thousands of willing Americans in Michigan, who wanted to work and for whom work was available, were denied the right to work for weeks at a time by labor organizers and organizations affiliated with the C. I. O., which Mr. Lewis created and directs.

And even Mr. Roosevelt now admits, with respect to the housing industry, that wage demands have been carried to a point that is denying the right to work to hundreds of thousands of men in the building industries in this Country.

The right to work is of no value to anyone when there is no work for him to do.

And that there is not more work for willing American hands today is due to a considerable extent to the wrenches which have been thrown into our industrial machinery by short-sighted labor leaders.

LOVE'S BAROMETER.

(Winifred Kirkland in Outlook)

A GREAT many people would like to know when they are falling in love, so that they may decide whether to stop or continue. There is a simple test; the first symptom is a tendency to confide in the absent one, and it is high time to take notice when a man discovers himself talking to a woman who isn't there.

S.S. No. 3, OTONABEE
(Examiner Correspondence.)

A full house greeted Miss Faux and her pupils of S.S. No. 3, Otonabee on Friday evening, when they presented another of their splendid concerts. A great deal of energy and enthusiasm is put into preparations and everything went off without an error. Grown-up young people who assisted in dialogues and most of whom display talent were, Misses Verna Braden, Ellen Shearer, Ruth Evans, Eleanor Evans and Messrs. Green, Holmes, Braden, G. Shearer and Neil Clark.

Splendid vocal talent has been developed in this school by the music instructor, Mr. Renaud, who unfortunately was unable to be present.

Among the children's numbers two or three were outstanding, one a lullaby sung and hummed by six little girls rocking dollies in their arms. Another fine number was a dance by a group of girls who were taught by a classmate, Davida Elmhirst. A living Christmas tree formed by girls dressed in green and white was excellent and the flag drill was prefect. Allan Borland, a senior pupil made a surprisingly good chairman. The following was the program:

Good For 11 Years

Nineteen years of carrying the mail for Uncle Sam has not dimmed Miss Frances Anderson's ardor, especially around Christmas time, for she gets as much kick out of toting that heavy mail bag around her Duluth, Minn., route as ever. In fact she wants 11 more years in the service before she retires—then she's going to take up farming. At one time she was the only woman in the country with a regular mail route.

TURKEY AT GOBART WEIGHS 35 POUNDS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 23.—As he stepped from the Hastings county jail presumbaly a free man after serving a month on a charge of theft, Stephen Woods, a resident of Northbrook, was not only surprised but disappointed when he was placed under arrest on a charge of assaulting a police officer.

Woods was arrested by Provincial Police on a warrant issued by Constable J. C. Hayes, Tweed, charging him with assaulting a police officer in the person of J. C. Hayes while in the pursuit of his duties. The alleged crime was committed while Chief Hayes was placing Woods under arrest on the original charge of theft a month ago at his home, following the theft of a robe from a parked automobile in Tweed. Woods pleaded guilty to the charge and was subsequently sentenced to serve one month.

The first fire alarm of any proportion occurred at 1.50 a.m. Tuesday morning, when the fire brigade was aroused to quell a fire which destroyed the barn of Ray Baldwin. It appears that Baldwin had been keeping a stove alight in the henhouse section of the building, and which became overheated. The firemen were unable to save the building but succeeded in preventing the spread of the fire to neighbouring residences.

The largest turkey gobbler of the district was raised by Mr. Harold Varty at Gobart, and weighed thirty-five pounds live weight. It was but one member of a fine flock of twenty-nine birds all of which will meet the usual late fate of turkeys at this time of the year.

Mr. Reg. Tite, while in the employ of Henry Lloyd in the woods north of Bambockburn, suffered a broken shoulder when he dislodged a blocked tree which slipped. He was assisted to Madoc, where the fracture was reduced by Dr. M. B. George.

AUTO ON BRIDGE OFFICER MISSING

OTTAWA, Dec. 23.—(CP)— Concern was felt last night over the whereabouts of Lieut. Joseph M. Whyte of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, missing since his car was found abandoned on the Interprovincial bridge spanning the Ottawa river between Hull, Que., and the capital.

Investigations disclosed he had spent the week-end at his former home in Kingston, Ont., and had returned to Ottawa Monday. Since that time he has been missing.

A note addressed to a young woman friend was found in the Lieutenant's apartment but neither its contents nor the name of the person to whom it was addressed was disclosed.

Lieut. Whyte's father came here from Kingston and the car was turned over to him.

Castor Bean Fence For Grain May Foil "Hoppers"

Tests Show Insect Plague Has Genuine Relish For Death-Dealing Foliage

ATCHISON, Kas., Dec. 23 (CP).—An accidental discovery last summer—that grasshoppers have an insatiable appetite for death-dealing castor bean foliage and stalks—holds promise of giving farmers a new weapon in their fight against the pest.

Dr. L. M. Christensen of the Chemical Foundation of Kansas, with caution common to scientists, said today he saw thousands of grasshoppers go to their deaths because they feated on vegetation of the castor bean.

Strange too, Dr. Christensen observed, was the absence of chinch bugs and birds in the immediate vicinity of the castor bean plants, a situation, which, he said, no explanation can be offered at this time.

In recent years the government and midwestern farmers have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars seeking by use of poison bait to eradicate the 'hopper hordes, which the department of agriculture estimated did crop damage of $90,131,000 in 1936.

Now it appears possible a farmer may protect his crops by merely planting a barrier of castor beans around his fields.

COLD STORAGE FOR BRAZIL

Brazil's fruit exports are increasing to such an extent that plants for the refrigeration of fruit are being built at Santos and Rio de Janeiro.

Father And Son Held In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Dec. 23—Harvey and John Windover, father and son, wanted in nearby towns for passing worthless cheques and who were captured here through the alertness of Vic. Holdaway, a newspaper correspondent, were remanded in Police Court Wednesday until next Tuesday.

They were caught Tuesday night after Holdaway, who had acquired a description of the men, noticed a man on the street he suspected of one of the wanted pair.

He notified Provincial Constable David Adair and after a long search through stores and hotels and an automobile chase, the two men were arrested.

Young 3-Year-Old's Memory Amazes Newspapermen

Glibly Tells Of World Affairs With Astonishing Mastery Of Hard Words

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 23—(CP)—Jean Kathleen Demers, three-year-old golden-haired youngster with a memory and ability to pronounce long words almost unique in one so young, was visiting in Sydney to-day—and Sydney was properly impressed.

Born in Pictou, N.S., July 20, 1934, the little girl demonstrated her ability in a newspaper office here last night. She made her debut on a Sydney radio program a short time later.

Three years old—and she glibly told her audience that Haile Selassie was the former emperor of a country named Abyssinia, which had been conquered by a dictator named Mussolini.

Three years old—and she knew that a man named Mackenzie King was Prime Minister of Canada; that a Scotsman, Angus L. Macdonald, was Premier of Nova Scotia; that Anthony Eden played no small part in British foreign policy.

Unaffected and lovable, Jean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Demers of Truscadie, Antigonish County, N.S., her father, an automobile mechanic, is a native of Montreal, while her mother was born at Melrose, Mass. They came to Nova Scotia 12 years ago from Michigan.

Knows Shanghai Bad Place

Three years old—and she knew the name of the capital of China, and that Shanghai was a mighty bad place in which to live right now, because of some people called Japanese.

Three years old—but she could name more rivers of the world than at least one of the newspapermen who heard her. She knew that the name "Father of Waters" had been given by the Indians to a river named Mississippi, that flowed through the central part of a country called the United States. She knew, that the Yangtze River was an important waterway of China.

Of course, it's all a matter of memory, for she has been carefully coached by her mother, and information can be given by her only if the right questions are asked. But what amazed those who heard her was her unfailing ability to supply the right answer to questions, and to pronounce difficult words clearly and without hesitation. She sings and dances, too.

Her ambition? According to her town account, it is to become "a movie star in Hollywood, but it's going cost my Daddy a lot of money to take me there."

Canadian Athletes On The High Seas

VICTORIA, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—Seventy-eight Canadian athletes travelled the high seas to-day, bound for Australia and British Empire Games at Sydney next February.

The Canadian team, selected from survivors of recent trials throughout the Dominion, started on their search for Empire laurels 8 hours behind schedule. They sailed yesterday on the Trans-Pacific liner Aorangi.

The athletes were tucked away in their cabins when the big green and white liner left here after a brief stop and headed out across the Pacific.

Next stop is Honolulu, then Suva, Fiji Islands, and Auckland, N.Z., before the liner steams into Sydney Harbor 22 days after leaving Vancouver.

FIND RARE PAINTING

FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN, Germany, Dec. 23.—(CP-Havas).—Discovery of a lost painting by Giorgione, 15th century Venetian master, was claimed here to-day.

Purchased several months ago by a museum here as the work of an unidentified painter of the 16th century, the painting was cleaned and submitted to experts, who said it unquestionably dates from Giorgione's early period.

LOG CABIN GOES FOR DREAM HOME

ERSKINE, Alta., Dec. 23 (CP).—Mr. and Mrs. Lester V. Lohr of this district 80 miles south of Edmonton pioneered in a log cabin but they will spend this Christmas in a $10,000 home, their "dream house" paid for out of the profits of farming.

It is one of the most modern farm homes in Alberta, even supplying a shower bath for the hired help. It also has a billiard room and a "den for the master," complete with gun shelves.

"There is no need for other people to envy us," said 49-year-old Lohr as, with his 39-year-old wife, he told the story of the dream house, "what we have done, anyone else can do."

"The farm has always been a paying proposition," he said. Drought hit his farm only one year, in 1924, and no crop was harvested.

Bachelor of science, University of Manitoba, Mr. Lohr has been farming "on his own" since the Great War. Today he has 1,440 acres.

PENSIONS FOR POETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 — (AP). — Pensions for poets were urged to-day by Edgar Lee Masters, who accused the United States of treating its "great literary minds and artists like bootblacks."

The 66-year-old author of "Spoon River Anthology, said poets in this country "hardly made postage."

"The Government must provide pensions," he insisted. "I don't see any other way."

Dickens' Christmas Carol

ADAPTED BY C. D. VORMELKER

Illustrated by Alfred J. Buescher
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

EVERYONE FORGOT SCROOGE, WHEN FRED STARTED TO PLAY THE PIANO AND HIS NIECE SAT DOWN AT HER HARP, WHILE TOPPER GROWLED AWAY IN HIS DEEP BASS. SCROOGE SOFTENED AND THOUGHT HE MIGHT HAVE CULTIVATED A FEW KINDNESSES HAD HE HEARD MUSIC MORE OFTEN.

AFTER THE MUSIC THEY PLAYED BLINDMAN'S BUFF AND TOPPER TUMBLED OVER ALL THE CHAIRS, BUMPED AGAINST THE PIANO AND FINALLY CORNERED FRED'S PLUMP SISTER.

THE SPIRIT'S TIME WAS FLEETING. THOUGH SCROOGE BEGGED TO STAY, THE GHOST WHISKED HIM AWAY, TO FOREIGN LANDS, TO HOMES OF THE POOR AND THE RICH, TO ALMSHOUSES, JAILS AND THE BEDS OF THE SICK. WHERE MAN HAD NOT BARRED THE SPIRIT OUT, HE LEFT HIS BLESSINGS AND TAUGHT SCROOGE HIS PRECEPTS.

MOMENTARILY THE GHOST LOOKED OLDER. FROM HIS ROBE HE DREW FORTH TWO MISERABLE CHILDREN. "SPIRIT, ARE THEY YOURS?" ASKED SCROOGE APPALLED. "THEY ARE MAN'S," SAID THE SPIRIT. "THE BOY IS IGNORANCE, THE GIRL IS WANT. BEWARE OF THEM BOTH," AND WITH THESE WORDS HE DISAPPEARED.

Fast Melting Rocky Glaciers To End Mighty Rivers

See Saskatchewan, Bow Just Rivulets In 50 Years—Partly To Blame For Drought

TORONTO, Dec. 23—(CP)—Recession of glaciers in the Rocky Mountains has been partly responsible for drought conditions in Western Canada, Dan McCowan, widely known Canadian naturalist, author and lecturer, believes.

"Glaciers have been receding and shrinking so steadily, one wonders what rivers like the Saskatchewan and Bow will be like 50 years from now," he said in an interview here. "If the glaciers keep receding in the next 50 years as they have in the last half-century, the rivers will be nothing more than rivulets."

Most of the prairie rivers depended on the Rocky Mountains for their water supply—and glaciers were the greatest reservoirs of the mountains. Changed conditions, however, were causing the glaciers to melt more rapidly and to lose the supply of snow and moisture from which they grew.

As a result, many of the ice-rivers have been disappearing. The Yoho Valley glacier had receded some 3,000 feet in the last 30 years. The great glacier of Illecillewaet, which once swept down through its valley like a great river, had almost lost itself in the hills above the valley.

One Salvation.

There was one salvation for the prairie waterways if the glaciers continued to disappear, he believed, and that was reforestation. Trees that were cut down should be replaced and more trees than now existed should be planted on the mountain slopes.

Forests would prevent soil erosion and would keep up moisture in the ground as the icy fields once did. When thaws came, the moisture would remain on mountain slopes long enough to supply rivers in the proper way. Then, too, there should be enough moisture available for evaporation to take place and clouds to form properly.

Conversely, Mr. McCowan has a theory that forest fires are one cause of glaciers melting more swiftly than they once did. Smoke, lying above a glacial area like a blanket, prevented night frosts from freezing the ice fields after the day thaw. Thus, during forest fire periods, glaciers were in a continuous state of thaw instead of alternately freezing and melting during the night and day.

LIMB SMASHER HEADS RUM RING

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 — (AP). — Swash-buckling rum barons of the prohibition era were recalled in Federal Court yesterday when fifty-six persons were indicted on charges of operating a bootlegging syndicate which in three years grossed $15,000,000.

Named as head of the organization, which was described by Assistant United States Attorney W. Mahlon Dickerson as "by far the largest uncovered since repeal," was Frank Giordano, a 327-pound individual known as "Frankie the Bull."

"The Bull" held his men in line, Federal agents said, by sending them anonymous cards threatening them with mayhem if they showed a tendency to default. The cards read: "I break arms for $10; I break legs for $50. Pay up or else!"

Dickerson said the mob was responsible for at least two killings in the three years that it flooded bars and restaurants in the Metropolitan New York area with $15,000,000 worth of bootleg whiskey. This figure, he said, represented the wholesale price. He also said the Government lost $1,800,000 in taxes.

Three New York City policemen and a former inspector of the Alcohol Tax Unite were among those indicted. Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine immediately summoned the policemen to headquarters, stripped them of their shields and pistols, and turned them over to Federal agents.

BIG AND BIGGER PIKE

VULVAN, Alta., Dec. 23—(CP).—Three fishermen reported they hooked a 19½ pound pike at Lake MacGregor, near here. Just as they were hauling it in the pike was swallowed by a "big fellow" which was caught later.

The larger fish weighed 29½ pounds and was three feet 11 inches in length. George Munro, one of the fishermen, has a picture to prove it all.

JUDGE UNTANGLES 'MIXED' MARRIAGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 23—(CP)—Mr. Justice Alfred Forest in superior court yesterday annulled marriage of Blanche Gauthier of Montreal and Bele Orlov, alias Vasile Oshipniak, because he found there had been:

Misrepresentations as to religion and identity;

An attempt to evade the laws of Quebec province, in contravention to canon law;

No banns published;

A ceremony performed by a minister not a British subject;

The two met in Montreal and were married at Sudbury, Ont., Aug. 7, 1934.

Evidence showed Miss Gauthier spoke only French, and Orlov, a Russian, spoke no French, and English very poorly. Orlov told the girl he was a Roman Catholic but in reality he was a Ruthenian Catholic, according to evidence.

The ceremony was performed by a minister of the Greek Orthodox Church who was not a British subject. No banns were published and the authority was a license obtained from civil authorities.

The woman returned to Montreal with her husband later and found his proper name and his real religious belief were other than those he represented them to be, she told the court.

The judge ordered a copy of the judgment inscribed in the Ruthenian Catholic church registers at Sudbury.

Roosevelt To Bid For Confidence

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP).—United States Government advisers said today President Roosevelt would make an aggressive bid for public confidence in his January message to Congress, based on the contention the business recession is largely psychological.

They said the President would insist on his legislative program, but would propose no new "reforms." The message, they forecast, would contain a broad offer of co-operation with legitimate business, but no retreat from present regulations.

Mr. Roosevelt laid the groundwork for this approach at his press conference yesterday by asserting that a psychology of fear was being fostered by a large percentage of newspapers and a small minority of public utilities.

Confident Of China's Success Tom Long Returns From Canton

About Two Per Cent. Of Inmates Are Estimated In Jail By Own Request

So confident are they of their country's ability to oust the invaders that Chinese in Canton are offering 3 to 1 odds that Japanese troops will be driven out of China within the next year, So declared Tom Long, Peterborough Chinese who returned to this city on Wednesday after a 17-months visit in his homeland.

His holiday was spent in the south of China far removed from the centre of fighting, but Japanese bombing planes were a daily sight over his home a few miles north of Canton, Long Declared. He said he had watched bombs drop in Canton and blow up a railway round-house, killing ten and wounding twenty. Every day he had heard a noise like thunder as bombs dropped on the city, killing scores on the crowded streets. Once he saw a Japanese plane, crippled by anti-aircraft guns, crash to the ground. Air raids have destroyed considerable property, and residents are expecting hand to hand fighting in the near future, he said.

Food is scarce in many parts of the country, thousands are starving in northern China, but Canton is well supplied, he related. He said crops had been good in the south last year and that the people were not in great want. Greatest need of the country as a whole he deemed to be ammunition and guns.

Citizens Confident

In spite of all Japanese attacks, the citizens of Canton at least, remain unafraid and are confident of their country's eventual victory, he maintained. Conscription went into effect for all men between ages of 18 and 35 years, just a few days before he left China. All are going to battle willingly, he asserted. He said that the man in the street is convinced of the justice of his country's cause and there are no "slackers" or conscientious objectors there. "My country is united for the first time in thousands of years," he said proudly.

He claimed China will never become Communistic unless driven to it as a last resort. For years the "solid" citizens of the land have been fighting against the spread of Communism and have been determined to stamp it out, he declared.

Urges Sanctions

He urged application of sanctions by western countries against the aggressor nation, Japan. He had found Canadians as a whole bitterly opposed to the invasion "but your manufacturers are nevertheless supplying Japan with 90 per cent of her scrap iron with which to equip herself for the struggle."

If Japan should conquer China, within two years she will have launched a similar war against Russia and eventually western civilization will topple, Long believed. Tom Long came to Canada, which he prefers to his native south China, 26 years ago. He has a brother in Peterborough and another in the United States. Several cousins are fighting in the Chinese army.

Spinners of Japan will buy 20,000,000 pounds of wool raised in North China.

Sun Life Staff Has Christmas Party

The office staff and the city of Peterborough representatives of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada held their annual Christmas gathering last evening.

It has been the custom for many years to have an annual gathering at this time in order that the members of the staff may give expression to their feelings of good-will, fellowship and loyalty. It has always been a happy family gathering and this year was no exception.

The committee in charge arranged for a bowling tournament at the Y.M.C.A., and a great deal of friendly rivalry was exhibited in this contest. The members of the staff were divided into a number of teams and the team captained by Miss Irene Howarth was successful in winning the honors. The team in charge of Miss Phyllis Coleman took second place. At the close of the bowling tournament the staff met at Hooper's Palm Room for a sumptuous Christmas dinner. The members of the winning team, composed of Miss Irene Howarth, D. T. Diplock, Lloyd Bath and Ken. Weldon, were presented with prizes. There were also prizes for blind scores which went to Miss Eleanor Reid and J. E. Smith. The high score of the evening was obtained by J. E. Smith. There were also some other very creditable scores and some not so good.

The remainder of the evening was given over to short speeches of jest and banter, which brought to a close another very pleasant gathering of the Sun Life staff of the Peterborough office.

WILLIAM H. FAIR DIES IN MIDLAND

MIDLAND, Dec. 23—William H. Fair, one of Midland's best-known citizens, died in St. Andrew's Hospital Tuesday in his 75th year following a brief illness.

Mr. Fair was born in Sunderland, where, at the age of 18, he started railroading as a brakeman. He helped construct the Belleville to Midland Grand Trunk line, and at the age of 20 was a conductor.

He married Mary Hetherman at Lindsay in 1890 and made his home in Midland until 1900, when he moved to Madoc for nine years. Returning to Midland in 1909, he had resided here ever since. He was a popular conductor for 52 years, retiring from the C. N. R. four years ago. He was a member of the Order of Railway Conductors and a life member of Lindsay Masonic Lodge. Mrs. Fair predeceased him in 1929. Surviving are four sons, Norman B. A., of Ottawa; A. E. Harold and Gerald, of St. Catharines, and W. J. Arthur, of Peterborough, and four brothers.

LARGE FAMILIES SEND THANKS FOR WESTERN RELIEF

Acknowledgments of vegetables and other foodstuffs sent to the western provinces are still being received by people of this district who contributed to the car loads that were made up in Peterborough. Mrs. R. Shillingford of Fleming, Sask., writing to W. Devlin, R.R. 7 Peterborough, refers gratefully to the carrots, turnips and potatoes she received. "It is nice to think some one in the Dominion can have gardens. I am a widow with eight children, four at home. The weather is cold here now. Thank you and all concerned for the relief car."

Mrs. H. McGinnis, 110 Antrim Street, received a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Fred Haberstock of Churchbridge, Sask. On December 6 she found a note with a package of wheat flakes. "It is funny we didn't discover it sooner as we received the groceries three weeks ago. We also received a box with twelve boxes of Quaker oat meal sent by some other person. I wish I knew their name. "Other food mentioned was a bag of salt, package of beans, six packages of Muffets, two glasses of jelly, one tin of marmalade, one small tin of syrup, a letter sealer of tea, one bag of onions and another bag of beans." This was all in one box. Our minister saved it for us. The day the car load had arrived my husband received seven bags of potatoes, two bags of carrots and one of beets. We are a family with eight children, five girls ranging from 14 to 1 year, five girls and three boys. My husband is 35 and I am 32. I am in poor health, we live on a farm, but we don't farm. My husband works wherever he can get work. Last summer this section was hit hard by the drought, and farmers abandoned their hired help. He got a job for a month on the government highway. Since then he has been able only to chop bushes clearing roads for the relief we get $12 a month only during the winter. We have gone through some very hard times since the depression and drought, but through the kind hearted people of Ontario we won't have to suffer so much this winter. At least we have some vegetables and potatoes. I wish we could thank you and everybody personally for the things we were lucky to get. God bless you and give it back to you one hundredfold."

OUT FOR ALDERMAN

James Lewis, Hunter street barber was mentioned today as a sure starter in the aldermanic contest.

LIKELY TO RUN

Both Herb Bradburn and Herb McCannan stated today that they had been aproached to run for the council and that they had practically decided to allow their names to stand.

WILL BE UNCERTAIN

It is obvious that the composition of the field in the two divisions of the aldermanic contest will not be known until 9 o'clock Friday night when the period for qualification ends. A large number of candidates will be nominated tonight for both the two-year and the one-year terms and then will decide tomorrow as to which class to qualify in.

ILLEGAL FISHING

Several raids made by Fish and Game Overseers Lyons and Windsor on poachers at Rice Lake during the past week have been successful, the officers taking in charge two offenders on one occasion and one on another, and seizing a half bag of pickerel, fishing apparatus and a shotgun. The illegal fishers were operating through holes in the ice when the officers, wearing skates, swooped down on them.

RUNIONS DINNER DETAILS

The dinner to Arthur D. Runions which is being planned by the junior farmers of the county will be held in the Sunday School room of Murray Street Baptist Church Thursday, December 30 at 6.30 p.m. This was the largest place of assembly the young farmers could find. They will have accommodation for 300 persons, and as they are taking at least half of it for themselves it is likely that the tickets will be soon snapped up.

PRIZE WINNERS.

At the annual Christmas tree concert held by Peterborough Workers' and Unemployed Association on Wednesday evening candy, nuts and oranges were distributed to the large number of children present. Prize winners of the draw were announced as follows: 1, Violet Steinkrauss, 414 London street; 2, Miss Baird, 212½ Charlotte street; 3, S. Foster, City Fire Department. Mrs. J. Post, social convenor, was presented with a leather shopping bag and a box of chocolates by the members of the orchestra, for her untiring efforts in helping to make the event the success it was. A feature of the program was a manger tableau staged by a group of children. Others who assisted in the success of the evening, included: Charles Lambert, president; Mrs. J. Teneycke, pianist; and Mrs. L. Wagar.

MERCURY DIVES.

Between 9 o'clock Wednesday night and 6.30 o'clock Thursday morning the thermometer nosedived from 34 to 20, a drop of 14 degrees during the night. A strong wind made the drop seem even greater than that.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Joseph Clapper appeared on remand before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning on a charge of breaking and entering by night the storehouse of Harry Jopling situated at 284 Murray street. Represented by W. B. Gordon the accused elected summary trial and pleaded "not guilty." On application of the Crown Clapper was remanded, until December 30. Bail was set in the sum of $3,000.

GETTING TOYS READY.

A staff of men will commence an all-night job of wrapping toys at the Fire Department early this evening as soon as the display is closed to public view. During the hours which intervene before the despatch of the first delivery truck on its city rounds Friday morning, the toy department presents one of the busiest scenes in town. Citizens have responded generously with the loan of trucks for the deliveries and firemen expect to have the entire assortment of 1,500 pieces at their proper destinations by evening.

WINNERS OF HOCKEY DRAW.

The Peterborough Hockey Club draw for merchandising-cash value prizes was made by Mayor-elect James Hamilton on Wednesday evening at the Capitol Theatre. The $50 prize, No. 5061, was J. R. Marshall, 580 Weller Street. Four $25-prizes were won by: Mrs. R. H. Gray, 611 Walkerfield Avenue, No. 4761; R. Feeley, 207 Park Street, No. 3042. C. J. Hartman, 340 George Street, No. 1821; and F. C. Miller, 704 George Street, No. 2991.

MORE OLD COINS.

W. J. Conway, 226 Edinburgh Street, has in his possession a number of interesting coins of ancient dates, most of which had been handed down from his great-grandfather, William Conway, who was a veteran of the Battle of Waterloo. Among the collection there is a George III. coin of 1806; a bank token of halfpenny value issued by the Bank of Upper Canada, 1852; penny token of Nova Scotia, 1840; one bearing the date 1815, halfpenny issued by Starr & Shannon, Halifax, and another halfpenny token of 1812. Most of the coins are in a good state of preservation, although there has been considerable wear on some of them, but the date and inscription can be read with the aid of a glass.

FURTHER ADJOURNED

The inquest into the death on November 21 last of Gertrude Hunt was further adjourned by Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young on Wednesday night. The hearing will be resumed on January 5 by which time it was expected a report awaited from Toronto will be received to complete the evidence for the jury's consideration.

OFF THE FIRE RECORD

A small building on adjoining property recently acquired by the Canadian General Electric Company went up in a puff of smoke this morning. No fire bell sounded, nor did any of Chief Gimbsett's apparatus rumble down to the blaze in the chill wind. A wrecking crew who had torn down the house and shed, brick from brick, and beam from beam, apparently had purposely left this structure beyond the barn for other ends as executives, or some persons in the company's employ, might decide. Built on lines that would have received the approval of Chick Sales its capacity could not be accurately estimated from the street. It might have been a single or possibly a two-holer. At any rate a couple of men sprayed a can of gasoline over it, followed by a match, and flames flared up in the manner of a current illustration in Esquire. They stood by for a while gazing on their job which at least could not be held against them as arson.

OBITUARY

The death occurred in Toronto on Wednesday of Catharine E. Potter, the beloved wife of the late Seth Potter, 39 Rainsford Road, and mother of Frederick S. Potter, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Toronto. Almost 3 Years Without Accident

Management and workers of the Western Clock Company celebrated to-day the approach of the plant to a new mile post in its industrial safety record. Almost three years have passed without a single lost time accident in the company.

The total of work hours without a lost time accident was reckoned as 2,758,795 on December 16, an announcement revealed to-day. The announcement stated: "Westclox holds an enviable position in its safety record. The suffering which has been prevented and the costs which have been saved due to our own care in the factory are multiplied when the same careful practices are followed at home and on the highway. We have run almost three years without a single lost time accident."

CHRISTMAS SUPPER IS HELD BY CLUB

The Friday Night Club held its weekly meeting Wednesday evening, so it would not conflict with any Christmas Eve events. It was the annual Christmas supper and proved to be one of the liveliest meetings held in a long time. The Supper consisted of chicken and turkey which were donated by H. L. Garner. With Bob Maybee at the piano Don Kennedy sang a solo, "I Love Life" which met with the hearty approval of all present. A declaration of purpose was presented to the Club by Jack Richardson on behalf of the past presidents. This is to take the place of the one that was lost during building alterations.

A short skit was presented by George Hall, Alec Runnett, Don Diplock, John McCullough and Allen Park, assisted by Stan Northrop at the piano. An orchestra composed of Stan Northrop, George Broadley bass fiddle, and Don Kennedy, S. Cauley, Jerry Duffus, Don Ross, Bob Maybee, and Andy Rutter assisting (?) with combs, and horns, etc., was a howling success. An impromptu grand march was led around the room by Charlie Shaw.

The girls, who throughout the year have kindly given their services as waitresses, were presented with chocolates, by the club in appreciation of their work. The group consisting of Misses Anna McKenzie, Marg. Lilloo, Mary McPherson, Marg Lundy, Doreen Elliott, Florence Trebilcock, Alicia Langley, "Bink" Cruthers, Eileen Schoales and Olga Westbye.

Charlie Shaw gave a very inspiring talk on the ideals and standing of the club, and advised the boys to live up to and practice the Declaration of Purpose that was presented to the club. The meeting then closed with the reading of the creed.

TWO CONSTABLES ARE DISMISSED FROM THE FORCE

"For conduct unbecoming to police officers," Constables John H. Deanard and Joseph Wheeler were dismissed by an order of the Police Commission Wednesday night.

The decision followed an investigation that has continued through four meetings of the Commission from which newspaper representatives were excluded "in the interest of the discipline of the police force."

Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman of the Commission, had previously announced his policy in this matter of avoiding publicity of the evidence on which the cause for the dismissal of the two constables was declared last night to have been substantiated. His honor said it was agreed that a statement would be issued to the press. It was relayed to the Examiner by City Clerk Armstrong, as secretary of the Commission as follows — "It is not in the interests of the municipality that Constables Wheeler and Deanard be retained on the police force."

Asked whether they had been dismissed for breaches of discipline, Judge Smoke said: "No, it would be more correct to state that they were dismissed for conduct unbecoming to police officers."

In years of service, John Deannard was the veteran member of Chief Newnall's department. He joined the force on March 15, 1914. Joseph Wheeler, who was a member of the famous Goldstream Guards during the war was first engaged as a local [illegible] the on August 5, 1922. He was represented at the enquiry last night by G. N. Gordon, K.C., and six witnesses were called in his behalf. Deannard was not represented by counsel.

Judge Smoke said the appointment of successors to the two constables would likely be considered at the regular meeting of the Commission on Wednesday, December 29.

It was reported that Judge Smoke and Mayor Macdonald were the only members of the Commission present at last night's session. Magistrate O. A. Langley arrived a few minutes after 7 o'clock, but left the city hall shortly afterward.

Mayor Macdonald and Judge Smoke had preceded the Magistrate by a few minutes in their arrivals. They were followed shortly afterward by Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Gordon. Mr. Deannard was last of the principals.

The Commissioners occupied the Mayor's office on the second floor of the city hall between the new committee room and the council chamber.

NO GARBAGE COLLECTION

Citizens are advised that there will be no garbage collection on Saturday, owing to it being Christmas Day.

S. R. ARMSTRONG, City Clerk.

Trinity W.M.S. Elects Officers.

The December meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held in the Church parlor on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. S. D. Carver presiding.

The Rev. G. S. Easton led in prayer and the Magnificat was read responsively. The Christmas story was the Bible reading, given by Miss Carver. Reports were heard from the various secretaries. Mrs. M. Moran, Strangers' secretary, reported 196 calls made during the year; Mrs. J. Kimberley, Supply secretary, reported 3 bales of clothing valued at approximately $150 sent to different parts of the West.

The report of the Nominating Committee was presented by Mrs. J. Kennett, and the Rev. Mr. Easton presided for the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. A. M. Morrison; president, Mrs. S. D. Carver; 1st vice-president, Mrs. G. S. Easton; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. A. B. Cunningham; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. A. Bookhout; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. The Rev. E. W. A solo, "Away in a Manger," was sung by little Gwen Martin, a young member of the Mission Band. She was accompanied by her elder sister, Evelyn.

One of the jolliest and most colorful parties of the week was held in the gymnasium at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday afternoon, when the gym classes enjoyed their annual Christmas party.

The program was delightful and charmingly arranged. Around the base of a huge tree, that was covered with a multitude of gaily colored parcels, and pretty decorations, a dozen "dolls" came to life, and performed for the amusement and delight of their large audience. Dutch dolls (a little stiff, with their jointed limbs) did a waltz clog; Mickey and Minnie Mouse tap-danced in a novel way of their own; Christmas roses and Christmas icicles did a ballet dance, and a Scotch doll danced the Highland Fling with grace and agility. The parts were taken by: Wenda Jaquith, Joan Foster, Caroline McCabe, and Helen Lyons as Dutch dolls; Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Mrs. K. Beatty and Hazel Tye; ballet, Iris Forbes, Beverly Hughes (roses), Joan Reid, Ann Boyle (icicles); Highland Fling, Jean Millard.

Preceding the singing of Christmas carols by all the children, the Three Wise Men entered, dressed in Eastern garb, and pointed to the Star on the top of the tree. A Christmas story was told by Mrs. F. Craig in a charming manner that held a most interested audience.

Santa (who had been assisted in coming by Chris. Graham), appeared to distribute the parcels, assisted by members of the Physical Committee, and later handed out oranges from an enormous bag, and candy canes.

Members of the Saturday afternoon clubs were guests of the Senior Gym Girls, who provided the parcels for the tree, with a number of other generous citizens. Mrs. E. Foster presided at the piano during the program, which was arranged by Miss Caroline Littlefield.

Christmas Party Residents of Anson House.

The annual Christmas celebration for the residents of Anson House was a most pleasant affair of Wednesday afternoon, attended by a large number of friends and members of the Board.

A gay holly wreath and lighted electric candle on the front door greeted the visitors, and inside were charming decorations carried out in red and green, with a beautifully decorated and laden tree in the living room. Here, the residents were seated to enjoy a splendid program provided by members of the C.G.I.T. of St. Andrew's Church.

Mrs. F. M. Dela Fosse, president of the Board, welcomed the guests, and announced the various numbers. The story of Dickens' Christmas Carol was told by the Rev. E. W. Young to an interested and attentive audience. Christmas carols were sung by the C.G.I.T. girls under the direction of Miss Isabel Weddel, in the absence of Miss Eleanor Stacey. Recitations were given by Miss Eileen Bellon and delightful piano selections by Miss Barbara Ackerman.

Among the guests were Mayor George A. Macdonald and Mrs. Macdonald. In characteristic manner, the Mayor spoke sincere words of greeting to all. The singing of Adeste Fideles and the National Anthem closed the program.

Coffee was served in the Boardroom, where a cheery grate fire was burning and where the table was most attractively arranged with a lace cloth, a central cluster of poinsettias and red candles glowing in crystal holders. Mrs. E. E. Harvey presided, and was assisted in serving by Miss L. Davidson, Miss A. Wood, Miss Helen Munroe, Miss Mary Elliott, Miss Mary Mulholland and Miss Barbara Ackerman.

August-Neiman.

The marriage of Ada Neiman, daughter of Mrs. A. Neiman and the late Mr. Neiman of 209 Rutherford avenue, to Nat August, was solemnized in Brooklyn, New York, recently. The Rev. Irael Uppin officiated, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. H. Narvinet, a cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a becoming light blue gown, and matching hat and accessories. Her bouquet was of orchids and lily-of-the-valley.

A reception followed the ceremony, Mrs. Neiman, who received the guests with the bridal party, was gowned in black satin, with black accessories, and wore a corsage of American Beauty roses. Receiving also was the groom's sister, wearing black satin also. Mrs. Limel, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. (Dr.) Kramer, were among the guests.

The bride and groom left later to spend their honeymoon in Philadelphia, and will make their home in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Campbell-Gilroy.

COE HILL, Dec. 23.—A quiet wedding was solemnized in the United Church Parsonage of Coe Hill, on Wednesday evening, December 15, of Leo James Campbell to Lenora Gilroy, by the Rev David G. Gault. The bride was attended by Miss Marjorie O'Brien; the groom by his brother, Andrew Campbell.

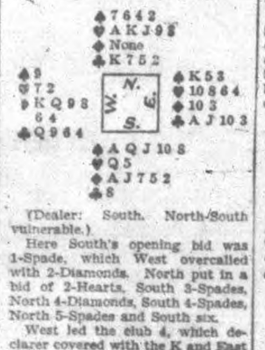
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WASTING GOOD CARDS

THERE ARE players who get a kick out of overtaking one of their own honors with another. Some have a tendency to do that upon every possible occasion, even though sometimes it turns out that they could not afford the extravagance. They may find to their chagrin that the suit does not break as they hoped and therefore a defender is enabled to win a trick with a dinky little 9 or 10-spot.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Here South's opening bid was 1-Spade, which West overcalled with 2-Diamonds. North put in a bid of 2-Hearts, South 3-Spades, North 4-Diamonds, South 4-Spades, North 5-Spades and South six.

West led the club 4, which declarer covered with the K and East won with the A. Figuring he had no better return, East returned another club, which South ruffed with the spade 8. Placing an extremely long diamond suit with West to account for his overcall without even the club A, declarer feared entering dummy via diamond ruffs, so played the heart Q and overtook. The spade finesse was successful and another spade finesse tried. The remaining outstanding trump was drawn and a diamond ruffed to cash the remaining hearts. However, as the suit was not evenly divided, the declarer was unable to make his contract.

It should have been apparent to South from the start that if he decided to use hearts as entries to dummy he would block himself and that the diamond ruffs were more logical even though there was the danger of an overruff.

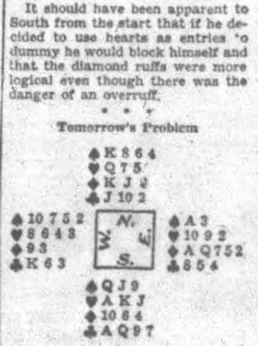
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What defense by East sets South's 3-No Trumps contract?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, December 24.

According to certain adverse configurations on this day, it is likely employment and commonplace matters may have a setback or impediment. But there are excellent auguries for finances, gain, expanding influences and benefits through elders, persons of importance and friendly co-operation. Much pleasure and festivity is noted, with romance and adventure at high tension.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of expansion and progress, with finances stimulated and business advanced through elders, important contacts with large interests and through personal popularity and good fellowship. However, there may be obstacles and delays to contend with resolutely and hopefully.

A child born on this day may be capable, studious and ambitious, but may have obstacles and frustrations to combat in life. Its personal popularity and kindly and friendly nature will definitely assist in this effort.

Rising prices in France are being felt keenly by those having fixed incomes.

Wife Preservers

One of Lupe Velez's favorite salads is to lay a lettuce leaf on each salad plate, then hollow out an apple for each person, notching the edges for trimming, and fill with cubed apple, finely cut celery and crushed nuts. Garnish with whole nuts, cherry and a dab of mayonnaise.

Learn Etiquette of Telephone Call

Listen as she calls Roy Smith: "Hello, Roy. This is Vivian Jones. We're having a skating party and a hot dog roast Saturday and we hope you can come. . . . So glad you can. . . . Come at eight. . . . Good-by."

Notice that she doesn't embarrass him by "Guess who 'tis," but gives her name at once. She tells him about the party before she asks for a yes or no. She phones him in evening, not office hours.

Be considerate, correct and natural in your conversation—and see how it smooths the way to social and business success.

Our 32-page booklet helps you to meet strangers, say the right thing as hostess and guest. What to talk about, even what to say at a dance. How to improve your voice.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD — With all the spotlight on private lives, half of Hollywood is surprised to find that Nelson Eddy has a living father. The star's parent, William Darius Eddy, is a visitor to filmland and spent a day on the "Girl of the Golden West" set, watching them make movies.

Nelson Eddy

The elder Eddy is a mechanical engineer and an inventor of naval devices. He is divorced from the stars mother, has remarried and lives in Providence, R.I.

John Farrow, the author and director, is writing a "History of the Popes" and, during his recent European trip, saturated himself in ecclesiastical history.

He returned to Hollywood the other day and found out his first assignment will be a picture called "The Singing Cop."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was surprised to receive an excited call from Cary Grant, telling them he'd found just the baby to play Myrna Loy's and William Powell's child in the new "Thin Man" picture.

They were surprised because Grant is working at another studio, R-K-O, in the Hepburn film. But they were plenty interested when they heard who Cary's candidate was.

The little boy already is a pal of Asta, which makes him such a natural that a screen test is being hurriedly arranged.

Disney's "Snow White" has been sneak-previewed three times and is cut down to 8,400 feet. In Pomona the audience applauded for 35 minutes, refusing to allow the next picture to come on . . . Maureen O'Sullivan was kept so busy in England that she never got to Paris at all and had only a week in Ireland. She got back to Hollywood and was put to work immediately in "Madelon" . . . She says Erich von Stroheim is a big success in Paris and that one of his recent pictures has received an award of honor.

How would you like to pay Sonja Henie's stocking bill for "Happy Landing"? They're really tights and she wears out two to three pairs a day. At a cost to the studio of $36 a pair. So far, the item amounts to $1,800.

After all the talk about various stars reading hundreds of volumes in preparation to play historical characters, Norma Shearer's admission seems refreshing and sensible. She has read only one book, she says, about Marie Antoinette — Stefan Zweig's biography of the French queen. It isn't as if she were lazy. But different authors have different conceptions and she decided that too much research would be confusing.

The accidental death of Lige Conley (in an auto accident) drew only a few paragraphs here. Once it would have been a big story. In the old Sennett days, Conley played leads with Marie Prevost and Phyllis Haver. Fame had passed him by of late. He did, however, go out practically with his boots on. For only a few minutes before the accident, he had finished a comedy scene with Fred Allen in "Sally, Irene and Mary."

Conley was 38. And an added note of tragedy. His widow was practically a bride. She and the comedian were married Aug. 7.

Ia Hepburn will now join the other stars who have gone in for fisticuffs in recent pictures. In "Bringing Up Baby" she is required to land a left hook on Walter Catlett's jaw. To make it look real, the star took instructions for a day and a half from Nate Slott, one of the assistants on the film, who used to be a fighter.

HOLLYWOOD.—Unless she calls the cops, Marjorie Gateson doesn't know how to get rid of an annoyer who sets a new high in eccentricity. The fellow first approached the actress at a theatre, introduced himself and said that they were old acquaintances from Europe. Knowing it wasn't so, Marjorie let it pass. Then she began hearing reports of the stranger telling people he was her fiance.

Marjorie Gateson

The topper came the other night when the fellow entered Chara Bow's "It" cafe and told waiters he was expecting Miss Gateson to join him.

He was wearing lace cuffs and a lace jabot of the kind men used to affect in the silk pants era.

Wasn't able to confirm this, but a friend of Rudy Vallee's says the crooner on his recent trip here ordered a beautiful monument erected at the grave of the late Fay Webb. And frequently visited the Santa Monica cemetery where she is buried.

While in New York (she tells there this month), Eleanor Powell hopes to market the song, "Chuckaboom," which she co-authored with her M.G.M. pianist, Chris Schoenberg. It's a hot number based on the primitive rhythm known to drummers as "chuckaboom". The star contributed the lyrics, Schoenberg the melody. Bill Robinson has asked permission to introduce the number on Broadway.

Kay Francis, who often goes in for snooty roles on the screen, couldn't tell the driver of a moving van how to find her new place in Coldwater canyon, so she volunteered to climb up in the truck and to act as a personal guide. And was the star's face red when she got mixed up and couldn't find the house herself? The driver had to cruise around until she recognized a landmark.

HOLLYWOOD—The south certainly stands by its native daughters, "Second Honeymoon," in which Marjorie Weaver was a standout in some very fast company, played in three first-run theatres simultaneously in Richmond, Va.

If Marjorie lives up to predictions there will be a wild scramble of communities to claim her as a hometown girl. She was born in Crossville, Tenn., moved to Glasgow, Ky., at the age of one and, two years later, moved again to Louisville, where she remained to go through high school.

Marjorie herself considers Louisville as her home town.

One of the crew on Gene Autrey's picture thinks the western star is due a mention for his generosity. Out at Republic the workers are eligible for a Christmas bonus only if they work at the studio during the month of December. Autry's picture was supposed to go into production Jan. 5. But, to put the crew in line for the bonus, he agreed to do the picture this month, although it meant giving up a trip to Washington.

By the time he has finished "Test Pilot," Clark Gable hopes to be no movie actor pretending to be a flyer, but the real thing. The star learned to handle an aeroplane while making "Hell Divers" several years ago. He hasn't had the necessary hours in the air to get a pilot's license, but will have, he says, before the new film is over.

From London the other day came a report that Merle Oberon is having a romance with an English army officer.

Was it just a coincidence, two nights later, that David Niven and Brian Aherne, two actors with whom the star's name has been linked, dined together at the House of Murphy and appeared to be giving toasts?

The Lloyd Bacons have a new son. The baby was expected any time after Dec. 1 and there was much dismay when the director had to attend a dinner on a battleship Dec. 3, after which his new picture, "Submarine D-1" was to be screened for high naval officers.

Bacon felt he couldn't turn down the invitation, yet he was panicky lest he wouldn't be on hand at the hospital.

So he hired an amphibian aeroplane to stand by at the Grand Central airport. The navy agreed to inform him by radio if anything happened at home and friends were ready to meet him at the airport.

As it turned out the precautions were unnecessary.

Lon Chaney, Jr., swears it happened to him at a lunch room up Ventura way. He was returning from a location on "Sally, Irene and Mary" and, with several other members of the company stopped to get a sandwich and a cup of coffee.

On the next stool was a drunk who leaned all over the actor. After he had gone Chaney made a crack about it to the counterman.

"Do you know who that is?" replied the fellow. "It's Lon Chaney, Jr. He has run through all his father's money and he comes in here all the time. We give him drinks and it pays us because he signs autographs for customers."

Chaney had trouble convincing the restaurant man of the mistake, but left with the promise that the drunk would be tossed out on his first appearance.

Ran into Dolores Costello dining with the two Barrymore youngsters at Lindys. She says we columnists hurt her chances by reporting she was under long term contract at Warners. It was only for the one film, she explains, yet other companies think she is still working there.

Helene, she tells me, has been moved to the Hillcrest sanitarium, where she faces a stay of from six to eight months.

The Famous Bing

Bing Crosby, whose real name is Harry Lillis Crosby, is married to Dixie Lee. He was born in Tacoma, Wash., May 2, 1904. Bing's first stage appearance was in a school presentation of "Julius Caesar". After leaving Gonzaga college, he toured the Pacific coast with Al Rinker, singing on a vaudeville circuit. Paul Whiteman heard them and when Whiteman returned to the east, Crosby and Rinker went along. A third vocalist, Harry Barris, joined the two and they were known as Paul Whiteman's "Rhythm Boys". Crosby made his reputation as a radio star while singing at the Coconut Grover in Los Angeles.

New CBC Station To Be Opened Christmas Day

On Christmas Day the powerful new radio transmitting unit of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, station CBL, at Hornby, Ont., will have its official opening with Hon. C. D. Howe as chief speaker and a Christmas program featuring King George's good-will message from Sandringham scheduled. Pictures from the 50,000-watt transmitting station are shown here with Chief Engineer Nicholls (AT LEFT) testing the control equipment with an assistant. The huge tower carrying the aerial, stretching 647 feet into the sky, is shown second from LEFT, and TOP CENTRE pictures the almost unbelievably small base on which the 70 tons of steel comprising the tower rest. The insulated base carrying the massive needle is only about 10" across. At LOWER CENTRE the operating console through which the engineer in charge can fully control operation of the station is shown; the control units are duplicated in the sister station now under construction at Vercheres, Que. One of the large 100-kilowatt water-cooled tubes—among the largest ever utilized for broadcasting in North America—is seen at RIGHT. The heat generated by these tubes is removed from the transmitters by an air blast and is used through radiators for heating purposes.

Modern Dancing Threatened As The Jeep Comes To Town

Nothing Sensational As Dance Invention But Dancers Seem To Like It

Whoopee! Waa-hoo! Yee-ah! Indians descending on the settlement? No. Midnight at a madhouse? No, wrong again. Just a sample of the vocal embellishment which Peterborough's younger generation provide as they gyrate dizzily about the floor of the city's first and flourishing night club these evenings. The Jeep has not only come to town but threatens to revolutionize local dancing!

Maybe it is nothing sensational as a dance invention but, nonetheless, the dance-loving young lads and lassies of the town seem to love it. And when they Jeep, they don't fool. They Jeep at a pace which would appear to reduce any ordinary human beings to shuddering wrecks. Nothing fancy, just common ordinary Jeeping. Yet it is banishing the slink and jiggle steps of recent months into the limbo of the old-time two-steps and square dances.

How is it done? Must one go to dancing school before venturing to join the fast-stepping boys and girls? Apparently not.

If you happen to step into the club for the first time while a fast number is being played and a Jeep is on, you will be reminded of a roller-skating rink scene. In a great anti-clockwise traffic circle, the entire crowd of couples speed, arm in arm. The step they use is merely a glorified hippety-hop, many not even bothering to glorify it. The speed at which they circle the hall must be many knots an hour.

Plenty of Noise

Vocal ability seems to be as important as light-footedness for the more enthusiastic Jeepers shout "Whoopee-ee-ei!" "Hi-di-ho!" or perhaps a blood-curdling "Yee-ah!" every few hippety-hops. And that's not all, for the more devoted Jeepers add to their vocal demonstrations some fancy hand-waving gestures as they travel. Many, of course, make no more of this than waving their fingers reprovingly — of what they disapprove or whom they reprove is a rhetorical mystery.

Needless to say, this Jeep which has taken Peterborough by storm is inspired by the Big Apple fad sweeping from the States through Canada. It is related to the Big Apple only as a distant and simple-minded cousin for the Jeep as it is known here is merely one of the many rythmic antics into which Big Apple participants may break.

Distant cousin or not, they love it. Those who refuse to believe that Peterborough's gay young sprouts could not fall for such a goofy fad must go see for themselves. And let them beware lest they find themselves hippety-hopping into the mad circle of the merry crowd.

Actually it is easier to tune short wave on the Marconi band spread dial than to tune your local station on standard broadcast. The reason is simple: on the new Marconi dial the standard broadcast band and each of the five short wave bands have separate scales as shown on diagram, upper left, each clearly marked and extremely easy to read. Old style receivers had one scale for standard broadcast and only one scale for all five short wave bands, shown at lower left. That means many stations crowded into very short spans, making separation and tuning very difficult.

Big Time Hockey Swingsters Drillon And Dillon Are Tops In National Scoring Race

Goal-Getting Pair Throw Headwriters Into Rhapsodies Over Name Rhythm

MONTREAL, Dec. 23 (CP) — Heave a sigh for Gordon Drillon and Cecil Dillon, a couple of setups for the poets and the punsters.

The word-jugglers thought they were getting a break when they found love rhymed with stars above. But they're going into rhapsodies now that Drillon and Dillon—swing it—are tearing out ahead of the National Hockey League scorers.

The tall and handsome Drillon, in his second year with Toronto Maple Leafs, has been leading the Canadian division since the season's start. Dillon, a veteran with New York Rangers, has been hanging close to the top of the American section right along and now has stepped two points ahead of the field with 16.

After Rival's Total.

Dillon will try to bring his total up to Drillon's 19 tonight (Thursday) when Rangers play Maroons in Montreal. There's a chance he will catch up, too, for the clubs have a habit of doing things in three's. Rangers won 3-0 in their first meeting and they tied 3-3 in the second.

On display will be two of the league's top netminders, Dave Kerr of the Bluecoats and Bill Beveridge of the home club. They play a similar style, standing well ahead of the goal-line until an attacker comes in, then spread-eagling as they drop back. Kerr leads the N.H.L. goalies and Beveridge is second in the Canadian division, though Maroons are last in the standing and have incurred far more penalties than any other team.

Robinson on Sick List.

Maroons may play without smooth-skating Earl Robinson, suffering from a groin injury received in practice. If he is unable to start Dave Trottier will replace him on right wing. Coach King Clancy has announced. Other Maroon players have severe colds, but Robinson is the only one likely to be out of action.

In the only game on the night's program, the Montrealers will try to stop a machine that has not been beaten in six games. Rangers won five straight before tieing Montreal Canadiens 2-2 Sunday.

Announcement of a Detroit-Boston trade was made last night in New York, where the League banqueted its president, Frank Calder. In recognition of 26 years of service Boston got Clarence Drouillard, centre from Windsor, Ont., who has seen service with Red Wings and their Pittsburgh farm, for Alex Motler of Melville, Sask., a member of Boston's Providence farm team.

CURLING

Echoes From No. '8'
By HERB MARTIN

The weather yesterday (Wednesday) forced us to hang out the 'no curling' sign but he has made up for it again and the ice will be good for tonight (Thursday).

The committee has asked us to publish the "Adrill" draw for Monday night.—Here it is:—

A. W. Pratten vs. Geo. Green.
O. McGill vs. W. Harvey.
C. Westbrooke vs. G. Carnes.
W. Taylor vs. D. Carlisle.
G. Hall vs. R. Dobbin.
A. Kay vs. J. Lowes.
T. Donaldson vs. J. Sedgewick.

The skips can help this sport along a great deal if they will get in touch with their entire rink and see that they are out Monday night. We find that personal contact is the best way to seek and get co-operation.

Ordered To Rest

HOCKEY WORLD HONORS CALDER GOTHAM DINNER

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(CP).—Hockey-men who paused to honor the first 25 year sof service to the game by "a plucky Scot," Frank Calder, hoped to-day he would continue at the helm of the National League which he nursed from infancy to a sturdy adult.

The league's Board of Governor paid glowing tribute to their leader at a testimonial dinner here last night. The men who have often kicked at his decisions admitted their greatest problem was how they would replace him when "that inevitable time" arrived.

The quiet spoken, 60-year-old former school-teacher and newspaperman was deeply moved when the historic occasion was climaxed by a presentation of a silver tea service.

"Excuse me if I have a big head. I suspect you are talking about another person," he told the international gathering of 150 hockey notables and newspapermen.

Replying, Calder recalled the league in its "puny days" immediately following its formation in 1917 and the miracle its growth.

SEES CAGE GAME MAKING STRIDES IN COMING YEAR

VANCOUVER, Dec. 23 (CP).—With new rules, a new national system of registration and a greater general interest in the game, basketball in 1938 [illegible] ahead in Canada in the opinion of Walter H. Hardwick, president of the Canadian Basketball Association.

"The new rules are designed to speed up the game while under the new national system of registration we already have more players than last year with organization yet to be completed," said the school-teacher president.

"Too, there is greater general interest, with men and women taking time to teach new players the game, new clubs being formed and new gymnasiums being built.

"Elimination of the jump-off after each field goal has done more to revolutionize the game than anything since the 10-second rule. Under this rule the ball is put back into play by any player of the team scored upon and no longer are ball players the chief asset of a team."

Other changes, including limiting high school games to two overtime periods instead of three, awarding the ball to an opposition player at the end of the court where a free throw is made, instead of at centre, and awarding a goal to the opponents of any player who touches the ball while touching the opponent's basket, all have made the game speedier and more interesting, the president said.

Teams themselves have been working out new playing tactics. Man-to-man shifting defences to break screen players are being largely used and the old zone defence system "seems to have been filed away with grandmother's bonnet."

Registrations Up.

"Predictions of a registration decline if the C.A.B.A. left the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada have failed to materialize," he said.

"The new registration system by which each player is registered with the national body instead of with a provincial branch, has attracted many new clubs and players," he said. "Demand for certificates in the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association is already over 5,000, the heaviest on record, while some 2,300 registrations have been made in British Columbia so far, an increase of 700 over last year." The president predicted registrations in Canada would go well over the 15,000 mark this season when organization was completed.

Of the "break" with the A.A.U. of C., Hardwick declared his organization was "not antagonistic" toward the Union. In fact, he said, the C.A.B.A. has "seriously considered an alliance with an actively discussed Federation of Team Sports—with or without the A.A.U. of C."

Though the C.A.B.A. is no longer in the amateur union, Hardwick said his organization still clings, with the consent of the majority of its affiliated clubs, to a "relatively conservative" definition of an amateur, pending advice from the International Basketball Federation.

Explaining the Association's present definition of an amateur as compared to that of the A.A.U. of C., Hardwick said:

"Their's is negative, ours is positive. The A.A.U. definition tells the players what they can't do while ours tell them what they can do. Our definition does not allow intermingling of amateurs and professionals or payments for broken time or anything that would be objectionable to the A.A.U., but that may be changed when advice is received from the International Federation.

"But to get back to basketball's future—I would say the game was in for a banner year from east to west in Canada this season. Yes, basketball is definitely on the way up."

The class at Victoria Park was well attended on Tuesday night, and a good deal of progress made by most of the pupils, who ranged in size from three to six feet. Teaching will be continued tonight (Thursday) at the same time, 7.30 p.m., in the Park.

Jack Holand is not able to use skis, as he has a bad arm, but is managing to impart knowledge, by using some of the experienced members as demonstrators. And most of his pupils show a noticeable improvement after one lesson. There is no longer any use in saying you can't ski. It's too easy to learn.

No decision has been made about the Sunday run as yet. Snow conditions are unpredictable this far ahead, so the only thing to do is to count on a hike anyway, and meet at the Empress Hotel about 1.30 on Sunday. Through the kindness of Mr. Chris. Graham, we will have a small bulletin board placed in the window of the hotel on Saturday to confirm arrangements for the next day. This does not mean telephone service, and it is hoped that members will not presume on the courtesy. Please walk past when you are downtown, and read it for yourself. If you have the habit of arriving after the main body starts out, you will be able to follow along, after referring to the board, in case of last-minute changes in plans.

THREE DIE IN FIRE

OLEAN, N.Y., Dec. 23 — (AP). — Trapped in a cabin three miles north of here, three members of a woodcutter's family were burned to death last night.

The bodies of Bert Barden, 63, a woodcutter, Mrs. Barden 55, and their son Egbert 26, also a woodcutter, were found in the cabin's ruins.

Cudé Saves Keeling's Shot During Canadiens' Game

Although hockey is one of the fastest games played, it is also one of the most thrilling and anxious pastimes for both players and spectators. This action picture, taken during a game between New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens on the former's home ice, is a good example of the anxious moments to be had while the puck bounces crazily around the goal mouth. Wilf Cude, Canadien goalie, can be seen here, lying on the ice with the puck just careening off his pads. "Butch" Keeling, No. 10, of Rangers, is also pictured as he tried in vain to score a goal during the game which ended in a 2-2 tie. Neil Colville, speedy forward of the New Yorker's is pictured second from the LEFT, while the Canadien player is defenceman Walter Buswell.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

BILL WALSHE of the Kingston Whig-Standard puts this note in his column: "When it is realized that Kingston has almost 50 hockey and basketball teams, a curling club, six badminton clubs, a bowling league, and an interest in boxing and wrestling, it must be admitted that Kingston is in a class by itself for sports and the number of participants. It must also be realized that a small army of sports writers would be needed to give personal attention to all. This department is willing to help all but a little co-operation is needed from officials of the various clubs." The same is true here—though we have as much curling, basketball and badminton as Kingston and more hockey and bowling, etc. Officers of the various sports should see that we get the dope if they want publicity—as we can't cover everything.

AND HERE'S a note from an officer of the Riverview A.C.: "I am under the opinion that you thought our last show was pretty fair. This time we are going to give the crowd a show that will make their hair stand on end. This Orlando-Carter return go is going to be the kind of fight you have not seen around here in years. Orlando is confident and is going to fight the whole five rounds the way he fought the fifth of the last fight. I'll eat my shirt if there is not a clean knockout in this affair." We trust he doesn't have to sup on his shirt, especially if it is a stiff-collared bright Xmasy one.

* * * * * *

THE SAME chap adds: "Regarding the Minicola-Genovese return: Len is quite confident that he will put Genovese away this time, and I am sure that this is the only way he will beat the Toronto Italian as he is real clever. I don't think Peterborough saw his real stuff. The whole three Toronto fighters are under the opinion that the only way to win down here is to put their boy away." Well, that sounds nice—we mean nice for the ring fans. Grudge fights are what bring the customers out in droves, and they'll see two dandy grudges settled that night. Regardless of a flock of fans who saw Orlando and Minicola nudge out questionable nods here—and we admit they were questionable that time—we sort of feel the local ringmen can win. The show will be staged in the Armouries on Jan. 6th. More about it again.

SOFT ICE at the Brock last night forced cancellation of two puck practises. Tonight at seven, the senior and intermediate pucksters will hold a workout—if the ice is okay—and all prospects are invited. No junior practise yet as the ice can't be used too much for a few days, and anyway the Colts don't see action as soon as the older squad, which plays Monday in Belleville. We fear, unless they get practise soon, the Petes' players to take part in the Quinte fray will have to have their names drawn from a hat first. And it may not seem like such a lucky draw to the guys picked, either!

* * * * * *

IT SEEMS that the Peterborough Hockey Club is figuring on jacking up the price of admission for home senior "B" games this season, making the general admission 35 cents instead of two bits. On account of the extra expense incurred in operating this team. No trip shorter than Belleville which is 84 miles, and at least one jump to Kingston, 130 miles. With three teams in O.H.A. competition, operated by this one club. We don't blame 'em as it costs plenty of dough to run a club right and most rinks sock the fans from 35 cents up. But we would suggest that a strip of four tickets be sold for a dollar, thus letting your real fan, who goes to all games, get in to four tilts for a quarter each. And let the club get some early gelt piled up. The four-on-strip ducats would, of course, be transferable.

* * * * * *

A FEW pro puck rule changes have been made and will be adopted by C.A.H.A. teams. One gets away from last-minute jockeying of lines as a game starts, and now starting lines for each period must be named and no change made within two minutes, except for a penalty. Henceforth, no player will be given an assist for passing the puck behind centre ice on the attack, but the rebound has been restored as being good for an assist. A spot for faceoffs must be marked clearly on all rinks. That seems to be about all—and we rather like these two concerning the scoring of assists.

OSHAWA GM-MEN are finding it a bit rocky in senior "A" O.H.A. rivalry this winter, what with the packed Toronto Goodyears sailing merrily along. Toronto took a 3-1 win in Oshawa last p.m. to take a firmer grip on first place. A goodly gathering took a gander at the game, but wished they had taken a turkey home, instead! A lively setto with Whittaker and Barnes being benched for bouncing a few sets o' fives off the other's beak. Stars for the losing side, who were minus Coach Doc Rowden, were Chisolm, Covert, Morrison and Salter. The ex-local towhead, Covert, is going along good again in Oshawa livery. Of course, the Motor City mentors aren't getting gray-haired worrying, since the GM-men will ankle into senior "B" playdowns, if the "A" angle flops on 'em.

ALD. JAMES Hamilton made the Hockey Club draw last eve at the Capitol Theatre and these are the winners—first prize is an order for $50 and the other four for $25—and their numbers: J. R. Marshall, 580 Weller St., No. 5961; Mrs. R. H. Gray, 611 Walkerfield Ave., No. 4761; R. Feeley, 207 Park St., No. 3042; C. J. Hartman, 340 George St., No. 1821; F. C. Miller, 704 George St., No. 2981. Our congrats to these folks, but sympathies for us and a lot of other unfortunates. Understand quite a flock of tickets were sold and the puckmen of Peter's borough ought to be attired in swanky raiment this season.

UNTO THE HILLS DO SKIERS LIFT LONGING VISION

MONTREAL, Dec. 23 (CP)—When observers attempt to diagnose the ills of professional hockey in Montreal, they might glance at the snow-covered Laurentian Mountains and see the answer in the form of thousands of skiers.

While professional hockey suffered from poor attendance in 1937, some 70,000 enthusiasts left Montreal on ski-trains to the Laurentians. Novice and expert travelled the ski-trails in thousands and it was not unlikely that some of these 70,000 were former hockey fans.

A newly-found era of prosperity has struck the ski sport in the past eight years and where it struck hardest—in Ottawa and Montreal districts—professional hockey has suffered. Many believed Ottawa's withdrawal from the National Hockey League in 1934 was caused by the sudden popularity of skiing.

And 1938 promises a banner skiing year from Ottawa to Quebec City, a section in which lie the Gatineau Hills and Laurentian Mountains, ideal perfect skiing grounds. With the Canadian championships being held in Ottawa, it appears the East will hold the ski spotlight for the season.

Ready For Trails

Already Ottawa's ski executives are preparing the trails for the slalomers, downhill racers and long-haulers who will invade the Gatineau Hills for the championships Feb. 26 and 27.

A full season, with high-ranking competitions slated for before and after the National championship, has been arranged by the Laurentian Zone of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association. Twelve successive week-ends are booked in the program. A decade ago three or four week-ends rounded out a schedule.

Quebec's provincial championships move from the Laurentians for the first time, being held in Quebec City. Ottawa sponsors the Ontario championships Feb. 12 and 13 while main events "up north" are the Laurentian Zone championships at St. Margarets Jan. 29 and 30 and Feb. 6.

One of North America's oldest ski races, the Quebec-Kandahar, will be run on Mount Tremblant March 6 and the 50-kilometer cross-country race between Ste. Agathe and St. Sauveur will wind up the season March 13.

Crammed into the 12-week season era numerous less-important events. Attendance at these competitions may be small but that's no indication the sport is not attractive. The thousands of novices competing among themselves attest to its popularity.

LAMBERT CASE SET OVER

MONTREAL, Dec. 22—(CP).—Preliminary into charges against Dr. Gabriel Lambert of inciting a group of University of Montreal students to riot was adjourned today to Jan. 14 for completion of evidence after the blue-shirted Montreal Fascist leader led his own defence against the prosecution conducted by R. L. Calder, K.C., ardent free-speech proponent and attorney for the Civil Liberties Union.

Grimm Hoped For Big Trades But Failed To Get Talent

Cubs Same As Last Season—Still Have Three Outfielders To Juggle

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.— Mr. Charles Grimm, the Cub manager, didn't get Van Lingle Mungo of Brooklyn. He didn't get Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals. He wasn't able to land Arky Vaughan of the Pirates. In fact, Herr Charles didn't get anything more than a decided chill at the winter baseball meetings at which he had hoped to blossom into a big trader.

But all is not lost, although under the present setup only the most brazen will come up with the customary spring prediction that the Cubs are pennant cinches. Grimm still has his 1937 assortment of athletes who didn't do so badly last season. The only thing wrong with them was that they failed to finish in first place after having a seven-game lead early in month of August. There never will be a final decision as to what caused this flop, but the suspicion is that the boys simply didn't have it.

Need Standout Performers.

The only kind of athletes who are going to give the Cubs the needed punch are standout performers. The Cubs sought this variety during the trading sessions, but to get them had to give up their own standouts, who are few. Nothing could be gained by such manoeuvres, so Grimm stood pat.

Would Mungo be of aid to the Cubs at the price of Frank Demaree, not to mention a few additional men? In the first place, the Cubs have enough pitchers, although they are not consistent. In the second place, who knows what Mungo might do with a contending team? He's dripping with natural pitching ability, but that doesn't mean he'd be a sure winner under pressure. It might take him a couple of years to forget the kind of baseball they play in Brooklyn. And nobody knows whether his arm, injured last season, is O.K.

It's Triplett, Galan and Demaree.

It isn't reasonable to suppose a hitting outfielder is going to be acquired by trade, so it is probable that Grimm's first fly-chasing experiment next spring will be Herman Triplett, Augie Galan and Demaree, reading from left to right.

Triplett may be the fellow, or one of the fellows, the Cubs are seeking. The Cubs bought him from Memphis, where he topped the Southern Association with a mark of .356. He's not especially good as a thrower or fielder, but if he can hit all will be forgiven.

Of course, nothing need be said for or against Galan. He is well-known hereabouts. He was a sensation in 1935, his first season, but only an every-day workman since then, and whether he ever will climb out of his slump is doubtful. Maybe a star on fly balls, into long drives, but not frequently enough to please the management.

Troubles Then Will Start.

If Triplett flops, Manager Grimm's troubles will only be starting. He'll have to go back to his 1936 program which was made up of as many outfield combinations as was possible with a given number of men. And if that juggling again becomes a matter of necessity, the Cubs will be just as they have been—probably a little bit worse.

Outfield developments may chase Phil Cavarretta back into that line of work, unless Phil chases himself there by falling down as a first baseman. He will be started at the latter place as the result of his excellent job when the berth was returned to him as the result of the mishap to Rip Collins in August. He didn't look anything like the Cavarretta who played first base for the Cubs in 1936. But if the outfield situation is bad, Phil will have to go to the outside and Collins will recover his first base berth.

Cavarretta must look good to some of the other clubs. When Grimm was talking trades during the meeting, several of the managers with whom deals were discussed mentioned the young Italian. But they acted as if they merely wanted to do Grimm a favor and the lastest deals were duds. He wanted a ball player in return.

Goes To Wings

JOHN "RED" BEATTIE

Supplies Radio For School Use

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 23.—Owing to the kindness of F. L. Erskine, the pupils and teachers in the Lakefield Public School, are enjoying the privilege of hearing the special Christmas music broadcast each morning over Toronto radio stations. The radio is installed in the private room so that the music can be heard throughout the school and the pupils are thoroughly enjoying the innovation.

Patrick Would Revamp Penalty Shot, Give More Speed To Fastest Pastime

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (C.P.).—"More speed?" mused Manhattan's Mister Hockey to-day as he leaned back in his comfortable office chair. "It is the age of speed."

In this way Lester Patrick saw room in the National Hockey League for new wrinkles to please the crowd. He would revamp the penalty shot and speed up defence formations.

The master strategist of New York Rangers admitted the penalty shot had not come up to expectations. But it was a good play, he insisted. It could be bettered by moving the firing mark five feet nearer the goal.

"That should get us one goal in every three tries," said Mister Hockey. "The shot would be the present 30-foot drive, but a line 25 feet from the goal, beyond which no penalty marksman could go, would allow five feet for player's momentum and so improve shooting.

High Scoring Defencemen.

Patrick dwelt on the present speed of N.H.L. forwards only long enough to admit they are undoubtedly fast. Then he dropped back for a little theoretical defence doctoring.

"As in the case of the penalty shot, the defence perhaps could stand a little injection of scoring punch," he said. "Hockey is becoming familiar to the fans. They have seen forwards scoring. The next move would seem to be high scoring defencemen."

secondary offensive force.

"The best rearguards would be well-weighted forwards to launch scoring attacks from the back zone," Patrick figured.

"They would be as fast as the forward line defensive bulwarks equipped to fire goal for goal with the forwards at every possible op-

Eddie Shore And Aurel Joliat Last Of First All-Star Team To Stay Among Headliners

Charlie Gardiner And Howie Morenz Taken By Death From Mythical Sextet

TORONTO, Dec. 22.—(CP.)—Like Tennyson's "Brook" big Eddie Shore and little Aurel Joliat seem to go on forever in a hockey way. Few performers have seen such long service in National Hockey League ranks as the husky Bruin defenceman and the mite Canadiens' winger.

As for the top-rating stars of seven years ago, these are the only two members of the first all-star N.H.L. team picked by the Canadian Press at the end of the 1930-31 season who still remain in the thick of big time's hockey fight.

Big Eddie, after a somewhat inactive season last year owing to an injured back, is leading the Bruins' defence forces again this winter while little Aurel still whirls and twists at left wing for the colorful Canucks. Neither has seen major league service with any other team.

Two Players Dead.

Of their team-mates on the first all-star team two have died and two have taken coaching positions, one with a major league team.

First to leave the ranks of that mythical "dream" sextet was Charlie Gardiner, Chicago's great goalie, who died suddenly in Winnipeg, June 13, 1934. A brain hemorrhage following a brief illness took one of the greatest goalers of all time.

The others continued their major league careers until last season with Frank Clancy, the incomparable king of Ottawa and Toronto Maple Leaf fame, retired, in mid-season. The king is coaching Montreal Maroons this year.

Then came one of the saddest blows of all. Howie Morenz, hockey's Stratford streak, recovering in a Montreal hospital from a broken leg suffered in a game January 28, died from a sudden heart attack. The Canadien speedster had been named centre on that all-star outfit.

At the time of the accident Morenz was in the process of staging a miraculous comeback with Canadiens, the team that gave him his first professional contract. He had spent the two previous seasons with Chicago and New York Rangers, apparently at the end of his hockey trail, but brought back to a revamped and rejuvenated Canadien club, Howie had been showing much of his old-time speed and daring and was responsible for much of the Montreal team's success after several lean seasons.

Retires to Coaching Job.

Right winger on that 1930-31 club was Bill Cook of New York Rangers, one of the smoothest skaters and playmakers in the business. Bill continued to play a star role in Rangers' many successes until this season when he retired to take over coaching duties with Cleveland Barons in the International-American League, a minor loop.

Sent To Bruins

GORDON PETTINGER

Following a game between Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, Stanley Cup champions for the past two seasons, Manager Jack Adams, of the Detroit club, announced the trading of Gordon Pettinger, Red Wing centre, to Boston in exchange for John "Red" Beattie, a left winger. The was done in an endeavor to get his club, which have been in a bad slump all season, into a winning stride.

TORONTO HOLDS FIRST POSITION IN SENIOR O.H.A.

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 23 (CP) — Toronto Goodyears held undisputed first place in the Senior A division of the Ontario Hockey Association today, four straight wins without a defeat this season giving them a two-point margin over Oshawa G-Men, their latest victims.

Goodyears beat G-Men 2-1 here last night when the league leaders met to decide the Senior A kingpin. The only other Senior A game this week comes tonight when Port Colborne Sailors play at Kitchener.

Scotty McAlpine opened scoring last night at 16:00 of the first period and his was the only shot to flash a red light that period. In the second session Ote O'Brien scored on Don Metz' pass and in the final period Metz scored with Buddy Sutcliffe getting an assist then Eddie King scored unassisted.

Play was fast as the two top-notch teams in the loop met. Body checks were handed out hard and often and sticks were carried high for most of the game. In the final minutes Art Whittaker, Toronto, and Ab Barnes, Oshawa, drew major penalties for fighting.

Both Art McQuesten and Glen Salter, Goodyear and G-Men goalies, made outstanding stops when needed most. Salter came sliding out of the nets for several successful stops.

RAMBLERS CROWD PROVIDENCE REDS FOR LEAGUE LEAD

TORONTO, Dec. 23.—(CP)—Providence Reds can sit down to a good turkey dinner Christmas Day secure in the knowledge they can't be dislodged from their section lead in the International-American hockey league for the next nine days at least.

The Reds haven't much of an edge right now, being only three points ahead of Philadelphia Ramblers for the top spot in the eastern division. But Ramblers only play once between now and the first day of the New Year and even a victory in the game would leave them behind the Reds.

The Providence team made sure of their margin last night by drawing, 2-2, with Syracuse Stars and thereby extending their undefeated streak to five games. In the only other game Cleveland Barons topped New Haven Eagles, 2-1, to move into second place in the western section behind Stars.

Alex Motter, acquired yesterday by Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, celebrated his jump to the majors by scoring a goal for Reds. His tally, coupled with one by Lorne Mercer, gave Reds a 2-1 lead in the first period after Eddie Convey scored for Stars.

Early in the second period Maxie Bennett scored for Stars to even it up and the team then battled through third and overtime periods without further score. In the opening session Art Giroux of Providence was given a major penalty for knocking Bingo Kampman unconscious for several minutes with a cross check.

Less Cunningham scored the winning goal for Barons just 17 seconds from the end of regulation time. The other two goals came in the first period with Lorne Duguid getting the Cleveland counter and Tony Hemmerling scoring for New Haven.

RECORDS MAY FALL

SYDNEY—(CP). — Experts here anticipate many records will go by the boards, when British Empire Games aquatic stars compete at the North Sydney Olympic pool where there is accommodation for 4,000 spectators.

N.Y. American Snipers In On Rangers' Net

Canadian Cyclist Refuses To Make Australian Trip

Wife's Health Forbids Ocean Trip—Eric Chitty Stays At Home

TORONTO, Dec. 23 (CP) — Eric (Rickey) Chitty, young Canadian motorcycle racer, who made good on England's exacting speedways, cares not a pin when the chances involve his own life. But when his wife's health is at stake, that's a different matter so much so that he turned down his big chance to show his talents in another continent. His father, Art, told the story today.

Member of the West Ham Club team that won the British national speedway championship this year, he was ready to sail from Vancouver this month for Australia, under contract for the big Sydney tracks.

But the slim, Toronto-born cyclist, whose boyish smile and daring riding aroused the enthusiasm of weekly crowds of 60,000 to 90,000 at the English speedway, has cancelled his contract after doctors forbade his wife the trip.

Instead the couple travelled by easy stages to California for a holiday, where they are now. In March, after a flying visit to Toronto, they will return to England for Eric's third professional season in that country.

Twice given up for dead after terrific crashes, the 28-year-old Canadian has suffered multiple injuries time and again in his hazardous career. In 1930 at Toronto, after a wreck that left him in hospital for months, doctors advised him to "stop riding on two wheels or else you'll soon be riding on four."

Despite this grim warning, he persevered. He afterwards had other accidents. Once in West Ham, after he had "cracked up," he was reported dead. The minister of the parish collected funds for a wreath and bore the memorial to the hospital. There he found Chitty, very much alive, though trifle damaged.

Holder of the Canadian hill climbing championship, the Canadian dirt track title and many track records in the British Isles, Chitty before going to England, established his prowess on speedways in Ontario and the United States.

Accompanied by his wife and baby, he landed in Britain with but $7, and for a time found the going rough. But his first season at West Ham showed his ability and he has, as he expresses it, "gone ahead ever since."

Known to his club mates and to thousands of British motorcycle racing enthusiasts as 'Rickey, the crooning speedway rider,' Chitty makes recordings of his vocal efforts. His singing has been so successful his recording contract has been renewed in England.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23 (AP) — Everybody in hockey's "social register" attended the banquet to Frank Calder. And why not? In our book the Scot deserves all the nice things they said. Even "Cyclone" Taylor, Howie Morenz' only rival for the ultimate in speed, was there. P.S.: It was a grand party with plenty of overtime — the summary showed no penalties.

Michigan students home for the holidays say "Hurry Up" Yost's retirement as director of athletics will be announced soon. Kicking situation at Marquette isn't worrying Coach Paddy Driscoll. SEABISCUIT OUT OF $5,000 RACE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit was declared out of the Christmas Day Handicap at Santa Anita Wednesday, leaving a field of twenty-two candidates eligible to race for the $5,000 purse.

Howard withdrew his handicap champion after the California Horse Racing Board declined to rescind a suspension tacked on Jockey (Red) Pollard, the 'Biscuit's pilot, at the recent Tanforan meeting.

With Seabiscuit out, weights announced by Racing Secretary Webb Everett found Horace A. Luro's foreign entry, Amor Brujo, with top impost of 127 pounds.

Minor League Moguls Plan Continent-Wide Playoff

Pacific And A.A. Champs Will Battle For Right To Face Inter-Am. Team

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 23.—Minor league hockey henceforth will declare its all-continent championship team. That was decided here Wednesday at a meeting of the Federation of Minor Professional Hockey Leagues which, organized just last April, promises to develop into a most flourishing organization. This season, according to tentative plans, the American Association winners will travel west to oppose the Pacific Coast champions, the winners to meet the International-American representatives.

Afterward a plan will be established whereby the champions of the territory west of the Mississippi (which embraces the American Association and Pacific Coast Leagues) and the International-American winners will play off in one another's districts alternately. In each case, the A.A. and Pacific Coast titleholders will take part in eliminations to decide which shall do battle with the Inter-American victors, the East-of-Mississippi champs.

Plans Summer Conclave.

From the minor league conclave came a constructive plan whereby the three member leagues will meet in Chicago, probably in July coincident with the summer meeting of the National Hockey League. It also is hoped to have the continent's rink owners convene at the same place and time with a view to discussing problems in common to all those mentioned.

Representing the minors at the meeting were Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, famous player of yesteryear, in his capacity as President of the Pacific Coast League; William Grant of Kansas City, head of the American Association; John Chick of Windsor, boss of the Western division of the International-American circuit and that body's Eastern prexy; Maurice Podoloff, of Providence, who also is President of the Federation of Minor Leagues. Podoloff was re-elected to that position Wednesday.

Rule on Players.

A couple of squabbles over "ownership" of players were settled at Wednesday's meeting. Bill Hudson who, while a member of the Spokane Club, went to St. Louis, was ruled to be the property of the former club.

Also found guilty of unbecoming conduct, he was fined $100 and given until midnight of December 31 to report to Spokane, which ruling was made by Podoloff. St. Louis, in turn, claimed Lewis Holmes, whose name was on the roster of the Spokane Club.

As the trouble occurred prior to the formation of the federation, the matter was referred to Frank Calder, a visitor at the meeting in an advisory capacity, and he ruled that Holmes must report to St. Louis by December 31 or stand suspended.

IN MEMORIAM

ELLIS.—In loving memory of Helen Ellis, who passed away December 23, 1936, in her 15th year; of Keene, Ont.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her pattern face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife.
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.

CHAPTER 12

Behind me, as I gazed upon the peacock portrait, Olga was saying: "They think I ought to give that to Mimi. But I won't."

"Why not?"

She blazed. "Oh, if they had treated me fairly. But from the very first they acted as if the whole thing was my fault. I didn't know that my husband had left them out—not until the will was read. I supposed that of course he had looked after them. But they won't believe it. They think I got around him, and influenced him against them. And it has made me obstinate. I'm that kind. The picture is mine and I shall keep it."

She had worked herself into a sort of dull fury. "I shall keep it," she said, and led the way back to the drawing room.

The Ammidon twins and their satellites had arrived, and after them came, shortly, all the others I had met in the Maine woods. Yet I was aware of an atmosphere of animosity of which I had not been conscious in the Maine cottage. They had accepted Olga's invitation, but here in the Senator's old house she was not one of them as she had been in less formal surroundings. And superadded to this was a sense of Andy's antagonism which he did not attempt to disguise.

It showed itself in a dozen ways—in his utter disregard of the fact of my presence. He gave me no greeting when he entered, and as the evening went on, throughout dinner, although he was directly across the table from me, he did not address a word to me.

Everybody else was more than kind. They had made delightful plans for me. They wanted me to make engagements for every minute for weeks ahead. I demanded only one thing—that my mornings must be my own.

It was that night, I think, I began to feel the pull of a pleasure-filled existence. The contrast was, perhaps, all the greater because of my recent sojourn in the midst of sorrow and of heart-break. I was glad to put these things things behind me. I did not want to forget my mother, but I wanted to forget pain and tragedy and poverty. When we entered the ballroom the feeling was intensified—it was a wonderful place with its side-walls hung in rose brocade, and its ceiling painted with rose garlands upheld by cupids. Crystal chandeliers hung low over our heads giving out a thousand lovely lights from their pendant prisms. To me it was fairyland. All the dreams of my boyhood could not match this moment.

Mimi, to my great delight, gave me the first dance. Andy glowered, but I was the guest of honor. "And he's been as cross as a bear," Mimi told me.

"Even Andy can't spoil my evening," I told her. "Nothing can spoil it. It's Elysium—and you and I are going to dance on—forever—"

Her light, low laughter answered. "Oh, is there anyone like you, Jerry? Everything with you is a great adventure."

Did anything matter after that?

There were other dances with her, and my rapture increased, so that when the evening was far advanced, and she was dancing with Lionel, I wandered away from the others, and made my way to the balcony where I could be alone and feast my eyes on the picture. Now and then some couple drifted out of the ballroom and drifted back again, and looking down upon them I felt that it was all like the scene of a play, with the beat of the music coming faintly off-stage.

Then, suddenly, Mimi drifted in with Lionel—a slender slip of a thing in silver, with a floating scarf of burnished blue. They were both graceful dancers—and the thing was exquisite—the great ballroom beyond as a background—these two slight figures seeming to float over the polished floor.

Mimi lifted her eyes and saw me—and behind Lionel's back she blew me a kiss from the tips of her fingers—a lovely, impulsive gesture—then they drifted back to the ballroom.

As I stood there mad with the joy of it a hand came down on my shoulder. I turned and faced Andy.

"You've got to stop it," he said without preamble.

"Stop what?"

"Hanging around Mimi."

"That is for Mimi to say."

"Oh, she won't stop you. She knows how to play the game."

I was possessed by a fury which made me want to crack his head open. "Are you talking of the woman you love?"

"You know whom I am talking about. Mimi isn't any angel. But she's mine. I won't have anyone else butting in."

"How are you going to stop me?"

I think he hadn't expected that. He had, I am sure, thought of me as a county boy without a code. But I had a code, and I had the strength with which to back it. Not for nothing had I spent years in the open and on those hard physical tasks of the farm. I was more than his match and I knew it.

So I said, "How are you going to stop it?"

He came a step nearer. "I give you fair warning. You're not her kind. You've unlimited nerve to think she'd look at you. She wouldn't if she wasn't trying to make me jealous."

I was on my feet now. I spoke quietly, but there was the force of a blow behind each word.

"If you speak like that again of Mimi, I'll throw you over this balcony."

He saw that I meant it. Knew the depth of the fall to that shining floor beneath. Hesitated.

"Oh, I'm not here to fight," he blustered.

"It won't be a fight. I shall drop you into the middle of next week."

How queer the old slang sounds now as I write it. But I did not then stop to think of words. "I'm a thousand times stronger than you are," I said, "you wouldn't have a chance with me. If you don't believe it, get Lionel to tell you my record at college."

Oh, I was a fine young cockerel! If I had done what I threatened, I should probably have been locked up before midnight for manslaughter!

But he saved me from that. "This isn't the time," he said, "to settle it. But there'll be a time. So it is hands off of Mimi if you are sensible."

He flung himself down the steps and I saw him making his way towards the ballroom.

His next dance was with Mimi, and I don't know what he said to her. But when she said "Good-night," she asked, "What have you done to Andy? He's got it in for you."

I was tempted to tell her of the things we had said to each other. But I could not spoil the moment. "Oh, he'll get over it," I said, lightly. "And why should I care for Andy, when I am to see you tomorrow?"

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TREES

"Will you bring it home tonight?" whispered Nurse Jane to Uncle Wiggily one afternoon as he started to hop away from the hollow stump bungalow.

"Bring what home—Christmas or Santa Claus?" asked the jolly old rabbit gentleman.

"Hush! Not so loud. Quiet, please!" whispered Nurse Jane. "The children might be listening."

"Well, they know Santa Claus and Christmas are coming," said Mr. Longears. "They are just around the corner, as it were. But I can't bring Santa Claus here until tomorrow night. Then he will come by himself and he will bring Christmas with him."

"Oh, you don't understand me," laughed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I mean will you bring home the Christmas tree tonight? It must be trimmed, you know, and the bright lights put on ready for Christmas morning."

Goes on Search

"I'll bring it home late this afternoon," promised Uncle Wiggily. "I'll go to the woods now and look for a good one."

"Good luck to you!" wished Nurse Jane as he hopped away.

Uncle Wiggily stopped in the garage to get his hatchet with which to chop down the Christmas tree.

"Oh, course," he thought, as he hopped on to the woods, "I might meet Toodle or Noodle Flat Tail, the beaver boys, and they could gnaw the tree down for me with their strong teeth. But I suppose they are sliding down hill on their tails, so I had better take the hatchet."

Now while Uncle Wiggily was going to the woods to get the Christmas tree, the three Bad Chaps were also going there. The Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat, knowing what the rabbit gentleman was going to do, had decided to try to catch him.

"He will chop down a tree," said the Fox, "and that will give us the very chance we want."

"How?" asked the Bob Cat, who, having seen Uncle Wiggily in the woods the day before gathering wreaths, knew that today the rabbit would come for his tree. The Bob Cat told the others. "But how can we get Uncle Wiggily easier when he comes after a tree than at any other time?" this Bad Chap asked.

"Each of us will hide up in a tree," said the Wolf. "The branches of the evergreens are so thick Uncle Wiggily will never see us. He will be so busy chopping down the tree he will never notice us. Then we can drop down on him and catch him."

Foul Play

"You mean we will each hide in a different tree?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Yes," said the Wolf. "He is sure to pick one of the three trees we are hiding in. And whoever catches the rabbit must share him with the other two."

The Fox and Bob Cat said that would be fair, so each one climbed up into a Christmas tree in the woods and hid among the thick branches.

Along came Uncle Wiggily. He was going to chop down the tree where the Bob Cat was but the tree whispered:

"Don't cut me, Uncle Wiggily. Go on a little further. Pick another tree."

"Oh, all right," said the rabbit. "But it's sort of queer." He thought it more queer when the next two trees whispered the same thing. In one was the Fox and in the next the Wolf. But in the fourth tree no Bad Chaps were hiding so Uncle Wiggily cut that down for Christmas and hurried to his bungalow with it before the Bad Chaps could scramble down out of their trees and chase him. So they were fooled.

And if the horse chestnut will give the roller skates a ride around the block I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Christmas.

Men Fight 4 Days To Save Pup High On Ledge Over Lake

Rescuers Finally Dare Death To Go Down Cliff On 40-Foot Rope

GERALDTON, Ont., Dec. 23 (C.P.). — Buster, 120-pound St. Bernard pup, spent six cold days precariously perched on a ledge of a 30-foot cliff while men fought to rescue him. Pilot Nibs Parker landed his plane here yesterday with the story of the grim struggle to save Rube Broderick's valuable dog.

Buster tumbled 40 feet to the ledge while romping about 175 miles north-east of Port William.

Broderick, native of St. Catharines, Ont., Dr. John Green, Bill Collis, and Art Thompson with others at the Long Lac water diversion project brought Buster to safety over a human chain formed on a 40-foot rope that dangled over the sheer precipice.

The men worked four days and studied ways of reaching the starving animal whose whines could be heard through whistling wind and snow storms. A 30-mile trip around the base of the hill failed to locate the dog. Daring men moved gingerly along the cliff, hanging to saplings, in efforts to find a path to Buster.

Food was lowered to the ledge, but it toppled into the lake more than 200 feet below when the starving Buster nuzzled it.

Finally sufficient food was placed near him to keep him quiet until members of the rescue party dropped a rope.

A knot was tied every five feet in the 40-foot rope, an arm of each man hugged the rope at the knots. Along this human chain Buster's limp form, wrapped in a canvas bag, was passed to safety. A meal at the camp and the St. Bernard was fit again.

Several party members, worn out by the hand-over-hand climbing and the long trek over rocks, had to be assisted up the cliff.

OBITUARY

JOHN ROBERTSON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 23.—The death occurred on Friday last of John Robertson, who succumbed at the age of 60 years after a lengthy illness. Born in Norwood, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Robertson, and came to Campbellford 24 years ago. The funeral was held on Monday from his late residence on Thirty-Foot Lane by the Rev. Harold B. Neal, and interment was at Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Besides his grieving wife, he leaves to mourn his loss six daughters: Mrs. Charles Robinson, Buffalo, N.Y.; Mrs. Roy Varty, Havelock, and Beatrice, Merta, Jean and Madeline, and three sons: Bill, Douglas and Howard, all at home.

Pall-bearers were Messrs. D. Grieves, Jack Rhynn, Charles White, Charles Cochrane, Carmen Runions and Henry Rogers.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MANVERS STATION, Dec. 23.—On Thursday afternoon the Women's Association of the United Church, Manvers meet at the home of Mrs. Wm. and James Boggs with the president, Mrs. W. D. Cavano present and a good attendance of members as well as some visitors.

After the business session the meeting was taken over by Rev. W. F. Riding for the election of officers for 1938. All officers were returned to office as follows: President, Mrs. W. D. Cavano; vice president, Mrs. Edward Kellett; secretary, Mrs. H Muir; treasurer, Mrs. W. N. Porter.

A dainty lunch was then served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed.

Facing Ouster

Waging a hopless fight against deportation from the United States is 19-year-old Frances Finlay McCollough (ABOVE), Brighton, Mass., high school graduate, reportedly from St. John N.B. Miss McCollough may tell immigration officials that she entered the U.S. from St. John, a few months ago, and thus convict herself of illegal entry. She may also refuse to answer questions and be cited for contempt of court, conviction of which would be sufficient grounds for her deportation anyway.

JAPANESE ADMIT MACHINE-GUNNING

"About 3 p.m. (December 12) four Japanese planes appeared and began bombing the steamers. Two steamers caught fire. One launch went downstream, one went toward a wharf, and one approached the right bank. Two red-masted launches fled upstream."

He said one of the launches escaped and another was captured and 11 Chinese soldiers taken prisoner. Other troops approaching the wharf, he added, saw Chinese soldiers leaving the launches.

"Army patrols opened fire with light machine-guns and rifles. Another patrol approaching through fields and intending to cut off the retreat of people fleeing from the shore found Americans and Europeans among the group and ordered the troops to cease firing. The commander ran to the wharf.

"When the commander reached the wharf a sub-officer, engaged in rounding up 60 or 70 Chinese soldiers, said the ship belonged to the Standard Oil Company. Only then was it discovered that the ship sinking on the opposite shore was the Panay."

PARACHUTING

ing across the airfield with flares and floodlights for the search collided with an army plane taxiing to a landing. The plane's propeller sliced through the car roof, gashed the face of Sergeant Edward Seibold, police ballistics expert, fractured his jaw and knocked out three teeth.

Three army planes, a coast guard cutter and a police boat joined the search, but when they reached the scene their flares showed only black water. A policeman later reported sighting a body, but boats found nothing there and the search was halted until daylight.

Italy's scarcity of raw materials continues to increase.

LANDMARK GOES AS OLD ELEVATOR IS TAKEN DOWN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec 23.—The tearing down of the tall red grain elevator, King street west, which began last week and which is being proceeded with rapidly, means the removal of a well-known landmark from the village, which has stood on the lot bordering the tracks just west of the C.N.R. station for the past 40 years.

It was built by Mr. Good, of Toronto, with a Mr. Williams as the boss carpenter; the first manager was the late Charles Mosher, who came from Tyrone, and following his death, Mr. Bell, of Toronto, was in charge. His successor was the late R. J. Doak, of Millbrook, who held the position for many years, and after him, equally capable and popular, was the late Thomas H. Bradley, when ill health and his subsequent death about five years ago, again left the position vacant, two local men, Fred McIvor and Piercey Pitt, carried on for a comparatively brief time. Since then the building, which in earlier years after its erection did a record grain business, has been closed up.

The building was well constructed, with four stories, and a height of 90 feet; the outside walls were two by six, and the inside two by four. It had eighteen bins, each with a capacity of three carloads—reckoned at from one thousand to twelve hundred bushels to a car, which would give the elevator a total capacity of approximately fifty-four thousand bushels. It was originally assessed at $4,500, without the business tax, but as business gradually lessened, taxe were reduced until recently probably about $75 was the amount asked.

Depression Ended It

The depression, bringing low prices for grains, together with some years when lean crops and lean pasturage prevailed in the district causing the farmers to use what grain they raised for feed, and in a major degree, the reduction in an adequate train service locally, were all factors leading to the elevator's falling into disuse. In earlier years, too, a large business in fancy peas was carried on at the elevator, many farmers in the countryside going in for the growing of these grades, for which good prices were paid. Poor crops, following the invasion of pea lice, led to the abandonment of this practice.

Mention has also been made of the fact that instead of individual farmers teaming their grain to the elevator, as was done a few years ago, one or two will buy up the grain from many others and truck it to the station, shipping direct, without reference to the facilities of the elevator at all. Another feature stressed is the big slump in the shipments of oats, this being the result of most of the big firms in Toronto giving up the use of horses for delivery purposes, and using trucks in their place.

The task of dismantling is in the hands of the Peterborough Metal and Waste Company, and the disappearance of this familiar landmark is another backward step apparently inevitable in the life of small communities in modern times.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Dennis, Queen Street, visited in Toronto during the past week-end.

Miss Mary Stephens of Toronto was a week-end visitor of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davidson, Mill Street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Oliver, who are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary on December 27, are planning to hold a reception and will be at home to their friends from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Linton and Mr. Edward Nancarrow motored to Belleville on Sunday, where they visited the latter's brother, Jack Nancarrow, who is ill in the General Hospital.

Bullets In Panay Aimed At Chinese

TOYKO, Dec. 23—(AP).—The foreign office, in what it called an "interim report" on sinking of the United States gunboat Panay by Japanese planes, declared today Japanese surface boats were machine-gunning a Chinese vessel at the time "and there might have been stray bullets flying toward the Panay" from these surface boats.

"It has been reported that when the Panay was bombed army launches fired on the gunboat and also that Japanese soldiers boarded the Panay," the statement said.

"Japanese military authorities have done everything in their power to ascertain the facts regarding the incident. Unfortunately, various army units are scattered over a wide area and means of communication are inadequate. So investigations have been delayed."

A MEAT-PINCHER

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 23—(CP).—A dog found itself at the police station here—brought by a butcher who complained it was stealing meat. The dog's raid was on the market and the butcher said it ruined several dollars' worth.

highways is a reflection and stigma on our modern civilization.

Human Element Fails

"The motor car has been developed to a high state of mechanical perfection and yet accidents continue in appalling numbers. Obviously it must be the human element which fails. If each driver of a motor car can be made to realize that upon him depends the safety of himself, his passengers and others he may meet his individual responsibility and his share of the collective responsibility.

"The law prevails at the Christmas season to the same extent as at other times. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety. That vigilance must not be relaxed at any time or at any pretext."

Tatarescu To Run New Chamber

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 23 A.P.A. — Complete election returns to-day indicated that Premier Tatarescu, with a coalition of Rumania's democratic parties, would control the new Chamber of Deputies.

A marked increase in the strength of the pro-German All-for-Fatherland Party (formerly the Fascist Iron Guard), however, was one of the surprises of Monday's election.

Observers had predicted the A.F.F. would win only 18 seats. Instead it gained third place in the nation by electing 62 deputies.

48 NAMES PLACED IN ALDERMANIC NOMINATIONS

Election Is Assured When Nominees Declare Themselves

Capacity Audience Hears Candidates Discuss Municipal Matters in General

Forty-eight names were placed in nomination for eight vacant seats on the City Council at the nomination proceedings held in the City Council chambers on Thursday night. While there were two slates of aldermen, one for a two-year term and the other for a one-year term, many of the names submitted were placed on both lists and few of the nominees when they spoke intimated in which they would be seeking election.

The two-year list had 28 names and the one year had 20. For the two-year term five aldermen are to be elected while only three are to be elected for one year.

The council chambers were packed to capacity by ratepayers with at least a dozen women present. The proceedings were followed closely by the large audience but on account of the number of speakers a three-minute limit was placed on the length of the addresses. Even with this the audience, many of them sitting there from seven thirty started to go home at 10 o'clock and the last few called, if they were present were not heard.

The names of two women, Mrs. Charles Scott and Mrs. R. H. Turner were placed in nomination on both slates. It is some years since a woman's names has been placed in nomination but no doubt the attendance of ladies revealed that they are taking a keen interest in the civic affairs.

Four of the five retiring aldermen spoke but Alderman James Dutton was unable to be present and the word was being passed around that he was undecided as to whether to seek re-election or not. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. who resigned his seat and is seeking election on the two-year slate was the only other member of the 1937 council to speak.

SPOTS ON BILLS FIRE PRECAUTION

OTTAWA, Dec. 24 (CP).—A mystery to many people and probably unnoticed by the great majority are the "pianchettes" or tiny, colored spots to be found lurking among the whirligigs and pictures on Canadian paper currency.

They are not the result of careless spattering of printers' ink but are deliberately placed within the wave of the paper for a very definite purpose. A bill that doesn't bear them is very likely counterfeit, although their chief purpose is not to guard against counterfeiting.

In the process of manufacturing paper for currency these tiny paper discs, resembling confetti and called "pianchettes," are sprinkled over the surface and rolled into the finished product. There is no pattern except to assure that the discs shall be placed within a limited radius.

Various colors and combinations of colors are used, however, according to the denominations and the banks for which the paper is intended.

Chemically treated, the pianchettes serve as a means of identification in the event money passes through fire or chemical action that renders it otherwise unrecognizable. Analysis of the spots may enable the laboratory to furnish information by which the banks may determine not only the denomination of the bill but the bank which issued it, although the paper might be charred to a cinder or bleached white.

TORONTO, Dec. 24. — If Toronto top city in the Dominion in race-track betting, followed Chicago's lead in legalizing "bookies," chances are revenue accruing to the city's coffers would range somewhere above the million-dollar mark, conservative estimates revealed last night.

Chicago, whose City Council passed an ordinance on Wednesday to legalize handbooks, estimated that $250,000,000 passed through the hands of "bookies" annually. Through a storm of protests from those who claim that to make the handbook gambling industry respectable would open the way to widespread gambling, looms the hope of a $2,000,000 revenue to that city's treasury.

Despite police vigilance here, Toronto still stands forth as one of the chief race-gambling cities on the continent, admittedly as heavy a betting centre, legal and illegal, in proportion to population as any place on the continent.

Up to 100 Bookmakers.

In its eight weeks of legal betting this year, Toronto passed $8,965,959 through the wickets to the pari-mutuels, more than one-third of all the money handled by pari-mutuels in Canada. There is no evidence to establish that when Dufferin closes Toronto ceases interest in the ponies. On the contrary it is estimated that there are somewhere between 750 and 1,000 persons in Toronto with whom bets may be placed.

Chicago proposes to license her "bookies" at somewhere between $1,000 and $5,000 annually, depending on the zone where the broker operates. If Toronto followed this lead the revenue would approach the million mark.

How much money a year Toronto "bookies" handle is, of course, merely a matter for conjecture, but it is estimated at somewhere around at least one-third of Chicago's $250,000,000. But leaving it at $100 a day for the average handbook operator's turnover, and estimating the

BIG CHRISTMAS BUSINESS

Christmas business at the Richard Hall store is substantially ahead of last year, C. H. Saunders told the Examiner this morning. Five days of continuously favorable weather and good roads have sustained throughout the week a heavy volume of buying not only from the people of the city but also of an extensive district from Lindsay to Campbellford, Marmora and Madoc. Open roads have contributed a large part of the activity which is likely to be something like a record in Christmas shopping in this city.

FOSTER BABIES WILL CHEER 200 ONTARIO HOMES

TORONTO, Dec. 24 (C.P.). — A foster child is the Christmas gift to-morrow for more than 200 couples in Ontario who have felt a lack of interest in their lives. Several hundred other couples were disappointed "because there are never enough children suitable for adoption."

For weeks before Christmas applications streamed into the Children's Aid Society branches: In Toronto more than 70 couples sought since November 1 to adopt a child at the Children's Aid Society, but half were disappointed. It placed 53 babies in homes during that time, but some had been applied for earlier.

"A child is the centre of Christmas and at this season of the year people feel a greater need to have a child in the home," said Mrs. Helen Lawrence of the Toronto society. "But the supply never reaches the demand."

Babies sent out for adoption are assured of a more secure future than the average, said Mrs. Lawrence. Foster parents are required to show they are temperamentally stable, emotionally balanced, and have sufficient income "to ensure the child a good future," she said. Although foster parents represent all occupations, the largest group is made up from the business and managerial class, and average an income of $1,800 to $3,000.

Records show the foster father usually is 35 to 39 years of age, his wife is 30 to 34, they have been married about seven years, and are childless. They seek a baby less than 18 months old. More than half prefer girls.

Air Raids on Britain To Be No Cinch

Officials Drop Hint Secret Defence System Will Prove Costly Surprise to Enemy Nation

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(CP)—Horrifying pictures have been painted of the death and destruction which will be wrought by enemy air-raiders in the next war.

Preparations on an unprecedented scale have already been taken by British authorities to meet such a contingency. Throughout the area of concentrated population, citizens are being drilled in measures of self-protection. Plans are being made for construction of huge air-raid shelters; schemes studied for wholesale evacuation of cities; millions of gas-masks distributed throughout the land; incendiary and anti-gas squads enlisted. Every phase of precaution is being canvassed.

Yet, if Britain becomes engulfed in another war, there is a terrifying ordeal in store for attacking airmen—more terrifying than anything conceived during the Great War.

No Easy Targets.

For reasons of national interest, little can be divulged about the active plans to meet the challenge of the air invader during war-time. But London and other British cities will prove far from an easy target for enemy bombs.

Perfection of a secret system of defence has been hinted by aviation officials. The so-called "balloon barrage," has reached a stage where it would prove "uncomfortably effective," to an attacking squadron.

Air-Commodore J. G. Hearson, one of the principal air-defence officers, declared the balloon barrage as part of the defence of London is becoming an accomplished fact.

An attempt to penetrate a balloon barrage over the city, he says would probably result in the loss of an attacking bomber for every balloon destroyed. Confronted with such risks, an enemy would be foolhardy to persevere in an effort to break through.

It is possible balloons carrying high explosive charges, which would be fired from the ground, will be included as a strong moral deterrent to attackers, Hearson said.

FORD IS ORDERED TO REINSTATE 29

DETROIT, Dec. 24—(AP)— The Ford Motor Company, described by the National Labor Relations board as a violator of the Wagner Act which displayed "unconcealed hostility" toward unionization, prepared today to fight the board's decision in the United States Court of Appeals.

The company said immediately after the board's findings were announced yesterday that the decision was "wrong and unjust" and "based on prejudice."

Announcement of the appeal was in line with the general understanding in Detroit that the Ford Company eventually would go to the Supreme Court of the United States, if necessary, to defend its views on management and labor.

GHOST TOWN

KASHABOWIE, Ont.—(CP)—Two years ago the property of the Ardeen Gold Mine here was the centre of bustling activity, but now all that remain are a lone watchman and his dog. The almost complete evacuation has left a ghost town of about 30 homes, mine offices, cookery and sleeping camp.

FRESH JAP NOTE PLEDGES AMENDS

TOKYO, Dec. 24 (A.P.). — The Japanese Government to-day delivered to the United States Ambassador a not pledging amends for the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay and asserting that "definite and specific steps" to prevent a recurrence had been taken.

The note, while holding sinking of the Panay was "entirely due to a mistake," nevertheless said:

"The Japanese navy has issued without delay strict orders 'to exercise the greatest caution in every area where warships and other vessels of America or any other third Power are present, in order to avoid a recurrence of a similar mistake, even at the sacrifice of strategic advantage in attacking Chinese troops.

"Furthermore, rigid orders have been issued to the military, naval, and Foreign Office authorities to pay, in the light of the present untoward incident, greater attention than hitherto to observance of instructions that have been repeatedly given against infringement or unwarranted interference with the rights or interests of the United States and other third Powers."

U.S. NAVY TIGHTENS GRIP ON PACIFIC RESULT OF RAIDS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24 (A.P.) — The United States Navy tightened its guard over the entire Pacific Coast to-day following seizure of a sheaf of letters, described as of a suspicious nature, from a Japanese liner and capture of a Japanese fishing boat by customs agents.

Destroyers continued their patrol off San Diego and San Pedro, fleet bases. Mare Island Navy Yard at San Francisco was ringed with 100 extra guards.

Reports of a raid on the Japanese liner Tatsuta Maru by customs agents just before sailing time at San Francisco were confirmed by United States Attorney Frank Hennessy.

The agents garnered a sheaf of letters, supposedly connected with operations at the Bremerton Navy Yard on Puget Sound yesterday Hennessy said he did not know the letters' contents.

The Government men acted in secrecy, but the San Francisco Chronicle understood the letters had been forwarded to San Francisco from Seattle, across the Sound from Bremerton. The letters bore no stamp, The Chronicle reported, and had been entrusted to an unidentified person aboard.

5TH CHINA CITY RICH HANGCHOW FALLS TO JAPS

Throwing Flag in River Stirs U.S. Anger Anew

SHANGHAI, Dec. 24 (AP).—Japanese tonight announced that Hangchow, rich Chinese seaport and capital of Chekiang Province, 100 miles south of Shanghai, was captured today by troops simultaneously entering all the city's gates.

There was no information immediately on the extent of fighting around Hangchow, but indications were the city had capitulated to avoid bombing, shelling and street fighting.

Earlier Japanese had reported encircling units within five miles of Hangchow, and said the Chinese defenders were cut off.

Hangchow was the fifth of China's great cities to fall into the hands of the invaders, who already had hoisted the Rising Sun flag in Peiping, Tientsin, Shanghai and Nanking.

United States authorities meanwhile made strong representations to the Japanese over the reported throwing of the United States flag into the Yangtze River at Wuhu on December 13. Consul-General Clarence Gauss asked an investigation of the incident at the Yangtze River port 60 miles upstream from Nanking.

Hospital-Owned Ship.

Independent reports received here said Japanese soldiers completing occupation of Wuhu seized a ship owned by an American-operated hospital there, pulled down the United States flag, and threw it in the Yangtze.

Thus far, it was estimated, the Japanese invasion has cost China at least $750,000,000 in property damage, thousands of civilians killed, and dislocation of trade resulting in unemployment and starvation for other thousands.

In addition, British, Americans and other foreigners have counted losses running into millions in the fighting at Shanghai.

WOLVES SERENADE TURBINE NIGHTLY

SUDBURY, Dec. 24 (C.P.). — Wolves are plentiful in the Turbine district about thirty-five miles west of here, according to Mrs. Kusti Kuula, who brought two wolf pelts to Sudbury yesterday to collect the $30 bounty.

"Almost every night between 7 and 11 o'clock you can hear the wolf 'music' plainly," she said. "The wolves in our neighborhood are not very dangerous, but the farmers around the Chicago mine have been complaining about them bothering stock. A lot of deer have been killed by the wolves for almost every hunter this fall reported seeing half-eaten carcasses."

Mrs. Kuula was not sure if the wolf skins she brought in were from brush or timber wolves. They had the appearance of brush wolves but were more than four feet in length. Mr. Kuula, a carpenter at High Falls, who traps in his spare time, caught both wolves in traps.

Her husband has caught one cross fox, three red foxes, and a number of mink in addition to the wolves so far this season.

Took Eye Off Road Second To See "If Mother's Presents Riding All Right"

PORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 24 (CP)—Harold L. Siddall, 26-year-old editor of the Port Erie Times-Review, weekly newspaper, was killed last night when the automobile he was driving plunged into the ditch three miles east of Dunnville.

Siddall was returning from a visit at Canfield where he had received Christmas gifts from his mother. Accompanied by Gordon Needam of Buffalo, he had hoped to attend a late meeting here to arrange for distribution of presents in connection with Port Erie's community Christmas tree.

Not seriously injured, Needham said Siddall took his eye from the highway a moment to look in the back seat and "see if mother's presents are riding all right." The car wheels caught in a rut on the shoulder of the highway, throwing the machine in the ditch. Siddall's neck was broken.

The young editor had been connected with the Fort Erie paper for five years. Previously he was employed by the Welland-Port Colborne Evening Tribune at Port Colborne. Married six months ago, he is survived by his widow.

Britain In Midst Of Spending Spree With Cash Moving At New High

London, Dec. 24 (CP Cable)

GREAT Britain is in the midst of its biggest Christmas spending spree for years, judging by currency and trade figures. The Bank of England announced today its note circulation for last week set an all-time record of £809,315,648 ($2,546,578,230) or almost £30,000,000 above the corresponding week of 1936.

One large London department store reported the busiest day of its history. Smithfield Meat Market—clearing house for London's meat supplies—said demand was equal to any previous good year.

The postoffice is using 80,000 extra men throughout the country to handle a flood of letters and parcels. Railways are operating extra trains and extra sections Thursday and Friday to accommodate travellers. All stations are packed with persons heading home for the weekend.

Barren Land Trapper Vanishes, Wife, Child Found Starving

Plane Brings Pair To Outpost But Plucky Woman Returns To Seek Husband

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Dec. 24 (CP). — Chance visit of a Barren Land's trapper to a neighborhood cabin, 700 miles north of here, has brought to light disappearance of a trapper and discovery of his wife and child on the verge of starvation.

Tucked away in the wilds of the Boyd Lake country in the Northwest Territories, the cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Brussee held only Mrs. Brussee and her small child when Fred Riddle visited it recently. The husband and father had walked out of the cabin toward the end of last October with a rifle over his shoulder, dressed in light clothing, never to be seen or heard of since.

Despite diligent search by Mrs. Brussee throughout the area as far as she dared to travel with her child, no sign of the missing man could be found.

Riddle's chance visit brought the news to the outside world, and two days ago a Canadian Airways plane piloted by Bill Windrum penetrated deep into the Barren Land country to bring out Mrs. Brussee and the child to Stony Rapids, 250 miles south.

After gathering together a large supply of food, Mrs. Brussee again boarded the plane and returned to the family's outpost cabin on Boyd Lake, there to await the return of her husband or learn his fate.

Takes Election Loss Very Lightly

Wingham, Dec. 24

THOMAS J. MacLean, defeated Independent-Conservative candidate in Huron-Bruce, spent $1.09 trying to be elected in the recent Provincial contest.

Complying with the election law, he has published an itemized statement of his expenses.

In contrast to the expenses of the other candidates, which ran into hundreds of dollars, Mr. MacLean states that 9 cents was expended for postage and $1 for the publication of the expense notice.

Last Minute News Flashes

OTTAWA. — Officers of the Air Division, Department of Transport, said to-day there was no foundation for a Washington report that Canada was blocking United States plans for air mail services to Alaska. "That was settled months ago," said J. A. Wilson, Controller of Civil Aviation. "They asked for and were given a license to fly over Canadian territory. There are no outstanding applications from the United States and the story is absolutely wrong."

BROCKVILLE. — Fire believed to be of incendiary origin early to-day damaged the Brockville Rowing Club clubhouse, burning at least two racing shells and eight or 10 skiffs and canoes.

New York, Dec. 24 (CP)

A WASHINGTON despatch to the New York Herald Tribune today says:

United States government plans for a regular airmail route connecting the United States with Alaska, a commercial proposition but possessed of a strong connection with national defence, has run into difficulties with Canada it was learned today.

Because the planes must fly over Canadian territory unless they keep out over the sea, permission of the Dominion Government is required. The failure of Ottawa to assent has delayed the project here and caused something of a furor among interested American officials.

There is the more irritation since serious dangers in the far east have emphasized the military necessity of maintaining steady communication between the United States and Alaska and building up this northern outpost which stretches far toward Asia.

ARCTIC NATIVES AID WHITES AT CHRISTMAS

Eskimos Drop Trapping To Reach Posts For Week Of Festivities

TORONTO, Dec. 24 (CP)—In a score of tiny trading posts in Canada's sub Arctic and at many deep within the Arctic Circle white men and women will celebrate Christmas as best they can and think of their kin folk and friends living amid the comforts of civilization. With the whites making merry will be hundreds of Eskimo men, women and children who have come to look forward with glee to the festivities.

People in the Arctic posts will be able to communicate with other posts tomorrow by radio and a comprehensive broadcast has been arranged centering in Nottingham Island, at the western end of Hudson Bay and about the middle of the network of radio transmission stations, government and amateur, now in operation in the eastern Arctic.

In every place a joyous holiday was anticipated. There are no trees in Santa Claus land so the residents use paper and cloth streamers to fill in for decoration. Two or three of the posts will have roast turkeys and plum puddings however.

It will be a great occasion for the natives. As soon after the freeze up in the early fall as it is possible to travel over snow, the natives move out to isolated locations to trap white foxes, their main source of revenue. The wives and children go as well as the men and, of course, all the dogs the families possess. But when Christmas approaches they turn towards the posts which form the centre of their community. For the past week they have been on the move—mushing to the bright lights of the Christmas celebrations.

Week of Feaste at Coppermine

At Coppermine turkeys and other seasonable delicacies will be enjoyed during the holiday season. They were brought in by Mackenzie Air Service planes. The white trappers are at their trap lines but native families are arriving daily. Christmas day services will be conducted by the Roman Catholic and Anglican missions. The remainder of the day will be spent in feasting and native dances.

Christmas dinners will extend over the week and are being planned at the Hudson's Bay Company Post, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks and at the missions. In addition to the turkeys there will be roast ptarmigan, a native delicacy, and caribou.

On Christmas afternoon Rev. J. H. Webster will christen Emilie Elizabeth, daughter of H. B. C. Postmanager J. Nichols and Mrs. Nichols. Emilie was born at Bathurst Inlet, east of here, where Mr. Nichols was formerly post manager. She was the first white child to be born in that district and without doctor or nurse in attendance.

WINNIPEG WHEAT FUTURES HOLD UP

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24.— (CP). — Scarcity of contract offers bolstered wheat futures on Winnipeg grain exchange this week in pre-holiday trading when prices threatened to collapse under outside bearish influences.

Despite continued pressure of Australian new-crop wheat which brought new low levels for the year at Liverpool and apathy on the part of buyers, wheat closed Thursday ½ to 2 cents lower than last Friday. December finished the week at $1.24¾, May $1.16½ and July $1.09¾.

Because of Canada's smallest spring wheat crop in 20 years, Canadian offerings were light, resulting in extremely uninteresting action on the exchange. Daily volumes slumped to around 1937 low levels. Australian shippers offered freely in addition to United State soft winters being tendered on Liverpool contracts.

United States wheat leaned to the firm side in quiet dealings. Wheat exports were small but corn sales improved sharply with sales of nearly 2,000,000 bushels, reflecting partially in wheat futures trading.

Sales of Canadian wheat for export were small, with an exceptionally slight interest shown in No. 4 northern for shipment in May from Atlantic ports.

NORMAL BLOOD has a count of 4,500,000 red corpuscles. If your blood count is below this you just can't feel well, because only these tiny cells can carry the necessary nourishment from your food and the energizing oxygen from your lungs to every part of your body. With a low blood count you're bound to be always tired, easily upset, nervous and depressed, without appetite, sleepless, under weight. Everything is drudgery.

You needn't go on in this way! Take Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Originated by a Canadian physician, this tested tonic quickly raises your blood count. You get new energy and vigour, your depression and nervousness disappear, your appetite and normal weight return, you sleep soundly, and your life is worth living again. If this is not you, experience your money will be refunded. 50c at all druggists.

THROWS GASOLINE ON BURNING COALS HAS CLOSE CALL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 24.—When his clothing caught fire as a result of throwing gasoline on hot coals in the stove, Albert Wellman, of this village, narrowly escaped serious burns Wednesday morning. His father, W. Wellman, ex-fire chief, wrapped bed clothing about the youth's body and was able to smother the flames before the blaze could do serious damage.

The boy was in the act of putting gasoline in the stove and when the explosion took place, threw the tin can containing gasoline into the next room setting it on fire. His father extinguished the burning clothing of his son and then made a dash to put out the flames in the kitchen, requiring nearly five minutes, with the aid of bed clothing.

Albert received painful, but not serious burns about the face and hands and his father had one hand slightly burned.

CATTLE AND HOGS ADVANCE IN WEEK, SHEEP HOLD OWN

TORONTO, Dec. 24.—(CP)—Cattle prices gained 25 to 50 cents on Monday's light supply on the Toronto livestock market but half the advance was lost in later trading, the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves eased after a strong opening. Hogs moved up 35 to 40 cents cwt. during the week while sheep and lambs were unchanged.

Good butcher steers and heifers sold up to $6.50 Monday with tops at $6.25 for the balance of the week. Most butcher cattle traded between $4.50 and $5.50 with common as low at $3.50. One load of choice heavy steers brought $7.75 at the opening with other weighty steers going between $5.50 and $7.50.

Butcher cows ranged from $3 to $4.25, with canners mostly $2. Good butcher bulls brought $3.60 to $4.50, and bolognas $3.25 to $3.50. Fed calves moved at $8.50 to $9 for choice, and downward to $6 for mediums. Store cattle offerings were too few to establish a market, sales on stockers ranging from $3.50 to $4.50 cwt. for common to medium quality. Milkers and springers were slow at $65 to $70 tops.

Export buying sent top calves up to $10.50 on Monday. Few calves were above $10 thereafter, and common ranged downward to $5. Some rough grassers sold at $3.50 to $4.25.

Gain Tottery.

Hogs advanced under a light run and the gain was not expected to hold under normal supplies. Bacons closed at $8.35 to $8.40 off trucks, with some long hauls a little higher.

Good lambs delivered by rail sold at $7.75 with off truck ewes and wethers at $7.50. A few fancy Southdowns sold up to $9 cwt. Other grades brought $6 to $7 cwt. Sheep sold at $1.50 to $2 for culls and up to $4.50 cwt. for good light ewes.

BALANCED CIRCUIT IN CHURCH HOCKEY

Prospective entries into the Church Hockey League have this week-end to decide as Monday, December 27, is the closing date for entries. A big well-balanced loop is expected to start shortly, possibly with four games on December 30. The executive will meet on Tuesday at seven p.m. in the Y to take care of considerable business. There is the usual ironing out to do in most churches regarding entry into the various sections, but officers feel confident everything will be set early in the week for play.

Games will be at All Saints' Rink, though there is the possibility also of Mark Street and St. Luke's having home games at the Quaker Rink. The former is entering a juvenile squad, while Carl Ferguson may get a junior team from the good supply at Mark Street. Age limits are: Midgets, under 15, by January 1; juveniles, under 17; juniors, under 20; intermediates no limit. Further information may be had by getting in touch with any of the league officers: President, Lloyd Parnell; vice-prexy, George Eason; secretary, Don Charlton; assistant secretary, Art Beauclere.

CURLING

Echoes From No. 'S'

By HERB MARTIN

Tomorrow (Saturday) is Christmas Day and while there has been no particular program arranged, the rink will be open until 6 o'clock for curlers and their friends. There will be no curling in the evening.

And so for another year we would like to express to each and every member of the two organizations that we have the honor and privilege to be associated with, lawn bowling and curling. The hope that Christmas time fulfills your every wish and dream." And while we members are enjoying good health, we must not forget that there are some of our number who at the present time are not so fortunate and we feel sure that we are voicing the sentiments of the entire club while we say, that may their recovery to good health be as speedy as possible and before long we will be able to hear the sound of their voices.

CHRISTMAS FOR SQUIRRELS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP). — The White House Christmas spirit brought joy to-day to a little family of grey squirrels that roam the west grounds. A one-foot pine tree trimmed with a silver star and icicles, and loaded with peanuts dangling from white strings, was placed on the lawn outside the presidential mansion.

No Surrender squad to a standstill and got away with the flag, just leaving the halyards behind.

Rumary's Antiques not only withstood the attacks of the Moose herd but also came home with a couple of heads to ornament their hunting lodge.

The Fighting Parsons took the No Surrender squad to task and took away the Orange colors to put in the Sons of England oak chest.

Those Central School Playboys are cerainly playing whoopee these days and plastered the Curtis Brickyard gang with all sorts of brick bats.

Where are those brilliant Fire Hall players? The Braidwood Rovers called on the Chief and his wandering minstrels in their own backyard and sat on the fencing laughing as they stole the nozzles off the hose-lines.

The scars started showing up on Bill Davis' coat, but the Groombridge Auto Trimmers put on a double decker and covered up the scars.

Those Central School boys trounced the Fire Chiefs to the worst defeat any team has received this season by a score of 5 to 30.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24. — Stymied by absence of support, wheat futures failed to make headway in a grab session on Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Thursday, closing ½c lower to ¼c higher.

Trading virtually came to a stop at times as pre-holiday atmosphere continued. Export business was small, mostly of No. 4 Northern for shipment from Atlantic ports in May.

Futures traded under the previous close most of the morning, dropping 1¼c to 1⅝c, but rallying power in the May position occurred through minor spreading operations, both local and from Southern firms.

Lower outside markets, particularly Liverpool, where pressure of Australian offers brought out liquidation, had an influence here. Light offerings, however, provided for one of the smallest trading sessions on the Winnipeg Exchange during 1937.

A sharp decrease in Black Sea wheat shipments this week resulted in movement of only 728,000 bushels, compared with 1,304,000 last week.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James

THE CHRISTMAS GIFT.

Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.—St. Luke 2, 11.

Where was Christ born? Every Christian child known—in Bethlehem. Yet how few know the meaning of Bethlehem. It is "the house of bread" because of the fertility of the district in sharp contrast to the hilly, barren country all around.

When David fled from his son Absalom, Barzillai generously and loyally helped him to escape. When David was restored to the throne he rewarded Barzillai with a gift of land near Bethlehem on which, according to Jewish tradition, his son Chimham built an inn. Four hundred years later Jeremiah speaks of this inn of Chimham. Another six hundred years pass by and the innkeeper at eventide tells the two descendants of David that he cannot offer them hospitality. "There was no room for them in the inn." However, he leads them into a cave stable. There the Saviour was born and cradled in a manger.

Poverty is the outstanding thought. The Holy Family abiding in the stable among the cattle and the Babe sleeping in the manger. It is the glorification of poverty. "Though Jesus Christ was rich yet for your sakes He became poor that ye through His poverty might be rich," says St. Paul.

Inspired by the Lord's example, countless men and women have willingly embraced poverty and worked in the darkest portions of the earth among the very poor that they might win them to Christ. Christianity recognizes that the poor, no matter what his racial origin, should have the Gospel preached to him; the Good News that God came down and was born of the Virgin Mary and lived the life of a poor man and understands his hardships and desires to give him of His Spirit that he may become like God.

Above all, the Babe cradled in the manger is "God manifest in the flesh." God has condescended to be born into this world a helpless Infant and to grow up as a Child God has glorified childhood. God has lifted up infancy and childhood to a high plane. The babe and the child is important, not for cannon fodder, but because he is made in the image of God and that God was once a child. It is Our Lord's own desire that children should be brought to Him from their very earliest days. "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of God."

Is there a little child in your home? You are planning to give him presents and much happiness at Christmastide. This is right. But there are other little children who have not such a comfortable home as yours. It is your privilege to think of them and to do something for them. As a thankoffering for all the happiness you are able to bring into your home give freely to some child, who will be overjoyed and will not be able to return the gift in kind. Do it personally, if at all possible, and not through some organization. Enter the home with Christian courtesy and sympathy, and offer your gift even as the wise men offered; for you are offering it to the Lord Christ Himself, in His Name and in His Presence.

It is good for us to meditate upon the fact of the Christmas Gift in the words of an ancient prayer:

Almighty God, Who hast given us Thy only-begotten Son to take our nature upon Him, and as at this time to be born of a pure Virgin: Grant that we, being regenerate and made Thy children by adoption and grace, may daily be renewed by Thy Holy Spirit; through the same Our Lord Jesus Christ, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the same Spirit, ever one God, world without end.

Christian Consecration

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 26 is Mark 1:16-20 and Philippians 1:1-30, the Golden Text being Phil. 1:21, "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain.")

IF YOU WANT a job done ask a busy man to do it. This must have been the policy of our Lord in the selection of his disciples. He chose them not from the men standing idly in the marketplace, but from those busy at their fishing or mending their nets or busy receiving taxes at the custom house.

Called to Consecrate

He called men from one activity to dedicate the same talents more fruitfully in another activity. "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. And straightway they left the nets and followed him." From catching fish they followed him in catching men: from recording tax payments to recording parables, miracles and the facts of Jesus' life, death and resurrection. At his call they dedicated their talents to his uses. This is consecration: setting aside to Christ's use whatever he indicates he wants of us.

Paul's Example

The ages have produced no better example of complete consecration than that found in Paul of Tarsus. "To me to live is Christ" is the keynote not only of his letter to the Philippians, but to his whole life. Christ was Paul's all in all. What happened to Paul was of no concern; its effect on the cause of Christ was all that mattered. So he was uncomplaining in prison: "I thank my God upon all my remembrance of you, always in supplication of mine on behalf of you all, making my supplication with joy." He was unconcerned for self, but tremendously concerned about the welfare of others: "I have you in my heart . . . ye all are partakers with me of grace . . . I long after you all in the tender mercies of Christ Jesus." The consecrated life is thus always a selfless life.

A Contagious Life

The consecrated life is a contagious life. Paul's example inspired others to courageous living: "Most of the brethren in the Lord, being confident through my bonds, are more abundantly bold to speak the word of God without fear . . . Christ is proclaimed; and therein I rejoice, yea, and I will rejoice." The unselfish life he lived made its appeal irresistably to all about him. "Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether by life or by death. For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Paul's sole motive in living was to exalt Christ and serve Christ's disciples. This gave him confidence, and his immortality until his work was done: "Having this confidence, I know that I shall abide, yea, and abide with you all, for your progress and joy in the faith."

A Consistent Life

The consecrated life is contagious, confident, consistent and constant. "Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ . . . that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one soul striving for the faith of the gospel; and in nothing affrighted by the adversaries . . . because to you it hath been granted in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer in his behalf." Let us find our joy for a Happy New Year as Paul found his in the joy of consecrated life. "Rejoice in the Lord always: and again I say, Rejoice."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

To our friends in Peterborough and district, to all who, looking towards the past, follow the bright Star of Love in sincerity and in Truth, the Rosicrucian Order and Associated Brotherhoods extends all good wishes that in your hearts you find the mystic Bethlehem of the Love of God made manifest, and that Peace Profound, the Peace that passeth all understanding, be with you at this holy season.

LACTANTIUS III.

In the early days of Christianity, before the church was perverted and used by Constantine for political purposes, there were two circles of the teaching, the outer and the inner or mystical. In other words, the milk for the babes and the meat for the spiritually adult that St. Paul refers to. In this, Christianity was and is, no exception to all the other great and true religions of the world. Equally with these others, has Christianity suffered violence at the hands of its more zealous followers, who in all sincerity, mistaking the shadow for the substance, the letter for the spirit, have practically ignored the inner mystical side of their creeds, and even denied there is aught else but the outer side they have sought to enforce. The curious thing about it all is that when we examine the teachings of the various religions, in their primitive simplicity and from the mystical standpoint, we find there is very little difference in them. What difference there is is more a matter of terminology than anything else, certainly not a difference of inner truth. In each case, however, we find that doctrine has been added to doctrine, interpretation to interpretation until a cumbersome structure of theology has been built up having only a superficial relation to the ideals of the Founders. The tragedy lies in the fact that these additions have come to be regarded as essentials and the tremendous simplicity, a simplicity that baffles the understanding of the relationship of man to God, has been lost sight of. We have intolerances instead of mutual understanding and sympathy. We may compare the Truth of God to a light encased in a great lantern with many colored glasses. One man sees it as red, another blue, yellow or so forth, and each declares the light to be of the color that he sees and of no other. Yet there is but one light and that is white, comprising all the colors in itself.

God is not unmindful of His children, and all are created in His image and likeness. He dwells in the heart of each one of us. We should recognize that the Christian fold is not the only fold of the Good Shepherd. Our duty is to help each to gain the most from that aspect of the Light which he is most fitted to apprehend. As we have said, the deeper we go, the more we see that Truth is One, that the differences are man-made and not of God. Before we condemn other religions, let us make sure that we fully understand our own and fully apply it in our lives.

A National Message

The world is hastening to the time of the last great struggle. We are not trying to define the year, or even the decade when the great culmination will come. But it is near.

If that were all we should be filled with foreboding. But we are forewarned that Satan will bring this on only when his time is ending. He will mass his forces, spiritual, mental and physical, only when he knows that the Son of Man, Who is the Son of God, is on His way to take His kingdom.

By the fact that the last great outbreak precedes the actual coming of the Christ, we can understand the word of the Master: "When ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors."

When the crash of battle has given place to the silence that will follow, then it will be seen that the militaristic organizations have spent their power, destroyed their manhood, and broken themselves forever.

By inheritance the "meek" will enter upon the great task of the reorganization of the world according to the terms and principles of the Kingdom of God.

"Ask of me and I shall give unto thee the heathen for thine inheritance."

"Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron: thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel."

It used to be presented to my mind, as a boy, that this terrible thing should happen to the unrepentent sinner. Perhaps that is true. But evidently the meaning here is that the hostile governments and military armies and formations shall be broken and dashed to pieces.

So the military system shall be wholly and completely swept out of the earth. Some of our zealots would do this for the Lord before He comes. But alas, "this kind goeth out" not even by prayer and fasting, as the Church of God has found throughout the ages; but only by the command and power of our returning Lord. Thou, O Lord, shalt do all this for us, and we shall be glad.

Is that time approaching now? Well, let us see. We have now a National Government (in Great Britain made up of members elected by all parties. We have a vigilant Opposition in Parliament. All are agreed upon the activity now being pressed at top speed, namely, that of war preparation, believing that the last and only chance of diverting the storm from our own shores is to allow it to be known that we are prepared to meet it, and to weather it by the grace of God, if and when it comes.

The whole nation would not be pressing forward in this grim task without reason.

We have a vigilant and experienced "city," careful of the nation's financial standing. They make their voices heard in the right quarter when there is any tendency to waste expenditures. Their voices are silent.

It is time to pray day and night to the God of Israel, for His protection, and to keep our powder dry.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Christian Consecration

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 1:16-20; Phil. 1:1-30.

When Jesus wanted workers he sought them among men busy at work. Finding some fishermen he said, "Follow me and I will make you to become fishers of men."

Imprisoned for his faith Paul wrote a letter to his friends at Philippi, showing his joy in being a Christian, "To me to live is Christ," he said.

"I have you in my heart," he told them. "I long after you all in the tender mercies of Christ Jesus" . . . Because he could still preach Christ, he said, "I rejoice, and I will rejoice."

He urged that they find their joy not only in believing in Christ but also in suffering in his behalf. (GOLDEN TEXT—Phil. 1:21)

THE BEDPOST WAS NO PHANTOM. SCROOGE REALLY WAS BACK IN HIS OWN BED. HE WAS BESIDE HIMSELF WITH JOY. "HEAVEN AND CHRISTMAS TIME BE PRAISED FOR THIS," HE CRIED.

SCROOGE HELD HIS BEDCURTAINS IN HIS ARMS. "THEY ARE NOT TORN DOWN. THEY ARE HERE, RINGS AND ALL." HE PATTED HIS CLOTHES AND TURNED THEM IN AND OUT. "THE SHADOWS OF THINGS THAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN SHALL BE DISPELLED," HE CRIED.

AT THE WINDOW SCROOGE DRANK IN THE CLEAR, WINTRY AIR. "WHAT DAY IS THIS?" HE ASKED OF A BOY. "WHY, CHRISTMAS DAY," THE BOY SAID. "I HAVEN'T MISSED IT. THE SPIRITS DID IT ALL IN ONE NIGHT," CRIED SCROOGE.

SCROOGE DID MANY GOOD THINGS. NEXT DAY HE RAISED BOB'S SALARY. AND TO TINY TIM HE BECAME A SECOND FATHER. IT WAS ALWAYS SAID OF HIM THAT HE KNEW HOW TO KEEP CHRISTMAS WELL. AND SO, AS TINY TIM OBSERVED, "GOD BLESS US, EVERYONE!" THE END

Christmas Means Giving

There was a great star and a heavenly host to announce the coming of the first Christmas. Apart from that there was a deal of simplicity and of what we might be inclined to regard as poverty connected with it. The news was not first told to kings or governments, but rather to men who tended sheep by night, a useful enough occupation although humble.

The manner in which we celebrate the coming of Christmas has increased in extent. Business in general experiences a good season from it. The making of gifts and the sending of greetings has gained a momentum which shows no signs of decreasing.

Christmas has become as well one of the strong ties which hold homes together. When the young people go away to seek their places in the world the urge to go home for Christmas remains. If they cannot make the trip at any other time they will do it at Christmas. The memory of past experience under the home roof remains; Christmas was always a day separate and apart from other days. So it is that whether we are all aware of the deep spiritual significance of the day, it has left its mark upon us and the mark has been for good.

We need Christmas and for that reason alone it is well that its significance has not become dim. We need more than all else to beat our way back to that first Christmas to make sure that we have not in the time between forfeited much of its original substance. It may be we give things away at Christmas and fail to ponder the fact that we have little indeed apart from that which in turn is given to us. Life itself we prize above all else, and it was given to us. The ability to see and to hear are matters we did not arrange. The sun by day and the stars and the moon by night were given to us. We could not create the air we breathe, the clothing we wear nor the food which we eat. It has all been provided for us.

Nations wage wars over the control of land or seas, yet nations created neither of these. We speak perhaps with a degree of boastfulness at times about our great water powers, but we did not create them. They were given to us. So were our mineral wealth and our timber wealth.

Heaven's greatest gift to earth was the child Jesus. Our finite mind is not able to comprehend what that gift cost. Heaven was stripped of its glory to make that first Christmas possible. And right there is what we are celebrating at this glad season of the year. If we can see and feel the full-freighted glory of the day we shall be richer for the experience.

Glad We Have Them

Now and then one hears the claim that there are a few people who are "trying to run the city." When that remark is made it is not intended as a compliment, but rather to create the impression that the municipality is in the hands of a clique or some such self-serving body.

We are inclined to the belief that it is a good thing there are some citizens left who respond to the urge to help to run the city, otherwise we might well enough find ourselves in a poor and rather embarrassing position.

If there had not been a few of these interested people in existence there would not have been any nominations made for the office of mayor, for Board of Education or for Public Utilities in this city. It has been stated it is difficult to know whether such an attitude is one of indifference or complete satisfaction. There was hardly more than a corporal's guard in attendance to nominate members of the Board of Education, and yet the city has over a million dollars invested in school buildings, and we pay about $285,000 per year to operate the schools. Certainly it is well that we have a few of those people who are at times referred to as "trying to run the city" who took the trouble to attend nomination meeting.

We prefer to regard the lack of interest to satisfaction in the way business is conducted in Peterborough. Certainly if there were any degree of dissatisfaction it would become assertive and seek a channel for expression by way of a change in the personnel of governing bodies. If that surmise is not correct and it becomes necessary to fall back on the explanation that it is lack of interest then the lack is nothing short of astounding in its degree. No matter which view one cares to take, we are grateful that we still possess a few of those people "who are trying to run the city."

Financing The Counties

Five years ago Brant county council had a debenture debt of $317,000. The last report shows the debt now stands at $124,000. The reason for the change is that there has been a reversion to the old plan of pay-as-you-go. Brant county council is thus on the way to join the select company of counties which have no debenture debt at all. And when there is no debenture debt there is no interest money to pay and there is no need of making annual provision for the wiping off of a debt because none exists.

There are, we believe, about seven counties in Ontario where there is no debenture debt; there are others where it is not large, and the general method of financing by county councils has something in it which ought to be commended.

There is also something discouraging in the situation. For this reason: Counties whose councils have made honest effort to keep free of debt find that on a per capita basis their people are more in debt today than they ever were. Federal and provincial governments have for a number of years been increasing their debts, and these debts are so large that we could not pay them off even if we desired to do so. Paying the carrying charges is about all our governments are able to handle, and cutting down on interest rates has come to be regarded as somewhat of a financial accomplishment. But the debt principal remains.

So the plain fact is that while many of our county councils have been striving to pay their bills when they were incurred rather than following the custom of passing them along for future payment, our other governments have been increasing standing debts, and on a per capita basis the people in these counties are more in debt than they have ever been before. There is something worth thinking about in that, especially when some one rises to suggest it is time to do away with county councils.

There Will Be No Response

A grand jury in Buffalo has returned indictments for fraud and perjury against seven city council members and nine civic officials. On that account Mayor-Elect Day of Toronto had something to say about the conduct of civic business in his city. If any citizen has reason to believe there is any form of graft in civic administration then Mr. Day would like to hear about it.

But he wants it put in writing and delivered to him.

And that is probably a wise enough provision. It is easy enough to make charges about there being graft in civic business or any other kind of business, but it is more effective and more impressive to place such charges in writing and sign a name. Such a plan will cut off a lot of loose talk and damaging gossip on the part of those who like to believe they know where wrong exists but who in reality know nothing about it.

It is not likely that the 1938 Mayor of Toronto will receive communications charging graft. When he asks for them in writing he can be tolerably certain he will receive none at all.

The Preacher's New Coat

A minister at Chatham was in court complaining that some person had stolen his overcoat. And it was a new one. The man who is said to have done the stealing was also in court, and from there he went to spend two months in jail.

Just how a minister should look at such a case we do not know for sure. As a rule we expect them to do all sorts of things which we ourselves would not do. They are not supposed to grow angry on short notice; they are supposed to keep the purse strings open and to receive all who come for aid and send them on their way rejoicing.

But losing an overcoat, and a new one, with winter settling down for business, comes in a peculiar classification. There is some reference to clothing in Matthew, where it says: "And if any man will sue thee at law and take thy coat, let him have thy cloke also." But of course that does not say anything about a man going into the home and stealing a new overcoat even if it was the minister's coat.

They Paid For It

There was a bonfire in what is known as the Chinatown of Chicago. Chinese merchants provided goods from their stores; goods which had been made in Japan; the younger element in the gathering fed these to the flames.

One can well enough understand the meaning of all this. It was in order to protest against Japan's invasion of China and to serve notice that no Japanese goods would be handled in the Chinese stores.

Japan was not directly affected by that gesture because the goods had been bought and paid for. It made not the least difference to the manufacturers in Japan whether the goods were sold over the counter or destroyed by fire. It will be the refusal to place any more orders which will be noticed in the trade of Japan.

There is this to be said for the Chinese merchants who made the bonfire possible—they have national feeling or patriotism of a sort, and in order to give vent to it they were prepared to do something for which they themselves would have to pay. And that is not a bad sort of patriotism to possess.

Out In The Open

It is reported that law enforcement officers at Ottawa frown upon the idea of opening down-town betting offices. Betting on horse races in Canada is an illegal thing apart from betting at the tracks where the pari-mutuel system is in operation and where the provincial government takes a share of the proceeds. All those who operate betting places elsewhere are breaking the law and are liable to be prosecuted.

It is common knowledge that there is a great deal of betting on horse races taking place all the time in virtually every community in the country. It is carried on in back shops, in attics and in cellars. Now and then police raid such places, but where they put one out of business there is little enough to prevent two more from starting.

This paper does not hesitate to say that it believes the person who bets money on horse races is not well-advised. He is trying to beat an unbeatable game. But not approving of a thing does not mean that it will cease to exist and betting on horse races does exist. Its existence is attested by the number of people who want to follow the newspapers which devote most space to horse races.

So the question settles down to this: Is it better to have this betting business done in cellars, garrets and back shops which are padlocked when the police arrive, or have it brought right out in the open. The government sells liquor through its recognized stores rather than pass the trade over to the bootleggers, and the same reason exists for driving the betting business out into the open. We admit frankly we would take no great pride in pointing to a betting office as one of our recognized institutions, but we believe it would be better than having the betting done in the underground system which is now in operation.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We would like to be able to print a picture of the Christmas cards Premiers King and Hepburn exchanged this Yuletide.

With 150 more K.C.'s scattered through the province the legal profession cannot claim to be overlooked in the matter of decorations.

With this place Campbell's Bay butting into the headlines White River had better look to its laurels as Ontario's coldest spot.

Now it is stated that Major Douglas is not charging the Alberta government anything for his advice. They seem to have got the thing on a fair basis at last.

Premier King has decided to save his ammunition until parliament meets so that should give a chance for that "peace on earth, goodwill to men" spirit to develop during the Yuletide.

Twenty years ago Gordon S. Matthews' father, T. F. Matthews was also elected to the Utilities Commission by acclamation. History has a way of repeating itself.

A wolf has been reported roaming around in the vicinity of Niagara Falls. Perhaps he has wandered from the doorstep of one of the victims of the latest stock market debacle.

Mayor-elect Ralph Day of Toronto has asked council to provide him with a cheaper car. It is a gesture that suggests the taxpayer may be going to get a chance to get out of his familiar role of forgotten man.

Arthur Germain, C.N.R. engineer, retired on pension at 65, was driving the crack International Limited when he made his last run. The railways evidently have different ideas than some industries as to a man's skill and dependability after he has reached the age of 45.

SMART MAN

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The burglar man set out at night, when locks and doors were fastened tight, when everything was dark; he was a clever sort of jay, who had his own abundant way, to take the locks apart.

¶ The burglar man lived high indeed, and never did he come to need, for toil he never yearned; a fair good living he could make, by merely wandering out to take, what other folk had earned.

¶ He laughed at constables and such, declared they were not up to much, above the ears were dead; he was secure when at his trade, no cause for him to be afraid, as safe as being in bed.

¶ He tapped the lock and entered in, and no one caught a glimpse of him, for he was very smart; he would be hardly worth his salt, if he could not pry out that vault, and take the thing apart.

¶ The village constable strolled by, he was six feet three inches high, he topped two hundred pounds; he paused to listen as he came, it seemed to him correct and plain, he heard some burglar sounds.

¶ The burglar had no chance to run, for he was covered with a gun, it pointed at his ears; the burglar man appeared next day, he heard the cadi up and say—I'll give you just five years.

IN HIS BOOK "I Know These Dictators" George Ward Price ace correspondent of the London Daily Mail tells some interesting details concerning Hitler and Mussolini who have, he says, one thing in common, both are fatalists. Mussolini believes in his star; Hitler although not a professing Christian believes that Providence has called him to save Germany.

The favorite dishes of vegetarian Hitler are Nudelsuppe a soup with little dumplings in it; spinach, apples and cold hard-boiled eggs with mayonnaise sauce. He tries to keep his weight down, and drinks neither tea or coffee but at tea time he cannot resist chocolate eclairs.

Hitler studies state documents usually in the early hours of the morning and goes to bed about 4 o'clock. Only in his country house in Bavaria can he get to sleep without a sleeping draught which he takes in capsule form at the evening meal. When his public duties permit he stays in bed until noon.

Under the Nazi jacket of his uniform Hitler wears white silk shirts. He says that when he was a poor young man in Vienna he decided that when he became rich he would permit himself the luxury of a fireplace in every room and changing his shirt twice a day.

Unlike Mussolini Hitler has no love of speed, no ambition to drive cars and motor-cycles along his fast new highways. His train must not exceed 35 miles an hour, although that is mainly due to the fact that the Chancellor is a bad sleeper.

Ireland's Peat Fuel.

TO THE STRANGER who is passing through Northern Ireland the scent of peat smoke will be a distinctive experience. The smoke may be seen curling from hundreds of cottages and its incense quality deepens the peace of summer evenings on many a tranquil hillside.

The turf is cut in the peat bogs and carted to the homesteads where it is dried and stored. The peculiarly shaped turf-carts are still to be seen, remote from cities. The fuel is much cheaper than coal and there is an unfailing supply. It has the quality of burning to a fineness that leaves no residue. There are hearths in Ulster where the kitchen fire has not been extinguished for centuries. The explanation is that the fires of overnight are still alive in the morning when the good woman arises to replenish it and stir it into new life.

In a Bosnian village near Banyalouka an old man makes a living by drawing teeth that do not ache. His patients are peasants who have worked abroad for some years—in France or America—where they have earned enough to have fillings or artificial teeth of gold, silver or platinum. When these affluent emigrants returned to their own soil they soon became poor again and now they exchange their teeth for money. The old man performs the dental operation in the open, binding his patients to an ancient plum tree and yanking with more energy than skill. He sells the precious fillings or teeth to a jeweler in Banyalouka.

Judge S. D. McLellan of Truro has completed 50 years as judge of probate in Colchester County N. S. Last year he celebrated the 50th anniversary of his admittance to the bar and is still in active practice with his son, Robert. He was appointed to his present office in 1887 when W. S. Fielding was provincial secretary. The shortest will in his files is that of W. G. Yuill, probated on May 11, 1893 which reads: "This is my last will. In another will was the stipulation that executors of the estate erect a fence around the grave of the testator "horse high, bull strong and pig tight."

CHRISTMAS MORNING

Happy, happy morning, when the blessed Lord of all
Came down from Heaven to free us, from Satan's bitter thrall,
Came to Bethlehem's manger, a Babe, of human birth
Bringing joy, peace, and pardon, to every soul on earth.
From sorrow, sin, and sadness, to give us sweet release,
And to spread the glad evangel, of hope, and love, and peace.

Happy, happy morning, as once o'er Judea's world
The shining hosts of Heaven, attune their harps of gold,
To sing the jubilant refrain, that fell like Gilead's balm,
Upon earth's discord, strife, turmoil, shedding a holy calm,
Still benison falls this solace, song on this worn world as when
Two thousand years ago, it spake, Goodwill, and peace to men.

This happy, happy morning, may rich abundant hoards
Of the very brightest blessings which Heaven, to man affords
Be showered on all God's children, of every state, and sphere,
The sick, the sad, the lonely, and the friends, we hold so dear,
His radiant smile, and presence, on them unceasing shine
And the purest bliss of Heaven, when earthly joys decline.

This happy, happy morning, Christians, let us haste away
With gladness to His Temple, and our warm devotions pay,
The tribute of our grateful hearts, the highest homage bring
And present our treasured offerings, to Christ our Saviour King.
Glory to God, the spring, and source from whence all our blessings flow
Who came to bring Goodwill, and Peace, and Love, to men below.

SUNDAY AILMENTS.

(The Blue Bell)

MORBUS sabbaticus, or Sunday sickness, a disease peculiar to church members. The attack comes on suddenly every Sunday; no symptoms are felt on Saturday night; the patient sleeps well and wakes feeling well; eats a hearty breakfast, but about church time the attack comes on and continues until the services are over for the morning. Then the patient feels easy and eats a hearty dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better, and is able to take a walk, talk about politics, and read the Sunday papers; he eats a hearty supper, but about church time he has another attack and stays at home. He retires early, sleeps well and wakes up on Monday morning refreshed and able to go to work, and does not have any symptoms of the disease until the following Sunday. The peculiar features are as follows:

1. It always attacks members of the church.
2. It never makes its appearance except on the Sabbath.
3. The symptoms vary, but it never interfers with the sleep or appetite.
4. It never lasts more than twenty-four hours.
5. It generally attacks the head of the family.
6. No physician is ever called.

SURELY goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

IN A DEMOCRACY.

(Regina Leader-Post)

A DEMOCRACY cannot exist without newspapers. The need is for newspapers that are able to express their views and that enable public sentiment to become known. The newspapers, like democracy itself, will be far from perfect. But a newspaper that has the freedom of democracy to go its own way, lead its own life, make its own mistakes, is better than any kind of a newspaper that can only speak with the permission of the state, the government, or whatever clique that happens to be in control.

BOUNCE AHEAD

Something went wrong with the lift. The control was lost, and down it went full speed towards the bottom. An old lady who didn't understand what had happened said—

"Have no fear," replied the lift boy; "this thing'll bounce right back."

Chinese Family "Steals Show" At Lakefield High School

Each Of Four Wong Children Has Honor Of Leading Form

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 23.—"Meet the Family," a one-act comedy, presented by members of the Lakefield High School Literary Society was the highlight of the program when the Lakefield High School held their annual Commence in the Meenorial Hall here on Monday evening, December 20. The play, altogether too human to be completely charming, nevertheless went over with a zip and kept the audience well entertained for the last hour of an enjoyable evening.

The program got off to a good start when the Girls' Glee Club sang a peppy chorus entitled "Let's Go." They were conducted by Mr. C. Renaud who performed in his usual proficient manner.

Mr. J. W. Ridpath, chairman of the High School Board, acted as chairman for the evening. He spoke briefly, stating that this was the eleventh occasion on which he has presided at the annual conversat and he extended greetings on behalf of the Board and the school, to the parents and friends present.

The school paper—"The Lakefield High School Breeze"—was presented in an original manner by the two editors—Miss Lois Yale and George Tanner, who, attired as clowns, read aloud the articles for the paper as they were compiling it. The articles were the work of school pupils, and a number of the contributions showed real talent. They included a complete resume of the term's sports as well as a variety of humorous selections, with jokes at the expense of both teacher and students.

The Boar's Head

Mr. E. H. Brohman, instructor in science, introduced the next number, which was the ceremony of bringing in the boar's head. He explained that this is a very ancient ceremony which dates back to the year 1340. It is still the custom in English homes at Christmas time to have the boar's head, the pudding, the ale and all the other requisites of the feast, carried in, in procession, while carols are sung by a boys' choir.

The exceedingly beautiful ceremony followed. Lights on the stage were lowered, and a choir of boys in white surplices over black gowns proceeded onto the stage. Each boy carried a tall lighted taper, while the leader of the processional held aloft the platter containing the boar's head. The choir marched slowly in, singing as they marched, the carol of bringing in the boar's head. The boar's head was placed upon the table and the choir sang a selection of carols including Good King Wenceslas, God Rest You Merry Gentlemen, and "We Three Kings of Orient Are," as they stood in the soft light of the tapers. The ceremony concluded as the procession retired to the music of the carol of the Boar's Head.

Prizes Presented

The presentation of prizes for field day and awards for outstanding schoiastic attainments is always a popular part of the proceedings.

The Graduating Class.

Principal J. F. Harvey presented diplomas to the graduating class. He mentioned that the graduating this year is not so large as usual, but, he said, "the quality is every bit as good."

"The school holds a unique record," Mr. Harvey continued, "for four students from one family stand first in four forms of the school — Rose Wong stood highest in First Form, Lily Wong stood highest in Second Form, Mary Wong stood highest in Third Form, and George Wong stood highest in Fourth Form. We are exceptionally proud of these children; their average was well over 90 per cent. in all subjects. Sometimes I think that a school composed of the type of student such as the Wong children would be the teachers' Utopia.

"Although the attendance is smaller this year than some years, there are over one hundred students in attendance."

Middle School certificates to — Natalie Lampman, Nona Lymburner, Robert Lennox, Wellie Garbutt, Jean Mann, and Elizabeth Twist.

After the presentation, Mr. Harvey said: "The staff joins me in wishing for each of you a brilliant future."

He then thanked D. H. Webster and E. H. Northey for loaning furniture for the play and Miss Helen Stewart for assisting with the make-up.

Valedictory Address.

The valedictory address was delivered by Miss Phyllis Webster. "It seems only yesterday that we entered the High school; then graduation was only a goal in the distant future. Now that we are attaining that goal we realize how deeply indebted we are to our teachers." "To those who carry on we offer up a heritage which we know you will guard carefully. We urge the graduates to make the best of your opportunities—to be optimistic —for one ship sails east and one sails west by the self same wind that blows....it's the set of the soul that determines the goal and not the calm nor the strife'."

After a second group of elections by the Girls' Glee Club, the one act comedy, "Meet the Family," by J. Wilbur Fitzpatrick, was presented by the High School Literary Society.

Enjoyable Play.

The play was "sketch of human family life—rather exaggerated in parts, of course, but nevertheless true to life. Betty Brown as Mae Barton and Mr. W. F. Munro as her irate fataher did a large part of the acting and did it well. Jean Clark was splendid as Mrs. Barton and Cubby Lampman, as the French maid, assumed a broken French accent which was charming. Don Smith, as Tom Barton — Mae's brother, whose affection for her was not always apparent, but was shown towards the end of the play—was natural and unaffected. Stewart Loyst played a difficult part creditably and even Nona Lynburner and Gordon Hampton, who were scarcely on the stage long enough to show the audience what they could do, interpreted the roles of Mae's friend, Phyllis Moore, and an old friend of Mr. Barton, Bill Freeman, with accuracy.

The cast—Mrs. James Henry Barton, Jean Clark; Mae Barton, Betty Brown; Phyllis Moore, Nona Lymburner; Marie, Cubby Lampman; Mr. James Henry Barton, W. F. Munro; Mr. Thomas Batron, Donald Smith; Mr. Jack Summers, Stewart Loyst; Mr. Bill Freeman, Gordon Hampton.

The play was directed by Mr. E. H. Brohman.

Mrs. C. Renaud acted as accompanist for the Girls' Glee Club, while Mary Blewett and a part of the Leahy orchestra provided accompaniment for the boys' carol singing.

W. F. Munro, instructor in mathematics and coach of the rugby team, was called upon to present the track and field cups to the boys. Mr. Munro said that there was an unusual list of entries in the Field Day events this year and all events were keenly contested. Bill Nichols, who won the junior boys' championship, entered nine events and won nine first prizes. Then he entered the mile race which was open, and against senior competition, passed Don. Hurl, the previous winner, on the home stretch, to win the Mackenzie Cup by a narrow margin.

In the senior competition Stuart Loyst was the winner with Don. Hurl a close second. A highlight of this competition was the pole vault which Earl Playfair won with ease at a height of 8 feet.

Turning his attenion to the girls' competition, Mr. Munro complimented Isobel Bullock on her fight against Leona Shearer, who carried off the honors among the junior girls. Also Mary Blewett, who won the highest score in the senior girls, and Doris Chittick, who stood second thus winning the cup by reversion because Mary Blewett has had the championship befofe and is not eligible to hold the cup again.

Mr. Munro, in a detailed account of the fall rugby activities, complimented S. Loyst for his marvellous kicking and good passing, and J. Quigley for his sterling ability to pull down the passes and thanked Rev. G. F. Kelly for his co-operation.

Cups Handed Over.

Mr. Munro then called on Miss B. Dunn, language teacher and girls' athletic instructress, who presented the championship cups to Miss Doris Chittick and Miss Leona Shearer. Miss Dunn presened a special cup and flowers to Mary Blewett in recognition of her winning the senior championship twice in succession. Mr. Munro presented the championship cups to S. Loyst and B. Nichols. In the absence of B. Nichols who was sick, a brother Doug Nichols received the prize.

Dr. A. W. Mackenzie was called upon to present the Mackenzie Cup for the mile race. "Some teachers think athletics should take a second place on the curriculum. It is not so," Dr. Mackenzie said, "because, though we always have our bodies with us, we are sometimes absentminded." The Mackenzie Cup was won by Bill Nichols and was received by Doug. Nichols.

K. A. Mackenzie presented the Legion medals donated to winners of the broad jump. They were won by M. Blewett, L. Shearer, and F. Hudson. Mr. Mackenzie said that next year the Legion hopes to be able to recognize the Public School students in some way, too.

Prizes for general proficiency were won by Phyllis Webster (Fifth Form) Natalie Lampman (Fourth Form), Doris Charlton (Third Form), Mary Blewett (Second Form), and Lily Wong (First Form). The prizes were shields, which were presented by E. W. Bailey C. S. Tanner, E. H. Northey, F. L. Erskine, and E. J. Millage. These shields are to be hung in the respective Forms and the winner each year shall have her name engraved on the plaque. Besides the shield, each student was presented with a gift by Chairman J. W. Ridpath.

The Catholic Women's history prize was presented by Mrs. J. J. McFadden to the winner, Miss Rose Wong. Miss Wong also won the High School Board prize for the highest entrance standing. This was a set of school books which was presented at the opening of the school term.

20 Killed Daily On British Roads

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(CP).—Concern increases in the United Kingdom over the death toll in road accidents.

In the course of a debate in the House of Lords the Earl of Munster announced the government approved establishment of a select committee to consider how to reduce the number of casualties. A motion to this effect was accepted by the House.

Rt. Rev. Cyril Garbett, Bishop of Winchester, contended an average of 20 people were killed and 600 injured daily on Britain's roads.

Georgia is a true "daughter of the sea," being born in Boston lighthouse during a wild gale. J. H. MIGHT HEADS MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 24.—The Senior Men's Bible Class of St. Andrew's Sunday School held its election of officers, following the regular class session, on Sunday, F. L. Edworthy presiding.

The following is the slate for 1938: President, James H. Might; vice-president, J. H. McKnight; secretary, Irwin Hatherly; assistant, Cecil Hubbeard; treasurer, G. E. Burnham.

A letter from the teacher for the past twelve years, Mrs. L. H. Rea, containing her resignation, was read, and its contents regretfully noted. The secretary was instructed to send Mrs. Rea a letter of appreciation for the valuable service she has rendered the men's class during her term as teacher.

The new executive will meet early in the new year to consider the matter of a successor for Mrs. Rea, and to plan activities for the next twelve months.

The municipal election pot is already beginning to boil with two candidates in the field for reeve, Councillor W. E. Ball, who has been in the Council for the past nine years giving him the senior membership, and P. I. Bentley, municipal relief officer for the current year, and who has also had several years' experience as a council member; though not having a seat with that municipal body for the past twelve months.

Cash-Finding Trio Given Month

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 24—(CP.—Victor Lamontagne, former Sudbury constable; Victor Gotro, and Hawes Morrison were sentenced to one month determinate and two months indeterminate in the district jail by Magistrate Willard Cooper to-day.

The three previously pleaded guilty to theft charges arising out of the finding of $600 in cash, lost on the street by W. H. Dorsett, local jeweller.

Partial restitution had been made by Morrison, while the other two men returned their share of the money intact.

LABOR-SAVING EXHIBITS

Housewives were interested in a kettle with a lid which closed and opened automatically, a device which keeps butter always spreadable and a signal which calls a housewife to washing on the line when it starts to rain, all shown at a labor-saving exhibition in Leeds, England.

Another Victim

Leo Karakhan, ABOVE, one of Russia's foremost diplomats, was one of eight Soviet officials who were put to death by a red firing squad for "high treason." Karakhan was recently brought back from his post as ambassador to Turkey to Moscow where he stood trial. Another one of the eight victims of Stalin's "purge" of political adversaries was Avel Kenukidze, one of the founders of the Bolshevik party, who, 40 years ago enlisted the young Georgian Stalin, into revolutionary ranks and promoted his political fortunes.

CHRISTMAS TREAT GREATLY ENJOYED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 24. — Christmas trees flanked the stage and brilliant stars formed the background for the stage when St. John's United church presented their annual Christmas concert on Friday last.

Mr. Earl, superintendent of the Sunday School was chairman for the program which opened with the singing of "O come all ye faithful" by a children's chorus. Directed by Mrs. A. Wragg, a song by the beginners' class was accompanied by Miss Doris Mason. Recitations were given by Betty Johnson, Ann Whitthuh, June Ames, Paul Bennett, Margaret Davidson, Jean Ingram, Joyce Scott, Dorothy Morgan, Jannet Stuart, Dianna MacPherson, Bobbie Bennett, Barbara Grieg, Thos. Fox, Gloria Jacobs, Billy Morgan, Arthur Labrash, Bill Scott. Piano and guitar duet was given by Helen and Roy Young following which the primary class under the leadership of Misses Betty Mowatt and Ruth Palliser gave recitations and dialogues and concluded with a chorus by the whole class "Rocking". Fay Thomlinson and Bernice McComb, members of the primary class gave a dialogue and Nancy Hollings, Nellie Field, Florence Field, presented a three-act sketch. Recitations were then given by Nancy Boyd, Bruce Connor, Bill Bleecker, Lenora Beatty, Arthur Labrash, Shirley Burgiss, and Jessie Gratton. Jack and Pauline Cassan gave a piano duet and encore. Gordon Lucy, Vincent Shaw and Douglas Free gave another brief sketch and Marjorie Mills and Elinore Armour assisted with a dialogue. Helen Nicholson and June Burgiss gave a vocal duet. An original arrangement of the carol "Good King Wenceslas" was given by a chorus of six boys, with Douglas Lucy singing the part of the page and Harvey Donald the King. A short Christmas cantata was presented by June Burgiss, Betty Blake, Jack Connor, Harold Neal and Charles Buchner and a pageant brought the program to a close with parts being taken by Donald Bennett, Charles Jeffs, McLean Donald, and Derrel Duncalfe. All the parts were taken in costume and the children's choir rendered carols during the pageant which included a recitation by Dorothy Greig and solo by Dorothy Anderson.

At the conclusion of the program Santa Claus appeared on the scene and handed out candy to the children.

It was one of the most successful concerts ever held in St. John's chuhch and much credit was reflected on Mr. Harold Kitney, on whose shoulders fell the arduous work of arranging the program.

Mrs. H. B. Neal spoke briefly during the evening and thanked the members of the Sunday School and all those who has assisted in arranging the concert.

JOLLY PARTY FOR MILLBROOK BAND LEADER IS PRAISED

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 24.—A jolly Christmas party was held by the Millbrook Citizens' Band in the Hall on Monday evening, December 20, the gathering being specially in honor of the popular leader, Lieutenant W. H. Peryer, and the members of the Peterborough Rangers' Band who come out regularly each Monday evening to assist with the weekly practice, and on other occasions expand the local membership and give much-appreciated assistance.

The wives and families and other lady friends of the members were included in the invitations, and the hall was seasonably decorated for the party. An informal program of music was the opening event, the band under Lieutenant Peryer, contributing the following numbers: Jolly Tars' March; a descriptive selection that was quite realistic, from the clock striking four a.m., the birds singing, and so on to the evening's celebration and the day's close; with all joining in "Home Sweet Home"; Christmas carols followed, and the final hymn, "Faith of our Fathers."

The program convenor, W. H. Theobald, took the chair and announced the service of lunch, the ladies serving this item under their supervision, the guests arranging their chairs in groups and listening to radio music while the social hour was in progress. Brief addresses were given, following the intermission for refreshments, the chairman calling first on Lieutenant Peryer, who mentioned especially the faithfulness of the band members in coming out to practice, their co-operation and diligence, and the fact that a successful year is drawing to a close.

Reeve Percy Stinson followed, paying tribute to Mr. Peryer for the real contribution he is making to community welfare in the excellent training being given the young men along musical lines. J. H. Isbister, president of the band, endorsed what Reeve Stinson had said, and also mentioned the fine backing which the Women's Institute has given the band from its initial organization. The treasurer, D. R. Fowler, stressed the success financially which the band has achieved, leaving them with a nice surplus to begin the new year, and William Stewart, of Peterborough, spoke particularly of the improvement he had noted in the selections played by the band that evening. "It made me want to hear more; and that is the highest compliment you can pay a musical organization."

Three hearty cheers and a tiger endorsed the vote of thanks to the wives and other ladies who had provided and served the refreshments, and the audience listened with much pleasure to vocal solos by Miss Ruth Thorndyke, with William Edworthy accompanying, the selections including "Roses in December," and "Rainbow on the River."

Round and square dancing brought a most enjoyable evening to a close, James Godfrey calling off for the latter, and music being furnished by Robert Dodd with violin and Bill Edworthy at the piano.

The Angels and the Shepherds, By B. Plockhorst

Shepherds engaged in nightly task
Guarding their flocks beneath the mask
Of midnight calm, beheld a star
Gleaming in brilliance from afar.

Full of wonder they saw the path
Of silvery light that cleaved a swath
Of brightness over darkened hill.
Hopefully they followed until,

They reached a stable near an inn
Where two wand'rers rested within.
In the manger the Christ child lay,
Whom they worshiped in humble way.

Wide-eyed and wondering a crowd
Of folk gathered round Mary, bowed.
And wise men entered her presence
Bearing gold, myrrh and frankincense.

The luminous star born that night
Gave to the world persistent light,
That each his way might better wend,
Till the approach of his destined end.

Will Try Teacher For Acid Tossing

TORONTO, Dec. 24—(CP)—Mrs. Aileen Flannigan, Port Arthur school teacher, charged with throwing acid on Charles Cox, M.L.A. for Port Arthur, has been released from Whitby Ontario Hospital and returned to the jurisdiction of the court, Attorney General Gordon Conant announced to-day.

Miss Flannigan will now face the court on the acid-throwing charge, Mr. Conant said. She was committed to Whitby by the Port Arthur police magistrate for treatment and observation.

"She has been reported mentally fit and she has been returned to the Magistrate's Court from where she was committed," said Mr. Conant. "I have instructed the case should proceed in the ordinary way. So far as I am concerned, the case is in no different category than any other. The local Crown Attorney has charge of the proceedings."

FOUR SAILORS RESCUED

VALETTA, Malta, Dec. 24 (A.P.)—Four exhausted Norwegian sailors were rescued 15 miles off the coast early to-day after drifting in an open boat four days, half the time without water.

The men were members of the crew of the 1,137-ton Norwegian freighter Kronprins Olav, which broke its propeller shaft. The vessel had no wireless and the four men were trying to reach land to obtain aid when they were almost run down by the British auxiliary ship Olynthus which had heard their cries in the darkness.

CHRISTMAS TREE HELD BY SCHOOL IS GREAT SUCCESS

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 24. — The Town Hall was well filled on Wednesday evening for the annual concert and Christmas Tree, given by the pupils of the Public School, the principal, Mr. B. B. Dawson, filling the role of chairman acceptably.

The group of Christmas carols, presented as the opening selection of the program, with all the pupils of the school massed upon the stage, was one of the finest contributions of the entire evening. Miss Betty Montgomery was the accompanist.

Following this came a most attractive drill, "Merry Christmas," by the little folk of the primary room, the various movements being gone through with good rythm and time, and ending with the spelling out of the title words by means of bright letters centring the red wreaths held aloft by wooden handles. The training was done by the teacher, Miss Montgomery.

"Bo-Peep's Christmas Party," by the pupils of the junior room, Miss Jean L. Burnham, teacher, was a dainty number, with Audrey Armstrong filling the title role, and practically all of Mother Goose's family represented wearing appropriate costumes, and all united in the desire to give "Little Sue," (Irene Yelland), a poor child lacking home and care, a happy Christmas by bestowing upon her their gifts.

In this they were aided by the fairies, Linda and Marguerite Murney, Los Wainman, Leona Charlebois, and Jean Foottit, wearing white and silver, and by jolly old Saint Nicholas, the small and lonely waif waking to find herself surrounded by toys, and needed clothing, Bo-Peep and all her little guests increasing their own happiness as they wished Sue, "Merry Christmas."

"The Smiling Regiment," by pupils of Grade Two, was a well-executed drill and song, that created a pleasing variety, and the final number, a two-act musical cantata, "Bringing up Santa," by the pupils of the senior room, brought a most enjoyable program to a close. David Hatherly carried out the character of Santa Claus very cleverly, and Mary Dawson, as Mrs. Santa, was also well chosen for the part. The plot, set affot by Dame Fashion (Laureen Handley) and her followers, Colleen Blair, Betty Smith, Mary Muspratt and Joyce Kennedy, with the active assistance of William Fitzgerald (George Siscoe), to modernize Santa, his home, and his wife, after creating a great deal of disturbance and unhappiness, finally fails in its purpose. To the great relief of the onlookers, at the instigation of his lawyer, Mr. Jefferson (Donald Kerr), Santa Claus is moved to assert himself, dismiss William, and his valet, James (Evans Hatherly), and insist upon taking his usual Christmas Eve trip in traditional costume and manner. Jack Kidd was the taxi-driver, and the attractive little maids were Mary Blair, Francis Tiekner, Mary Sanderson and Rosemary Stinson.

Solos and choruses throughout the cantata were well rendered and often quite 'catchy' airs. Following the National Anthem the gaily decorated tree was denuded of its load of gifts, every pupils being remembered, and the teachers also having their share of parcels. The event marked the closing of the school term until January 3, 1938.

BANDIT GETS $100

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 24 (C.P.)—A lone bandit, armed with a revolver, late last night held up Chas. E. Blanchette, store manager, and escaped with $100 in bills.

Blanchette had just closed the store and was preparing to drive away in his car when the gunman stepped up and shoved the pistol in his ribs, demanding his money.

After obtaining the roll of bills the man ran away and Blanchette rushed to telephone police. The neighborhood was scoured, but no trace of a suspect could be found.

NEW REX BARLEY READY IN 1938

SASKATOON, Dec. 24 (CP). — A new barley variety, licensed for sale as "Rex," has been developed at the University of Saskatchewan by J. B. Harrington of the Field Husbandry Department. It is a cross between velvet and Hannchen barley.

The Rex variety is smooth-awned, has moderately long, strong straw high yield and high bushel weight. It is earlier than Hannchen and Mr. Harrington expects Rex will replace Hannchen to a large extent. He claims it gives more feed, is high in grain yield and of as good malting quality as Hannchen. It is a two-rowed variety.

Distribution of the new variety will not be undertaken until next winter, because drought conditions last summer affected the normal increase of seed.

Regal barley, now in wide use in Saskatchewan and the most highly recommended barley in the province, was brought to Saskatchewan from Minnesota in 1925 by Mr. Harrington.

In the last eight years, improvement of the smooth-awned varieties of barley has featured barley breeding activities at the University. Crosses between Regal and Trebi and between Regal and Gatami have been developed, and this year were in their second-year tests for yield.

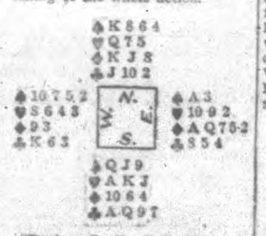
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

FORESIGHT PLUS NERVE

GETTING the jump on your opponents with a lead of your suit, which must get set up in order to beat the contract, may require plenty of foresight and the courage to back it up. It is even necessary sometimes to lead right into the jaws of a tenace in order to obtain that all important early round which is essential to the proper timing of the whole action.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Against South's 3-No Trumps contract, West led the spade 2, which East won with the A. An immediate return of spades at this point gives South his contract. A heart to the Q enables declarer to take a club finesse, which, even though it fails, gives South three club tricks, one diamond, three hearts and three spades.

The East defender in this instance, however, did not give up so easily. He reasoned that, if his partner was able to get into the lead again to put him in with a diamond, it was up to him to give up one trick in the suit first with the hope that his partner would still have one to lead him, to enable him to cash his remaining four tricks.

With this in mind, he deliberately led up to dummy's K-J-8 and from that point on the hand was hopeless for South, as the club K was in the wrong spot. When the club finesse was tried and lost, West returned his diamond and East cashed his four good diamonds.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What should North respond to South's 2-Hearts bid and how can South make 6-Hearts?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, December 25

The planetary influences affecting this day are negligible, giving free scope for the indulgence in the festive and spiritual celebration of the day of "peace on earth" and to "men of good will." It is a time for friendliness, kindness, charity and the social functions conventional to the season. It might be well to sign any necessary papers with care and to refrain from petty irritabilities or indulgences.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a year in which very much in the way of progress and success is left to their own individual attack, energy and good will. Contacts and new business engage the attention and should receive shrewd and vigilant manipulation, with vexations and irritabilities held under firm control. Be wise in litigation and safeguard property.

A child born on this day may be very enterprising and lively, with the tendency to work under high pressure. But certai fitempestuous and reckless traits call for early discipline.

For Sunday, December 26

Sunday's horoscope accents the merrymaking and indulgences of the holiday season, with prospects of extravagance and much pleasure, not only in friendly contacts but in romantic and sentimental adventures. It is a propitious time for celebration and generous impulses, but not to a regrettable extent. There should be some practical restraints.

Those whose birthday it is may have a very pleasant year, with much in the way of romantic adventure, romance and courtship. In this there may be an inclination to extravagance.

A child born on this day may be capable, ambitious, progressive and adventurous, particularly in all relating to its personal or sentimental life. It should have a happy and popular life, with much outlay in the pursuit of pleasure.

For Monday, December 27

Monday's astrological forecast is for an extremely lively, exciting and progressive day, with much upheaval and commotion, judging by the lunar aspects. There may be sudden change, removal or travel that may affect the future and its fortunes, business, employment and the launching of new projects.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of much significance in business and private lives. There may be radical change of interests, environs and contacts, with strangers figuring importantly. Travel seems inevitable.

A child born on this day may be clever, enterprising, practical and constructive, although adventurous and fond of frequent change. It may travel much and have many strange experiences, with much happiness in its private life.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Dear Friends:

How many place all their faith on chance. They believe in luck in everything. Nothing, to them, can come by hard work or endeavour, by planning, or the strength of our desires.

Now, I would be the last to say there is no such thing as luck, but so many want to use it all up at once. There are some people whom we must admit are lucky. Things come easier to them than they do to others. They win on games of chance, things seem to fall into their lap, and if they do not let themselves place too much reliance on it, it can truly be a help to them all their lives.

But—when they begin to rely on it to the exclusion of all else, they find their luck deserts them. There is no known way in which a person can be skilled in luck. You have it, or you don't.

You cannot depend on it, for it does not occur always in the same way. You might be lucky as the dickens today, and unlucky tomorrow.

You cannot design you life with it, you cannot say "today I will be lucky" else those who attend horse-races and bet on them would win all and every race. So would stock-brokers and all who like to gamble for a living.

You cannot see it, for it is a nebulous thing, slippery as quick-silver. On the face of it one would think it a grand thing to have. But so many times they use all their luck up at once, never realise it, then spend the rest of their lives looking for what is gone.

Oh yes, there are lucky people alright, but what sickens me is to hear so many say this is lucky or the other unlucky. To hear them the world would seem to be run on chance, and Friday unlucky, the thirteenth the same, crossing your knife over your fork, and a lot of other trival things lucky or unlucky.

Where does God come into all this, and the laws of the universe? Does prayer have no power, nor hard work, nor trying one's best? Are we good or bad by luck alone? Has ability no chance if luck has no part in it?

I never seem lucky enough to win anything unless hard work goes along with it. I have won things, yes, but always had to show skill in one way or another, else luck turned her back on me.

So, I have come to the state where I leave luck out of my calculations, and depend on the work of my hands and brain. From what I have seen of it, it is not a very good friend, for it makes one lazy, careless, and either too far up or too for down.

I have seen charts which were supposed to show lucky or unlucky days or years, but I have never seen anyone who could prove them to be true. I will grant you, that some days there seems to be a malignant force at work, when nothing we do seems to go right, when we break things, cut our fingers, slip and fall, and those days I lie low and do not strive too much.

But anyone can see that there has to be order in the universe and order in our lives, if we are to get anywhere. No shop or factory owner can run their business by luck or chance. Neither can we trust to it in our lives.

So, if you are a lucky person, enjoy it all you can, but do not neglect the ordered way of living, or all your luck will go for naught. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Maur. Ketcheson	John L. Gillespie
James Dutton	Herbert McCannan
Dr. R. W. Frank	W. L. Ferguson
Max Swanston	Harold R. Scott
John Edgar	Herbert I. Bradburn

S. R. Armstrong city clerk and returning officer presided at the after nomination meeting.

HERBERT J. McCANNAN said he was undecided as to whether he would let his name stand, however, he promised that should he be a candidate and become elected he would give the city the best service that it was possible for him to give. He told of having spent the greater part of his life in the city and on account of the business (real estate) which he is in he knew the city well and he felt that he could be of service to the citizens.

ROLAND M. GLOVER congratulated mayor-elect James Hamilton but also mentioned the loss which the city was suffering in the retirement of Mayor George A. Macdonald and the dean and faithful servant of the citizens for so many years, Ald. Malcolm McIntyre. He referred to the faithful service which ex-Ald. Max Sloan had given the city and he felt that if Mr. Sloan makes as good a city official as he did an alderman the city's interests will be well looked after. He told of when he became an alderman there was $200,000 in outstanding taxes and how an outside collector had been engaged and the results of his work had been of advantage to the city and also to the taxpayer who paid his taxes in small installments and thus was able to clear off a debt against his property. He lauded the auditor's report as being as complete as any city in the province.

He spoke with regret that the city had not been able to secure any new industries but he told of the work that had been done to encourage tourists and he felt that splendid results would be derived from this. For the past few weeks he has been chairman of the finance committee and he prophesied a small surplus at the end of the year.

HAROLD R. PHEONIX declared he was running as an independent, he was sorry he was not on the labor slate but that he would support anything in the interests of the laboring classes. His platform will be a revision of all taxes; no renewal of fixed assessments; all relief handled by the federal and provincial governments; free hospitalization for the worker receiving $14 a week or less; more playgrounds and cheaper milk even if it had to be handled under public ownership.

William Gordon Powell, a representative of the small business man and the laboring people. He declared that labor could not expect representation by promises and the only way was to elect men who had the interests of labor at heart. He announced that he would be a candidate.

Frank Lundy said he was born and raised in Peterborough. He came from hard-working people and hence there was only one place you could find his name and that was on the labor slate. He promised to work for the reduction in taxes and a lower interest rate for those who wished to build homes.

Wilfrid F. Huycke declared he reserved the right to size up any situation as it came along and hence he had no definite platform, but he promised to give that same measure of devotion to the citizens of Peterborough, if elected, as he gave to his country during the Great War.

William S. Johnston, one of the Labor candidates seeking election, declared that the time has come when Labor must march on, and the only way it could was to be represented on the council. While not speaking disparagingly of former councils, he felt that they did not truly represent all classes in the city.

Alderman Walter Stocker has appeared before electorate nine times and for 16 years has been chairman of the Parks Committee. He told of the work that had been done in the parks and how he had given his time without remuneration to this task. While some people, he declared, wanted a Parks Commission, he said that such a commission would require a $1,500 a year superintendent, also a secretary, and could levy a rate of one mill on the taxpayers which would mean $20,000 annually, while now the parks are looked after for $5,700 a year. However, it was in the citizens hands. He spoke of taking over Armour Hill, Nicholls Oval and Crescent Street boulevard. He referred to his record on the Board of Health and how at one time the Isolation Hospital has cost the citizens $15,000 annually and now it is being operated for $2,000. "It is your money we have been saving," he told his listeners. He referred to the full-time M.O.H., Well Babies' Clinic, mental and chest clinics and blood clinics which have been held in the city, and in closing declared that that was the public service which the present Board of Health was giving.

Jacob Low, born and raised in Peterborough, and a large taxpayer, said he would work to get new industries here, and he hoped the electors would give him an opportunity to be of service to them.

Herbert I. Bradburn, another home town boy, declared all his interests were in Peterborough, and he would do all in his power to look after the interests of the city. He would endeavor to keep the tax rate as low as possible but still with a view to maintaining public services. He also believed if Peterborough were to grow more industries must be secured.

James Lewis said he was no stranger in Peterborough, having spent the greater part of his life here and that now when he was retired from business, he felt that he could be of service to the citizens.

Thomas E. Sargent was undecided as to whether he would run but as a citizen of Peterborough for the past 60 years he felt this was a city to be proud of, and he closed with making an appeal that youth be given an opportunity.

John Edgar, a ratepayer for 28 years and a former alderman, said he was undecided, but was thinking the matter over seriously and that if he should be elected he would give the citizens that service which he always endeavored to give.

Fred T. Tuggey will be a candidate. He spoke of the seven years he had been an alderman and how he had sponsored the resolution in the City Council which later became law-making industries with fixed assessments pay on their full assessment for relief and he felt that this should be carried further and they should pay for social services on their total assessment. He said he was glad to see a reduction in the penalty clause of unpaid taxes but promised, if elected, to work to have this reduced further.

Alderman Robert Cotton, now the oldest alderman in continuous service on the City Council, said it would be his earnest endeavor to keep the tax rate down and that he would give the same time and service to the city in the future as he had done in the past if elected.

Alderman James Juby was undecided as to whether he would run. He reported on the work the Board of Works had done since he took over the chairmanship some four months ago.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who is seeking re-election on his policy in regard to the City Trust, declared that the $310,000 of surplus earnings that the City Trust had on hand should have been used to reduce the tax rate. The money belongs to the citizens of Peterborough, and it was said were trust funds it was found possible to pay $20,000 to settle the Ackerman lawsuit and also $16,000 to build the rest rooms on the Market Square, which he classes as an eye-sore. He also attacked the Board of Health and Dr. Murray Fraser, who although a full-time M.O.H., who he claimed was not giving his full time to the city. The temporary appointment of Harry White as sanitary inspector and the appointment of the health nurse were also severely criticized. He promised that if elected he would work to get the City Trust surplus applied to reduction in the tax rate.

Joseph Vinette, a citizen of Peterborough all his life, and a taxpayer for 25 years, announced that he would be a candidate.

Morrice Ketcheson promised that, if elected, he would work to improve the housing situation in Peterborough. He suggested turning the old Oriental Hotel into flats, and if the owners would not do it the city should get a 20-year lease on the property and do the work. He spoke of the refuse dumps, which he classed as a disgrace to the city, the need of better bathing beaches, the outside worker getting jobs in the factories and the need for a better community spirit and the proper observance of public holidays in the city.

number of bookies at 700, it still mounts up to the goodly sum of $31,000,000 a year.

Between one tax and another, the pari-mutuels pay to the public coffers revenues of from 5 to 12 per cent. If the lowest rate of 5 per cent. were applied to the illegal betting through bookmakers, on the $21,000,000 figure the city coffers would be enriched by $1,050,000. All of which, of course, is merely conjecture based on common knowledge, supported by the statistics of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which collects the Federal tax on horse-racing, that Toronto is a top-ranking horse-race betting city.

Weather-Man Plays Tricks In Winnipeg Jumps From 17 Below To 35 Above

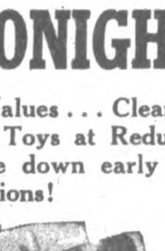
Winnipeg, Dec. 24 (CP)

THE weather-man did a remarkable about-face in Winnipeg as temperatures climbed from 17 below zero early yesterday to 35 above last night.

The day was marked by a blizzard severe enough to endanger the safety of Pilot Ken Smith of Starratt Airways and six passengers arriving in Winnipeg after a 250-mile flight from Red Lake, Ont.

Smith's plane ran into the blizzard a few miles east of Winnipeg and the pilot circled the city several times in a vain effort to locate the airport. Finally he landed safely on the Red River in East Kildonan.

The snowfall stopped late in the day and streets were running water last night.



Much Cheer . . .

MUCH JOLLITY AND FUN BE YOURS THIS CHRISTMAS AND ALWAYS.

BROOKS' GRILL

THE First CHRISTMAS CARD

Christmas without greetings? One can scarcely imagine it! Yet the happy custom of sending cards began only 91 years ago. In 1846 the famous artist, J. C. Horsley, R.A., designed an inspired Christmas message for Sir Henry Cole of England, who distributed 1,000 copies.

This year The Mutual Life of Canada reproduces this design as a warm greeting to policyholders and friends. Its beautiful theme "feeding the hungry" (left panel), "clothing the naked" (right panel) and "creating good cheer" (centre), portrays the spirit of MUTUAL effort, not only at Christmastime, but year in and year out since 1869.

The policyholders are the owners of this Company, and they or their beneficiaries have received Sixty-Nine Million Dollars in Dividends and a total of over Two Hundred and Thirty-One Million Dollars in death claims, matured policies and other payments. How welcome this income must have been to families and individuals in time of need!

Assessment Appeals Exceed Court's Authority City Claims

Judge Smoke Reserves Decision In Factory Bylaw Cases

Both the DeLaval Company and the Canadian Raybestos Company fulfilled their expansion agreements with the city in return for which they received the concessions of fixed assessments attacked by G. N. Gordon, K.C., Thursday afternoon in his appeal before Judge Smoke from the Court of Revision.

Judge Smoke reserved his decision in each case. F. D. Kerr, K.C., represented the DeLaval Company, J. F. Strickland, K.C., the Raybestos Company, and John R. Corkery, City Solicitor, defended the validity of the bylaws.

The one word "renewal" became the battle ground on which the appeal was argued, Mr. Gordon contending that the two assessment bylaws, which were approved by large majorities of the electors who are qualified to vote on money bylaws, were renewals of previous bylaws, and because thereby they were contrary to a provincial statute they were not binding upon the city assessor, W. J. Henry.

Opposing counsel submitted that the bylaws were new in their substance as shown in the agreements upon which they were based, that their terms had been fully published prior to the vote of the people, and that all the affecting conditions had been complied with. Mr. Strickland placed his emphasis largely upon the fact that two years and a half had elapsed from the expiration of a previous Raybestos bylaw and the passing of the present one after the company had constructed two buildings on their Perry street property. And a point stressed by Mr. Corkery asserted that the Legislature obviously never intended that a factory might receive only one concession from a municipality and thereafter be excluded for all time from obtaining any further assistance.

Clash By Counsel

The appeal against DeLaval assessment was heard first with occasional verbal clashes between Mr. Gordon and Mr. Kerr, an early rasping stirring Judge Smoke to comment; "I told you two gentlemen once that you ought to go into the backyard and settle things."

"It wouldn't be a fair contest," Mr. Gordon remarked.

"I've been ready to take my friend into the back yard," Mr. Kerr replied, "but he was never willing."

City Clerk Armstrong was the first witness called by Mr. Gordon. He identified three agreements between the city and the DeLaval Company by the first one of which the company decided to establish a factory in Peterborough when W. H. Bradburn was mayor. The second bylaw passed toward the end of 1922 and ratified by the citizens who are entitled to vote on money bylaws fixed the company's assessment at $50,000 for ten years when certain enlargement of the plant was being undertaken. W. H. Taylor was mayor at that time. The third bylaw became effective January 1, 1933, for ten years. The assessment was increased to $60,000 and the company agreed enlarge its output of mechanical milkers and manufacture in its local factory new combine milking equipment for large dairy farms which had been developed shortly prior to that time. It was also agreed to increase the number of employees by the end of December 1934 to make the weekly payroll 50 per cent greater than on November 3, 1932.

141 Per Cent Increase

The net result of the company's agreement was shown as on February 11, 1937 when the factory force of employees was 141 per cent greater than on November 3, 1932. The number of shop workmen had increased from 75 at the time the agreement with the city was entered into at the low point of the depression to 181 in February of this year. And in accordance with the terms of the agreement a statutory declaration of the factory personnel was given to the council last February

Few Buyers Out On Farmers' Mart

Customers were few and far between and the demand for produce small at the special Friday farmers' market this morning. Turkey prices remained relatively firm until a surplus of the birds became apparent toward the end of the morning and prices were shaded two and three cents. General prices were 25 to 28 cents a pound, with offerings of birds at 23 and 24 cents a pound later.

Chickens were firm in price at 22 to 25 cents and geese sold generally at 22 cents a pound. Butter brought 32 cents and eggs were weaker at 28 to 35 cents.

Few stalls were occupied on the outdoor market. Pork sold at 13 and 15 cents. Potatoes sold at 65 and 70 cents a bag.

COMPANY EXCEEDED AGREEMENT.

Peterborough citizens who are qualified to vote on money by-laws, and that means the owners of property, will be interested in a fact elicited on Thursday afternoon in Judge Smoke's court that the factory payroll of the DeLaval Company in recent months was 300 per cent. above the payroll of November 3, 1932, when the company entered into an agreement with the city to expand manufacture of products thereby increasing the payroll to at least 50 per cent. more than on November 3, 1932. The excess of the company's performance beyond its undertaking was mentioned by F. D. Kerr, K.C., in the assessment hearing before Judge Smoke.

THOSE OLD COINS.

Miss Alice Johnson of the H. Outram Co., George street, has a number of odd coins, included in which are several of foreign mark. In the collection is the United States half-dime with date of 1861; a Greek coin of 1869, and German coins of 1876. The oldest in the lot bears the date 1808, and is marked "1 kreuzer." There is a George IV shilling of 1825, and a Napoleon III of 1856, as well as Russian money of 1916. Included in the collection is also a Bank of Upper Canada 1857 penny bank token. Before going to the Outram company Miss Johnson was for some time in a local bank, and she says these coins came in the ordinary run of business at the bank and since then in collections coming to the Outram office. For some time Miss Johnson says there has been no indication of the presence of this old or foreign currency in the money passing here, but a few years ago there was apparently quite a bit of it in circulation.

Commencing at 11.15 this evening the organist and choirmaster, Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus., will render a program of Christmas organ numbers, as a prelude to the Midnight Christmas Holy Communion which commences at 11.45. Dicks; "Shepherds Cradle Song" by Arthur Somerville; "Holy Night" (Gruber) transcribed by C. Kohlmann.

GETS FREE DINNER.

If her conscience doesn't get the better of her, and if she likes fish, a young store clerk here will have a free, albeit illegal Christmas dinner. Clerking in a local department store shoe department, the young woman observed a parcel beneath one of the benches. She thought a customer had forgotten a Christmas parcel and unwrapped it to see if she could find a forwarding address. She found instead a 3½-pound muskelunge all cleaned and ready to cook. Since the fish had been obviously caught out of season she reasoned its owner will not return to claim it, and she took it home with her.

BARBERING CODE OUTSIDE OF CITY BEEN CANCELLED

Cancellation of the clause which extends the code governing the Peterborough barbering industry one mile beyond the city boundaries has been ordered by E. J. Young, chairman of the Industry and Labor Board, as the result of an appeal by Reeve James Milby of North Monaghan township. Mr. Milby revealed Thursday he had complained to Premier Hepburn that "men earning 30 cents an hour can not afford to pay 40 cents for a haircut."

The meeting at which Peterborough barbers agreed upon the code and at which Louis Fine, Industry and Labor Boardofficer, accepted suggestions that the code should be extended beyond the boundaries of Peterborough, was not attended by any of the four North Monaghan barbers resident on the southern fringe of the city, Mr. Milby said. He claimed the North Monaghan barbers had not even been invited to attend.

Mr. Milby said he complained to Premier Hepburn and later was given a courteous hearing by Mr. Young. The following letter from the Industry and Labor Board head made known the decision of the Board in the matter:

"With further reference to the extension of the Peterborough zone for the barbering industry to include the area outside the city limits of Peterborough, the Board has given consideration to your request as presented to us when we were last in Peterborough.

"It has been decided not to call a new conference to reconsider the boundaries of the zone but that the schedule will not be enforced outside the boundaries of the City of Peterborough. The advisory committee is being advised to that effect."

Signed, E. J. Young, Chairman.

Four Candidates To Contest Seats On Monaghan Council

Reeve And Deputy Reeve Are Returned By Acclamation

An election contest in North Monaghan township was assured when four of the five men nominated for council indicated they would run in addresses to a gathering of township ratepayers after nominations closed at May's School House Thursday afternoon. Returned by acclamation, Reeve James Milby and Deputy-reeve Melville H. Johnston were hailed by the meeting.

Any split between country and urban factions which may have been expected to reveal itself at the meeting failed to materialize. All candidates present promised impartial representation of both the rural and urban and no note of disharmony was to be heard.

The nominations were:

James Milby, reeve, by H. T. Doig and J. A. Beger and also by J. N. Lillico and Ira Robson.

Melville H. Johnston, deputy-reeve, by J. N. Lillico and Ira Robson and also by G. N. Monorief and A. B. Preston.

Robert A. Dobbin, for council, by Ira Robson and A. B. Preston, by J. N. Lillico and Ira Robson and also by Albert Hunter and Thomas Arnott.

A. J. Arnott, for council, by J. N. Lillico and Ira Robson.

John Barnes, for council, by J. N. Lillico and Ira Robson.

W. J. Grady, for council, by L. Bristow and H. T. Doig.

Alexander Archibald, for council, by J. F. Shaughnessy and Isaac Hammond.

Two Association Men

Of the five nominated for council, Mr. Dobbin, Mr. Arnott and Mr. Barnes were members of the 1937 council and Mr. Archbiald and Mr. Grady are candidates sponsored by the North Monaghan Suburban Ratepayers Association. Mr. Grady was not present to indicate his intentions but it was understood he would qualify.

Thanking those present for extending him an acclamation, his third successive acclamation to the reeveship, Mr. Milby reviewed his stewardship during the past year. He commented on the County road program of 1937, commending the increased mileage taken into the county system from North Monaghan and approving the program of hard-surfacing. If the urban roads are paved, they will require no upkeep and the township road monies will be freed for expenditure in the country, he said. He urged that a program toward the abatement of the dust nuisance in the township should be considered.

Biggest Problem

"The biggest relief problem we have is not with the people who have been with us for years but with the strangers who come in and force themselves on us after staying the required time," Reeve Milby told his audience, turning to another major municipal matter. "If it

BETHANY GOSPEL TABERNACLE
George Street.
Rev. W. McArthur Pastor
Jesus said "Look on the fields for they are white already to harvest." Today there is an abundance of irreligion in the fields of cultured materialism and sordid debauchery. Oh, for eyes to see and a heart to take up the burden, for again Jesus said, "Pray ye therefore". A revival of God consciousness is our greatest need. God can have access in revival saving power to meet our times, only through praying Christians. We have no saving power in our churches because we have no united prevailing prayer for it. May God have mercy on us and our land. Bethany continues to cry for spiritual awakening in Peterborough.

weren't for those people we would have no relief problem."

He said he had found the only solution was to beg jobs for them to get them off relief: "The government will not let us put men into the woods or put men out on the roads on relief work any more. All they want them to do is sit at home and take a relief voucher, and, gentlemen, that is no good."

No. 2 school section was still the big problem in field of education, he continued. Referring to the unusually heavy burden which the large suburban school section is inflicting on the rural ratepayers, he said he was convinced the present arrangement should not be changed until some real solution was apparent.

Exhibition Assessment

"I contend that a man who is getting revenue from land should be prepared to pay his taxes on that land whether it is being used for an exhibition ground or whatever it is being used for," Mr. Milby declared, explaining the stand he took early in the year when he and the council sought to assess the Exhibition Grounds. He reviewed the matter saying the council was anxious to continue George street through the grounds in order to open up the adjacent section of the township and obtained a refusal when they approached Mr. Morrow with the proposal. They learned on investigation that the Grounds were leased from Mr. Morrow on terms that had provided for rentals of $500 and $600 a year but were turned down by the court in attempting to assess the property, he recalled.

He said the work of revamping the township books, being done by an experience accountant is proceeding satisfactorily. He urged that the township was in need "of a good assessment." "You'll never get a good assessment while you pay your assessor $200," he said. "If you want a good assessment you will have to pay for it."

Tax Collections

Accepting his second acclamation, Deputy-reeve Johnston commented on the state of tax collections. He urged that the plight of the farmers who had a difficult year by reason of the fact they had to buy their seed be considered but reminded that the farmers must be expected to co-operate to the fullest extent of their ability. He said he believed the policy of low penalties for tax delinquency was justified.

"With regard to the Suburban Association, I wish it well," Mr. Johnston declared. "I know that it is not the intention of the association to set one section of the township against another. Complete harmony has existed in the four years I've served and I hope it will continue that way."

As a result of the county reforestation program now being set under way, many trees have been planted by way of decoration of road sides in North Monaghan, he continued. The principal part of the county program has not yet been revealed to the public as some spadework yet remains to be done, he said. He estimated that the program will not be very expensive.

John Barnes advocates a policy of rebating to prompt taxpayers rather than penalizing delinquent taxpayers as he accepted his nomination. He declared that the solution to the vexatious school problem will have to be evolved gradually.

Government Demands

Mr. Dobbin criticised the government for its demands on municipalities. "I am beginning to think the government is running our township and we can't help ourselves," he said. "The government is imposing things on the communities which are no asset and no benefit."

The speaker said he had favored neither the rural nor the suburban in his tenure of office and intended to continue to work impartially if elected.

Mr. Arnott urged that the township continue its policy of paying as it goes. The township's financial position is such that it can obtain plenty of money from the banks but it is better to collect taxes promptly than borrow from the bank, he said.

"I am not standing for Clarady or Byersville or any particular section of our township," Mr. Archibald said. "I am standing for Monaghan as a whole."

Saying he had been sent to represent the Ratepayers Association, Herbert Bourne suggested that the council ask to hold its future nomination meetings in the evening rather than in the afternoon. Nine-tenths of those interested are unable to leave their work to attend in the afternoon, he said.

Japs Clash With Britain And France In Shanghai

Two of the international clashes which daily threaten to involve outside nations in the Sino-Japanese struggle are graphically pictured here in photographs from Shanghai. At the top French Consul-General Auge (RIGHT), is strenuously arguing with Japanese representatives against their request that military supply trucks of the invading army be permitted to pass through the French concession. At the LEFT is Jaanese Vice-Consul Fukuda and in the background an army officer. Britain is involved in the incident shown below, as a body of Royal Welsh Fusileers, moving up to investigate throwing of a bomb in the International Settlement during Japan's victory parade, are halted by Japanese troops. The British commander is arguing his right to proceed with the Jap. sentry. The Fusileers won their point and moved on; France finally permitted passage of the military trucks with stipulation that they be accompanied by an armed French escort.

Golden Weddings Celebrated By Campbellford Couples

Mr. And Mrs. Massie And Mr. And Mrs. Bateson Observe Happy Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. James Massie, Booth street, quietly observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Massie were married in Campbellford on Dec. 21st, 1887, by Rev. Mr. Hay of the Presbyterian Church here. Mrs. Massie, whose maiden name was Emma Reid, came to Campbellford from Shannonville some sixty-five years ago and attended school in town. Mr. Massie who was born in town worked for twenty-three years in the Trent Valley Woollen Mills, later becoming caretaker of the Public scohol and then the High school, a position which he has held for 31 years.

During the afternoon nearly sixty friends gathered at their home on Booth street to extend congratulations and the gift of a lovely floor lamp from the pupils and staff of the High school was numbered among the many beautiful gifts they received.

Mrs. Thomas Hay, a daughter, and Mrs. Clarence Massey, a daughter-in-law, assisted in pouring tea during the afternoon and guests from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reid and son Leonard of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart of Foxboro.

MR. AND MRS. BATESON

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary on Monday last, Mr. and Mrs. William Bateson received a large number of friends and townspeople in their home on Albert street during the afternoon.

The wedding took place in Meyersburg on December 20, 1887, and the late Rev. Mr. Hay of Campbellford joined in the holy bonds of matrimony Ellen Clark and William Bateson.

Among those who assisted in receiving the guests, were Mrs. Bateson's sister, Mrs. Janet Thompson of Rosebank, Manitoba; also her brother, Mr. George Clark, Rochester, N.Y.; and Mrs. Walter Scott of North Bay. Pouring tea were Mrs. Elizabeth Bateson and Mrs. Charles Bence and also assisting in serving were Miss Margaret Bateson, Miss Jean Scott, Miss Ruth McCredie, Mrs. G. Oliver, Mrs. A. E. Wragg, Mrs. Walter Scott, Mrs. Robert Bateson and Mrs. M. McCredie. A large gathering of friends and former neighbors from the vicinity of Meyersburg and Warkworth joined with Mr. and Mrs. Bateson and presented them with a purse of gold during the evening.

Mr. Peter Scott read the address which accompanied the presentation, which was made by Mr. Alfred Mogall.

Among those present from out of town were Mr. Walter Bateson and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Findlay, Wicklow; Mr. and Mrs. John Bateson and Mr. and Mrs. William Clifford, Peterborough; and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott of North Bay.

Religious Drama To Be Presented

The evening service at George Street United Church will be a special feature. The presentation of a religious drama, entitled "The Seeking Wise Man," will appeal to the public. The cast of characters will be in Palestinian costume. The story is one of Christmas, beautifully portrayed in a delightful story so humanistic. The application is modern in its challenge to a world in which we live, with sin and selfishness so glaring. Those taking part are as follows:

The Prophetess, Mrs. H. Ballard; Dana, Miss Gwen Parnell; Caspar, Mr. Jake Burnham; Shepherd, Mr. Reg. Kingdon; Neva, Eva Blanchs Parr; Kain, Reg. Kingdon (in double roll as Shepherd and son of Dana and Caspar); Heslah, Mr. Alvin Metcalf; Modern Man, Lloyd Parnall.

KEENE

Mrs. Ivan Fletcher arranged a skating party to Oshawa, among those who went were Misses Mary and Ruth Miller, Helen Nelson, Messrs. Andrew Shearer, George Richardson, Max Weir and Jack Miller.

Mr. David Fife of Detroit is visiting friends in the vicinity.

Mr. Robert McCamus spent the week-end with friends in Peterborough.

Ivan Fletcher accompanied by Andrew Shearer, Logan Bowie, Charlie Redpath and William Hope motored to Toronto to see the Toronto-American hockey match.

Mr. Jack Mathison of Havelock visited friends in Lang over the week-end.

Assessment Appeals Exceed Court's Authority City Claims

at the request of its manufacturers' committee.

At that point in Mr. Armstrong's evidence, Mr. Gordon said he would admit that all the conditions of the agreement between the city and the Delaval Company had been carried out.

Mr. Gordon—Was there anything in the bylaw about the scale of wages?

Mr. Armstrong—I can't remember that, but I feel sure there was not.

Assessment Figures

W. J. Henry, city assessor, was the next witness called by Mr. Gordon. Referring to the assessment roll for 1937 he said the Delaval Company was assessed as follows: $18,000 on land, $121,000 on buildings, making the total actual value $139,000. According to the bylaw the company paid all taxes on the fixed assessment of $60,000, and school taxes were paid on the total of $139,000. The business assessment of $83,400 was also taxed for school purposes.

Mr. Gordon gave evidence himself as appellant. To Mr. Kerr he said he had been a member of the council prior to this year for possibly ten years altogether. He said he was not sure of the exact number of years. For four or five years he was city solicitor, and was resident of Peterborough when the Delaval bylaw was passed. Mr. Gordon said he had made no representations to the city council against the bylaw prior to this year.

Asked about his action in council to have the Legislature set aside the bylaw," Mr. Gordon said his recollection was that he framed a private bill himself.

Mr. Kerr—You moved a resolution, and when the colleagues of the council was against you, you promoted a private bill in the Legislature yourself?

Mr. Gordon—That is possible, but the council may not be the same in 1938.

Mr. Kerr—You promoted a private bill and then at the last minute you withdrew it?

Mr. Gordon—When it was due to come up before the private bills committee I was told by the Premier that as it was controversial, and the committee had only two hours and a half that it was not likely it would get any place.

Judge Smoke—What Mr. Gordon did has nothing to do with this action. Is this a fishing expedition for any meeting tonight or any other time?

The cross-examination of Mr. Gordon ended at that point, and Mr. Kerr said he would not offer any evidence.

Raybestos Bylaw

Judge Smoke took up the Raybestos bylaw next, and Mr. Strickland presented certain facts which he said had been agreed to. Mr. Gordon was city solicitor from April 7, 1914 until 1919. The first Raybestos bylaw granted the company a fixed assessment of $10,000. It was passed on June 25, 1920 when Mr. Gordon was chairman of the manufacturers committee of the council. The proper formalities and requirements of the municipal and assessment acts had been fully observed.

Mr. Strickland said the company had no fixed assessment from June 25, 1930 to December 31, 1932. In 1932 the Raybestos Company erected two additional buildings, one 60 to 150 feet and the other 35 by 60 feet under an agreement with the council of that year. The vote on the bylaw was deferred until January 1, 1933 to save the city the expense of a special reference of the question to the citizens who were qualified to vote on money bylaws.

According to the by-law which the people endorsed by a vote of more than two-thirds of the qualified electors the company's assessment was fixed at $25,000 for ten years.

Raybestos Assessment.

W. J. Henry estified that the assessment of the Raybestoc company this year was as follows: Land, $8,500; buildings, $73,000; total, $81,500. All taxes were paid on the fixed assessment of $25,000; school taxes were charged against the total assessment of $81,500; and the business assessment of $48,900 was also taxed for school purposes.

In his brief argument Mr. Gordon said that in both these cases the fixed assessments of the two companies had been renewed. Mr. Kerr said the first by-law was attacked solely on the ground that it was a "renewal by-law." He said there was nothing in the Act which prevented a new and fresh bargain being made between a municipality and a company, "and this is not in any sense a renewing of the old by-law," referring to the existing agreement between the city and the De Laval Company. By this by-law the fixed assessment of the company, on which its general taxes were paid, was increased from $50,000 to $60,000. In that respect alone, Mr. Kerr said, it could not be considered a renewal of the old by-law, and in addition to that phase of the agreement the company undertook to produce new machines in the Peterborough plant and to increase its payroll by a stated percentage which has been greatly exceeded.

Mr. Kerr contended that if the Legislature had meant that only one fixed assessment could be granted to a company it would have been easy to have said that in the statute. It would have definitely meant that no other fixed assement would ever be given to such a company whether or not it was a renewal of a previous by-law. The non-renewal clause, he argued, was intended to give a new council, and also new people after a lapse of years, an opportunity of expressing themselves in regard to relations with a company in new conditions which by that time would have developed. A municipality had the opportunity of not binding themselves by renewal of an old by-law to conditions which might have become adverse to the municipality. In other words, Mr. Kerr said, that clause was intended to guard against an abuse of the statute by renewals.

The act does not say that never again or at any time shall a municipality make a new bargain with a company which would be to the advantage of the people of that municipality as in the case of this new agreement the city made with the De Laval Company," Mr. Kerr emphasized. "This by-law was a new contract made by the De Laval Company. It was onerous to the company, and it was extremely beneficial to a city like Peterborough with a large number of workingmen."

Judge Smoke—Do you say that if a company had a fixed assesment of $10,000, a new by-law granting a fixed assessment of $10,001 would not be a renewal?

Mr. Kerr—No. I said that the court would be astute to see that no colorable agreement was permitted, and would be impresed by the facts and substance of the new agreemet, rather than by the form. The agreement of only one dollar Your Honor suggests would be a colorable attempt to do something that is forbidden. I have tried to show that the increase in the company's assesment, and the terms of the agreement with the company were so subsantial that it was not the same agreement and by-law as the old one and not a renewal of it."

In regard to the Raybestos by-law Mr. Strickland said that in 1932 the country was facing great difficulties because of the depression. In 1932 the company and the council got together, and rather than put the city to he expense of a vote at that time of the year, the company went ahead with its new buildings, and the by-law was endorsed at the end of the year by a substantial majority of the qualified voters. With the new agreement between the company and the city made after a passing of more than two years, Mr. Strickland said he could not see where the question of a renewal of the old by-law could possibly enter into the picture, and for that reason the appeal should be dismissed.

"A couple of little buildings were put up and the company's assesment was fixed," Mr. Gordon said in his turn. "What colors is with the sigma of renewal is hat the new assessment was applied to the entire plant."

On behalf of the city, Mr. Corkery said that if the Legislature had intended that a city after one agreement with a company had expired could never again enter into another agreement, words to that definite effect could easily have been used to make the meaning clear and definite. In both the De Laval and Raybestos cases the city had made new agreements granting new fixed assements. He also contended that the court had no authority to declare invalid any by-law passed by the city.

"The city takes the stand that by-laws are valid, and that this court has no power to interfere with the by-laws granting fixed assessments," Mr. Corkery said.

Carols Originated From 3 Sources

Christmas carols have an origin that comes from three traditional sources, Jewish, Pagan and Christian. Dancing formed a part of early Jewish worship, at some epochs in its history. The people not only danced before the Lord but they sang spiritual songs, oftentimes of their own composing.

The minstrel and ballad such as were found in Europe in the later days of the crusades made their contribution to the Christmas carol. These men were poets, musicians and shingers and went around from place to place reciting their poems. These simple ballads reached the hearts of the commoh people, and were a popular means of education. The Christian church showed its adaptability by steering this primitive medium for reaching the hearts of the common people. Songs were associated with "the crib" in the early days. St. Frances of Assisi used it in the 13th century. Choruses were song with the miracle and mystery plays which formed such a real part of the church's program before the Reformation period. Between the acts the people sang simple songs and enjoyed the easy rythim of them and the fascinating tunes.

These carols are now chiefly associated with Christmas time, and the birth of Jesus Christ.

The 'Carol' in story and song will be the theme in St. Andrew's church on next Sunday night. Fifteen minutes at least will be spent in singing the following popular Christmas carols: John Mason Neale's "Good Christian Men Rejoice," written in the early 19th century; "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," which is a traditional English carol; "Inant Holy, Infant Lowly," by Emly Reed; "Brightest and Best" by Reginald Heber, written in the latter part of the 18th century.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS FUTURE LED SCROOGE TO A GROUP OF BUSINESS MEN. "WHEN DID HE DIE?" ASKED ONE. "LAST NIGHT," REPLIED A VERY FAT MAN. "IT'S LIKELY TO BE A CHEAP FUNERAL, FOR I DON'T KNOW OF ANYONE TO GO TO IT," HE CONTINUED.

Garbo's Work In 'Camille' Ranks Among Year's Tops

Spencer Tracy, Paul Muni And Charles Boyer Leading Male Contenders

By Milton Harker
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 24.—This may be Garbo's year.

Ignored in Motion Picture Academy awards since she made her first languorous bow on the screen, the great Swedish actress is favored by many critics for the forthcoming top honors for her performance in "Camille" with Robert Taylor.

Spencer Tracy's characterization of Manuel, the Portuguese sailor, in "Captains Courageous," is regarded as likely to win for him the highest award for an actor.

But, in the men's field the voting is expected to be much closer than in making the women's award.

Muni and Boyer Near Top

Rated in hair-breath comparison with Tracy are Paul Muni, who brought another famous historical character to life "The Life of Emil Zola," and Charles Boyer, who did the finest work of his career as Napoleon in "Conquest."

Almost by acclaim the critics select "The Life of Emil Zola" as the outstanding picture of 1937. Produced by Warner Brothers, it is regarded as flawless in casting, direction and production.

Rated next to Garbo are Katharine Hepburn, for her work in R.K.O.'s "Stage Door," and Janet Gaynor, for her sensational comeback performance with Fredric March in Selznick's "A Star Is Born."

Larger Vote To Decide Awards

The spring will see a much larger vote cast for the various awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, due to the recent decision of the Screen Actors' Guild to join in the selection. This will increase the ballots from the usual 1,000 of recent years to more than 12,000.

There has been much talk and speculation on why Garbo, never once has received the screen's highest honors. She has given many brilliant performances in the more than a score of pictures in which she has appeared in 12 years.

One point, it is admitted here, mitigates against her. Those who make up the Academy's selection committee have doubted she would appear at the annual banquet to accept her statue of honor even if she were selected. An acceptance only by proxy would be a direct affront to the Academy they feel.

Disinterest in Acclaim a Factor

Her apparent lack of interest in public acclaim—she does not even attend the previews of her own pictures—again may weight in the balance against her this year.

There is also the consideration that Garbo and Tracy both are Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stars. But that is not all-powerful. Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert both won highest awards for their performances several years ago in Columbia's "It Happened One Night." That picture, in turn, was voted the best of the year. Gable was borrowed from M.-G.-M. and Miss Colbert from Paramount but it shows awards may be concentrated.

Garbo was co-starred with Boyer in M.-G.-M.'s "Conquest," and while she gave a fine interpretation of Madame Walewska, her work was overshadowed by Boyer.

Hepburn Hailed For "Stage Door"

Hepburn has been blowing Hollywood hot and cold ever since she leaped overnight into fame in "Bill of Divorcement" with John Barrymore and Billie Burke. In "Stage Door" she gave her finest performance, that of a stage-struck wealthy middle western girl who lands in New York to make a theatrical future.

Miss Gaynor's performance also was as a middle western girl, one who came to Hollywood to find fame and fortune. She played her finest role at a time when Hollywood, with the exception of David O. Selznick, regarded her as a has been.

Muni, now on a round-the-world tour with his wife, won the Academy award last spring for his "Story of Louis Pasteur."

Besides Zola he gave a sensational performance, as did his co-star, Luise Rainer, in M.-G.-M.'s "The Good Earth". Miss Rainer won the women's award last year for her work in "Ziegfeld."

Colbert Stars in "Tovarich"

Miss Colbert, whom Warner Brothers borrowed from Paramount for the part, makes another bid for recognition in "Tovarich," the gay comedy which scored on the stage and which has been improved on the screen. Miss Colbert, never better, shares honor in the production with Boyer.

William Dieterle, who directed Muni as Zola, probably will receive the highest award for the best direction of the year.

Dieterle also directed Pasteur and was co-director with Max Reinhart in "Midsummer Night's Dream."

"The Hurricane" Most Spectacular

Samuel Goldwyn's "The Hurricane" is certainly the most spectacular production of 1937 with its almost unbelievable shots of the "big wind" which almost wipes out a south sea island and its population.

Another of the year's real spectacle is Columbia's "Lost Horizon," in which Ronald Colman finds the city of eternal life.

Some of the most beautiful photography of the year is to be found in these pictures, along with the sea shots in "Captains Courageous," another of the year's finest, in Paramount's "High Wide and Handsome," Universals "The Road Back," Paramount's "Wells Fargo" Twentieth Century-Fox's "Wee Willie Winkie" and in Warner's "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

BLACKS' MOURNING DAY

MELBOURNE, Dec. 22.—(CP-Reuters). — While Australia celebrates next year the 150th anniversary of the first white settlement, the Australian Aborigines' League plans a day of mourning for the black men.

"While white men are throwing their hats in the air with joy," it was said at a meeting of the league, "Aborigines will be in mourning for all they have lost. It is hoped that the day of mourning will direct the attention of Australians to the desire of the Aborigines for full citizenship."

Snow White And The Dwarfs Disney 8-Reel Triumph

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23 (AP). — Hollywood accustomed to conventional motion pictures, cheered a fairy tale fantasy last night that presented, for the first time, an animated cartoon in feature length.

They saw the world premiere of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the eight-reel cartoon on which Walt Disney spent three years and $1,500,000.

The simple story is adapted from the Grimm fairly tale about the princess who is fairer than her stepmother, the queen. The princess escapes the wrath of the envious queen and is befriended by seven dwarfs as strange a collection of characters as ever were created.

The seven dwarfs steals the show. Doc, Dopey, Grumpy, Happy, Sneezy, Bashful and Sleepy will be among the movie celebrities of 1938, but this may be their sole appearance because Disney once said they have served their purpose.

The photography is extraordinary in its depth and the illusion of third dimensions. Its color in certain scenes is breath-taking.

DUCKY MEDWICK LEADS CIRCUIT EXTRA HONORS

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—Further proof that Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals was the best all-around outfielder in 1937 was offered today with publication of the National League's final set of averages.

Medwick, already crowned batting king of both leagues and the leading defensive outfielder of his own circuit, picked up additional honors buried under a mass of statistics labeled "miscellaneous records."

From a team standpoint, one of those marks was as important as Medwick's individual achievements. For he batted in 154 runs to lead the league in that division for the second consecutive year. Joe slugged for 406 total bases to lead the sluggers with a percentage of .641.

Johnny Mize of St. Louis was second to Medwick in the slugging column, but he wasn't even close. Mize had a slugging average of .595, his for 333 total bases and batted in 113 runs.

In club slugging, the Chicago Cubs were tops with a marg of .416. They batted in the most runs, 762, and obtained the most walks, 538. Boston led in strikeouts with 707 and established a new league record. The old marg of 706 was made by Brooklyn in 1910.

The Cardinals were second in club slugging with .406 and the champion New York Giants were third with .403.

Other leaders were:

Most walks—Mel Ott, Giants, 102.

Most times struck out—Vince DiMaggio, Boston 111.

Struck out fewest times—Johnny Cooney, Brooklyn, 10.

Hit most times by pitchers—Dick Bartell, New York, 10.

Hit into most double plays—Frank Demaree, Chicago, 23.

Hockey's Big 7

(By the Canadian Press).

Cecil Dillon, only member of the National Hockey League's big seven in action last night, gained an assist in his New York Rangers' 4-0 victory against Maroons and moved to within two points of League-leading Gordon Drillon of Toronto. The assist gave Dilion 17 points and broke a second-place tie between the black-thatched wingman and Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Drillon, Toronto	9	10	19
Dillon, Rangers	8	9	17
Gagnon, Canadiens	4	12	16
Mantha, Canadiens	10	5	15
Stewart, Americans	8	7	15
Jackson, Toronto	7	8	15
Apps, Toronto	6	9	15

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the customers aint surely looking for much in the way of sport discussin this week end owing to Sandy Claws' taking up most of the attention. Anyway they aint been a heck of a lot doing in that line this week. Our hockey outfit did manage to get out for a while Tues. nite but the ice was so rough a guy what tried to turn on the heat would be entitled to a medal for bravery. They was a few new faces out there and we got a idea we're going to see a lot of interesting hockey here this winter, if we get enough ice to get the lads in shape. They're billed to play Eddie Thomas' gang in Belleville Monday and that's tough assignment for a squad what aint had a chance to get the kinks outa their legs, let alone to develop any system or team work. The first lineup will be more or less of a guess work affair for they aint been no chance to get a line on the material and the management may have to draw enough names outt of a hat to make up the team for the 1st battle.

They Counted Anyway

In the pro loop Mac, about the only thing worthy of note is the N.H.L magnets has decided to change the scoring rules so that assists can be give on a rebound.

That don't mean so much as it sounds, oldtimer, for most of the scorers except the bird in Boston and mebbe a couple more has been handing out points all season on rebounds and the Toronto official who seems to be trying to keep the whole Leaf team up at the top of the lists have been dishing out 2 assists on all the rebound goal this season. Incidentally it looks like the same bird took a assist away from Sweeney Schriner last Sat. nite. The Amerks scoring star, tops in the loop for two seasons, is in a position where he is libel to start challenging the leaders anytime but he'll have to pop the old bootheel into the nets himself to get any scoring points when he is playing in Toronto.

The Detroits aint started to move a wheel yet and mebbe I jinxed them for fair when I come right out before the season opened and called them to cop the honors again this year. That is a awful handicap for any man's team and right now our old college chum Mister Jack Adams seems to be out on the end of the limb and sawing it off between him and the tree. He's breaking up the squad that win for him the last 2 seasons and adding some old timers like Red Beattie of Boston, a good boy in his day but surely going the wrong way now.

Well I guess I'll brake off here with the same old salutation to the customers. Merry Christmas to yez all.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

ADAMS NO LONGER THE HAPPY PILOT OF NATIONAL LOOP

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—(CP)—The world is falling around Jack Adams and the one-time 'smiling Jawn' of the National Hockey League apparentlyq can't do a thing about it.

The hockey fates have been kind to this venerable maestro, kind, that is, until this season when his House began to tumble as Detroit Red Wings went into a disastrous slump. There might be a million reasons for the fall, but there isn't one apparent to the eye at a moment's notice.

There was everything necessary for Adams to be his old, happy self when the Wings went into pre-season training. Didn't we have the outstanding goaltender of 1936-37 in Norm Smith? Wasn't the N.H.L.'s most-feared line—Larry Aurie, Marty Barry and Herb Lewis—intact? Didn't he have four mammoth, experienced defencemen?

All these were there and Wings, professional hockey champions for two seasons, seemed set for another dash to a third straight Stanley Cup. Adams, 11 years a hockey coach and admittedly as smart as any, predicted that "Wings are the team to beat in the N.H.L."

But Adams was wrong, or at least has been wrong for the first two months of the season. Smith has seen more goals pass him than any other netminder. Lewis, Aurie and Barry have scored only 15 goals in 16 games. The defence has been shaky, especially since Ebbie Goodfellow was injured.

Adams was loathe to break up his championship squad, believing it would come to life suddenly and fly as of yore. But events forced him to start trading when Wings won only 2 games in 9 during the first month. So he swapped Gordon Pettinger to Boston for veteran Red Beattie.

He broke the line of Barry, Aurie and Lewis, a move only desperation could force, but things became no better and Adams quickly re-united the trio. Things have not improved. The Wings have won but three games in 16. They have scored less than any other club.

It may be that like all great teams the Wings are being licked by time taking its toll on the speed and shooting eyes of the former greats. It may be something else. Adams doesn't mind admiting he doesn't know.

And on the eve of Christmas, when all men should be merry, there's no laughter in the heart of Jack Adams. The N.H.L. won't have its "Smiling Jawn" if things don't get beter for the Wings pretty soon.

FAIR WRESTLER HOPES TO WED

BUTTE, Montana, Dec. 24 (U.P.). Clara Mortenson, called the world's lightweight women's wrestling champion, to-day indicated she would quit the mat to marry—some day. "Stop wrestling and start fighting," she said.

The 21-year-old female Frank Gotch stopped in Butte long enough to tear apart Jean Laduc, called the "Canadian Tiger," and the women's lightweight champion of the Dominion. After grunting, groaning, slamming, and kicking, Miss Ladue for the better part of a half-hour, the Danish wildcat said: "Sure I intend to get married, and then I'll quit wrestling, not before."

"And what kind of a husband would you like?" she was asked.

"Well," she murmured, fingering the beginnings of a cauliflower ear, "somebody tall — who'll do what I tell him."

Clara was wasting words. Tall or short, she knew very well he'd do what she told him, or end up on the wrong side of an airplane spin and a body slam.

At 5 feet 5½ inches, Clara's 132 pounds have tangled with the same weight of the "stronger sex" and won. She avoids these mixed matches, because "the men get so mad when they lose."

N.H.L. All-Stars

(By the Canadian Press)

Davie Kerr, Rangers, gained sixth shutout of season as the New Yorkers defeated Maroons 4-0.

Clint Smith and Lynn Patrick, Rangers, set the scoring pace with a goal and assist apiece.

Bill Beveridge, Maroons, who kept down the New York count by fine goal-tending.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NOBODY DOES much work—except store clerks—on Christmas Eve, so why should youse folks expect the sports writer to break his arm? Well, we won't—in fact we'll fill a goodly portion of this enormous column with what we insist is a poem. Take it away, Tarzan:

'Twas the night before Xmas
And all through the rink
The puck moguls were doing
Their darndest to drink—we mean think!
For down in Belleville
Come next Monday night,
The Peterborough pucksts
Have a game—or a fight;
With no local workouts
And no players picked (pun my word, "Pick Hines)
It had all the earmarks
Of the Petes getting licked!
Then up spake brave Horatius,
Or someone like him, we think:
"There's water, water everywhere,
But never a drop to drink . . ."
But ere he could finish,
With a thud and a sock
St. Nick dropped in
Through the roof of the Brock:
He brought us a swelegant
Senior "B" hockey team—
And then we woke up,
Or was it a dream? . . .

(Well, we had to end the darn thing somehow!)

* * * * * * *

AT THIS time, we wish to extend the season's greetings to all. A most merry Christmas to all our friends and enemies. We wish the best to all readers of this column, athletes and fans of the city and district. We hope heartily that all of youse girls and boys—regardless of the age—get a grip on a big luscious drumstick, or do ya prefer some white meat? Anyway, have yourselves a happy holiday with our best wishes.

* * * * * * *

OUT OF more than two dozen Christmas greeting cards from sports chaps we have received—for which we say thanks muchly we'll list a few. Picked at random, like those from: Knotty Lee, former ball coach here; Prexy Fred Dufton of the Cobourg O.R.F.U. champions; Leo Begley of the Lindsay Post; W. E. (Pick) Hines, Petes' senior puck coach; Ken Colling, Belleville scribe and umpire; Fred (Ripper) Collins, senior ball coach here; George Campbell, writer and lacrosser of Oshawa; Hugh Campbell, executive member of the Peterborough Baseball Club; Bill Walshe, Kingston columnist; Herb Ralph, manager of the Rotary junior ballsters; the carpetball league secretary; and so on. With today's batch of mail not in yet. It is nice to be remembered, and again we say thanks.

* * * * * * *

WENT UP to the Brock St. rink last night and watched about 20 guys tearing around like they were crazy. All battling for berths. Some of 'em looked good and some of 'em were having a tough time of it. Some more who should have been on deck didn't don the skates. Either thought they hasn't a chance or else were the type who try to fit a No. 11 head into a No. 10 hat—yeah, big ideas! For the benefit of these latter, we might say that they're messing around with the wrong gee in Pick Hines. He doesn't know any of the local puck stars of the past and he won't consider anyone for his team this year who doesn't turn out and show something in practises. These workouts will continue nightly till the first game. Junior players will start practising the first of next week.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

THE LOCAL coach remarked that some four or five of the fellows really struck him as promising. While many of the boys who take a bit of time will show something in a few weeks but can't click now. Pick said that Brown didn't look so hot yet but he thought he might have something with a bit of work. He liked the looks of Barnes, and felt that Grattan had something. Burton disappointed him the first practise but looked most promising last night. And so on. Shrimp McDougall should go good this year, the heady and popular little ex-pro forward being in fine shape. By the way, he became a proud papa for the second time—this time a daughter—the other night. Well, the above prospective lineup, with a few extra names tossed in, will give readers an idea of the senior "B" squad.

* * * * * * *

THIS FROM Belleville: "It would seem things are not so rosy on the inner side of the R.C.A.F. squad these days. Stan Partridge, who was a tower of strength on the Fliers' defence, decided to retire though he played the first two games in the VanHorne series. George Elliott of the R.C.A.F., former Winnipeg defenceman, is trying out with the Redmen and we understand another of the Airmen desires to join up with the local squad. Rumor has it from the Airport that unless a player possesses an Ottawa complex and favors Bytown ideas in hockey there is little to look forward to in a hockey future. The absence of Partridge was noticeable when the Fliers fell before Perth recently. Who was it once said: 'Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown?'".

* * * * * * *

AND NOW we think we have done a doggone good chore, considering that it is Christmas Eve. And the fact that the paper goes to press quite early. We haven't really got time to get things organized. Such as to do a bit of loafing and then to ankle leisurely around town and pick up what's going on here and there. Nothing at all for the grab-bag end of this pillar. So, we will let everything else slide till the gift swapping business is over, and with another wish for a merry Christmas, say cheerio for now.

OIL FLARES WARM CHILDREN

LITTLE CHICAGO, Alta.—(CP). Youngster going to school in the winter in the Little Chicaga area of Turner Valley oil fields find the gas flares kept burning to prevent water lines freezing just the thing on cold days. The children, fighting bitter cold en route to school, warm themselves around the flares.

PREDICTS FRANCE AS FUTURE FIELD HOCKEY MATERIAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(CP). — Montreal Canadiens soon will be able to look to France as an incubator for hockey players, in the opinion of Alec Cancel, fast-skating youngster from Paris, now starring in New York's Metropolitan League.

The husky 21-year-old winger who learned all his hockey in Europe within the last five years, envisions the day when his favorite Canadiens will scout France and uncover players who will shine in the National League.

"The kids are so enthusiastic over hockey in Paris that they buy all their own equipment and even pay their own way into the rinks for games and practices," said Alec, who was born in Quebec but left Canada with his parents before he was a year old.

"I started to play hockey after being scolded by my mother for buying a 'useless' stick, because I thought I'd better find some use for it. I organized a team at Ecole Alsacienne in Paris, but like myself most of the students could turn only one way on skates."

Charlie Ramsay, former United States Olympic star, took the school team in hand and they practised early in the mornings at Palais de Sports, Paris' indoor ice palace, before attending classes. By the end of the season Ecole Alsacienne won the National Junior title and Cancel won a bronze trophy for being the team's outstanding player.

Two years later he joined the Stade Francis team which won the National Senior championship and the Spengler Cup at Davos, Switzerland, in an international tournament.

He was chosen on the French National team and captained the French Student National squad.

Business brought Cancel to New York last Spring and although he thinks he started the game too late to have much hope of turning professional, he is confident that out of the hundreds of young "Flying Frenchmen" now playing on the rinks of France, great stars will develop.

BRITISH BOXERS ASK MORE MONEY

LONDON, Dec. 24 (C.P.). — Declaring the boxing business was underpaid, Len Harvey, former British Empire heavyweight, asked his colleagues to cease being "the Cinderellas of sport."

He was chief speaker at the National Union of Boxers and he made his point by recalling his first fight had netted him three shillings. The union demands a minimum wage of £1 ($5) for six rounds.

The London News-Chronicle, analyzing the situation, said the union's demand works out to three shillings and fourpence (83 cents) a round, or about tenpence a minute, including rests—voluntary and involuntary.

"On the other hand, look what they do for it. All that dodging and feinting, with, every now and then, a very sudden fall on to a very hard floor. And there is always the risk of being hit—or do they draw workmen's compensation for that?"

Kerr Is Star Of Rangers' 4-0 Victory Over Montreal Maroons

Sixth Shutout For New York Goalie—Rangers Advance On Bruins

MONTREAL, Dec. 24 — (CP). — Records seldom have spoken as eloquently for a goaltender as they do for Davie Kerr, the man making better than a fair fist of keeping pucks out of the New York Rangers goal.

Rangers have played 16 games so far in this National Hockey League campaign and in six of those games Kerr has held the opposition scoreless to lead all league goalers in shutouts. Too, he is the lowest scored-on netminder in the league with only 24 shots eluding him.

Kerr scored his sixth shutout last night when Rangers walloped Montreal Maroons here, 4-0, in the only N.H.L. game up for decision. And while Kerr starred at one end for Rangers, Bill Beveridge gave a sensational display at the other end for Maroons, but he didn't receive from his mates the support accorded Kerr.

Rangers, by victory, moved only two points away from the division-leading Boston Bruins, while Maroons slid further in the Canadian section cellar.

It took less than two minutes of the game for Manager Lester Patrick's men to decide victory. At 1:51 minutes in the first period Mac Colville fired what proved to be the winning goal on a lone rush.

In the second period Clint Smith put Rangers further ahead when he scored after a play with Lynn Patrick. Then in the third session Patrick shot home the rubber after combining with Smith and Cecil Dillon. Alex Shibicky finished the scoring late in the period on a play fashioned by Neil Colville.

SAILORS GAIN THIRD POSITION IN SENIOR O.H.A.

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 24 (CP) —Port Colborne Sailors, cellar team of the Senior A Division of the Ontario Hockey Association, today were in third place, topping the Western Ontario division of the loop.

Sailors defeated Kitchener Greenshirts here last night in overtime to take their second victory this season and both from the Kitchener club. Evenly matched throughout the night's play, Sailors scored their winning goal in an overtime session after the regulation play ended at 3-3 to win by a one-point margin.

The teams matched goal for goal in the first three periods but Doug. Runions had a break in the extra time and sank the puck. Carlo Kuntz, Kitchener's stellar defenceman, attempted to clear the puck from a scramble in front of the Greenshirts' net and laid the rubber on Runions' stick. Runions shot past Bindernagel in the Kitchener net to win the game.

The loss left Kitchener tied with Brantford for cellar position, and the League leaders, Toronto Goodyears and Oshawa G-Men, in the first two positions. Sailors took third place with their previous win over Kitchener and the victory last night consolidated their position.

Thompson started scoring for Port Colborne in the first period, but his goal was matched three minutes later by Fehrenback to complete scoring for the period. Lang of Kitchener scored first in the second session but Gooney McGowan evened the count. In the third Red Reynolds gave the Sailors a short-lived lead with his goal 20 second after the period started, then Tennant tied the count to send the game into overtime.

WOMAN KILLS COYOTES

CALGARY—(CP)—oMther of a six-year-old son, Mrs. Ratcliffe of the N-Ranch on Milk River, west of here, came to town dressed in buckskins and furs to announce she knocked over 14 coyotes in two weeks. When winter comes on Milk River the Ratcliffs can get outside only on horseback.

Bob Fritz Replaced As Winnipeg Coach

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24 (CP).—Bob Fritz, who led Winnipeg Blue Bombers to the Canadian rugby football championship in 1935 and to the Western title again this season, will be replaced as coach of the Western Interprovincial Union team, President Lez Isard of the Winnipeg Rugby Club announced today.

Isard said the executive had decided in favor of a non-playing coach for the 1938 season but that it was hoped Fritz would remain with the club as a player. The executive will discuss the problem of a new coach at the annual meeting in January. There was no indication of a possible successor.

Fritz had said previously that a coach should not be an active player and he endorsed the executive decision before leaving for his home in International Falls, Minn., to spend Christmas with his parents, Isard said.

SOCCER GRIND NOT SO HEAVY FOR CHRISTMAS

LONDON, Dec. 24 (CP Cable) — This year's Christmas program is comparatively easy for English and Welsh soccer clubs. Usually the teams are called upon to engage in three games, but with the holiday falling on Saturday, only two matches will be played, except in one or two cases.

All encounters will be of the home-and-away variety, with the home teams of Christmas Day being guests of the same opponents on Monday, when Boxing Day will be observed.

Brentford, league leader, has hard games in prospect against Manchester City. The Bees, with a single-point margin over Bolton Wanderers and Leeds United, will take their strongest team to Manchester for the first game Saturday.

Bolton and Leeds, both at home Christmas Day, play Derby County and Middlesbrough. Strengthened by the return of Kitchen and Crayston, Arsenal opposes Blackpool, with the first game on the Seasiders' ground. Blackpool, its team bolstered through the acquisition of two Scottish internationals within the past month, is striving to get out of the league's danger zone, and may surprise the fast-stepping Gunners.

Portsmouth, in last place, two points below Blackpool, has shown great improvement in recent matches, but will meet tough opposition in Preston North End, bracketed with three other lubs in fourth place.

Coventry City and Sheffield United, co-leaders of the Second Division, lock horns, with the first match at Sheffield. The matches will attract huge crowds in both cities. The clubs are two points ahead of Aston Villa, who play Bradford, only three points behind the leaders.

Third Division, Southern Section, fixtures have Notts County, the pace-setter, down for matches with Gillingham. The county should capture all points as its opponent has obtained only eight points in eighteen matches this season. In the Northern loop, Oldham Athletic is expected to take most of the points from New Brighton.

ENGLISH SOCCER PRESIDENT SCORED

President Pickford of the English Football Association, has stirred up a hornets' nest in the Old Country by his use of three simple and innocent-looking words, "Poor old Scotland." Pickford was twitting Scotland about having to go to England for Scottish-born players for international games, and it is probable he meant no offense, but the Scots have taken the English President seriously. As a result there is a miniature civil war raging over there. The Scots remind Pickford that it takes the Scots to add color to English football. "The Scotland-England international game is still the supreme test of the soccer world," they declare.

Furthermore, they point to the large number of Scottish stars playing in England, and add that there are many players in Scotland today for whom English clubs would gladly pay ten thousand pounds. If any country has a right to do any "crowing" it is Wales, and not England, it is contended, as the Welsh have won the international title four times in six years. One Scottish writer sums up a rather severe criticism of Pickford by saying: "It is a long time till April (the date of the tussle between England and Scotland), and our main task is at Wembley, with Burns' immortal words in our ears, 'Lay the proud Saxon low.'"

Former Jockey Trains Chief

Earl Sande, who rode three Kentucky derby winners, is shown with The Chief, being trained by the former jockey for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap in February. The Chief, owned by Maxwell Howard, has been assigned to carry 101 pounds in the Santa Anita big money race.

Louis Will Kayo Schmeling And Farr Will Be Champion

Tonypandy Tommy Makes Promises On Arrival For Heavyweight Campaign

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP). — Tommy Farr expects to fight for the world's heavyweight title next September. Furthermore, he predicts he'll win it—from Joe Louis.

The Welshman, who lasted 15 rounds with Louis last August, came back to New York Wednesday for a campaign designed to add the world title to the British Empire championship he already holds. His first start will be against James J. Braddock in Madison Square Garden January 21.

"I'll lick Braddock and then I'll whip Max Baer," said the effusive Tommy. "Then who's to stop me from fighting the Louis - Max Schmeling winner?

Louis Will Stop Schmeling.

"And it'll be Louis," he added. "I think he'll knock Schmeling colder than a turkey. Joe is bound to have learned plenty since their last fight, and don't forget Max will be two years older in June than he was when he fought Louis before."

Farr was off the Normandie less than two hours before Mike Jacobs got his agreement to meet the elder Baer, himself a former champion, if the Welshman beats Braddock.

"I am sure I can lick both of them," Farr went on. "But you have got to have a healthy respect for any man who can send Louis to the deck as Braddock did in Chicago."

Farr, who has been giving boxing lessons in England and Wales, weighs 210, six more than he scaled for Louis. He'll begin training next week.

No Mental Worries.

"You're going to see a different Tommy Farr in this fight," he promised. "I'm not bothered by the mental worry that handicapped me last August or dissension in my training camp. I'm a new man since I settled my affairs with Ted Broadribb (his former manager). I'm my own manager now. This time I'll have men in my corner who know how to handle cuts, and who won't merely douse them with water and let it go at that."

Farr's visit home was expensive. He revealed it cost him more than $35,000 to settle with Broadribb and adjust other legal difficulties.

OPEN UP GAMES POWWOW URGES FOR BADMINTON

MONTREAL, Dec. 24 (C.P.)—As it turns into another bumper year with its thousands of tournament players and a highly-successful governing body in command, badminton is preparing for a big step that may be taken in 1938—open tournaments.

No sport is more healthy or better stabilized in Canada than badminton. It needs nothing at the moment to add to its attractiveness. But the Canadian Badminton Association, fastest-growing sports organization of the last decade, recognizes no stopping point in its development.

If badminton needs anything, perhaps it's a match between Dick Birsch, Vancouver's Canadian amateur champion, and Jack Purcell of Toronto, regarded as the best professional in the world. Throw Purcell in among the top-notch amateurs and you'd have something.

Headed by the president of the Ontario Badminton Association, Dr. Ray W. Cramer of Guelph, a strong move is afoot to have open tournaments similar to those staged in golf. At the same time the National championships would become international events, with an interlocking relationship between the United States and Canadian governing bodies.

Dr. Cramer, appointed chairman of a special committee to study the possibilities of this revised set-up when the C.B.A. sat in session at Vancouver last March, has been working on the open tournament proposition for many months, warm reception having been accorded his plan from many sections of the Dominion.

Suggestions Made.

The gist of the resolution submitted to the C.B.A. annual meeting last spring was "to consider seriously the possibility of holding open tournaments between American and Canadian players, in order that organized badminton can retain control, instead of allowing private promoters to step in and handle the situation, such as is happening in tennis at the present time.

"Further, we would suggest that an open amateur tournament be held in Canada, and in the same year an open aamteur and professional tournament be held in the United States; the following year the venue of tournaments to be reversed, it being understood that these tournaments would be held under the auspices of the Canadian association in Canada and the American association when the games were held across the border.

Opening the doors of badminton to permit the pros to compete in a limited number of tournaments with the amateurs is in no way flouting the laws of the supreme court of badminton. The world governing body, the International Badminton Federation, expresses itself on this point, decreeing that "an open tournament may be held by a country if sanctioned by the International Badminton Federation, but each national organization has absolute power to decide whether or not its own nationals may compete in such tournaments.

Thus another major sport veers to a broader outlook towards the professionals of the sport, who, as in golf where the plan has worked with success, are primarily teachers.

Sick In Budapest

PRIMO CARNERA

The life of a giant pugilist is no bed of roses as Primo Carnera, former heavyweight champion and giant, can testify. One day he was lying in a Budapest hospital sick and broke, the next day he was just sick. His manager, Louis Soresi, expressed a willingness to cable "Da Preem" $16,000, which is all that is left of a $42,000 bundle that was held up for months by litigation.

GREETINGS

Regardless of any misfortune you may have had, I trust you will experience much joy this holiday season.

This year, greater portion than usual of that joy, may perhaps come from seeing happiness in the faces of the little ones, and the grateful response from those in need.

After all, who can say that these years have not left us spiritually and physically better?

Possibly we shall consider more thoughtfully the Philosopher in whose Name we celebrate Christmas.

It is my hope that 1938 will continue the era of courage and economic recovery. With these thoughts in mind, I wish you and yours a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

CHAPTER 23

As I had promised Olga, I stayed after the others had left her party. I did not want to do it. I wanted to wander out under the stars. I was drunk with dreams.

But it was not a bad substitute to sit in the "Turkish Retreat" and talk about Mimi. It was a gaudy place, artistically with its black and gold brocade making a sumptuous background for Olga's pink satin and pearls, but it was cozy in a way and comfortable.

She came at once to the subject which she had on her mind. "So you're in love with Mimi?"

I flushed. "Do I wear it on my sleeve like that? Everybody seems to know it and talk about it."

"Oh, well, reticence is old-fashioned. Frankness is the fashion, especially if it is unpleasant. That's why I hate them all."

She said it without a particle of vindictiveness—calmly — stating a fact.

"They haven't held a thing back from me," she went on. "I'm an interloper. And they seem to think there's no reason why they shouldn't tell me so."

I did not know what to say. I was uncomfortable. Then suddenly she flung a bomb at my feet. "I want you to marry Mimi."

I sat there staring at her. "I mean it," she went on. "I like her better than any of the rest. And I like you. And I hate Mrs. Le Brun. She's set on having Mimi marry Andy. And—I'd like to disappoint her. Perhaps I can help you a little."

There was, it seemed to me, a touch of treason in her suggestion of an alliance between us—.

"I haven't any right to hope," I told her.

"Yes," she said, "you have" she leaned forward, a sort of pink and ponderous fairy godmother. "I'm in love with you, Jerry."

The next morning I reviewed my experiences of the past 24 hours. I had intensified Andy's feeling of animosity. I had gained a somewhat unwelcome ally in Olga and the kiss wafted from Mimi's fingers seemed to me the sign and seal of her surrender.

I felt that I must see her. And after breakfast I tried to telephone. Her mother's voice answered. Mimi was still in bed. And she had a busy day before her. Would I call up later?

I called up later. Mimi was out. This time a maid answered. She did not know when Miss Le Brun would be in.

Being thus thwarted, I tried to write on the play. But my thoughts fled to Mimi. I was restless, unable to keep my mind on words . . . and words . . . and words. . . .!

I gave it up and took a walk. I sauntered down a wide and lovely street with the joyous name—King's Highway! There was an old tune which the name suggested. I hummed it under my breath.

"Fair and free, night and day,
"Fair and free is the King's Highway. . . ."

How the tune fitted the morning! "Hug thyself . . . In wealth of state . . . empty purse hath careless gait . . . thou must watch thy chests and bags . . . naught has the beggar to lose but rage . . .! Wine for thee . . . for me a crust . . . king and beggar . . . they both are dust . . . and dust to dust . . . must return some day . . . e'en as now on the Great Highway. . . ."

In this mood what was more natural than that I should turn toward the street where Mimi dwelt. If I could not see her I could at least look upon the casket which contained her! Thus I told myself afterward.

I had known that she lived in an apartment house but I had fancied it would be a glorified place, not cast in the mold of ordinary habitations. But it was nothing of the sort. It was a dingy brick, and I was to learn later that the Le Bruns were on the third floor and that one had to walk up two flights of stairs as there was no elevator.

I passed the house twice, secure in the thought that as Mimi was out there was no one who knew me. The wind was from the east, and the smoke drifting over the city dashed the sunshine. But it could not dull the brightness of the day for me. This unpretentious habitation gave me hope. Surely the time would come when I could provide a finer nest than this. My dreams leaped forward. I saw the play a success. I saw other plays. With youth and love a man might move mountains.

I like to think of the boy I was, treading the streets of the old city. Of his lightness of heart. Of his faith in the future.

As I went along I thought of my father, and I wished that he were by my side. I wanted to hear him speak in his tense, tentative tone of the goodness of God. I knew that God was good. Through all these years he had led me at last to the woman I loved. . . .

Turning back again finally to the boulevard, I saw coming straight towards me—Mimi, walking with her free step, and talking to a little woman who pattered along beside her.

"Jerry," she said, when she saw me, "what are you doing down here?"

"Looking up at Juliet's balcony."

"Not really?" but the pink in her cheeks was lovely.

She presented me to the little woman. "Aunt Lucie, this is Jerry Chartier. Mrs. Merrick is helping with my every dresses, Jerry. We have been down town matching some samples. Aunt Lucie is my shrinking violet and I hope that some day she will help with my wedding things."

The little lady was, I could see at first glance, no ordinary seamstress. She wore old-fashioned and somewhat shabby black. But she wore it with the air of a small princess. She had little feet and little hands, and a straight back. Mimi told me her story afterwards. She was not a blood relation, but she belonged by birth and breeding to that inner circle of which Mimi was a part. She had been a beautiful girl, but had made an unfortunate marriage with a man who had squandered the fortune she had brought him. With a fine pride she had refused to be dependent. She lived in an ancient house which she owned, and she rented rooms. She was conventioned and did exquisite things with her needle. Her old friends employed her, and treated her always as one of themselves.

"Cherie," she said, with a charming twinkle, "I shall not make your wedding clothes unless I like the man you marry."

"Then please like me," I implored. She surveyed me with bright appraising eyes. "You are better than most of them."

"Most of them? Are there then so many?"

"Too many. She will, I am afraid,

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS

"Are they all in bed" whispered Uncle Wiggily.

"Every last one of them, including Baby Bunty," answered Nurse Jane.

"It was all I could do to get Buster to go upstairs," said Mrs. Longears, the rabbit lady mother.

"Why didn't he want to go to bed?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, he said he was going to sit up and when he heard a noise in the chimney he was going to watch and see Santa Claus come down," said Mrs. Longears, laughing.

"Just like Buster!" chucked Uncle Wiggily. "He might know Santa Claus won't come as long as any of the children are awake. I'll go upstairs now and listen to make sure they are all in bed."

"Don't make a noise," cautioned Nurse Jane.

"I'll go very quietly," promised Uncle Wiggily.

Well, he tried to, but he stumbled when he reached the top step and made a noise.

"Is that you, Santa Claus?" cried Buster, quickly opening his bed room door.

Back To Bed

"No, it isn't!" answered Uncle Wiggily. "I told you he wouldn't come as long as you were awake. Now go back to bed."

"Yes, if you please, thank you, Daddy," said Buster sweetly.

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose. Then, so he wouldn't make any more noise, he decided he would slide down the banister rail. This he did, but he went so fast he couldn't stop when he reached the bottom post and he fell off with a bang on the floor.

In a moment there was wild excitement upstairs, for Uncle Wiggily's noisy tumble had jarred the whole bungalow.

"Hurray! Hurray! Santa Claus has come! I heard him fall down the chimney!" shouted Buster, popping out of his room again.

"Oh, goodie! It's Christmas!" yelled Baby Bunty.

"No, it isn't, said Uncle Wiggily, picking himself up off the floor and looking at the stairs down which were clattering and swarming a whole bunch of rabbit children.

Santa Claus hasn't come yet, and it isn't Christmas until morning, and now you must all go back to bed."

"All right, if you please, thank you, Daddy!" said Buster. "But what made that noise?"

"Never you mind about the noise," said Uncle Wiggily. "Go to Bed!"

So all the rabbit children did and Mrs. Longears said:

"Why ever did you do that, Wiggy? Why didn't you come down by the stairs?"

No Noisier

"Because they creak and make so much noise."

"They couldn't have made any more noise than you did," said Nurse Jane, "if you will excuse me saying so."

"I'll excuse you," said Uncle Wiggily, laughing.

But at last all the bunny children were asleep. So were all the other animal boys and girls in Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains. Soon Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears were asleep.

And then it began to snow. And through the air, on the snowflakes, came riding Santa Claus and his reindeer. Quickly the presents were left in stockings or beneath the beautiful trees.

A horn blew. "Ta! Ra! Ta! Ra! Ta! Ra!

Out of bed jumped Buster and the others.

"It's Christmas! It's Christmas! It's Christmas!" they cried.

"Merry Christmas!" called Baby Bunty.

"Merry Christmas!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Merry Christmas to everybody, all over the world! Merry, Merry Christmas!"

And I also wish you Merry Christmas. And soon I will tell you another story.

Sheriff's Ousting Mum Affair

TORONTO, Dec. 24. — (C.P.) — Attorney-General Gordon Conant said to-day he would not make public the reason he asked for the resignation of Sheriff Howard Cane of Toronto and York County.

"We asked for the resignation and we got it," said Mr. Conant, adding that a new appointment to the post to be effective on January 1 would be made next week.

Mr. Cane was named Deputy-Sheriff in 1935 on the recommendation of Arthur Roebuck, then Attorney-General. In 1936 he was promoted to Sheriff.

PRESENTS GIFT TO WAR VETERANS

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 24. — Again this year A. H. McKeel, who is well known for his many contributions and services to the War Veterans, and who is known to the boys in Christie Street Hospital as just plain "Al," sent another contribution of his handiwork. This year his gift took the form of a wall case of cherry wood lined with green baize with swinging glass doors and enclosin six specially designed cribbage boards. The gift will be presented to the boys at their Christmas dinner hour on Saturday by Rev. Captain Sidney Lambert, superintendent of the Hospital. Also included in the parcel were six decks of playing cards donated by the following: Messrs. H. N. Carr, M.L.A., W. A. Fraser, M.P., N. A. McColl, Dr. O. C. Watson, P. L. Sarginson, and S. A. Maguire.

Uniformed Santas Hold First Convention In N.Y.

In full uniform, delegates to the first Santa Claus convention in New York drink a toast to each other. The only one who appeared minus a beard was lustily booed by his fellow Santas. More than a dozen department store St. Nicks attended the conclave which was called to elevate Santa Clause standards. But what would a child say coming upon all of them at once?

REDHEADS PICKED MOST BEAUTIFUL

LONDON, Dec. 24 (CP)—If there's an early boom in the sale of henna, Papa Sandrini, director of the famous Moulin rouge and the Bal Tabarin in Paris, is probably the cause. Not that Papa is interested in the henna market, but as one of the foremost French "experts" on feminine beauty he has designated "redheads" as the most beautiful.

Here's how the courageous Frenchman rates them:

Blonds—they are lovely. You are more likely to find perfection of face and figure in blonds than in girls of any other coloring. But the blond has a temper and listens more closely to the flatterer.

Brunettes — brunettes are often clever. They keep better and look better when they are not so slim. While the blond is more striking in the way she wears her clothes, the brunette has more style, more taste. You can trust the dark ones. You must watch the blond heads.

Redheads—most beautiful of them all—but so rare. They have most marvellous complexions, big grey eyes and they dance so well. Rarely are they cross, but, Oh, when they do, have they not the red temper too?

NEWSPRINT EXPORT UP

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.—(CP).— Canada's November exports of newsprint paper amounted to 6,312,840 cwt. valued at $11,572,240 compared with 5,916,653 at $10,340,246 in November, 1936, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The United States took 5,104,673 cwt., the United Kingdom 304,967, Argentina 270,041, New Zealand 144,816 and Australia 126,534.

go through the forest like the girl in the story, and pick up a crooked stick."

I smiled at her. "I shall not let her go too far into the forest."

She nodded gayly, and I had a feeling that she liked me. "Women don't know what they want, and men must show them."

I turned back and walked with them, and when we came to the apartment house, I said, "May I come in?"

Mimi hesitated. "I wish I could ask you. But Mother probably isn't up."

She answered the telephone."

She flashed a quick glance at me. "Did you call me?"

"Early—9 o'clock."

"She—didn't tell me." She was silent for a moment. Then: "Our mornings are dreadfully haphazard—Mother usually has her chocolate in bed about noon."

I had never known houses whose mornings were haphazard or mothers who drank their breakfast chocolate at noon. Yet these things seemed to add rather than subtract from the glamor of Mimi's exotic existence. "Must you go in then?" I demanded. "Why not walk a bit with me?"

"I'd like it." She returned to Mrs. Merrick. "Darling, you needn't worry Mother by telling her that Jerry is with me."

"I never worry your mother by telling her anything, Cherie. I shall say that you went back to buy a spool of silk—"

She was charming with her little air of mystery. "For a spool of blue silk," she emphasized. "You can get it on Delmar. We forgot it, did we not?"

Mimi blew her a kiss. "Angel," she said, "I wish Mother had your imagination."

So on an enchanted errand, Mimi and I swung together down an enchanted street, lined with enchanted houses, marked by enchanted lamp posts, and traversed by enchanted motor vehicles.

"Could anything have been more fortunate," she remarked, as we went along, "then meeting you?"

"It was not fortune," I declared, "it was fate. I called you up. You were in bed. I called again. You were out. Your mother answered the first time and then the maid. But all the Capulets could not keep me from your garden."

"Silly," she said, but her eyes shone.

And after we had walked a few steps in silence she said, "Andy doesn't talk to me like that."

"And if he did?"

"Oh . . . ! But he couldn't . . . He was dreadful last night. . . . . He tried to make me say I'd marry him. And when people try to make me do things . . . well, I never do them. I told him I was tired of him . . . that I hoped he would stay away from me . . . forever. . . . That I wasn't to be bought . . . .

Her breathless vehement voice came to a sudden stop. Her eyes were full of tears.

"I wish," I said, "that I had beaten him up when I had a chance."

"When did you have a chance?" I told her. "At Olga's."

WESTWOOD A.Y.P.A. HAS GOOD RALLY

WESTWOOD, Dec. 24.—The A.Y. WESTWOOD, Dec. 23.—The A.Y. P.A. of St. Michael's church, Westwood, held their monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Elmhirst.

The vice-president, Miss Edithe Bray took the chair as the president, Miss Mary Birdsall, was absent. The secretary, Mr. Scott Elmhirst, read the minutes which were confirmed by Edithe Bray. Then new members were called for as it was the month to pay fees. The only new business was a suggestion given by Scott Elmhirst to give the secretary reporter fifty cents to cover cost of correspondence. This was seconded by Joe Lancaster.

Miss Edithe Bray, delegate to the A.Y.P.A. conference at St. Catharines, gave her report. It was very interesting, and she brought back a number of new ideas and suggestions to help the A.Y.P.A. Mr. Lemon moved a vote of thanks to Edithe for bringing back such a fine report. It was seconded by Miss Dorothy Mann.

As the program convenor, Mr. Alfred Reed was absent, we had a couple of contests, a "berry contest" and "What Grandma didn't have."

Supper was then served and a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. and Mrs. Elmhirst for the use of their home by Joe Lancaster.

WAR VET LABOR TEST SATISFIES

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.—(CP)—Employment of war veterans on works controlled by the National Defence Department has proved satisfactory and, in consequence of an experiment in this line completed at Trenton, the policy will be extended, Departmental officials said here today. At the Trenton air base a unit of work costing $50,574 has just been completed, the job being carried out exclusively by ex-service men.

Recommendations of the War Veterans' Assistance Commission, presided over by Col. J. C. Rattray, included one urging the National Defence Department to give preference in jobs to ex-service men.

Departmental officials explained to-day that this policy had already been inaugurated by Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie some time ago and a survey of the work done has shown that in normal employment the war veterans are keen workers.

"The construction of this building at Trenton, as carried out on a day labor basis has been performed in a very satisfactory and economical manner," declared the report rendered to Mr. Mackenzie. "The total number of man-days labor afforded to date is 3,720."

The Minister has been gratified with the experiment, and, on the same basis, a $50,000 station hospital is scheduled to be built at Trenton. Further extension of the policy is being made to the fortifications on the Pacific coast.

Work estimated to cost $500,000 is now in porgress, and this is being undertaken solely by ex-service men and members of the non-permanent active militia.

WIFE GUARDED AFTER TOSSING ACID ON HUBBY

Second Fracas Ends In Death of Victim

TOROSTO, Dec. 27.—(CP)— A 27-year-old mother of two children was under police guard in hospital here to-day, charged with manslaughter, as authorities investigated the death of her husband over whose head the woman admitted breaking a bottle of acid during an argument.

Fred Bailey, 36, died in Toronto General Hospital Sunday. Police said Mrs. Alice Bailey had told them she struck him with the bottle in the hospital ward where the two were confined early last Thursday. The bottle, which contained a weak acid solution, was stolen from the hospital laboratory.

The man and wife were admitted to hospital Dec. 17. Both suffered severe scalds, police said, when a kettle of boiling water fell upon them while the two were quarrelling in their home. Bailey had been in critical condition since his admittance.

Mrs. Bailey told police she had apologized in hospital to her husband for the quarrel. Bailey had cursed her, she said. During the early morning hours of last Thursday, the woman, clad in a nightshirt, left her bed and stole to the laboratory. She said she did not know the bottle contained acid.

Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson said his examination showed the acid was only a mild caustic and did not cause death. It was spilled over Bailey's neck and face.

Japs Decree Death For Foreigners Plotting on Army

Allow Outsiders, However, Into Shanghai Zones And Propose to Respect International Law

SHANGHAI, Dec. 27.—(CP Havas)—Japanese authorities today announced all foreigners entering or residing in Japanese-occupied zones of Shanghai would be subject to Japanese military law.

These regulations, designed to protect the Japanese armed forces in wartime, including the death sentence for anti-Japanese activities.

Announcement of the new regulations, made by a Japanese embassy spokesman, coincided with the granting to foreigners of free access to the Japanese-occupied zones north of Soochow creek. Beginning today foreigners were permitted to enter the Yangtzepoo, Honkew and Chapei sectors, without special authorization.

The spokesman said the decision regarding the military regulations did not signify that Japan intends to abrogate extra - territorially rights in these zones.

Japanes authorities will respect international law and existing treaties, with the rights of nationals of third powers receiving full consideration, he added. A Japanese note amplifying the spokesman's announcement is expected to be distributed soon.

Let Merchandise In

Under present regulations the transportation of merchandise from foreign warehouses into the quarters north of Soochow Creek also will be permitted. They remain forbidden ground to Chinese and their merchandise, however.

Japanese commanders yesterday imposed a naval blockade on Tsingtao and claimed their troops had completed occupation of Hangchow, 100 miles south-west of Shanghai. The troops which occupied Hangchow were advancing west and south-west of the city, it was said. Tsingtao, another commercial centre, is about 300 miles northwest of Shanghai.

In North China, Japanese forces crossed the Yellow River between Tsinan, capital of Shantuung Province, and the sea. Tsinan, unconfirmed Japanese reports said, already has been captured.

FREIGHTER WINS FREE OF REEFS

VICTORIA, Dec. 27 (C.P.). — The freighter Beulah, South Seas trading vessel, proceeded toward this port to-day under her own power after losing a man overboard yesterday as she fought through gale-swept seas off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Steering gear of the twin-engined motorship was damaged on Saturday night as she headed for the South Seas with a British Columbia cargo. A 50-mile-an-hour gale drove her across the first breakers off Carmanah Point, 60 miles northwest of Victoria.

The 1,389-ton freighter was held with anchors until she managed to pull clear yesterday. The Canadian minesweeper Armentieres, a motor lifeboat from Barnfield, B.C., and a United States coastguard cutter stood by.

A patrolman searched Carmanah Beach for the body of a man lost overboard from the Beulah. Details of the mishap were not given in wireless messages from the Armentieres. Commanded by Captain S. Erickson of New York, the Beulah's crew of 23 was recruited largely from South Sea ports.

AFTER A WILDCAT

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 27. — (CP) — District hunters are planning a wildcat hunt. Frank Schranger reports he heard what sounded like a cat crying in the huckleberry marsh near the Ellice swamp. He followed tre sound and found tracks, believed to be those of a wildcat.

FAMILY REUNIONS FEATURE CANADIAN WHITE CHRISTMAS

TORONTO, Dec. 27.— (CP). — Canada celebrated a "white Christmas" quietly: Church attendance, King George's Empire broadcast and a family re-union topped by a turkey dinner highlighted the usual observance of the holiday.

Western Canada reported sub-zero temperatures while snow and sleet storms prevailed from Central Canada to the east coast. Communications wires were disrupted by the storm in Nova Scotia and in many places highways were blocked.

The weather was held partly responsible for the 23 accidental deaths across the Dominion during the Christmas week-end. Ontario headed the death list with 10 reported. Three each were reported from British Columbia, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. One died in Alberta.

For the first time in 21 years Vancouver had snow for Christmas. A foot of snow fell on the west coast city where winter rains are the rule for the Christmas season.

Most churches throughout the Dominion held special services. Early service at Roman Catholic and Anglican churches were well attended. Carol services were held Christmas eve at many churches.

King Receives Callers.

Like thousands of children throughout the country the Dionne quintuplets spent a joyous day with their parents opening presents from all over the world. The quints didn't get turkey for Christmas because of rigid diet specifications, but their holiday season was festive in other respects.

Tragedy in many home darkened the Christmas spirit. Police said reckless motorists were responsible for many accidents in which hundreds of persons were injured.

The Death List.

Nova Scotia: Floyd Thurston died when an automobile ran off a slippery highway and crashed near Amherst; Mrs. Barbara Cavanagh, 83, was killed at Truro when struck by an automobile; a man police believed was Steve Macdonald, 60-year-old steelworker, drowned after stepping overboard from a coastal steamer.

Over 140 Accidents Leave 5 Dead Send 200 To Jail

Blind Newsvendor, Wife Victims of Hit-Run Driver; Five Others Are Killed in Mishaps Across Province

TORONTO, Dec. 27—(CP)—Ten deaths were listed today as Ontario took stock of its week-end accident toll. Six were traffic fatalities as citizens hurried to participate in Christmas festivities. A youth was shot accidentally, one man was killed by a train, another in a fall down an elevator shaft and the 10th death was the result of an altercation in a hospital ward.

Toronto, with more than 140 accidents, led the province in the number of fatalities. There, police termed the week-end worse than last year's "black Christmas" when two persons were killed in the more than 100 traffic mishaps recorded. Five deaths occurred this year, three of them in traffic.

More than 60 persons were injured in Toronto's dense holiday traffic. Twenty-seven motorists were arrested on charges including one of manslaughter. More than 200 men and women were arrested on charges of drunkenness. The number of arrests, police said, was double that of last Christmas.

Couple Hit-Run Victims

A blind newsvendor and his wife were struck and killed early Saturday by an automobile which did not stop at an intersection. Mrs. Thomas Beedie was leading her husband home when the couple was struck down. Later, James Sweetman was arrested on a manslaughter charge as the driver of the death car. Edward Major was struck down and killed in a Toronto suburb by a hit-and-run automobile driver.

Stiffer Sentences

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—(CP) —Concerned over the number of drunken and reckless driving cases reported to the police over the Christmas week-end, Mayor-Elect Ralph Day said last night he intended bringing the problem up for discussion at the first meeting of the 1938 Board of Police Commissioners.

He said the solution might be found in stiffer penalties for offenders.

NO INDEMNITY SET BUT U.S. CONSIDERS PANAY CASE SHUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 (A.P.). — The State Department indicated today it considered a "closed incident" the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay although indemnity remains to be fixed.

Officials made it plain the Government would watch closely to see Japan carries out its assurances there will be no unlawful interference with American nationals and interests in China.

Secretary of State Hull, replying on Saturday to Japan's promises of respect for United States rights in China, said the government considered them "responsive" to its protests and demands.

Japan's first apologies promised full reparations for the sinking of the Panay and three Standard Oil boats on the Yangtze River on December 12. In a second note Japan added guarantees that Americans and their property would be protected.

State Department officials said the amount of indemnification would not be determined for some time. Besides the property loss resulting from the bombing, three men were killed and several seriously wounded.

NEW ANEMIA FIND CUTS DOWN DOSES

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (CP). — A Washington despatch to the New York Times yesterday said a new stomach preparation, from seven to ten times more potent than those heretofore used for treating pernicious anemia, is revealed in a patent just granted to Dr. Edward A. Greenspon of Montreal.

Dr. Greenspon is the young Canadian whose experiments, reported last year, gave the medical world a key to the understanding of the nature of the blood-forming, or anti-anemic factor secreted by the stomach, a deficiency of which is believed to result in pernicious anemia.

His fundamental investigations won editorial praise from the Journal of the American Medical Association as adding another chapter to the physiology of blood formation and clarifying with "beautiful simplicity many of the confusing issues in the field."

Discrepancies Explained.

To physicians, his theory explained a number of discrepant results obtained in experiments where preparations from hogs' stomachs were used for treating anemia patients.

To pernicious anemia sufferers, the development of the new preparation means smaller doses, one-seventh to one-tenth as large as formerly required. Heretofore such large doses were necessary that they could not be conveniently given in capsules. Dr. Greenspon's preparation is so highly concentrated, his patent reveals, that it may be converted into pills or put up in capsules that can be readily taken by mouth. Another feature claimed for it is its ready standardization.

The potency of this anti-anemic preparation is laid to the absence of pepsin. Dr. Greenspon discovered that pepsin is an enemy of the anti-pernicious-anemia factor secreted by the stomach. The pepsin, in the absence of large excesses of protein matter, such as minced beef and stomach muscle, attacks and destroys this anti-anemic principle which stimulates the formation of blood cells.

SHANTUNG CAPITAL FALLS TO INVADERS

TOKYO, Dec. 27.—(CP-Havas). — Japanese armed forces have captured Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, it was officially claimed to-day. The strategic town, about 350 miles north of Nanking, was captured by Japanese forces operating along the Tientsin-Pukow railway.

Announcement of the town's fall followed institution of a Japanese naval blockade of Tsingtao, principal port of Shantung Province.

A Japanese foreign spokesman told newspapermen the Toyko government was conducting an active investigation into the Japanese attack against the British gunboat warship Ladybird near Wuhu on the Yangtze two weeks ago.

He could not predict whether a Japanese reply to Great Britain's protest over the incident would be forthcoming before the end of the year.

CITADELS AFLAME REBEL GARRISONS KEEP GUNS FIRING

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 27 (A.P.). — Insurgent troops and civilians held out in two flaming citadels to-day against the Spanish government attackers in control of the rest of the ancient Aragon city of Teruel.

Government advices said the massive Teruel Seminary and the Bank of Spain, both on fire, still housed a defiant group of Italian officers, German officers, and Spanish insurgent sympathizers.

The attacking forces had tightened their grip on the strategic city 135 miles east of Madrid by successfully storming the Civil Guard Barracks, leaving only the two strongholds to be conquered.

Beleaguered remnants of the insurgent garrison fought to prolong the siege in the hope shock troops under General Miguel Aranda could hammer through government lines to relieve them.

Communiques of the two factions and despatches from the front gave little indication of the actual progress of columns operating under Aranda, who earlier in the war commanded the insurgent garrison at Oviedo which resisted Asturian attackers for months until relief arrived.

Some sources insisted the insurgents had cracked the ring of government defences and caught Barcelona forces between two lines of fire. The government asserted, however, that insurgent concentrations outside Teruel had been scattered by planes which machine-gunned them with heavy losses.

A $78 HOLDUP

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 27 (CP).—Three masked armed men last night held up Howard Little and Earl MacLean, partners in a local gasoline service station and robbed them of $78 and fled in a car. The two men were washing a car when the robbers appeared. MacLean had $50 and the other $28.

The robbers said "This is a stick up." The attendants held up their hands and their pockets were searched. A United States car halted to seek directions but the driver stepped on the gas and sped away when the guns were seen.

LOTBINIERE CASTS BALLOTS TODAY

STE. CROIX, Que., Dec. 26 (CP) —Voters in the rural electoral district of Lotbiniere go to the polls today to choose a representative in the House of Commons to replace J. A. Verville, veteran Liberal member of parliament who died a month ago.

Choice of the 22,000 Lotbiniere residents eligible to cast votes in the federal by-election lies between J. N. Francoeur, a native of the county who represented it in the Quebec legislative assembly for 28 years, and Paul Bouchard, 30-year-old Quebec lawyer who styles himself an "Independent Nationaliste."

The campaign of which the main issue centred around the possibility of Canada's participation in a foreign war, provided the debut into federal politics of both candidates.

Bouchard charged Canada's "expenditures of $30,000,000 this year for military purposes were in the way of preparation of Canada's entry into a foreign war."

The Liberal candidate asserted Canada needed to take "defence precautions in this day of war on every hand and the Dominion's credits are strictly for defence."

In answer to another charge by the Independent Nationalist who talked "no war, no armaments for Canada and greater autonomy for Quebec" as his platform, Francoeur declared "there is no question of the government at Ottawa being militarist as Bouchard says, the authorities seek only to assure peace for Canada."

Francoeur accused Bouchard of "spreading false and subversive doctrines in an attempt to damage the system of government which provides Canadians with unequalled Liberty."

$13,000,000 Worth Run In During Past Seven Years—30 Convicted Since June

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (A.P.). — Diamonds—$13,000,000 worth—beautiful, sparkling icy gems.

Week after week for seven years gigantic liners nosed into New York piers carrying the diamonds, hidden in the false bottoms of suitcases.

To-day, after two years of tireless sleuthing that led all over Europe, the Government moved to cut off the last rivulets of that glittering stream.

A huge liner moved toward New York to-day, but this time it carried two men and a woman the government charges were among the last fugitive cogs in an international smuggling ring.

The travellers, who will arrive on Tuesday in the Berengaria are Nat Lukin, Guasie Firstenberg, and Solomon Halper, three of 55 men and women indicted since June, 30 of whom were subsequently convicted. Twenty-five defendants remained fugitives, safe from extradition in Europe. Now the Government's net is tightening. . . .

Minnie Adds $1000 To Her Bank Roll And 13 To Family In Year

Woodstock, Ill., Dec. 27 (AP)

YOU must hand it to Minnie, the singing mouse. In one year she earned $1,000 and added 13 children and seven grandchildren to her family.

Tuesday she will celebrate the first anniversary of her initial nation-wide radio performance, at which she demonstrated she really was a songstress.

Her discoverer, Herbert O. Gesach, superintendent of the Chicago Industrial Home for Children, who skyrocketed her to air fame prominency from coal bin obscurity, said today as he planned for the celebration that she was still going great guns.

He said Minnie received $500 for her first broadcast lullaby and had picked up an additional $500 since then for other appearances. All the money, he said, had been turned over to the home by Minnie's owner, the Woodstock Civic Club.

Meantime, Minnie's attention, as well as that of her sponsors, has been focused upon one of her offspring, a son. He has shown some ability as a boy soprano.

Regent Of Tibet Unable To Play With His Brand New Football

Searching For Dalai Lama Who Should Be Four Years Ten Days Old

By Albert W. Wilson
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (A.P.). — The Regent of Tibet, highest and least known nation of the world, has a brand new English football, but the Council of Nobles—who really rule—won't let him play with it.

And the Lalai Lama, who could be the spiritual and temporal ruler of Forbidden Tibet if he's ever found, ought to know his Tibetan alphabet by now. He's just four years and 10 days old.

These historical facts were revealed to-day by Syudam Cutting, trustee of the American Museum of Natural History who is one of few white men ever to enter the country with permission of the Government. His wife was with him on a two-month trip collecting clothing and household articles including unusual bejewelled headdresses of yak and human hair and hammered bronze pieces.

Trick to Gain Control.

"A lot of bunk about the Dalai Lama has passed around the outside world," said Cutting, a veteran of Central Asia expeditions with Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt. "The Chinese claimed to have found him, but that was a trick to try to gain control of the country.

"They have found clues in the vicinity of the village where the

No Accidents Or Arrests Reported By Police In Peterborough Area

APART from one or two bumped fenders when cars skidded at icy intersections, there was not a single accident over the Christmas season to mar the festive occasion. Police are hopeful that the motorists of Peterborough city and district will keep the record unsullied over the New Year holiday week-end. Provincial Motorcycle Officers Lloyd A. McClure and Gordon Broughton maintained a special patrol of their beats and this morning were able to report an absolutely clean sheet. The last accident Constable McClure had on his beat was when a big transport upset at Bailieboro' on the morning of Christmas Eve. Provincial Constable David Silvester was also able to report there were no accidents came to his attention over the week-end. City Police said they made no arrests in connection with traffic accidents, although there were a couple of minor collisions reported, which were said to be entirely due to bad road conditions.

FATE OF JAPAN IS SAD FOR NEW YEAR; PERIOD OF DECAY

Once again the annual booklet of predictions for the coming year bearing the above title, has been released for free distribution by the Rosicrucian Order of San Jose, Cal.

Issued since 1931, these little booklets, compiled during the summer months, from data accumulated by the various centres of Rosicrucian research throughout the world, have proven surprisingly accurate in their forecasts of the trends of world conditions.

The general unrest, politically, socially, and in religion, will reach a peak continuing not only through 1938, but also throughout 1939, breaking into open trouble at various points.

The fate of Japan is indeed sad. Domestic unrest and dissatisfaction with the military rule will be an ever increasing menace to the Japanese government. The country will not only be seriously weakened as a dominating war power, but will enter upon a cycle of retrogression and decay. On the other hand despite the war and consequent suffering, China will enter upon an increasing cycle of economic, moral and spiritual growth. The Chinese people will become more hopeful and determined and China will receive support and encouragement from the nations which have hitherto held aloof.

Japan, in fact, seems to be the only country facing real disaster in business and economics. Both the United States and Canada will witness a sharp rise in prosperity during 1938, although in the former country the betterment will be largely offset by an increase in the cost of living. France, however, will experience fluctuating conditions due to disturbing factors in her domestic and foreign politics. All countries will be disturbed more or less by threats of war.

In Spain there will be no real peace, for although the Civil War will end "officially" in 1938, yet the internal strife will by no means be over.

Both Great Britain and France will have trouble in the Mediterranean, with a possibility of open conflict, in which Italy will be involved. Racial and religious persecution will continue in Germany, and also in parts of Russia. Despite the improvement in business affairs the German people will be most unhappy as a result of this racial and religious strife, to say nothing of the increased burden of military preparations.

A serious crisis is at hand in Palestine, and there is no sign of any peaceful settlement of the Near Eastern situation.

All the indications show that the United States will be involved in conflict in Asia in order to protect her rights and help establish peace. It is doubtful, however, if it will be necessary to draw upon more forces than is comprised in the regular army and navy.

In Great Britain the Fascisti movement which threatened during 1937 has seen its day, and will steadily decrease. The political situation will continue to be uneasy. The affair of the Duke of Windsor will from time to time crop up and cause embarrassment and contention. The general world conditions will also be a disturbing factor. On the other hand, there will be more peace and happiness throughout the Empire generally than in former years. The increasing friendship between Great Britain and the United States will have a very strong influence for good upon the rest of the world. Health and general social and economic conditions will improve both in Great Britain and in Canada, and many very great benefits will result as a fruit of British statesmanship.

In general, 1938 will be more clearly demonstrative of conditions created and set in motion by man himself, than many past years have been, for nations as well as individuals must reap what they have sown.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT MARKS W.I. RALLY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Dec. 27. — "The Christmas spirit" pervaded the December meeting of the Women's Institute on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting, held in the town hall, was largely attended, with the president, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, presiding.

An exchange of Christmas gifts was participated in by all the members, and many beautiful and useful gifts were received. Following current events by Mrs. J. Maloney, a number of Christmas carols were sung with the pianist, Miss Irene Kidd, accompanying.

The treasurer, Miss Edith Bray, reported the proceeds of the recent sale of tickets to be $22.10. It was unanimously agreed to send relief and Christmas cheer to two families of the district.

An amusing contest of photo guessing, was very entertaining and was won by Miss Mary Barrie, who received a prize. An excellent address on "Changes Since I Was Twenty-one," was given by Mrs. James Clysdale.

The lucky ticket for the hooked rug, drawn by Ruth Wood, was won by Doreen Graham; a second lucky ticket for a china tea set was drawn by Shirley Clysdale and won by Mrs. S. MacDonald; and a third lucky ticket for a pair of bath towels was drawn by Hazel Nellson and won by Mrs. Walter Fowlds of Hastings.

Dainty refreshments were served with the convenor, Mrs. J. Clysdale, assisted by the hostesses, Miss I. Kidd, Mrs. L. Doherty, Miss I. McColl, Mrs. A. Wood, Miss M. Comstock, Mrs. S. McDonald, and Mrs S. Graham.

Smokers of Germany consumed over 40,000,000,000 cigarettes in 1937.

More Liquor Sold Girls Blamed

Dublin, Dec. 25 (CP)

DRINKING by women and girls in Ireland is helping to swell the Free State's liquor bill, according to Father Flinn, Director of the Pioneer Total Abstinence Association. In 1936, he says, the people paid for drink in excess of £1,500,000 ($7,500,000) more money than they did in 1934. The figures were £10,900,000 ($54,500,000) in 1934 and £12,500,000 ($62,500,000) in 1936.

"Young girls and women think they are not smart, not up-to-date, not 'it' unless they are taking wines and cocktails," declared Father Flinn. "You know of girls who at dances and similar occasions, take far more drink than any girl who respects herself should take . . . . We must organize against anything that would further increase the sale of drink."

U.S. SLUMP LAID TO BIG BUSINESS IN NEW WARNING

By Sam Robertson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(CP). — The Roosevelt government to-day laid blame for the current recession at the door of big business.

The accuser, Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney General, in charge of anti-trust operations, coupled the charge with a warning that government spending and taxation would have to be increased unless big business mended its ways.

The trust-buster spoke last night in a National Broadcast. His words were widely interpreted to mean President Roosevelt planned to recommend legislation to strengthen the present anti-trust statutes. There were predictions a Congressional investigation of alleged monopolies would be held.

Viewed "in the midst of other indications that the new deal was polishing the old big stick for use by President Roosevelt," the Republican New York Herald Tribune said Jackson's address was "a clear indication that strong pressure would be exerted on Congress for enactment of anti-monopoly as well as wage-hour, crop control, regional planning and other social and economic measures."

Jackson recalled that over the last few years business leaders contended that if the Federal government would reduce its expenditures business confidence would revive and private industry would more than take up the slack.

"Government took big business at its word," he went on. "In the last fiscal year the governmental net contribution to purchasing power was reduced about $275,000,000 a month—on the assurance and expectation that big business activity would make up for the reduction.

Taking the Cream.

"But monopoly, by trying to skim all the cream off the recovery for itself, belie the plain meaning of its promise. Monopoly prices and monopoly profits jumped beyond all reason and way above the price level that small business could get."

Placing the present level of consumers' income at one-third less than in the golden era of 1929, Jackson accused big business of asking the consumer to pay more for their goods than in 1929.

He singled out costs in the steel industry to argue against any impression that increased prices were due to wage increases forced on industry by the growth of labor unions. He placed the total increase in steel plant wages and costs of material at 9.1 per cent. Against this, he said, steel prices had been boosted 21 per cent.

"If big business insists on pricing itself out of the market and unemployment grows," the trust-buster concluded, "the demand will become irresistible for more government expenditures. Increased government expenditures will mean increased taxation, and big business, which already controls half of the corporate wealth of the country, will have to bear the major part of that burden."

The government could play a great part in correcting the present situation—and would, if co-operation was forthcoming. He said it was his personal opinion that the administration would give private enterprise all the assistance and encouragement that could be given. It could give financial assistance to help private enterprise break into new fields like housing. It could specify inquiries in the application of tax laws.

"But we cannot and will not surrender the rights of the average man gained under the new deal," Jackson warned, "merely because the few insist on trading the last ounce of concession out of government as the price of putting their capital back to work."

FIGHT TO DEATH

TERUEL, Spain, Dec. 27—(AP)—A semi-circle of victorious government troops blocked General Franco's Aragon forces today from succoring a diehard band of 400 insurgents apparently doomed by the government conquest of this strategic provincial capital in Northeastern Spain.

The beleaguered 400 kept up a drumfire with machine-guns and rifles from a dozen ancient buildings in an old quarter of the city—rapidly consuming what was believed to be a scant supply of ammunition.

New Chemical Heals Burns Quickly, Without Scars

Mysterious Fluid Forms When Yeast Cells Are Injured For An Hour

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 27 (AP).—A mysterious new chemical made by injured yeast cells, which heals terrible burns quickly and without scars, was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

The chemical, a watery fluid, grows fresh, normal skin over the burned areas, instead of the usual, tightly-drawn, disfiguring scar tissue. It gets the victims out of the hospital, the association was told, faster than any other remedy.

It is a by-product of discovery of a new principle of tissue growth found at the Institution Divi Thomae of Cincinnati. The discoveries were made by George Sperti, John Loofbourow, John Fardon, Andre Cueto and Elton Cook.

The burn remedy is one of several seemingly miraculous effects of growth, and the only one which has been applied to human beings. The treatment for burns has been tried for about a year at St. Mary's Hospital in Cincinnati.

What Happens.

To prepare the chemical yeast is mixed with a salt solution and subjected to lethal ultra-violet rays. The yeast cells are not killed immediately, but are injured continuously for at least an hour.

Then the liquid is filtered off and contains the unknown new chemical. Injury has to last some time for this chemical to be made. For example, if the cells are killed immediately, the healing stuff does not appear.

Evidence that here is a new principle of nature is found in the fact that not only yeast, but other living cells, if injured long enough, will manufacture growth - stimulating chemicals. Each chemical is different, with power to cause rapid growth of new cells of the same kind as were destroyed.

Thus with an extra from injured liver cells, the scientists caused a bit of liver in a test tube to grow new cells. This kind of growth of liver is a new scientific feat. No tests have been made to find out whether such an extract could be used in the living body to cause a partly destroyed liver to replace itself.

Duke Buys Duchess $300 In Flowers

Cannes, France, Dec. 27 (CP)

THE Duke of Windsor practically bought out a floral shop Saturday to celebrate his first Christmas with his bride, the former Wallis Warfield. Rising late after a Christmas Eve dinner with a few friends, the Duke went to his favorite floral shop and purchased nearly £60 ($300) worth of orchids, violets and out-of-season lilacs for delivery at once to the Duchess at the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers, where the Duke and Duchess are staying. Christmas afternoon the couple had tea at the villa of Major and Mrs. Eric Roder near Juan Les Pins. Guests included Major Andrew Holt, son of Sir Herbert Holt of Montreal, and Mrs. Richard Johnson and her daughter, Joan of Ottawa.

The Duke listened to the King's broadcast Christmas message.

CAROLS FEATURE MARMORA SERVICE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 27.—Christmastide at St. Paul's Anglican Church was marked with celebrations of Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and 10.30 a.m. on Christmas Day. The altar was decorated with white chrysanthemums and two Christmas trees and other decorations added to the brightness of the interior of the church. There was a goodly number of communicants at the second celebration which was choral, the rector discoursed on the epistle for the day. On Sunday evening following a shortened form of evensong a carol service was given in the following order:

"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," choir and congregation; "Good King Wenceslas"; choir solos, W. J. Cottrell and L. R. Rundle; solo "Oh Holy Night"; Mrs. P. Gray, "O Little Town of Bethlehem"; choir solo "Like Silver Lamps"; W. J. Cottrell, "O Come All Ye Faithful"; choir; duet "That Beautiful Land," Mrs. C. Nichol and L. R. Rundle; "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," choir and congregation; solo, "Softly the night is sleeping," L. R. Rundle; duet, "Holly Night," Mrs. C. Nichol and Mrs. P. Gray"; solo, "Who is this stronger," Mrs. L. R. Rundle; trio, "Cradled All Lowly," Misses Beatrice Caldwell, Kathleen Rice and Joyce Smith; "We Three Kings of Orient Are," choir; solos, L. R. Rundle and W. J. Cottrell; "While Shepherds Watched," choir; duet, "Glory in the Highest," Mrs. L. R. Rundle and Mrs. P. Gray; "Lee amid the winter's snow," choir and congregation.

The organists were Mesdames L. R. Rundle and H. Rennie. At the close of the service Rural Dean Caldwell expressed his thanks to the organists and choir for their parts in so uplifting a musical service.

The Christmas festival was observed in the Sacred Heart Church with a midnight mass and masses at 9 a.m. and 9.30. Rev. Father G. T. Martin officiating. The altar was artistically adorned with chrysanthemums, ferns and baby's breath. Father Martin gave an eloquent address on the birth of Christ. Leonard's mass was used and other Christmas music was beautifully rendered by the choir.

22 HURT IN B.C.

VANCOUVER, Dec. 27—(CP). — More than a score of persons were in hospital in Vancouver and vicinity to-day with injuries attributed to a snowstorm which made city streets treacherous. None was in a serious condition. Falls on pavement made icy by a packed snow, and numerous minor traffic accidents her and in New Westminster, were responsible for detention of 22 persons in hospitals.

ATLANTIC PILOTS WILL BE SCHOOLED FOR THREE YEARS

LONDON, Dec. 27 (CP)—Imperial Airways have set 1940 as the goal for inauguration of a regular trans-Atlantic passenger air service between Great Britain and Canada.

Aviation officials say the service may be launched sooner, but the experimental program of the ocean route calls for a further series of flights under varying weather conditions and paying passengers will not be carried until every phase of the proposed service has been thoroughly explored.

To airmen of experience the trans-Atlantic route holds no greater hazards than some of the long-distance flights on empire services already established. There has actually been a rush of volunteers for the privilege of being selected as prospective Atlantic pilots.

Schools for advanced training have already been set up at Croydon, Hythe and Southampton. Only the most proficient candidates are being accepted and preference is being given to pilots with outstanding flying records between the ages of 25 and 35. They will be the future commanders of the great flying boats or land planes of the ocean lanes.

All "First-Class" Men.

Only serving officers of experience who possess second-class air navigators' licenses are eligible for post-graduate work at the new aeronautical university. They will be instructed for their first-class license, the hall-mark of the "ace" pilot. Without it an officer on the flying staff of an air company is not permitted to pilot a craft operating over more than 600 miles of water.

The special license will become a necessary qualification for all Imperial Airways commanders engaged on future North Atlantic and other extended marine routes.

Entrants to the advanced school will be required to take a psychological examination to ascertain their fitness to undergo the rigors of the test.

Here are some of the subjects the selected officers will tackle: Plane and spherical trigonometry, logarithms, geometry, figure drawing, elementary dynamics and physics, theoretical and practical nautical astronomy, dead-reckoning navigation, heteorology, compass work ashore and afloat, visual and morse signalling, international law and convention.

They will attend lectures at the school headquarters during intervals between flights. On service, they will carry out practical exercises in navigation and pilotage with the co-operation of the commander of their aircraft. This "home work" will be checked by instructors at the end of voyages.

Among Christmas Cards From Shanghai

A sense of humor remains among sailors manning Uncle Sam's naval detachments in Chinese waters in spite of the friction caused by repeated Japanese attacks on American shipping and proerty, as witness this Christmas card sent to friends and relatives by enlisted men aboard the U. S. flagship, Augusta. The Augusta was herself target for Jap. attacks earlier in the Shanghai campaign and the incident is caricatured in the card. Santa stands scratching his head, while bombs and shells explode over Shanghai and in their line of flight come dangerously close to the ship.

DISCONTENT IN FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 27—(AP).—Rumblings of political complications grew louder in strike-harassed France today after the Communist bloc in the Chamber of Deputies voted moral support for the strikers.

As the increasingly serious wave of "stay-in" strikes showed no signs of abatement over Christmas, the action of the Communists threatened to force a political showdown for the Popular Front Government of Premier Chautemps.

Hamilton Chief Sees Car Ban Christmas, New Year's Eves

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 27.—(CP).— Riddance of city streets and highways of all motor vehicles on Christmas and New Year's eves, except those vitally necessary for commercial and emergency purposes, was envisioned to-day by Police Chief Ernest K. Goodman as he scanned the record of death, injury, property damage and arrests as the result of Christmas eve traffic accidents.

"During the war, the government instituted driveless Sundays to conserve gasoline for war supplies," Chief Goodman said to-day. "As one reads of the terrible toll of human life and health taken by automobile accidents on the eve of holidays, it is difficult to find a feasible remedy.

"But is may be, in time not far distant if this carnage continues, that government action may be taken to control motor traffic on Christmas and New Year's eves, permitting only those vehicles necessary for emergency and commercial purposes to use our streets and highways.

"Two Hamilton men are dead and our hospital are filled with injured. Some authorities are crying for more rigid enforcement of the law, but if we stationed a constable on every block we could not prevent these accidents. Every preparation was made by his department to control traffic in the busy sections. Every available member of the Department was on duty. But the accident list climbed in spite of our efforts."

Christmas Tree

Prudential Insurance Co.

The staff of the Prudential Insurance Company, in the Peterborough office proper, held their annual Christmas gathering on Friday afternoon. Gifts were exchanged between the different members of the staff, from a tree, beautifully decorated, which gave a very cheery appearance to the Agents office. A short meeting was held after which tea was served. The members have reason to look forward to a very prosperous New Year, the year which is just closing having been an outstanding one.

Choir Party

St. John's Parish House

At the close of the regular rehearsal of St. John's Choir last week-end, the members all repaired to the church parlors in the Parish House, where to the delight of all (particularly the Boy Choristers) a Christmas tree gaily decorated and laden with gifts was discovered.

Santa Claus himself being absent on other urgent business, his place and duties were assumed by one of the senior members in the person of T. W. Turbill, whose entrance was greeted by the lusty singing of the boys, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Each choir boy was presented with a gift, each adult member having been responsible for one of the choristers. The choirmaster, Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus., and the choir-mother, Miss Ruby Quartermaine, were both presented with a gift from the boys. Chocolate bars were distributed to the boy choristers, and after they had left, the adult members were entertained by the choirmaster and Mrs. Mann, when a delightful social time was enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostess.

Armstrong-James.

On Christmas Day in St. Luke's Church a very lovely wedding took place at half past twelve, directly after the morning service. Youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William James of George street, Miss Elsie May James, became the bride of Elwood Armstrong, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Armstrong, of Brighton, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, amid the beautiful Christmas decorations of evergreen, and before the altar decked with white flowers. The wedding music was played by Miss M. Flowers, the organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. In place of the usual floral bouquet, she carried the treasured gift of a friend, a white prayer book, showered with white satin ribbons and forget-me-nots. Her gown was of aquamarine blue taffeta, with princess lines, and small jacket, fashioned with butterfly sleeves. Silver flowers trimmed the bodice and silver mingled with aquamarine blue in a braided coronet, from which fell her short veil of silver metallic net. Her gloves matched her gown and her slippers were silver.

Mrs. W. Mannell of Toronto attended as matron of honor. Her jacket gown with butterfly sleeves, was of old rose taffeta, faced with blue taffeta at shoulders and neck, and trimmed with blue velvet streamers and flowers. On her hair she wore a coronet of rose flowers, her gloves were blue, her slippers rose and silver, and her flowers, a bouquet of deep pink chrysanthemums.

Carveth-Wilson.

A wedding of wide interest was solemnized in historic St. John's Church after the morning service on Christmas Day.

At half past twelve o'clock, amid a beautiful setting of evergreens and flowers, Miss Margaret Phyllis Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of Belleville, was married to Dr. Richard W. J. Carveth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carveth of Toronto. The groom is also the grandson of Mrs. Mary Horsfield, who is now well over her eightieth year, and for whose sake, the marriage took place in this city.

The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson. The wedding music was played by Frederic G. Mann, L. Mus., and two of the choir boys, Leslie Groombridge and Ernest Lee sang "Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her lovely gown of white satcoone satin crepe fell in graceful folds to a very long train, and was fashioned with fitted jacket, fastening in the front with a double row of tiny buttons. Her veil of fine tulle, covering her face, and falling behind beyond the hem of her gown, was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms, surmounted with pearls of Mother-o'-pearl. Her sandals were white satin, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Wilson was attended by Mrs. Thomas Watts of Toronto as matron of honor, Miss Alma Wilson of Belleville, and Miss Jean Blewett of Lakefield, as bridesmaids. Mrs. Watts gown was of Duncornet taffeta, fashioned on slim lines with square neckline and sleeves puffed at the shoulders. Rows of fine tucking were crossed to make her tiny turban, which, like her sandals, matched her gown, and her bouquet was of Talisman roses.

Of similar design, the bridesmaids' gowns and turbans were of gogamba pink taffeta, their sandals silver, and their flowers, bouquets of Premier Supreme roses. The bride's niece, Leane Wilson, was the charming little flower girl, dressed in powder blue georgette, with pink flowers trimming her blue bonnet, and carrying a nosegay of Sweetheart roses.

The best man was Dr. Clifford Young of Toronto, and the ushers were Bert Graham of Peterborough and Thomas Watts of Toronto.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Horsfield on London street, where, with her characteristic old world dignity and charm of manner, the hostess received the guests with the bridal party. Mrs. Horsfield was wearing a gown of Bandi purple velvet, with touches of real lace, and a matching hat with ostrich trim. It is interesting to note that she was also wearing an heirloom locket of gold, containing the Lord's Prayer in tiny print.

Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bride, received, wearing black crepe, with brilliant clips, black hat and accessories, and a corsage of Premier roses. Mrs. Carveth, the groom's mother, wore a gown of beaded crepe, black hat and accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. Christmas and bridal decorations were mingled in the charming arrangement of the large U-shaped table, bright with flowers and gleam of silver and cut glass.

Dr. and Mrs. Carveth left later on a motor trip to Chicago, Milwaukee, and other points in the States, the bride wearing for travelling a brown beaver coat over a frock of rust crepe, and a turban made entirely of shaded feathers.

On their return, the young couple will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included: John Blewett of Lakefield, the bride's grandfather; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sinden, Barbara and Beverly of Rochester; A. Horsfield of Cornwall; Harold Carveth and Miss Enid Carveth, brother and sister of the groom, Dr. Elizabeth Young, Miss Alice Wilson, William Coulter, all of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sturgeon, Guelph; [illegible] Barbara, Shirley and [illegible] Wilson, Webster Wilson, of [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. William[illegible] Kemp, of Lakefield; [illegible] C. BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

SLAM MATERIAL

EVEN OPPOSITE a very sound and conservative bidder, it is seldom wise to give a positive response to his opening game guarantee bid of two in a suit except with very substantial reasons for the call. Some of the best players insist on having either at least one first round trick or two second round tricks, such as guarded kings. Lacking these, they would make the first round weakness response of 2-No Trumps. For slam purposes, a K-Q or even a K-Q-J combination is not usually as useful as a couple of K's or an A.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

When South started the bidding on this deal with 2-Hearts, North felt his spade suit was good enough to give a positive response of 2-Spades. As soon as South heard this he was prepared for a slam and ended in 6-Hearts.

When the club Q was led, South realized he was in a very difficult spot, as North had misled him into thinking the hand would produce several tricks. To declarer's dismay, he found he could not get into dummy unless the outstanding trumps dropped in two rounds.

Upon further reflection, he realized that there was a possibility that the hand could still be made by giving up a trump trick, rather than risk the possibility that the trumps were as he hoped. He therefore cashed his spade A to unblock that suit and led a small heart. East won and returned the diamond K, but the contract was now safe. In spite of his brilliant play which brought success, declarer still felt North had overbid his hand.

How should South play to make 3-No Trumps after the lead of the club Q?

Operation Keeps Woman a Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec 27.—(AP).—How a rare operation halted development of male characteristics in a 41-year-old woman was disclosed here to-day in records of the University of California Medical School.

Before submitting to the operation, for removal of a non-malignant ovarian tumor, the woman said growth of hair on her face made it necessary for her to shave daily. Her voice was deep-toned and hoarse. Her hair receded at the temples as does a man's.

Four months after the operation the medical school reported that the woman's facial contours had softened, body hair had diminished, and the voice had lost its masculine timbre.

Those Wong Children

Lakefield High School has produced a situation the parallel of which has probably not been seen elsewhere. At the annual commencement exercises Principal J. F. Harvey in presenting diplomas announced that four children from the same family stood highest in four forms of the school: Rose Wong highest in the First Form; Lily Wong highest in the Second; Mary Wong highest in the Third and George Wong highest in the Fourth Form.

The average marks of each of the children was well over 90 per cent. in each form, and that is indeed a remarkably high standing. There is something unusual about this brilliant Chinese family. It is not uncommon to find a family where there is a brilliant student, and often enough that brilliant one is held up to the rest of the children in the family as a bright example for the others to follow. It is different in this Wong family; it is not possible to tell Rose to try and do as well as Lily, nor yet to urge Lily to try and keep pace and step in high standing with Mary; nor could one point to the senior George as the example because all appear to be stepping along well over the 90 per cent. mark and in all subjects. We are pleased to regard the performance of the Wong family at the Lakefield High School as a record until some other locality is able to point to something more outstanding.

A Barrel Of Apples

A lady living in Cannington purchased what she thought was a barrel of good Northern Spy apples from a dealer in Toronto, but when the barrel was opened she found underneath a good layer on top a lot of runts and what she termed "cider apples." They were not A No. 1, and that is what she ordered and paid for and had reason to expect she would receive.

The Cannington lady did not let the matter drop, but took the case to court. The man who sold the apples made restitution with a barrel of No. 1 Spies, and explained he was trucking for a fruit dealer in the Niagara district.

It is quite right that a case of that kind should have been brought to court, but we believe it should have been followed back to the person who packed the apples. If that barrel was "fixed" by the grower and packer then he was doing a miserable sort of service for all the honest men in the business. He was making it appear that the consumer who was prepared to pay for No. 1 fruit could not depend on the grade markings which were placed on the barrel. He was doing his full share to break down the benefit of the grading system and destroy confidence in the general marketing of fruit. The packers of those apples should have been in court.

A Load Of Thistles

Farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan for years regarded the Russian thistle as a weed and a nuisance and gladly they would have been rid of it if they could. Probably they had no more desire for the thing than our farmers have had for the sow thistle or wild mustard.

But now that there is no feed in many section of the West farmers are using the Russian thistle and a report from Coronation, Alta., says the stuff is being sold for 75 cents per load. We recall having read of one cheese factory in the drought area of Saskatchewan which had not closed on account of the drought and consequent stoppage of milk because cows in that area were feeding on Russian thistle. It is not claimed that there is much protein or anything else of value in it, but there is at least enough [illegible] to keep going.

Our farmers in their own province do somewhat the same thing. When a cow is dry she is very apt to find that straw has been largely substituted for hay in her daily rations, while the hay diet is reserved for the milking cows. But selling Russian thistle for 75 cents per load is something new. It speaks in its own way of that hard-to-defeat spirit of the Westerners. They hope to be able to carry their stock through the winter on thistle, expecting that next year will bring them something better. We hope they are right.

The Very Man We Need

Thomas J. MacLean ran as an Independant-Conservative in the riding of Huron-Bruce in the last election, but he was defeated. We do not believe there is any central fund out of which Mr. MacLean could draw funds for his election expenses. Central funds at best, as many has been found out, are broken reeds upon which to lean at times.

Mr. MacLean has just caused to be published a statement of his election expenses and the publication thereof cost him a whole and entire dollar, and that dollar resulted in the announcement that Thomas MacLean had spent nine cents. That was the sum total of his financial effort, and with detail which is praiseworthy he sets forth that the nine cents was spent for postage. And that is so easy to understand. Three three-cent stamps would equal nine cents. Such a problem would have been a joyous thing in the days of elementary mathematical instruction at school because the thing would have come out even with nothing left over and nothing to carry and no decimal points with which to wrangle.

We have heard it argued that election campaigns in this country had achieved the habit of calling for such great expenditures that none but a rich man could enter the contest, but this MacLean of Huron-Bruce had demonstrated the error of such contention. True he ranks as a defeated candidate, but there are many others in the same class who have paid out their thousands of dollars to achieve a distinction no greater.

Whether it was well for the province to have Thomas MacLean defeated is another question. A man who could run an election campaign on nine cents has possibilities. We hear a great deal of the extent and extravagance governments extent and extravagances of governments where both thought and action swing in thousands and millions of dollars. It may be that the relief of the taxayer will come only when we have a man—or a number of them—in places of authority who could wage their election battle on the price of three postage stamps. We feel quite certain that Thomas MacLean would be shocked to the point of grief and definite action when he saw thousands and millions being distributed. He would surely cry out that such expenditure should be brought within the compass of his own idea of campaign expenses. The voters of Huron-Bruce in turning down Thomas MacLean may have snuffed the political ambition of the financial Joshua whom the province sorely needs.

Probably A Waste Of Space

We know well enough before we start on this question that it is a waste of time and space. It has to do with glaring headlights. There was an inquest in a western Ontario town a few days ago and it was found a fatal accident had been caused by glaring headlights. The man who had been doing the driving gave evidence on oath to the effect "I could not see a thing except those headlights." The driver had turned his car evidently trying to get away from what he thought was the danger of hitting the car with the bright lights and had run over the edge of a culvert.

But the same thing has been going on for years, and there are headlights which still glare.

Inquests have been bringing out the same sort of evidence for years, but the headlights still glare.

It is quite correct to state that these headlights are killing people, but they still glare.

There are writers who have passed up the subject because they know nothing will come of their suggestions or their warnings.

One meets plenty of cars at night the lights on which are all right. They can be so tilted that they do not bother the oncoming driver in the least. If part of the headlights can be made right—and therefore safe—then all could be treated the same way.

But the headlights that glare are actually killing people on our highways and drivers who use such lights are not fined or put in prison.

The Change In Farming

It may be that farmers who h[illegible] using Hydro in their barn[illegible] time get used to it and [illegible] realize the difference of today [illegible] compared to the time when a la[illegible] was the one means of getting [illegible] for night work. We have seen [illegible] number of good barns in this district [illegible] others and the turning of a [illegible] button provides all the light that is necessary.

It was quite different on the Tenth Concession where the lantern was used [illegible] there were no electric lights [illegible]. At least not on the farms. Grandfather was always fussy about the way the lantern was cleaned and the wick trimmed. If there happened to be a sort of horn on one corner of the flame he would say "Fiddlesticks" and that for him was strong language indeed. Out in the barn there was a sort of strong peg at the back of the stalls where the horses were kept, and the collar and harness was hung there. A little space left at the end was the place where the lantern was hung. When the cows were milked there was generally the good chance of having to sit so there was little light on the work in hand.

Today there is a motor and an electric light at the pulper. On the Tenth there was an old machine with some knives attached to the spokes of a large wheel. It was necessary to shove the turnips and mangolds down a box with a stick to keep from getting fingers nipped off, and the thing was turned by hand while the lantern shed its feeble light suspended from a nail in a nearby beam. After the chopping or slicing was done in that old machine it was also necessary to do some more chopping with a spade.

Nor was there a silo on the barn on the Tenth. Today a good portion of cow meals are shovelled into a basket from the door of the silo; good feed and the cattle like it; much faster and easier than it used to be and much better.

On many good farms today the milk is weighed, taken to a milk room where a motor operates the separator, and that place too has an electric light. On the tenth the pails had to be carried through the barnyard, and then across the lot at the back of the house where it was strained and placed in shallow pans down in the old stone cellar so the cream would rise overnight to be skimmed off in the morning. And often enough it was considered best to carry a pail in one hand and the lantern in the other.

One would hesitate to say that farming is a more happy life today than it used to be, nor could it be successfully urged that it is more profitable. Now and then some of the farmers along the Tenth used to retire and go to live in the nearby village, but there are few of them who are doing that today in any section of the country. But farming, and especially the work around the barns, has made its strides. The electric light is far in advance of the old coal-oil lantern, the pulper is many steps ahead of the old chopper and the silo has reduced feeding to a science which is not difficult of operation. The methods of farming have been advancing whether the financial returns have or not.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Among those who are inclined to doubt the existence of a Santa Claus is the Tiny Township woman from whose farm 500 Christmas trees were stolen.

It is claimed there are 20,000 stray cats in Toronto, and they probably have difficulty in finding enough backyard fences to accommodate them all.

Objection raised at Oshawa to a salary raise for Mayor Alex. Hall would undoubtedly be seconded promptly by Premier Hepburn.

The Quebec government should preserve Anticosti Island as a nice quiet spot for Ontario and Quebec premiers to hold their huddles in.

Sault Ste. Marie's budget has been balanced for the first time in 21 years and now the only red will be the streamer line in Jim Curran's newspaper when a new animal story breaks.

Buffalo's city hall is described as rocked by scandal. After recent revelations it is surprising to learn there is enough of the building left to do any rocking.

More cars were produced in Canada last month than in any other November on record, and that would seem to be a pretty favorable business barometer reading.

Canadian labor, it is claimed, will boycott Japanese goods but it is to be feared that even the knowledge of that fact will not cause the Japanese high command to order "Cease Firing" in China.

Pennsylvania man troubled with cold feet has written Winnipeg's chief of police to know what he can do [illegible] chilled pedal extremities. [illegible] the idea still prevails in the [illegible] states that this is a cold country.

Independent Conservative candidate in Huron-Bruce in the last provincial election spent only $1.09 on his election campaign. It is a pity he was defeated; there is real material there for the right kind of Minister of Finance.

Because of protests over a recent radio skit the National Broadcasting Company has prohibited the use of Mae West's name on the air, and thus Mae's chances for publicity over the radio have gone west.

At St. Thomas gasoline being used to clean a garment exploded with the result that a housewife was critically burned and the house was destroyed. It seems impossible to prevent folk from gambling with death, no matter how frequent and how tragic the warnings.

BAFFLED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ A monkey that should climb a string, seems such a simple sort of thing, of course it's just a toy; and it arrived at Christmas time, and scampered up and down its twine, and pleased a little boy.

¶ But then he dropped it on the floor, the monkey then would climb no more, it acted just like dead; he asked me to repair the thing, so it would run upon its string, and twist its ainted head.

¶ I gathered all the tools I had, and did my best to help the lad, I wanted it to start; but first of all I'd have to know, just why the monkey would not go, I took the thing apart.

¶ Inside were springs and gadgets too, and wheels before I never knew, I placed them here and there; I piled them neatly so, and so, and thought I knew just where they'd go, a neatly done affair.

¶ We found a small but broken spring, 'twas simple to repair the thing, for now the thing would start; I worked then at a goodly pace, and sought each movement to retrace, from taking it apart.

¶ I thought I worked correct and deft, but found three springs and two wheels left, of places saw no more; and so the monkey climbs no string, and he looks sad as anything—like what he did before.

According to S. R. Winters, in Hygeia, every man has a hobby "to his own tastes" and some of them are very unusual. For example H. G. Wells, the English novelist and historian who so vigorously advocates peace, prizes a collection of toy soldiers. Mr. Well buys his miniature warriors unpainted and colors them in bright uniforms. Aldous Huxley, another literary contemporary, shares a hobby with Ed Wynn, the radio and theatrical comedian. They both save hats of all sorts. Mr. Wynn has more than 900 hats in his collection.

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, and noted for his Shakespearian inclinations in literature, spends his odd dollars in buying wallpaper while the weird hobby of M. A. Gill of Kansas City is collecting handcuffs worn by condemned murderers. His assortment contains links worn on the wrists of murders dating back to the year 1830.

Collecting clocks is a hobby pursued by many well known persons. Gelett Burgess the writer has a half-dozen clocks in every room of his home. Both George III and George V loved the tick-tock of old clocks and Buckingham Palace contains a rare group of Thomas Tampion, Edward Banger, George Graham and Anthony Bannister clocks.

The more expensive hobbies, such as rare book, art and coin collecting are usually indulged by men of means. J. Pierpont Morgan is an ardent collector of precious manuscripts and ancient tomes of ecclesiastic law and church history. Dr. William Osler, the famed physician, seeking solace after his son's death began to study and collect early medical books and editions of Thomas Browne and after his own death this collection, left to McGill University at Montreal, became the basis of the present Osler library there.

Andrew Mellon expended vast sums to purchase valuable art treasures and also gathered an extraordinary set of rare old maps. His remarkable folio of illustrated Chinese maps was exhibited recently at the library of the United States Congress. The rattle of old coins is music in the ears of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy who has built up one of the most treasured coin collection in all Europe.

About Insomnia.

FEAR OF inability to sleep is likely to cause sleeplessness. Worry is responsible for the greater proportion of insomnia in industrial areas where worry about economic conditions is most prevalent.

Two French remedies for summer sleeplessness are taking a tablespoon of olive oil just before retiring or inhaling the odor of menthol at bedtime. Another recommended cure for insomnia is said to be to close [illegible] eyes and try to lie still and [illegible] nothing. Counting sheep [illegible] say, is a waste of [illegible]

A thousand trees are being transplanted to the World's Fair Grounds at Flushing Meadows, Long Island. Some of these trees weigh as much as twenty tons and are as much as sixty feet high. There will be a permanent park in this region after the fair is over.

Willow trees will not be very successful if planted where they have wet feet. They like a damp soil but never one that is wet or soggy.

In an orchard it is well to plant a cover crop of beans, clover or alfalfa, in between the trees to provide nitrogen and other life-goving properties to the soil.

In the average tree, the roots extend out as far as the spread of the outermost branches. There are certain exceptions, however, such as American holly which spreads out one third again as much.

Some Data on Stockings.

A MUSEUM for stockings is to be established in Apolda, Germany, where stockings have been made for three and a half centuries.

On the sidewalks of London is conducted the business of mending runs in ladies hosiery. The lady whose stocking is being mended rests her foot on a footrest provided by the woman who does the mending.

Cobwebs were used by a Frenchman in 1740 to make stockings. A spider's web consists of silken strands.

Artificial silk used in ladies' silk stockings is made from the same chemical as gun powder. Incidentally some stockings for summer wear have been chemically treated to repel mosquitoes.

Stockings made from the inner tubes of automobile tires are sold in Turkey, Syria and the Balkan States.

Before knitting and weaving were invented leg coverings or stockings were made of leather.

The length of the silk thread used in one pair of women's hose is about 3¾ miles.

King George is Setting a Good Example; A Man Who Does Not Shift His Responsibilities

(From the Montreal Star.)

KING GEORGE is forty-two. The Empire celebration of his birthday has been fixed for June, by His Majesty's special request, in order that the public may be able to enjoy a holiday in fine weather. None the less, today the thoughts of the Empire will turn towards the man upon whose shoulders just a year ago an almost intolerable burden was thrown through a dramatic event unparalleled in British history. Before then the Duke of York had been a figure much in the background, so far as the people of the Empire were concerned. But those whose business it was to know were aware that he had been trained in the responsibilities of high office and that he did not go to the Throne wholly unprepared.

During the year that has elapsed the new King has shown himself in [illegible] way worthy of his exalted position, a man who commands universal respect and esteem, and for whom the British public are developing a genuine affection. Any feeling of uneasiness that existed at the beginning of his reign has completely disappeared. He has satisfied the nation and the Empire that he realizes his duty and that he is determined to discharge it to the best of his ability, adhering strictly to constitutional standard and precedent. Perhaps the one feature that has done more to strengthen his hold upon the hearts of the people is his happy family life. His Queen is loved and his children are worshipped by all. The nation sleeps soundly at night, because it feels that the monarchy is as firmly based upon the Constitution as ever, if not more so, and that it has a King who is resolute to govern in accordance with that Constitution and in whom it can place absolute reliance.

King George is following in the footsteps of his beloved father. He is setting the people a good example of a man who does not break down under hard work or try to shift his responsibilities, but who is devoted to the service of the Kingdom and the Empire. His bearing has been kingly at all times. He has convinced everybody of his sincerity and of his deep solicitude for the welfare of the nation as a whole and of the under-privileged classes in particular. When he has spoken of his own volition, his sentiments have found a swift echo in the public heart. Alike as husband, father and King, he has conducted himself in such a manner as to leave no ground for criticism. The British people want a monarch to whom they can look up, and George VI has proved himself to be such a man. They will be a unit with the rest of the Empire today in wishing him long life, happiness and a glorious reign.

The True Christmas Should Last All Year

No Reason For Making It [illegible] Celebrating World Needs It [illegible] Day in the Year.

(Christian [illegible])

A NEW [illegible] as well as a new [illegible] to the hearts [illegible] birth of Jesus. When- [illegible] heart beats in unison with [illegible] again, "On earth peace, good [illegible] toward men," it catches and [illegible] celebrates the true Christmas.

The true Christmas is not restricted to a certain time of year; it is an expression of universal love. Thus it should not merely be observed, but lived. The attitude of "on earth peace, good will toward men," should be kept alive. This true, peace, continually singing in one's heart each day of the year, kept active in spirit every hour in one's daily contact with the world, how it expresses "glory to God!" is it not both a greeting and aprayer?

Great is the world's need for the Christlike touch to heal all its wounds, physical moral, political, racial. Not at Christmas time alone, do the children of men need good cheer and friendly aid. Every day human hearts need to have burdens lifted, fears dispelled, sorrows healed, anxieties calmed, hopes restored. "Feed the famished affections," is Mary [illegible] Eddy's rendering, in part, of [illegible] petition in the Lord's Prayer. [illegible]ence and Health with Key to the Scriptures, p. 17) A joyful thought [illegible] always bring the true Christmas [illegible] to the hearts of those who [illegible] its healing message.

The Chri[illegible] which truly commemorates [illegible] birth was best exemplified [illegible] the ministry of Christ Jesus. [illegible] he brought to mankind a [illegible]tical message of the immortality [illegible] man. He taught and demonstrated [illegible] God-given ability to overcome [illegible]. He lifted the thoughts of [illegible]kind above sinning, suffering, dyi[illegible] beliefs to behold the nature of [illegible]d and the immortality of man, [illegible] helped others to prove for [illegible]lves their God-given dominion [illegible]er all untoward conditions of [illegible]ly living. This sacred season [illegible]memorating his birth brings also a deeper message to the world—the [illegible]blime lesson of immortality.

Can we truly [illegible] by the advent of Jesus and fail to [illegible] the Master's teachings and mi[illegible]? His practical message of the [illegible]piritual nature of man, God's ide[illegible]should ever be associated with Christmas.

Should One Be Introduced To Evry Girl?

Contends There is No Harm in Picking Up Acquaintance; Formal Introduction Does Not Guarantee Anything

(By J. V. McAree, in Globe and Mail)

NEVER having gone to any public dances, at least not having gone when we could remember going, we are unaware of the punctilio that is observed; but it seems that there is frequently noticed by the more lynx-eyed the practice of "picking up" girls, and naturally it must be put down. It has been suggested that these dance halls should be obliged to provide a chaperon, whose duty it would be to see that the young ladies are not molested, or, as they say in England, interfered with. It seems a highly moral idea, but as we examine it, it seems to have even worse features. It will tend to spoil the fun of the evening for those girls who go to dances unattended, hoping that they will find boys willing to dance with them, even without the formality of introductions. To us in our ignorance it seems hardly more superfluous for a girl to take a young man along with her to a public dance than for a man to carry along a bartender when he enters a saloon for a drink. The assumption is that there will be plenty of both dancers and bartenders.

It Depends on the Girl

We protest against the implication that a girl who permits herself to be "picked up" by a strange but personable young man is in any way inferior to a girl who has the good luck to have agreeable young men presented to her by a friend. Nor do we believe it suggests an evil mind on the part of the young man that he should venture to address informally a girl whose looks he likes. Certainly the girl who now and then suffers or invites a pick-up, at other times has young men introduced to her. She remains the same girl. Being picked up does not in itself undermine her character, nor does a formal introduction rehabilitate her. If she is old enough to go to a public dance, it is a reasonable guess that she knows her way around and will be quite competent to deal with the young man who supposes that because a girl dances with him before he knows her name she has no self-respect and is like to prove an easy lay. Horrible though the young generation may be, and it could hardly be worse, judging from what we have read about it, we believe that most boys and girls are content to dance and [illegible] some Coca-Cola without ulterior motives. We admit that when the nipper comes into play the outlook changes considerably for the worse.

The Knock-Down

Such musings recall the time when we were young and eager enough to talk to any girl who would talk to us, even without an introduction. The difference between girls to whom we were introduced and girls to whom we briefly introduced ourself seems slight in retrospect. We doubt if an investigation would show any difference at all in the respect of happy marriage and numerous children. We do recall, however, that there was probably more formality in that age than in the present, and an ugly phrase, now happily gone out of usage, was frequently heard. "Will you give me a knock-down to her?" we would ask, or, more tersely, "Knock me down to her." This was a way of asking for an introduction, though how it originated we have no idea, unless the bow that one made upon an introduction might be considered as the beginning of a kind of collapse or knock-down. But it would require a more vivid imagination than ours to thus interpret the brief nod that passed for a bow on such occasions.

Beavers are bothering farmers near Brockville through flooding caused by the busy little beaver dams. A few beavers were introduced into this locality some time ago and they have become more or less of a nuisance. Seems like Mr. and Mrs. Beaver are getting rather farther south.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me . . . .

The Lord preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he helped me . . . . For thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling. I will walk before the Lord in the land of the living—Ps. xxiii, 4; cxvi, 6, 8, 9.

So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death . . . Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth. Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him. So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth; and himself believed, and his whole house.—John iv, 46, 47, 50-53.

POLICE AND GUNS.

(Toronto Star)

THE FACT is that the police use of firearms should be confined to the subduing of armed criminals who are themselves using weapons to prevent arrest. In other cases it is better that the fleeing man should escape than that he should be sentenced, perhaps, to death by a pursuing policeman. This is particularly true when the fugitive is running away in a panic after committing some crime in which violence has played no part. Indiscriminate police shooting is indefensible. It is an importation from the United States, and Canadians have learned, perhaps, to regard it with unjustified tolerance because they have seen it in so many films. Police guns are for police protection, not for the wounding or execution of men who are running from the police.

BETTER OVER HERE.

(Ottawa Journal)

WALL STREET "jitters" and United States New Deal battles may frighten some Canadians, but evidently not all. Thus we have the official word of Minister of Labor Rogers that in October of this year employables on relief were 44,000 fewer than in October of last year. That must mean a lot of betterment in Canadian business.

In this country we have gone on the assumption that if business gets bad in the United States it must be bad in Canada. It is not necessarily an accurate assumption. During the past six months, for instance, the industrial charts in Canada have been far from following industrial charts in the United States. There has been some slowing down in Canada, but it has been nothing in comparison with what has come across the line.

SPIRITUALIST SAYS MEDIUMS COULD FIND CRIME SOLUTION

But Glasgow Police State Courts Wouldn't Accept Such Evidence

SUCCESS CLAIMED

Glasgow. — Psychic detectives could solve almost any crime, said Ernest W. Oaten, of Manchester, speaking here at the World Congress of Spiritualists.

He suggested police should establish a training centre at which people with sensitive minds could be coached in psychometry, an art somewhere between mediumism and divining.

"I have been approached by police officials who wanted the services of a psychometrist," he said. "I had to inform them that spiritualism did not ally itself with crime detection, but I suggested that great success in tracing criminals would be achieved if people with psychic faculties could be given a three years' course."

Mr. Oaten said afterwards: "It is well known among spiritualists that police forces occasionally ask help of mediums.

"Scotland Yard detectives have frequently consulted those with psychic power, and, to my knowledge, some mediums earn almost their livelihood by assisting the police.

"The psychometrists is able to communicate with the mind of a person because of the delicate radiations that emanate from everyone. He just needs to hold any garment or article to get in touch with the mind of the owner."

Glasgow police are not enthusiastic about such methods of crime detection. Assistant Chief Constable MacPherson said:

"There is just as wide a gap between spiritualists and real detective work as between real detective work and detective novelettes. shrdlu cmfwyp shrdlu cmwf ypoaj

"I do not know whether the system of psychometry would be successful, but I do know that any such methods adopted by the police would not be allowed in evidence or accepted by any British court."

WANTED WIFE'S LOVE SO FED HER ARSENIC

Husband Gets Five Years for Administering "Powder"

London.—Sentence of five years' penal servitude was passed at the Old Bailey on James Williams, 66, a shop keeper, of Islington, for administering poison to his wife, thereby to inflict grievous bodily harm upon her.

It was stated that Williams had given his wife arsenic over a long period.

His defence was that he thought it was a powder which would make her more affectionate towards him.

Anthony Hawke, prosecuting, said that he had hesitated before accepting Williams' pleas and his plea of not guilty to a charge of attempted murder.

Mr. Hawke said that Williams was married in 1932. By the middle of 1936 relations became strained.

Following a holiday in the Channel Islands, they occupied separate rooms. That was a matter which caused Williams much resentment.

Dr. Roche Lynch gave evidence that Mrs. Williams was now under treatment in his hospital.

"I think," he added, "it will be months before she gets well."

Mr. Butcher, defending, said Williams had ten children by his first wife and 20 grandchildren.

He served on the Shoreditch board of guardians during the war and was a life governor of three hospitals.

MARRIAGE V. CANCER? SHE CHOOSES WEDDING

And Ceremony as Performed "Over the Anvil" at Gretna Green

Skegness, Lincs.—Eighteen-year-old Kathleen Page had to decide between marriage and her career in the civil service.

Her father, Charles Frederick Page, a Skegness coastguard, heard that she had run away to Gretna Green and married over the anvil 26-year-old Claron Moss, representative at a Skegness holiday camp of a London amusement firm.

Kathleen, a pretty blonde, was the youngest member of the Skegness post-office counter staff.

Mr. Rennison, owner of the Gretna Green smithy, said he was telephoned at midnight by a man who asked if he would marry a couple immediately.

Twenty minutes later Miss Page and Mr. Moss arrived by taxi, and the man signed a declaration that he had fulfilled the residential qualification with a stay of three weeks at a farm at Crowsnose, Langholm.

SWALLOWS KEROSENE

Birmingham.—Hadji Ali, a flame-thrower who appears at the Birmingham Hippodrome, swallows half a gallon of water and a pint of kerosene before his performance.

But the Birmingham fire brigade take no chances with Ali.

They have cut down his ration of kerosene to half the amount and insist that two firemen with buckets of sand and an extinguisher shall be present on the stage—to put Ali out, if need be.

LITTER BEAUTY SPOT 16 HOLIDAYERS FINED

"To Show No Leniency to Further Offenders"

Pickering, Yorks.—For leaving litter on Saltersgate Bank Top, a beauty spot on the Whitby Moors, 16 holiday makers were ordered to pay fines.

The chairman, Dr. R. A. Scott, said: "We who are residents in the district find it absolutely deplorable to go to these places after a week-end and see the country spoiled by heaps of litter.

"We have every desire to welcome people from the towns. We are proud of our countryside, and we wish to keep its beauty intact and unspoiled."

The fines had been moderate, he said, but there would be no leniency for further offenders.

FAMOUS PANTILES WILL BE WRECKED

Three 18th Century Buildings at Tunbridge Wells Are on Promenade

Tunbridge Wells.—The decision to pull down three 18th century buildings in the famous Pantiles, the colonnaded promenade known to every visitor to Tunbridge Wells, is arousing a good deal of anxiety among those who lament the passing of picturesque old buildings all over the country.

They fear that the new shops with flats over them which will be built on the site will destroy the character of the Pantiles.

Unhappily a good deal of its character was destroyed about 60 years ago when some stucco-fronted buildings entirely out of harmony with their surroundings were put up.

It is feared that further damage may be done now.

BRITIAN WILL CLOSE MOST HATED PRISON

Dartmouth Is First to Go Under Reform Bill

London. — Dartmoor, the most-hated, most-feared prison in all Britain, is to be closed down.

The new prison reform bill will propose that entirely new types of prison be built to replace the grim, out-of-date fortresses that now house Britain's convicts.

Dartmoor will be the first to go. Pentonville, as it exists at present, will be the next.

INTOXICATED BY JOY

Crewe. — "Married only three hours previously, I was intoxicated by the joy," wrote Albert B. Zimmeman of Prestwich, Manchester, summoned at Crewe for not having proper control of his car.

The driver of a patrol car said he saw Zimmeman, whose motor swerved in a lane, kiss his companion three times.

The case was dismissed on payment of costs.

BLACK WATCH EMBARKS FOR DUTY IN AFRICA

Reminiscent of the early days of the great war when similar departures took place almost daily as thousands of British soldiers embarked for front line trenches, this scene occurred recently when with hats in the air and everyone smiling and waving farewell, the Second battalion of the Black Watch, famous world war regiment, left on the transport Nevasa, bound for Port Said and Palestine.

SAILORS CAN APPLY FOR OWN PROMOTION

Admiralty Schemes to Make It Easier for Ratings to Get Commissions

London—The admiralty is making it easier for naval ratings to secure promotion from the lower deck to commissioned rank.

Fleet orders issued give details of a scheme to encourage and help ratings to educate themselves to the necessary standards to qualify for promotion.

Instead, as before, of having to reach the necessary educational standard before appearing before the selection board, the rating can now appear first before a board.

If it approves of him as a likely officer, he is sent to a special training ship.

As well as a thorough knowledge of seamanship, the sailor's educational examination will include English, history, mathematics, mechanics, magnetism and electricity and navigation.

REVEAL 3 MEN LOVED GIRL WHOSE BODY FOUND IN SEA

Went to Canada to Marry Man She Had Never Seen

WAS A LITHUANIAN

Kingsbridge, Devon.—Three men, it was revealed at an inquest here, loved beautiful Elena Jakubauskaite, 25-year-old Lithuanian, who vanished from the liner Ascania in the English channel and whose body was found three day later by fishermen.

A fellow countryman had written to her, but she had taken no notice of him and had gone to Canada to marry a man she had never seen, but when she got to Canada she changed her mind "because he was too old"—he was 32—and she was deported. On the way home a liner passenger sent her a love letter, saying he would write to her when he got home.

The coroner, G. E. Windeatt, referred to these letters, found after she vanished from the liner, but did not read them.

Jack Backer, an interpreter in the Ascania, said that the girl told him she did not want to return to Lithuania and would rather live in Canada, France, or England. "When I told her that she had to return to Lithuania, she became very unhappy."

Mr. Windeatt, who recorded a verdict of taking her own life while suffering from acute depression, mentioned that when the body was discovered the police communicated with the Lithuanian police for information about the girl, but had received no reply.

BUILDS VAST KENNEL FOR ST. BERNARD DOG

Edinburgh.—Neighbors objected when an Edinburgh woman had a structure 40 feet long, 10 feet wide and 10 feet high built in her garden.

She was prosecuted at the Dean of Guild court for constructing a building without authority, and there the mystery was solved.

It was intended as a kennel for a St. Bernard.

ENGLISH COUNCILLORS USE 'CHOICE' TERMS

Outspokenly Denounce Opposition to Sunday Games at Seaside Resort

Bournemouth — "Fanatical," "hypocritical," "narrow-minded" and "pharisaical."

These were some of the choice descriptions applied at a borough council meeting here to opponents of Sunday games.

Eight petitions from churches and church organizations asked for the rescinding of the council's decision to open public tennis courts and putting greens on Sundays during the summer.

But the council decided by 28 votes to 24 that Sunday games would go on.

Councillor Daude, who proposed rescinding, declared the council had no moral right to allow Sunday games.

Councillor Brown declared opponents of Sunday music many years ago had prophesied it would ruin Bournemouth as a residential centre, but since then new residents had come to the town at the rate of 1,000 a year, and the population had nearly doubled.

SPOTS GIPSY LASS WITH HER BRACELET

Woman Sees Girl Musician Wearing It on Concert Stage

Southsea. — When Petulengro's Gipsy band was playing on Southsea pier a woman member of the audience noticed that a girl musician in the band was wearing a bracelet of unusual design.

She recognized it as one which had been missed four months previously from the boarding house in Brighton, kept by her friend, Mrs. Tindall.

This evidence was given by Det.-Supt. Pelling at Brighton, when the musician, Ethel Owsey, 22, was bound over, on payment of costs, for having stolen the bracelet.

He said that during March and April Petulengro's band was at Brighton, and Owsey lodged in Mrs. Tindall's house. After she left the bracelet was missed.

The girl at first said that an Indian student gave her the bracelet six years ago, but later she admitted that she took it.

The superintendent added that Miss Owsey, at the age of 15, won a scholarship for music and studied at the Royal College of Music in London for two years. She was a pupil of Albert Sammons for five years and did concert work. She joined Petulengro's band at the beginning of this season.

ESCAPE WATER SPOUT

Morecambe.—Tom and Ted Baxter, fishermen, were nearly overwhelmed by a waterspout when it swept in the direction of their boat in Morecambe bay. They hauled in their nets and made frantic efforts to get their craft away.

The fringe of the spout — which "rose from the sea to the sky" — just missed them and they were nearly swamped.

"I've seen these spouts before," said one member of the fishing fleet, "but never one a tenth the size of that."

TRAVELLED AS 'COUNTESS' GETS 6 MONTHS FOR FRAUD

Married Man Who Claimed To Be Count of the Holy Roman Empire

USED BAD CHEQUES

London.—A former convent girl said to have travelled the country with her husband as Count and Countess de la Feld, and to have lived by passing worthless cheques on the strength of the title, received sentences at West London police court totalling six months.

Doreen de la Feld, aged 33, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to two frauds on Harrods, Ltd., by means of worthless cheques and also to obtaining $30 by false pretences from a Kingston grocer.

Detective Harris said she was a native of Bristol and was educated at Clifton high school. At 16 she was trained as a music teacher, but later entered a convent as a novice.

On leaving there she started a publishing business in London, but after two years was forced to put it into liquidation. She started another publishing business, and in June of this year that was also wound up.

Caxton Hall Marriage

At Caxton Hall register office on June 2 last she married a man who called himself Count de la Feld and claimed to be a count of the Holy Roman Empire.

These two travelled to various parts of England, Jersey, and Ireland as count and countess, and obtained goods from tradesmen all over the country on the strength of this title.

In Dublin recently she endeavored to go through another form of marriage in the name of Beaumont with the same man. They had visiting cards printed in the name of the Rev. Viscount and Viscountess Beaumont, of Detroit, Mich.

Husband's Sentence

The husband had been sentenced at Truro to a month's imprisonment for fraud.

W. Brooks, defending, said that the couple's attempt to be married a second time was that both wanted a religious ceremony. They changed their name to avoid publicity.

"She was expecting money from a certain source, and would have been able to go round and say to these defrauded people, 'Here is your money; I am sorry.' Since these proceedings commenced she has received a certain amount of money from this source. Should a certain course be adopted, she desires to pay back all the money she has had."

The magistrate, Paul Bennett, said he could not adopt the course suggested. Although there were no previous convictions, he could not deal with it as a first offence.

LEIPZIG FAIR EXHIBITS UP

Attendance Increases—More Foreign Buyers Come

Leipzig.—Reflecting the general activity in world trade, the Leipzig fair concluded its 1,974th session with increased exhibits and attendance.

The fair attracted 150,000 buyers from 74 countries, including 6,000 from foreign countries, as compared with 3,700 last year.

A score of countries sent 8,505 exhibits of their newest art and industrial products, including 361 from abroad, an increase of 35 per cent.

FINED FIVE DOLLARS FOR REFUSAL TO GO

London "Bobbie" Wins in Crossing Dispute

London—"Remaining on a crossing longer than was necessary," was the unusual summons on which Herbert Victor Williams, of Kingston-on-Thames, was fined $5 by Paul Bennett, West London magistrate.

A constable said Williams stood on the crossing for five minutes, and said: "I'll stop here as long as I like. The road belongs as much to me as to you.

"A strange attitude to adopt," remarked Mr. Bennett.

OFFICERS VOLUNTEER TO BECOME DRUNKS

English Police to Aid Science in Establishing Drunkenness Tests

West Riding.—Age-old problem of when is a man drunk is to be settled soon by police and doctors in the north of England. West Riding police are to provide a constable — just a normal man—to undergo a series of tests to find a formula for drunkenness.

So far, Chief Constable G. C. Vaughan has not selected the "lucky man."

Dr. P. L. Sutherland, county pathologist, is to be in charge of the tests. With him will work a panel of experts, including motorists, policemen and doctors.

"I have not made the complete schedule of my tests yet," Dr. Sutherland said.

"The whole thing is being run on purely scientific grounds. Our 'subject' will be given specific amounts to drink, and tested until we find a real basis for judging drunkenness."

It is likely that a number of men will be examined, as alcohol affects different temperaments in different ways.

500,000 GAS MASKS PER WEEK IN BRITAIN

Storing of Millions Piled Up Becomes Big Problem

London.—Half a million gas masks a week are being produced at the British government factory at Blackburn.

Thirteen gas-mask storage depots are being established throughout Great Britain. Many of the sites have been selected. Storage has already begun in the London area, which will have three depots, each one capable of holding 3,000,000 gas masks.

Experiments are now being made regarding the distribution of masks to regional centres, whence they will be sent in lots of about 30,000 to the buildings from which distribution to individuals will be carried out. It is hoped eventually to organize 300,000 volunteer air wardens, who will carry out the final distribution if any emergency arises.

It is not such a simple matter as it seems to store millions of masks. When completed and in metal containers they are stored in nitrogen to protect the rubber.

They are made in three sizes, the smallest being suitable for children. There are complications regarding masks for babies, and experiments are still being made to find some suitable protection. One of the problems is to protect the baby without frightening it, according to the officials.

BRIEF STORIES GATHERED FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

RAID 500 "JOINTS" IN PARIS AS U.S. DANCER KIDNAPPED

Gendarmes Grill More Than 5,000 "Suspects" in Crime Clean-Up

FEAR WOMAN KILLED

Paris.—In a sensational drive to stamp out a sudden wave of crime that has swept over France, police have raided more than 500 "joints" in Paris and grilled more than 5,000 "suspects."

Spurred by the recent kidnapping of the American dancer, Jean de Koven—the first real kidnapping reported in France in almost two centuries—the Surete Nationale and the Police Judiciaire are determined to solve an unprecedented number of crimes this year and "purge" the country of its "crooks."

Jewel robberies in the leading Paris hotels; increased narcotic peddling; arms smuggling; wholesale bank swindles, and the first case of the well-known American "protection" racket figure on the police blotter.

Swooping down on every night-club and cabaret in Montmartre and Montparnasse, police have systematically raided every "dive" in the city.

More than 400 persons, including women, have been jailed on vagrancy charges—meaning they are held for further grilling on suspicion of being involved in a crime.

But the most important crime of all, the de Koven kidnapping, is still unsolved. Snatched on July 23, the 24-year-old dancer is still missing despite a nation-wide search and police fear she has been murdered.

The Surete Nationale and the Police Judiciaire are searching for a Swiss or German-American believed to be one of the kidnappers but admit not one real clue has been bared as yet.

JUGOSLAVIA IS SIXTH AS WHEAT PRODUCER

Belgrade—Jugoslavia has sixth place in the world's list of wheat-exporting countries, Roumania being fourth and Bulgaria ninth.

This is revealed in the latest statistics just published, covering the period from August 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937.

Canada leads, followed in order by the Argentine, Australia and Roumania, Hungary leading Jugoslavia in fifth place.

RECOGNIZE ESPERANTO

International Language Admitted in French Telegraphy

Paris.—Esperanto, artificial international language which is supposed to be the easiest amalgam of all the world's languages, is rapidly becoming an important language in France. Already the government-owned telegraphic system has admitted Esperanto as an official language usable in sending messages.

Esperanto henceforth will figure alongside French and English in signs of all Paris railroad stations, designed to guide foreigners.

USE OIL BATHS IN RUSSIA

Baku, U.S.S.R.—Geran, a small station in Azerbaidjan, is becoming a popular health resort. It is believed to be the only place in the world where a peculiar kind of oil, naphthalan, is applied as a remedy.

This dark-brown, oily, viscous liquid contains neither benzine kerosene, paraffin, nor water. It has a peculiar aromatic scent which grows stronger when heated.

Naphthalan baths are used in the treatment of nervous diseases.

BREAKS THREE TIMES FROM DEVIL'S ISLAND

Intrepid Convict Again Recaptured in Paris Cafe

Paris.—Elie Roudeau, a convict who holds the record of three escapes from Devil's Island, was recaptured recently in a Paris cafe.

Head of a gang of burglars and white slave traffickers, he was first sent to the penal settlement seven years ago.

A few months later he escaped in a boat, but was recaptured after a chase lasting several days.

The following year he fled again in a boat accompanied by another convict.

His companion died on the way, but Roudeau reached the Dutch Guiana coast exhausted.

Here he was bitten by a snake and natives looked after him and then, to earn the reward offered, handed him back to the penal settlement.

Roudeau's third attempt was made five years ago. With a pocket knife, a loaf and a piece of meat he ventured into the forest.

It took him 19 days to go 300 miles before he reached Cayenne, where he assumed a false name.

He had been living here on the proceeds of thefts for two years.

GIGOLOS DRUG ON MARKET

20 Men to Woman at Riviera Cause Escort Slump

Nice, France. — Young men eager to escort lonesome women who will pay bills are so numerous on the Riviera that there is a slump in the straight "guide and escort" business. "There are 20 men to every woman in Cannes, Nice and Monte Carlo, all waiting for a chance to be charming for a fee," one expert said.

VAUDEVILLIAN HELD IN LENINGRAD PRISON

Passport Authorities Detain Eva Linde of London Trio

Leningrad.—Eva Linde, one of the musical trio vaudeville act known as the Linde Sisters of London, Eng., has been imprisoned here for three months.

She married in 1926 a German named Reinhard Loewenberg, but they were divorced and she then married a Russian named Jack Saborovsky.

At the end of last year the Linde Sisters—Eva and Ivy—went to Soviet Russia to present their musical act in circuses and cinemas in leading cities. Their contract fulfilled, they went to Leningrad to embark for home.

Two hours before departure time, on April 23, they were held up by the passport authorities and at two o'clock on the following morning police entered their apartment in the Hotel Astoria and Eva was arrested.

It transpired that her former husband, Loewenberg, was arrested at about the same period.

At length, inquiries elicited the only facts so far known—that Eva Linde and her former German husband are in custody "charged with espionage and terroristic acts."

HISTORIC ROOF STOLEN

400 Years Old Was Over Bridge of Sighs

Venice.—The 400-year-old roof of the historic "Bridge of Sighs," connecting the Doge's palace with the dungeons of the republican era, has been stolen. The curator of the palace found that the bridge had been flooded, and on investigation discovered that the roof was missing. It was made of lead and weighed four tons.

EUROPE'S YOUNGEST RULER SCHOOLED IN CLASS OF 14

Peter II of Jugoslavia Known as "The Lonely King" Now Reported Happy

14 YEARS OF AGE

Belgrade. — Europe's youngest king, Peter II of Jugoslavia, now 14 years old, has lost during the past year the unofficial title by which he was known through the Balkans—"The Lonely King."

His uncle, the Prince Regent Paul, and his advisers have made during the year a great change in the young king's education.

This has changed the shy, reserved boy into a vigorous assured schoolboy.

Previously he had been taught alone by a Jugoslav teacher and an English tutor, C. C. Parrott. His only companions were his two young brothers.

An attempt to bring him into the company of boys of his own age was made in 1934. Prince Peter, as he then was, was sent to Sandroyd school, Surrey.

But after a fortnight there he had to return to his solitary lessons in Belgrade, because the assassination of his father, King Alexander, in Marseilles, brought him suddenly to the throne.

Since last year a special class of fourteen selected boys of his own age has been organized for King Peter.

The boys come from all sorts of parents. One of the son of a cobbler, another of a schoolmaster, another of a rich merchant, but the only tests applied to them have been that they should be intelligent, athletic, and of good character.

GERMAN ENGINEERS DISLIKE BIG LINERS

Claim Ocean Giants Cannot Stand Atlantic Stress

Berlin. — German engineering science has only lukewarm enthusiasm for ocean giants such as the Normandie and Queen Mary.

At the 75th congress of the German Engineers' Association in Kiel, it was asserted construction of these ships was based more or less on outdated technical formulas apt to underestimate the terrific stresses such liners are exposed to on the Atlantic.

It does not mean that such huge vessels are in danger of breaking in two in heavy seas, but merely that more frequent repairing and overhauling is required than on smaller ships.

CUBISM ORIGINATOR DOES MURAL WORK

Paris.—Pablo Picasso, best known of modern Spanish artists and originator of Cubism, has found a great stimulus to his work in the Spanish civil war. Picasso, who took the side of the government from the start, has completed a huge mural painting on Guernica for the Spanish pavilion at the Paris International Exposition.

Another of Picasso's recent productions is a book of 18 engravings which he has published under the title of "Dream and Lie of General Franco." It is a book of engravings which can only be compared with Goya's engravings on the Napoleonic invasion of Spain known under the anonymous title of "Caprices."

HELP PUT OUT FIRE IN 'LAUGH IN DARK'

Football Match Attendants Are Rushed to Quell Blaze

Ramsgate. — Attendants who were taking part in a football match a mile away were rushed in private cars to Merrie England Amusement Park on Ramsgate seafront to help the fire brigade when fire broke out in an amusement device known as "Laugh in the Dark".

The canvas roof of the building and the roof timbers caught fire. Thousands of visitors ran from the sands to the park to watch the firemen and attendants at work.

MUST LOSE BEARDS OR SUFFER RAID GAS

Precautions Explained to All British Householders

London. — Every householder in England soon will receive a booklet explaining the perils of gas attacks and describing the precautions which should be taken in the event of an air raid.

Eventually it is hoped every man, woman and child in the country will have a gas mask.

While these preparations are going on there is bad news for men with beards. An anti-gas expert announced: "It is difficult to fit a bearded man with a gas mask, and should an emergency arise, those with beards more than a hand long may be faced with the alternative of cutting off their beards or get[illegible]

20 CANDIDATES HAVE QUALIFIED AS ALDERMEN

Jacob Low, by Roland Denne and R. M. Glover.

Herbert J. McCannan, by J. K. Hughes and R. M. Glover.

Joseph Vinette, by G. N. Gordon and A. Brault.

Experience Available

As stated above and also previously five of the candidates are to be elected for terms of two years, and also by way of repetition is the fact that electors must vote for four of the fourteen whose names will be grouped on one ballot. The compulsion of voting for four is a Peterborough custom, long enough in use to deserve the adjective "old". When you get the ballot with the six names of the men who are seeking the three available one-year terms, you may vote for one or two or three, on that list, as you like.

Six of this year's aldermen are in the field for re-election, a guarantee of experience for those citizens who believe that the responsibility of conducting the city's business requires some connection with the past administration. These six are Cotton, Dutton, Glover, Gordon, Juby and Stocker, and with them should be included Fred Tuggey who returns with a new candidature after one year's absence from the council. And in the one-year list is John Edgar, an alderman of some years ago.

Other citizens, presumably, who profess to "want a change" and who believe in the "new broom" idea of injecting new men into the municipal service, have plenty of variety in the seven men who are facing the two-year barrier, and five in the one-year canter.

Another fact for those who may want to know it is the personnel of the 1937 council last January, in the order of their seats in the council from left to right: Mayor George A. Macdonald, Aldermen Sloan, Cotton, Stocker, Wilson, Hamilton, Glover, Dutton, Juby, McIntyre, Gordon.

Mayor Macdonald is retiring from the service of the city, terminating what citizens generally regard as an excellent record. First of the aldermen to resign was Max R. Sloan who has been gone from the council for some months to the city's assessment department. James Hamilton resigned to qualify for the Mayor's chair; G. N. Gordon to seek re-election; and Malcolm McIntyre resigning after sixteen years' service to the city as alderman, this year being probably his busiest as chairman of the property committee, including the exacting job of supervising the collection of garbage and the management of the incinerator.

28, Vienna-born but a resident of New York, walked down the gangplank of a liner carrying a suitcase. Agents grabbed her. The suitcase contained $250,000 worth of gems.

From there, through arrest after arrest, the trail led abroad. Agents of the ring—some dupes—were house wives, salesgirls, a school teacher, a labor union agent, a French actress. Some travelled abroad on monthly schedules, returning with gems each trip.

Hidden away in a downtown building customs agents found a "diamond club," where the ring's real agents met when their ships docked.

REGENT OF TIBET UNABLE TO PLAY

old one was born," he said. "They believe an immediate reincarnation took place so he must have been born where the old one died—Dec. 17, 1933. They told me I'd know him as soon as I saw him—he's totally different from any other child."

Cutting is likely to know as soon as anyone in the outside world. For he has kept up a continuous telegraphic and mail correspondence with Tibetan dignitaries. A letter from the late Dalai Lama, reached him posthumously. By dint of this correspondence, Cutting got into the country three times in the past seven years.

Also Seeks Spiritual Head

"They are really trying to find both the Dalai Lama and the Panchen Lame, whose reincarnation should be just a month old," he said, "for they want to get back to the old days when there were separate temporal and spiritual rulers."

The late Panchen ("Most Blessed") Lama, former religious head, was driven into exile 14 years ago by the Dalai (a Mongolian word meaning "ocean") Lama, who usurped both posts. The Panchen Lama died last month in China near the north-east Tibet border.

"Re-ding-Gya-Rinpoche, the Regent, is 35, a delicate thin man who got the football from England because he thought he needed exercise," Cutting said. "But the Mahhaj, the council which really rules, made him give it up because it was undignified.

"Next to the Regent is a Prime Minister, who goes to an office, but I couldn't find out that he did anything important," said the explorer. "The Council recently was reduced from five men to four because one of them went insane."

The Cuttings spent 16 days in the capital, the forbidden city of Lhasa, from which even foreigners who get into the country frequently are barred.

Police seized the still in one of the shacks together with four barrels containing about 75 gallons of mash and two barrels each containing 10 gallons of distilled spirits.

Closer Economic Democracy Is Urged By Dr. J. R. Watts

Democracy Has a Real Fight On Its Hands If It Wishes To Survive

Democracy has a fight for its life, was the opinion expressed by Rev. Dr. J. R. Watts of the Department of Theology, Queen's University, speaking before George Street Church men's forum here on Sunday.

"In this world things never happen until they can happen," said the speaker. "There are no apparent reasons why the world should not have had democratic government from the beginning. It has taken 1,200 years to reach the stage of democracy we have to-day, and it is far from complete.

"If we are ready for an advancement, it will come," continued Dr. Watts, as he described how Germany and Italy had not yet experienced the fullness of time necessary for democratic government. Everything is dependent on a background and it was the speaker's belief that the present state of the world warrants careful watching lest undesirable forces gain control.

"There will not be a wariess world until we have considered carefully just what can be done by force and by persuasion," he said. "To have peace we must have more than political democracy. We must have also a closer economic democracy. Half the world now is under totalitarian government, which is better managed than our democracies, and it will take the best efforts of all democratic countries to come out on top. The coming of Christ was preceded by a similar period of unrest and wars, and there is certainly a possibility that to-day things are shaping themselves for another great change."

No Serious Fires Over Christmas

Despite the serious fire hazards which exist in homes on Christmas day, no fire damage was recorded in the city over the holiday weekend. The only call for anything more serious than a chimney fire received at the Fire Department originated at the Canadian General Electric.

Spontaneous combustion is believed to have started some volatile wire-treating materials smoldering in the wire department at the company early Sunday morning. A watchman discovered the smoke and called firemen in time to avoid any serious threat. No loss was recorded.

A procession of chimney fires and overheated pipe alarms began the day before Christmas and continued through the week-end. Calls originated from the homes of Mrs. O'Brien, 22 Aylmer street north; D. Lowes, 118 Sophia street; T. Reid, 64 James street; D. Flint, 131 Rubidge street; F. Moloney, 148 Park street north, and J. Pammett,

Quads 14 Years Old

The Mahanney quadruplets of St. John, N.B., each year have a double celebration on December 25, for, in addition to the Christmas festivities, it is their birthday anniversary. This year they are 14 years of age and here they are getting ready for the dual red-letter day in their lives. Incidentally they telephoned their Christmas good wishes to Canada's other famed multiple babies, the Dionne quints. LEFT to RIGHT in the group are Edith Mae, John Douglas, Edna Louise and Lydia Christine.

GOOSE IS SERVED INMATES AT JAIL

The guest list for the annual Christmas party at the County Jail Christmas Day was the smallest in many years past, but nonetheless festivities were of a high order. A weighty goose was shared among the seven men who gathered around the table.

In addition to the goose, plum pudding and all the traditional trimmings were afforded through the generosity of donors. The Salvation Army sent its annual contribution of nuts and fruits. Regular jail menus do not include special rations for Christmas day.

In past years, the number of prisoners on Christmas day has generally been in the neighborhood of 15 or 20. Of the seven present Saturday, several were transients to whom the jail hospitality was an improvement over the hospitality they would have encountered in the outside world.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A LONDON FOG

When the safety valve on the furnace boiler blew the other night and filled the fire hall with clouds of steam, the firefaddies thought for a moment they were going to have a major catastrophe on their hands. They would have had if the safety valve had not functioned. While the surplus steam hissed from the valve, it was reported the fire hall both upstairs and down was veiled behind a cloud of vapor that might be compared to a London fog. After the steam vaporised it left everything in the station covered with moisture. Men at work in the toy repair shop where the finishing touches were being put on toys ready for distribution, were driven from their benches. The alarm was short lived and after the valve had automatically closed again, work was resumed. K.C.

BIG TRANSPORT BADLY WRECKED

When a big transport owned by Toronto - Peterborough Transport Company upset near Bailieboro on Highway 28 Friday morning, it blocked the driveway leading from the residence of James Campbell, road foreman, so that he was unable to get out on his usual daily inspection on schedule.

H. William Welch, driver of the transport narrowly escaped serious injury when the truck left the road and wound up as a pile of wreckage wrapped around a tree.

The tractor and semi-trailer went out of control just after having passed through Bailieboro on its way into Peterborough. After snapping off a Hydro pole the heavy vehicle slid on its side for approximately 100 feet.

A power wrecking truck from Toronto was brought to right the transport and put it back on the highway. While the driver received only a few minor facial and scalp wounds, the transport was completely wrecked. Although no freight was damaged the loss of the equipment, will probably exceed $3,000, it was stated.

JEWS TO ORGANIZE JUNIOR G-MEN

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 27.—(AP).—Jewish Youth Group suggested here to-day an organization of junior G-men and G-women throughout the United States and Canada.

Sugarman's proposal suggested an organization of auxiliary G-men taking in the A.Z.A. and the Junior B'nai B'rith Girls' League—comprising Jewish youth between the ages of 16 and 21.

The convention appointed Charles Kate, Hamilton, Ont., delegates, to begin immediate organization of the Junior G-men and G-women. "G-man" is the popular name of agents of the United States Department of Justice.

Insurgent batteries concentrated their projectiles in the central section of Madrid. The new bombardment followed one last night in which two theatres were partly destroyed, two persons killed and 12 wounded.

It answered a government barrage which followed a series of heavy crashes, sounding like exploding hand mines, from the direction of University City.

45 Arabs, 2 Britishers Die In 5-Day Fight On Palestine-Lebanon Front

Jerusalem, Dec. 27 (CP-Havas) IN the fifth day of fighting between British troops and a large group of Arab terrorists in Northern Palestine the casualty list today stood at 45 Arabs and two British killed, but these figures were believed to have been increased by unannounced deaths.

The 800 British soldiers were supported in the Galilee operations by planes of the Royal Air Force. Fearing additional terrorists might enter Palestine to join in the fight, Palestine authorities asked the Lebanon government to reinforce the patrol of the Palestine-Lebanon frontier.

Numerous Arabs were killed yesterday when the band attacked near Safed, attempting to break through a cordon thrown around it by the British troops.

Lieut. M. W. Mountain of the first battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers and Private Creasy of the North Staffordshire Regiment died at Haifa of wounds suffered Christmas Day. The other British soldiers and two aviators were slightly wounded.

FLEA POLICEMEN MAKE DETECTING MARIHUANA EASY

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 27 (AP).—The use of flea policemen to assist United States law enforcement agencies in controlling the widespread sale and use of Marihuana, a habit-forming narcotic, was reported today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The insect is an almost microscopic and transparent water flea called daphnia, which is widely used for fish food in home fish bowls. It responds to small amounts of marihuana and some other substances placed in the water in which it lives, according to Dr. Arno Viehoever of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, who developed the test.

Marihuana, known as hashish in the Orient, has replaced to some extent the use in the United States of opium and other narcotics. Users of it become temporarily insane.

Heretofore there has never been any satisfactory method of quick identification of the narcotic, Dr. Viehoever said, and the fact that it will grow almost anywhere as a rank weed has made its control difficult.

Now, however, with the flea policemen, it is possible to identify the narcotic either in cigarettes or the weed itself within a few minutes and make convictions easier to obtain in court.

As little as one-300th of a gram of the suspected material is dissolved in chemicals and then poured over the water fleas, the Philadelphia scientist said, and if marihuana is present the insects die.

FIREMEN SUPPLIED NEARLY 2,000 TOYS

"As far as we know, no child in the city was without toys on Christmas morning," Fire Chief George Gimblett said today, reviewing one of the most successful Christmas toy distribution efforts in the history of the Department. "Close to 2,000 toys were distributed to local homes by the arrival of Christmas eve."

And Christmas eve saw the culmination of a busy effort by firemen which was begun two months back. Many weeks back, when few citizens had even begun to think of the approach of Christmas, firemen began their annual project. In response to their calls, old toys were poured into the repair shop by the score from all sections of the city. All members of the Department staff joined in the big task of making new toys for old.

More than 1,500 toys were ready for distribution by Thursday last but when Chief Gimblett compared his distribution lists with that total it was found several hundred were still needed. Alderman Robert Cotton went far toward filling the need by donating 200 toys. The 2,000 total was then made up by direct purchase, the firemen using the funds raised in their Penny Day effort.

Fred Brown, Homer Lundy and Hap Bradshaw volunteered their assistance when it came to the big job of wrapping the tops for delivery and early Friday morning the first truck loads rolled out of the Department. In addition to mentioning the three wrapping assistants, Chief Gimblett today expressed thanks to the following for loaning trucks for delivery: Scott Coal and Lumber Company, Thomas Doughty, Utilities Commission, Charles Huffman, J. J. Duffus garage, Gillespie garage, and J. K. Hughes garage. He said that without the generous contributions of citizens on Penny Day the project would have been impossible and acknowledged receipt of a substantial check from the Friday Night Supper Club and the City Council donation.

25 Years For $34

Elbert O. Andes, 35, a steadily employed machinist of Peoria, Ill., was sentenced to 25 years in jail for holding up a chain store and seizing $34. This was his first offence. He was captured five minutes after the robbery when his car stalled on a railroad crossing. Andes wanted the money for Christmas gifts and to pay a note due on his automobile.

40 Extra Trains Help Take 50,000 Out Of Toronto

Every Piece Of Rolling Stock Available Is Used In Busiest Weekend On Record

TORONTO, Dec. 27 (CP)—Busiest week-end on record was experienced at Toronto Union Station and it was still busy today with nearly 10,000 passengers arriving on trains up to noon.

On Friday, 40 extra trains supplementing the regulars, carried 50,000 out of Toronto. Every piece of rolling stock available was used yet dozens of trains went out with passengers standing. The rush took veteran railroaders by surprise. By 5.30 p.m. Friday every available coach was on a train.

Sleepers and parlor cars were pressed into service as regular coaches. Few trains left on time. One train was held an hour and a half while a frantic hunt was made for extra coaches.

The lost and found office reported twice the usual number of articles dropped or forgotten by passengers. One set of false teeth was found.

Three Constables Added To Force

Following the recent dismissal of two constables from the city police force, three special constables are doing relief duty pending the making of new appointments by the Board of Police Commissioners. It is probable the selection will be made from among the three who are now on special duty, and who include Leo Murphy, George Ringer and Clarence Mesley.

All Time Record Is Set At Post Office

The volume of incoming and outgoing Christmas mail struck an all time high record for Peterborough, according to Postmaster Charles Lacheur. "The letter mail was particularly heavy with parcel mail comparing in volume to the heaviest in recent years", he said.

According to the automatic counter on the stamp canceling machine a total of 300,000 outgoing pieces of letter mail passed through the local post office during the four days from December 20 to 24.

While no record was kept of the number of pieces of incoming mail, the postmaster said it was probable, they more than balanced the number of outgoing letters.

Excluding the parcel mail, it is conservatively estimated that no less than half a million pieces of letter mail were handled by the local postal staff.

As is usual at the Christmas season, the regular staff was augmented with the addition of 26 extras, who worked on mail delivery routes and in the office. With the season's rush over, they were paid off on Sunday night.

While it was inevitable there should be some letters and parcels incorrectly addressed or wrapped, the postmaster declared, the percentage of letters and parcels that needed directory service was comparatively small.

Pleased at the manner the public responded to the appeal to "mail early", Postmaster Lacheur told The Examiner, "I would like to take this opportunity of thanking the public for the splendid way they cooperated with the postal staff".

Old Sports Stars Pass Out, New Ones Take Their Place To Crash The '39 Headlines

How Great Will The New Featherweight Champion, Henry Armstrong Be?

The old stars drop out of there. At times like this, toward the end of the year, we look back and notice they are missing. No Hornsby, no Cansoneri, no Frisch, no Dykes, no Lazzeri, no Jess Haines. It's a long list.

And sometimes, overcome with regret, we sit down and write throbbingly that there never will be another Speaker, or Hornsby or Ruth. They have been so much a part of the picture with their flaming spirits, their flaming action and power, that we cannot see the new stars glowing where the old boys faded. Strangely, there always is another Speaker waiting, another Hornsby swinging a long bat and striding in to take the Rajah's place, another Cansoneri ready to trade punches with the best.

We haven't Hornsby any more, with his booming bat and biting personality, but on the same ball club for which the Rajan used to toil is a hitter named Joe Medwick, who threatens to blast as formidable an average as the old master himself. And the American League is ready to accept Joe DiMaggio as a pretty fair substitute for Ruth, though the bright color of the Bambino still lingers in Yankee stadium.

Some of the old boys come back, too. Gabby Street, hard-bitten veteran of many a campaign all the way from here to the Argonne, is restored to the majors as manager of the Browns. Oscar Vitt, once a ball of fire with the Tigers, returns to the scene as manager of the Cleveland Indians. Casey Stengel brings back a patch of riotous color to the Boston Bees.

Tears Turn to Cheers.

The Yankees will begin a new season without Tony Lazzeri, key man of some great Yankee teams since 126. But before long the crowded stadium will resound with cheers for a new hero—Joe Gordon, perhaps—and the mighty men of yesterday will be forgotten. The moans that echoed with the departure of Walter Johnson turn to cheers for red-cheeked Bob Feller, Iowa schoolboy, who throws a ball that comes zipping up there like a bullet.

Great fighter, that Canzoneri, the kind that comes along maybe once in 50 years. When he finally fell victim to Lou Ambers' thudding fists, the boys generally knew that it was not so much Ambers that finally took Tony, but the pale old geezer with the whiskers and scythe. Well, so what! So this — Tony is hardly out of the door, when along comes a ripping, rampaging little blackface boy, knocking them out as fast as they are set up in front of him. How great will Henry Armstrong be? The next few years will tell more, of course, but right now he has made the fight world forget the tough little Italian from New Orleans.

There is always some one ready to take Bill Tilden's racquet, Hornsby's bludgeon, Frankie Frisch's glove. In a far-off day, the typewriter jockeys at this time of year lamented that Old Hoss Radbourne was all washed up, and there never would be another like him. No more John L. Sullivans or Jim Corbett's either. But the Ruths and Dempseys and Tunneys made the old boys forget, and as younger generations grew, new idols were set up to serve their span of years.

Off with the old, on with the new. That's how it is.

PATTERSON TOPS A.H.A. MARKSMEN

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 27. — Pat Patterson continues to pace the sharpshooters of the American Hockey Association by a fair margin, but the remainder of the leading scorers are bunched closely for the runner-up position. Patterson has 21 points, while McKenzie of Kansas City and Paddon of Wichita are tied for second with 15 points each.

Ten players, however, are in good position to take over the runner-up position, with 12 or more points, while nine others are within two points of the last group.

BLAST BURNS FATAL

TUBEROSE, Sask., Dec. 27.—(CP).—Eighty-year-old Mrs. Charles Avesport was burned fatally and her husband and son, William, suffered serious burns when fire followed a gasoline explosion on Christmas Day in the son's home in this town, 160 miles south-west of Saskatoon. Charles Davenport, 86, was the first postmaster here. He and his wife celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary last October.

Johnny Gottselig, Chicago, led Hawks to 3-1 victory against Rangers Sunday with goal and assist.

Winnipeg Girls For Empire Games

The sailing of the Canadian contingent of athletes to the British Empire games, to be held in Australia, was marked with a dramatic rush by train, car and aeroplane to Vancouver, by Violet Montgomery, of Winnipeg. At the last minute the necessary funds were secured to send her to the games and the final sanction didn't come from M. M. Robinson, Canadian team manager, until the last minute, thus necessitating the rush. Miss Montgomery is pictured on the train during her dash to the coast. Miss Robina Higgins, Winnipeg girl, who will compete in the games, is also pictured here.

CHABOT PRAISES WINNIPEG TEAM

WINNIPEG, Dec. 27 (C.P.). — "Manitoba junior hockey provides the toughest opposition I ever saw," said Lorne Chabot, former National League netminder, who is back in the puck wars again—this time guiding the destinies of the Winnipeg Falcon-Rangers.

Chabot's huskies are tied for leadership in the South Division of the Manitoba Junior Hockey League with Winnipeg Monarchs, Memorial Cup holders.

"Never have I seen as many good clubs in one league. Monarchs, St. Boniface Seals, and my own team, besides two out-of-town squads, Portage la Prairie and Brandon, have championship possibilities," said Chabot.

"It is too early in the season to forecast, but I think my experienced youngsters stand a good chance of advancing to the play-off picture. My old teammate, Hal (Baldy) Cotton is coaching Native Sons juniors in Toronto, and there is nothing I would like better than to meet his club in the play-offs. What a kick I would get matching bench strategy with Baldy."

NOTED VETERINARY DIES

Montreal, Dec. 27 (CP)—Dr. Joseph H. Villeneuve, 51, founder of the Canadian National Veterinary Association and its secretary since 1923, died yesterday. 3 BILLION PASSENGERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 — (AP). — New York's spreading system of subways, elevated railways, street car and bus lines carried more than 3,000,000,000 passengers in the 12 months ending June 30, 1937, a report from the Transit Commission showed to-day.

This was an average of more than 9,000,000 persons daily.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd C'ackle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ENTRIES TO the Church Hockey League close tonight, and a hearty business session by the executive will be held tomorrow e'en at seven in the "Y". Games will probably start on Thursday night at All Saints' rink, some three or four tilts being arranged tomorrow in the opening. Most of the churches will again be represented in this fine young loop in one or more of the four divisions. We imagine there will be in the neighborhood of 20 teams playing in the Church Hockey League during the coming cold spell—or is Dan Wheting screwy on his weather predictions? The loop secretary sent us a whole raft of dope to run Friday but an early deadline made it impossible to catch the edition, and it isn't news now—as the clubs would be organized at the Sunday School sessions over the weekend. Things look promising for a big year in this important puck circuit.

* * * * * *

ERNIE FOOTE, Cobourg scrivener, says our suggested heading: "Bees Swarm Over Port Hope" won't apply to Cobourg, which is also in the locals' O.H.A. intermediate "B" group. Mebbe so. The team is being coached by Toey Ibey, who will also play, along with Boyce, Freeman, Henderson, Meikle, Goody, Parker, Pearce, MacCoubrey and a few more. Hoot Gibson is figuring on making a comeback, too. Archie Campbell is out for some time with an injury. This team will be as tough as ever, we bet. Fred Dufton, who coached the gridders to a title, is the new manager.

* * * * * *

AND LOCAL followers of that hoichs game they call hockey will see a whole flock of O.H.A. teams in action here this winter. Besides the three local teams, we have Belleville Redmen, the Trenton Fliers and Queen's University in the senior "B" group. And Belleville and Havelock in the junior "B" section. And in the intermediate "B" class, we have Oshawa, Whitby, Port Hope and Cobourg coming here. So local fans will see a total of nine visiting teams and three Peterborough outfits—all of O.H.A. calibre—playing here this winter. The best season they have had in a long time. With possibly some more squads, if any of the Peterborough teams get into Provincial playdowns.

* * * * * *

THE INJURY to Archie Weir at the senior "B" practise the other night was a tough break to Archie and also the Petes. This classy defenceman will be out of action for two weeks or so. And he came mighty close to losing an eye. In a tangle during the workout he got hit in the eye with the butt end of a stick. It caught him on the lower lid, went over the eye and out him again on the upper lid. It was unknown for an hour, or more if the eye was okay. George Merrett, playing an E.P.L. game in Lakefield about five years ago, lost the sight of an eye in a similar accident. That was the time Ace Bailey and King Clancy came here for a big benefit game for Merrett. We'll bet Archie felt a bit jittery for a time!

* * * * * *

WHILE THE starting lineup for the Petes tonight in Belleville isn't definite, we can give you a rough idea. Either Harding or Clarke will be in goal. The defence will be selected probably from Williamson, Barnes, Magee and Brown. The first line is likely to be McDougall between Coughlin and Grattan; and the second may be Starr flanked by Burton and Vitarelli. Of course, Calladine may be playing by that time and Jim Ellis and Jack Gardner can't be overlooked. Also Red Creighton. Both Loucks and Townley rate some consideration, too. Yeah, Coach Pick Hines is on the spot for this first fixture as he doesn't know the players here and they have had only a few practises. However, he hopes to ice a fair squad for the opener and then get an idea of the Peterborough puckists before the next game, which is also away from home.

* * * * * *

PILOT EDDIE Thomas of Belleville believes his Redmen will be the surprise squad of the senior "B" grouping this semester. They have had some fine practise by playing six strenuous games in the Van Horne series at the Kingston rink so far, their last tilt ending up in a 6-5 loss at the hands of the Fliers. In which Ernie McNeeley bagged five of the goals! Eddie says: "I firmly believe I have a much better squad to toss over the boards against Peterborough on Monday than we had when we won our first Ontario title last spring." Redmen's lineup tonight should be: Goal, Watt; defence, Murphy and Bentley; centre, Clayt Jackson; wings, Wilson and W. Jackson; alternates, Baines, McGuire, Storms, McCreary, Elliott and Johnson. This Elliott is a former R.C.A.F. guy.

* * * * * *

QUINTE SCRIBE says the Petes have well-known puck veterans like Red Creighton, Bill Calladine, Shrimp McPherson, Archie Weir and Mick Magee trying for positions. And three new men from the west in Barnes, Brown and Grattan. Also three ex-juniors in Kingdon, Starr and Crowe. There are a few minor mistakes among these names. It is Shrimp McDougall, not McPherson. And Grattan is an Ottawa chap, not a wild and woolly Westerner. Nor is Don Crowe a junior graduate—he is still eligible for junior company. But the writer is right when he says local teams always gave Belleville a tough hockey game; and we hope it is true tonight.

* * * * * *

WITH THE advent of hockey here, we wish to remind folks of two things—that is, folks connected with sports locally. One is that officers should see that we get the dope on the various activities—as we can cover only the main tilts—and on time. No use sending stuff around noon and hoping to have it on the sports pages that night. The other thing is that with so much local, district and national sports during the winter months, all stories must be cut down. No long-winded yarns, just the main facts. Fans would sooner see a big batch of brief stories on many sports than a few lengthy ones half filled with editorial opinion. Minor games, of course, will be condensed accordingly, and those sending in these sports are asked to co-operate in this matter. Much obliged.

* * * * * *

DESE, DEM and dose: Joe Smith of Kingston will referee tonight's tilt between the Petes and Redmen in Belleville . . . . The Storms-Baines-McGuire second line looked good for Belleville 'gainst the Fliers last week . . . . Bombers of the Junior City Puck Loop have a workout at six tonight at All Saints' rink; all positions open . . . . Billie Hughes, noted Canadian trainer and coach from the West—who was in Belleville this fall—will coach hockey in Picton this winter . . . . Grid banquet in Cobourg will be staged in a week or so . . . . Metkle was a much better hoofer in Cobourg than a puckist, 'tis said . . . . Aside from tonight, local hockey teams have no games till after New Year's . . . . Won't be long till the heavy cage season commences around and about this district . . . . English scribes, speaking of a Czech soccer team, have names like this to rassle with: Stastny, Ctorocky, Kloc, Boucek, Voitech and Vechet . . . . George Carver writes: "A dash of pepper placed gently but firmly in the starboard nostril will greatly assist in pronouncing 'em" . . . . Junior O.H.A. prospects practise tonight at six at the Brock, and at six every night this week; all invited to try out . . . . And O.H.A. intermediate prospects have an open workout this eve at seven in the Brock; all welcome . . . . Today has been set aside here as Gift Exchange Day, so let us take this opportunity of wishing bunion-scarred clerks and grim-faced giftees a happy Exchange Day.

Snead's Sensational Finish Wins Miami Open Tournament

Stanley Horne Fades And Winds Up Fourth—Smith And Guldhal Second

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27 (A.P.). — Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., blazed down the home stretch on Saturday with a last-nine 30, five below par, to win the $2,500 Miami open with a tournament record score of 267.

That 30 gave Snead his second 66 of the day, a 72-hole score thirteen under par, top money of $500 and a five-stroke margin over his nearest rivals, Horton Smith of Chicago and Ralph Guldahl, United States open champion. Smith and Guldahl equalled the former tournament record of 272, set by Willie Klein of Miami Beach in 1936, and each collected $350.

It was the second consecutive victory for Snead, who won the Nassau open last Monday after finishing fourth in the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open the week before. He won $750 in each of those events.

Butch Keeling, aRngers, counted team's only point in Chicago game.

500 Sudden Deaths Mar U.S. Holiday

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP). — Violent death claimed at least 500 lives in the United States during one of the most extensive Christmas celebrations in years.

Traffic accidents caused many times as many deaths as any other cause.

But week-end merry-making was also cut short by gunfire, hanging, suffocation, burning, poisoning, drowning, plane crashes and fatal household accidents.

While millions feasted in cheer, at least 14 men and women died in despair at their own hands. There were 30 homicides, 28 by shooting and two by stabbing.

29 TYPHOID DEATHS

LONDON, Dec. 27 (CP-Havas) — Another typhoid death was reported from Croydon today, bringing the death-toll to 29 since the epidemic broke out several weeks ago. The number of cases increased to 369 with one new case reported during the past 24 hours.

SIMCOE HARVESTER SETS WINTER MARK

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—Simcoe Harvester established a new winter racing record for Dufferin Park on Saturday when he skimmed home in front in the second heat of the Sam McBride Memorial free-for-all in the fast time of 2:09¼.

The performance of the Payette-owned horse highlighted the Toronto Driving Club's special Christmas offering. The time was made over an icy course, in conditions which were far from conducive to speed.

None of Saturday's races were finished and they will be completed Monday afternoon. Two additional races also will be run off, making a total of twelve heats.

Simcoe Harvester featured the Sam McBride Memorial event, main race of the Christmas program. After finishing fifth in the opening heat, it came back strongly to win the next two. Grattan Axworthy copped the first heat in the fine time of 2:10¾, but then faded and finished in fourth spot in the next two events. Only five horses started.

The first race on Saturday's card provided some spirited competition and each heat was won by a different horse. Logan McKillop took the first dash, Lastic Grattan won the second, and Lastic Patch centered home in front of the third. The latter provided the fastest heat winning in 2:11¾.

Only two heats were completed in the third race. Frederick won the initial dash with Admiral Peter second. In the second heat, Admiral Peter reversed the decision, taking the verdict from Frederick with a 2:14¼ spurt.

Humble Horses Find Favor In 1937 Turf Highlights

Pair Click For $3,581 In Daily Double—Seabiscuit Tops Headlines

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—Presenting the 1937 firsts of the United States turf.

War Admiral and Seabiscuit wrote the headlines but a few fans swear by such little known jockeys as Humble Isaac, Ethelmont and Roberts. They too had their day in the spotlight but not from winning any rich stake or beating a track record.

Humble Isaac, a four-year-old filly, and Ethelmont, a two-year-old miss, combined for the biggest daily double pay-off, when they both clicked at Hawthorne, Sept. 29. Their scattered backers collected $3,581 for $2. Not far behind them were Ceilidh and Leading Mary, which returned $3,548.20 after winning at Thorncliffe, June 5.

Robert S., a cheap claimer which had raced the starter 50 times since Jan. 1 came down in front at Tropical Park early in the year and paid 126 to 1 for the longest shot winner of the year. Then there were Stumblane, which returned 126 to 1, following his triumph at Narragansett Park; Sept. 3, and Charles Clark, a 116 to 1 shot that came through at Jamaica, July 2.

Although they paid no such long odds, both Seabiscuit and War Admiral were among the fives. Seabiscuit was the champion handicap horse and top money winner with $168,580. War Admiral was the only thoroughbred top money performer, three-year-old king and a close second to Seabiscuit in money earned with $166,900.

When Seabiscuit, her chief winner, Mrs. C. S. Howard topped the owners in money won. Horses owned by the California sports woman earned more than $311,000 before Santa Anita opened Christmas Day. Mrs. Isabel D. Jacobs won the most races, however, scoring 199 victories.

Alcatraz To Shore

ANASTASIA SCOTT

That two men who recently escaped from Alcatraz prison could have made the swim to shore is indicated by this little girl's record. She is Anastasia (Babe) Scott, San Francisco girl who swam the mile and a quarter from the federal prison to the mainland in 47 minutes.

CURLING

Echoes From No. 'F'
By HERB MARTIN

We don't know what happened to our curlers over the Christmas holiday, but they were absent in the ice palace. Only two sheets of ice going during the afternoon and the surface was in good condition. We understand that the schedule books will be in hands of the printers by to-day or early Tuesday.

A last minute news flash cancels the Arena cup competition slated for to-night (Monday), and in its place we are holding a bispiel at 7.30 p.m. The draw to be made from the board.

Clipper Arrives In Auckland

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Dec. 27—(CP-Havas)— The Imperial Airways flying boat Centaurus, on a 30,000-mile trial flight from England to New Zealand and return, arrived here to-day from Sydney, Australia.

The ship, commanded by Captain J. W. Burgess, covered the 1,300 miles between Sydney and Auckland in eight hours.

The Pan-American Clipper, on trial flight paving the way for a regular air service between New Zealand and North America, arrived here yesterday from Pago Pago, Samoa.

Scribe Gets Psychic And Reviews 1938 Or Is He Readying For New Year's Eve?

It Even Affects The Artist — and When Phillies Won The World Series, That Was Something

Sports down through the ages have seen no such remarkable year as 1938 A.D., and as the month of December rolls around and we look back on the strange events, it sounds almost like a dream.

The year started off with a tremendous bang when the athletic departments of California and Alabama announced after the Rose Bowl game that each player would receive $1,000 bonus for participation in the contest. We forget what the score was.

Amazing upsets occurred in the world of flatticuffs. A year ago the very thought that Jack Dempsey might come back would have been laughed off as too, too quaint. But Dempsey did come back — and knocked out Joe Louis in the third round. Dempsey's comeback was short-lived, however, as he was outpointed by Gene Tunney in 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl. But that was not all — when Johnny Risko knocked out Gene Tunney in the Yankee stadium, flatlandia cheered as it never cheered before.

You Don't Say!

Baseball saw some form reversals. The St. Louis Browns, winning their first pennant under Gabby Street, were favorites to win the world series from the Phillies, but Wilson's Wonders, after tying the series at three games apiece, won out in the ninth of the seventh game when Bucky Walters hit one of Buck Newsom's fast balls high and far in Baker's field.

Brooklyn's performance was surprising. On July 4 the Dodgers were in last place. Then Burleigh Grimes resigned and accepted an umpire's job. When Babe Ruth was appointed manager, the club took a sudden spurt, winning 31 straight games to end the season in second place, only a half game behind the victorious Phils. In a statement to the press, Ruth averred, "We got started a little late, but look for us next year. We're hot!" And how!

Well, I Never!

Tennis furnished some mild surprises. The U.S.L.T.A. sanctioned a United States open tournament between amateurs and pros. This was won by Bill Tilden, who subdued Don Budge in the finals, 6-0, 6-0. Helen Wills finally was defeated by Helen Jacobs, 26-24, 31-29, 18-20, 46-48, 62-60. Several scorekeepers had to undergo operations for writers' cramp.

Kate, a gray mare owned by an obscure antique collector in Pittsburg, won the 1938 renewal of the classic Kentucky Derby. Kate's owner drove Kate from Pittsburg to Louisville, and Kate was in fine fettle when she arrived. Kate went on to win the Preakness, too.

My Word.

Football saw some of the powerful schools of other days knocked for a loop. Chicago won the Big Ten championship without losing a game, and in the east Brown and Bates overwhelmed Yale, Harvard, Princeton and the others. Montana was selected for the Rose Bowl, meeting Panzer. The latter is favored to take the westerners, but you know how these things go. Montana ain't bad.

One of the features of the season was organization by sports writers of a union, the members agreeing not to forecast any more football games.

That's about all, except for the golf results. Babe Ruth, manager of the Dodgers, took time off and won the United States open with a score of 288, nosing out John Montague, who had a 289. The amateur championship was won by a left-hander, after which the U.S.G.A. decided to abandon the tournament.

'DARK CLOUDS' SILVER LINING '37 RING YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.— Henry Armstrong and Joe Louis, two negro fighters who became world champions during 1937, are hailed as the outstanding boxers of the year in the copyrighted annual ratings released to-day by the Ring magazine.

Armstrong, sensational Los Angeles knockout artist, gained the double-barrelled distinction of being ranked No. 1 in the featherweight division of which he is champion, and in the right-weight division, where Lou Ambers is champ.

These ratings, which are based upon the votes of boxing writers and sports editors throughout the world, show that Heavyweight Champion Louis is ranked at the top in his division—despite the fact that Max Schmeling of Germany knocked out the "Bomber" in 1936 and was lookeyed out of a title scrap with Jim Braddock in 1937.

Some Insist Max Champion.

Nat Fleischer, editor of the Ring, emphasizes in his preamble to the ratings: "We are concerned only with actual fights." And that the balloting was not based upon what might have happened if Schmeling had fought Braddock, etc. Of the 393 men who voted, 352 cast their ballots favoring Louis for first place, against 41 for Schmeling. Those favoring Herr Maxie insisted that when Braddock ran out on his title match with Schmeling last June, Max became rightful champion.

Tommy Farr, the Welsh heavy who gave Louis such a hard fight in the bomber's first title defense, is ranked third among the heavies, followed by Nathan Mann of New Haven, Conn., who beat Bob Pastor and who now is matched with Louis on Feb. 23. Ex-Champion Braddock is dropped to seventh place, behind Alberto Lovell, the fast-stepping Argentine, and Tony Galento, barrel-bodied Orange, N.J., belter.

Jimmy Adamick, young Detroit slugger, ranks No. 8, followed by Maxie Rosenbloom, Roscoe Toles, Arturo Godoy, Bob Pastor and Maxie Baer.

Hockey's Big 7

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—(CP)—Toronto's gunners went into action over the week-end to take three of the first four places in the National Hockey League's big seven. Gordie Drillon gained an assist to hold first place with 20 points, while his line mates, Syl Apps and Harvey Jackson both added two to share second position at 17 with Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers. Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens was next with 16, while George Mantha of Canadiens, Marty Barry of Detroit and Sweeney Schriner and Nels Stewart of Americans were another point back. The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Drillon, Toronto	9	11	20
Jackson, Toronto	9	8	17
Dillon, Rangers	8	9	17
Apps, Toronto	6	11	17

LUDE WAREING IS STAR OF PHILLIES WIN OVER SYRACUSE

TORONTO, Dec. 27 (CP).—The fans in Philadelphia probably will have to wait many a day before they see again in a hockey game the sort of show put on by their Lude Wareing in an International-American League contest against Syracuse Stars.

Wareing stole the show in a 9-4 victory Saturday night for Philadelphia Ramblers against Stars by scoring four goals, and getting three of them in less than two minutes. Stars, however, came right back the night after to trim New Haven Eagles, 4-2.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh Hornets compiled the best team record for the weekend, taking a 3-1 victory over Eagles Saturday night and topping Providence Reds, 4-2, Sunday. In the only other game up for decision, Cleveland Barons beat Springfield Indians, 2-1, Saturday.

Lead Western Group.

Hornets shot into a first place tie in the Western section with Syracuse by their two victories. Both teams have 21 points, while the third team in the division, Cleveland, has 20 points. Providence remained at the top of the Eastern section despite the loss, while Ramblers, with 19 points, crept to a point off the pace. Eagles and Indians are far behind in the race.

Ramblers got their victory the hard way, spotting Syracuse two goals in the first period and then sweeping to the front. Baz Doran, Norm Locking, Murray Armstrong and Jack Markle scored for Stars, while Philadelphia marksmen, besides Wareing, were Eddie Wares with two, Hugh Gustafson, Lloyd Roubell and Cliff Barton.

Leads Stars' Triumph

Maxie Bennet led Stars in their triumph over Eagles, getting two goals, while Markle and Jack Howard scored one apiece. Ossie Asmundson scored both New Haven counters. Alex. Singbush sent Eagles ahead with the only goal in the first period against Hornets, but the Pittsburgh boys wiped that out in the second period on tallies by Wally Kilrea and Orville Roulston, who also scored in the third period.

Hornets had to go into overtime to win against Providence. The Reds took the lead in the first period on goals by Sammy McManus and Lorin Mercer, but Hornets evened it up in the second when Johnny Sorrell and Hap Emms tallied. After a scoreless third session Red Doran put the game away in the extra period and Sorrell added another.

It took just 18 seconds in the 2nd period for Barons to whip Springfield. The opening session was scoreless but Fred Robertson and Earl Roche tallied for Barons in the second, while Jerry Shannon got the lone Springfield counter near the end of the period.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.— (AP). — Rose Bowl: This corner likes Alabama by a close score....Forgotten man of 1937: Van Lingle Mungo of the Dodgers....Old Jesse Brukette, one of the greatest hitters of the "dead ball" era, now is a watchman on a Worcester, Mass., highway project....He can holler as loud as ever and that's something, for in his day he was one of the best "jockeys" in the majors....James J. Carroll, the St. Louis betting commissioner, now lists Sea Biscuit at 5 to 1 for the Santa Anita handicap....War Admiral (which will be running in Florida that day) is quoted at 15 to 1....

Lots of baseball men say Joe Medwick is a greater natural hitter than Rogers Hornsby— which is some compliment, if you ask us.... If Joe Louis beats Max Schmeling in June he will retire from the ring....Jimmy Dykes (who's still puffing those big, bad cigars) is getting ready to start gym work for that slight waistline bulge....

The Athletics will tell you they picked up a second base find in Dario Lodigiani from Oakland. . . They figure he's a cinch to plug up that infield hole all the way, either next season or in '39. .

Pretty Skating Champ And Two Competitors In Action

The British amateur ice skating championships were held at the Empire pool, Wembley, London, Eng., and lasted for over 12 hours. For the first time, all events which comprised compulsory figure skating and free skating for men, women and pairs, were skated off in one day. Pretty Cecilia Colledge, of England, captured the British amateur title for the second year. To satisfy complaints, mainly from mothers, each woman competitor had a private dressing room at her disposal all day. The photo here shows from LEFT to RIGHT: Pamela Stepheny, Cecilia Colledge, and Brenda Stroud photographed at the Empire pool.

Toronto Leafs Win And Split Weekend Pair With Detroit

Three Points' Gain Enables Smythemen To Break Tie With Idle Canadiens

TORONTO, Dec. 27 (CP).—They'll be calling John Adams of Detroit Dour Jack instead of Smiling Jack if his Red Wings keep up their present pace. The world champions have won only three games and tied two in 18 played since the National Hockey League season opened, and that's enough to change any hockey manager's outlook on life.

Pudgy Jack worried off another four or five pounds last night as his wings absorbed a 3-1 beating from Toronto Maple Leafs after holding the Smythemen to a 1-1 tie in Toronto Saturday. That draw was the best thing they've done in seven games.

The three points enabled Leafs to break their tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens for Canadian division leadership. Boston Bruins went four points up on New York Rangers in the American division by beating Americans 1-0 in New York Saturday night. That they were beaten 3-1 by the New Yorkers last night didn't matter so much because Chicago Black Hawks were taking Rangers by the same score in New York.

The crowds that flocked to games in four cities over the weekend demonstrated the pro game has enough drawing power to separate the fans and their firesides in the holidays. For the two New York games 27,500 persons went to Madison Square Garden. / There were 13,200 at the Toronto game, 10,000 in Detroit and 13,000 in Boston. In all 63,700 persons saw the two nights of hockey.

Wings and Leafs played alternately fast and ragged hockey in their Christmas night engagement in Toronto. Both goals came in the second period, Busher Jackson firing for the Leafs and Hec Kilrea for Detroit.

The game at Detroit was lightning fast. Wings took the lead with Carl Liscombe's goal in the first period, but Jackson evened thing in that period, and Bill Thoms' rising 30-ft. shot in the third won the game for Leafs. Jimmy Fowler got their third on a breakaway in the last minute.

Art Ross' baby line of Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer gave Bruins their Saturday night victory, Bauer beating Americans' Earl Robertson with a backhander in the last period after a passing bout with his linemates.

That was their fifth straight win but the string was broken in Boston last night when Americans scored in each period. Lorne Carr got the New Yorkers' first in the opening period. Johnny Gallagher scored in the second and Sweeney Schriner got a soft one in the last minute when Ross took Tiny Thompson out of the nets. Charlie Sands scored Bruins' goal in the third.

A major penalty to Lynn Patrick cost Rangers the game with Chicago. He was ruled off when his stick, carried high, cut Earl Seibert in the face, and while Rangers were shorthanded Johnny Gottselig and Cull Dahlstrom both scored.

Seibert made it 3-0 early in the third, the only Ranger goal coming from Butch Keeling's stick soon after.

El (Lefty) Gomez Seeking Divorce

LEXINGTON, Mass., Dec. 27 (U.P.) — June O'Dea, former Follies star, revealed on Saturday that her husband, Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, New York Yankees' pitcher, is seeking a Mexican divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

The pretty dancer said that she received a telegram from Gomez saying that he had gone to Mexico to divorce her. Later she received the formal papers, she said.

"This divorce suit is really quite a mystery to me," she said. "I admire Lefty too much to say anything about this action. But I will not consent to such a divorce."

Londos Gets Foothold On Hanson To Win Bout

HASTINGS COUPLE MARRIED 51 YEARS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 27. — Several wedding anniversaries have been held by Hastings people around Christmas time. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warner, very highly respected resident of the village were married fifty-one years on Wednesday. Both are enjoying good health and spent Christmas Day at the old homestead, the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Warner of Asphodel. Mr. and Mrs. Warner celebrated their golden wedding a year ago when they had their four sons and families all together for the eventful day that not so many couples live to attain.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McMillan celebrated on Christmas Day the thirty-sixth anniversary of their marriage. They were guests of their only daughter, Mrs. Mervin Baptie, of Havelock, for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fife of Asphodel were married twenty-three years on Wednesday and with their family of boys spent Christmas in their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Trotter have been married two years, their anniversary being Tuesday, December 21. They were guests on Christmas of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitred.

All have many friends who wish them many more years of happy married life.

FOXES PLENTIFUL

CAYUGA, Ont., Dec. 27 (CP) — Red foxes are reported plentiful in this area for the first time in years. Two local hunters captured a young one by hitting it with a stick. A black fox near Canfield village, sighted several times, is believed to have escaped from a breeder's pen.

With The Boy Scouts

On Thursday, December 23 St. Andrew's Cub Pack held a Parents' Night and Christmas party. The Rev. E. W. Young welcomed the parents to the gathering and said the opening prayers. After inspection a blindfold game was played and enjoyed. The boys then went to their skaters' corners. A balloon-blowing race was won by W. C. English. Messrs. Gordon Hill and Johnson staged a Mutt and Jeff duel, blindfolded and armed with paper-sword, they battled fast and furious until Gordon Hill fell before the triumphant Mr. Johnson. Akela Frank Pamment of St. John's spoke to the mothers on the work and function of the Scout Mothers' Auxiliary. It is expected that such an organization will be formed in St. Andrew's early in the New Year. The program went forward with Douglas Morrison giving a recitation and piano solo. Jack Hill played a solo on the piano and Clifford Smith gave a recitation.

A skit on "Making a Friend" was well acted by J. Dingdale, J. Hill, W. George, J. English, A. Richardson and A. Johnson.

Refreshments were served. Commissioner J. T. Hornsby presented Akela Ingham with his cub leader's certificate and spoke briefly to both boys and parents. Akela Ingham then presented the following badges: Jack Dingdale: trowmakers, observer, home craft and home orderly. Max Florence: collector's. Jack Dingdale was also presented with his senior sixer's stripes and a book as a token of appreciation for his good leadership.

Commissioner L. Grant, District Cub Master G. Clegg, and Rover Squire Rev. Gyrane were among the guests. Thanks is extended to Mrs. Whelan and her Girl Guides for their kind assistance and to Mr. and Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Jack Rideout for looking after the refreshments.

The pack will meet again Thursday at the usual time. It is hoped that all the boys will turn out.

It has been reported to the District Commissioner, from Provincial headquarters, that the following troops have not yet sent in their registrations for October 31, 1937: 2nd Armour, 3rd St. George's, 5th, All Saints', 6th St. Peter's, 9th Immaculate Conception, 10th St. James, 12th, St. Paul's South End. It would be well for the Scouters to realize the position they put their boys in by not registering them in time. Should a boy do any act that is worthy of special mention, such action could not be placed before the provincial awards committee, as no boy is officially recognized as a scout unless duly registered as such at provincial headquarters. Also no boy can claim being a scout in the true sense of the word until he is really registered as such at provincial headquarters. P.O.R. reads: Sec. 104.—All groups and all sections thereof must be registered at provincial headquarters, and are recognized as units of the Boy Scouts' Association only whilst so registered.

We all received our registration forms early in October. Surely it is the least we can do for our boys to see that they are officially recognized as scouts by filling out the forms and sending them in to the proper quarters. Let us make a real New Year's resolution.

I promise on my honor to do my best to the boys who are my charge. To give them of the best I have, that they may be better cubs, scouts or rovers in having me as their leader.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, president of the local association, and his executive officers, together with District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby and his assistant commissioner, extend to all cubs, scouts, rovers and scouters, the compliments of the season and good hunting all in 1938.

On Friday morning, December 24, St. John's Cub pack held a jolly Christmas party. Many games were played, after which every cub received a small toy.

Following the short meeting they all went to Victoria Park to enjoy a skiing and tobogganing party. A pack hike is planned for next Friday morning. All cubs are asked to be at the parish hall at 9 o'clock sharp. Bring your skis an dtobogans. No lunches; will be back in time for dinner. Peter Rhodes received his silver swizzes as Blue Smoke—sixer of the Blue six.

SALVATION ARMY CHRISTMAS TREAT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 27. — An unusually large gathering marked the annual Christmas entertainment sponsored by the Salvation Army as one of the most enjoyable in recent years. A varied program incorporating the talents of many young people as well as the jovial chairman, Dr. O. C. Watson, and Santa Claus, who entered with his bag chock full of gifts for the kiddies, provided entertainment for all.

"Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" formed a suitable opening hymn for the evening and this was followed by a brief prayer by Captain Sharp and the opening number on the program was a song of welcome by Carl Runions, followed by a recitation, "Father's Presents" by Albert Melvin; a song by the primary class, "Santa's Heralds"; recitation, "The Twenty-sixth," Fred Runions; a drill by eight boys, "March of the Envoys"; vocal solo by Betty McInroy, "Christmas Dollies"; dialogue, "The Fairest Star of All," by six girls; recitation, "I Want What I Want," by Norman Runions; a dialogue, "Mr. Piper Gives a Present"; chorus, "The Heavenly Stranger," and a short play, "The Shepherd Who Slept," and drill, all by Youth Group members, made up the balance of the entertainment which heralded the arrival of Santa.

CHAPTER 24

"Oh...no wonder Andy was in a temper, Jerry," said Mimi when I told her how close I came to beating him up. "But I am glad nothing really happened. Mother would never have forgiven you...When I got home last night I cried and cried...I told Mother I wouldn't marry anybody I didn't love. That she must stop talking about Andy... That's why she is in bed this morning—and drinking chocolate. When I go up I shall have to sit and hold her hand...and tell her I'm sorry."

"But are you sorry?"

Her forehead was ruffled. "Not about Andy. But I am sorry to hurt Mother. She's a darling, but she doesn't know how I feel."

"About what, Mimi?"

"About you, Jerry."

She made her confession frankly—beautifully—with only the rose in her cheeks and her hurried breath to tell of her agitation.

"I don't know whether I am in love with you or not, Jerry...but I know that...I want to be with you...want to talk to you...I've got all of your letters in a little box...I've never saved any other man's letters..."

Oh, to be told that with all the world about us. I wanted to be in the middle of a wood.

"Dearest, dearest..."

"I am not sure that I ought to be saying this, Jerry."

"It is wonderful to hear you saying it."

"But it can't come to anything."

"We'll make it come to something."

Swinging along by her side everything seemed possible. The sun shone on us, the world moved towards our twin destinies—the future was ours!

Well, we bought the spool of silk. We bought, indeed, two spools. One for me. "I shall carry it in my pocket, Mimi, in memory of this morning."

I took her finally to her corner, and we parted with a handclasp which left me tingling. Then I stood and watched her until the big door of the dingy house closed upon her.

On my way home I passed an old church and went in. It was Roman Catholic, and I had entered few edifices of that faith. But I wanted to be on my knees. God and Mimi. The old belief linked with my newfound happiness.

There was the fragrance of incense, the thin gold line of candles on the altar, the lights of other little candles at various shrines...the dimness...the silence.

It was on Thursday that I had walked with Mimi, and I did not see her again until Sunday night when we were entertained at supper although I talked with her by telephone, and on Saturday sent her violets.

Her time was, she said, much taken up by dressmakers, tailors, milliners. She was to be maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's Ball—that superlative event of the autumn carnival which links a modern city with the light-hearted festivals of past centuries. Each year the people of St. Louis forget the workaday world, and give themselves gaily to the mystical celebration. They decorate their streets with pennants of purple and gold for the great parade, they open their houses for the tide of visitors which sweeps over the threshold of the town, and splendid jewels and gorgeous gowns they welcome the Prophet to the Court of Honor where he crowns his Queen of Love and Beauty.

I found it hard to reconcile the fact of Mimi's professed poverty with elaborate wardrobe she was preparing. But Lionel informed me that the distinction conferred on a debutante by her choice as maid of honor becomes a family affair, and brings gifts from rich relatives who feel there must be nothing lacking which may contribute to the success of her presentation.

Since I could not have Mimi, I settled myself to work, shut myself up in my room at the hotel, and finished the play.

I read it to Lionel on Saturday morning, while he lay in bed with his coffee on a tray beside him.

"It's great," he said, when I finished.

"I'm not sure. It all depends on whether we can get our idea over."

He lighted a cigaret with nervous fingers. "We've got to get it over, Jerry. I'm desperately hard up for money. I've had such darned luck lately. Dad can't help me out, and Bernice's father is acting like the heavy villain in a melodrama..." He dug his cigaret in a tray to get rid of the ashes. "If he drives me too hard, I'll marry her, and come back and say 'He we are. Give us your blessing.'"

"But suppose he shouldn't give it?"

"He wouldn't be willing to see Bernice suffer."

"Oh, but look here..."

"Well?"

"Wouldn't the whole thing be hard on Bernice?"

He did not answer for a moment, then he gave me a straight glance. "It was she who suggested it."

Well, we sent the play off that afternoon to an agent who had promised to do his best for us. Then we went on to Bernice's. Mrs. Barry was having two tables of bridge. Bernice and I did not play. But Lionel did, while Bernice and I sat in the window-seat of the card-room and talked. The scene reminded me of something in Thackeray, or some old English print. The women flushed and eager, the men eager but calm, the soft lights on the shining dresses, the painted Knave and Queen and King on the walls with their perukes and patches and powder.

"I believe Lionel loves cards better than he does me," Bernice said wistfully. "I wanted him to ride this afternoon, but he wouldn't."

"I'll ride with you."

She shook her head. "It would be too late by the time I dressed."

"And anyhow you want Lion."

"Yes. And that's not saying anything against your charms, Jerry. But your eyes are all for Mimi... Oh, it is every Jack for his Jill, isn't it? And I am taking the wrong attitude with Lion. I know it, but I don't seem to be able to help it. Somehow I can't play the game with him as I do with other men. Yet it might do him good."

NO CLASS DISTINCTION

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Dec. 27—Class distinction was given a rude jolt when top-hat Eton announced the school would field a football XI against a team of unemployed men representing the social service centre of St. Helen's, Durham.

Eton has subscribed at different times to funds for maintenance of the centre.

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ENGINE

"Wow! It's going fast!"

"Look out or you'll be bumped!"

"Bang!"

"Ow!"

Those were some of the sounds Uncle Wiggily heard, a few days after Christmas, as he sat reading his morning paper. The sounds came from the next room in his hollow stump bungalow where Buster and some animal boys were playing with their Christmas toys.

"I wonder what happened" though Uncle Wiggily, as he stopped twinkling his pink nose long enough to listen. "I hope it isn't any of the Bad Chaps who jumped in the window so fast they bumped into Buster and his friends. I had better take a look."

As Uncle Wiggily laid aside his paper he heard Buster say:

"Well, it's broken now. It won't run any more."

"Maybe your daddy can fix it," said Charlie Chick, a rooster boy.

"Oh, maybe he can! Let's ask him!" barked Jackie Bow Wow.

Engine Breaks

"Well, it can't be a Bad Chap," chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "I have fixed them often enough but they don't get broken. It must be one of Buster's Christmas toys."

Surely enough it was. A moment later the little rabbit boy hopped into the room where his father was reading the paper. Buster held out a little toy electric engine that ran on dry batteries.

"What's the matter, Buster?" asked Uncle Wiggily, though he knew well enough.

"My electric train is broken," said Buster. "It ran into a chair and now it won't go. Can you fix it, Daddy?"

"I'll try, Buster. You run along and play with your friends."

Buster, Jackie, Charlie and the other ran out to play while Uncle Wiggily looked at the Christmas toy to see what was the matter. He soon found out. The bump into the chair had broken one of the dry batteries.

"It needs new batteries, anyhow," said Mr. Longears. "Buster has been running his engine so much there it no juice left in the batteries. I'll just how to the toy store and get new ones."

"Yes, that's all the engine needs," said the Monkey Doodle gentleman who kept the toy shop. "New batteries. I'll put in some strong ones. Be careful you don't get a shock from them."

"I'll be careful," promised the rabbit gentleman.

With the new batteries, Buster's engine ran as well as it had on Christmas Day. It didn't run on tracks but anywhere on a smooth floor. Uncle Wiggily tried it in the store and it went lickity split.

Bad Chap

Carrying the toy engine with strong, new electric batteries, Uncle Wiggily hopped home with it. As he was going through a lonesome part of the woods, all of a sudden out popped the Fox.

"Merry Christmas!" yapped the Fox.

"Well—er—yes—but I'm afraid it isn't going to be very merry for me," said the rabbit gentleman.

"It is for me!" laughed the Fox. "I'm going to have rabbit stew for my Christmas dinner. A bit late but not too late. What have you there?" he asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Just Buster's toy Christmas engine," said Mr. Longears.

"Is it good to eat?" barked the Fox.

"No—er—no, no, certainly not!" said Mr. Longears.

"Well, we'll see about that!" sneered the Fox. "I'm going to take you to my den. The Wolf and Bob Cat are waiting there. Come along!"

He caught Uncle Wiggily and dragged him. But don't worry. Something is going to happen to that Fox. You wait and see.

And if the electric fan doesn't blow the electric light out in the snow drift I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily in the den.

Christmas Concerts

CARMEL SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Carmel Sunday school, Mr George Patterson superintendent, and Public school, Miss Muriel Ball teacher, held a joint Christmas Tree and entertainment in the church at that point, the building being filled to capacity.

Rev. A. L. Sisco occupied the chair, after which the school gave a welcome chorus. Ruth Elgar recited, and following a very pretty star drill, Christmas recitations were given by Lois Gardiner and Kathleen Clan. A dialogue, "The Scene at the Ticket Office" added variety, as did the song by the scholars, "Shortnin' Bread," others who recited including Marcella Cain, Garnett Lunn, Norma Ball and Ruth Thorne.

"Merry, Merry Christmas" was a seasonable chorus by the school, and "A-Shopping We Will Go" was a very attractive drill, while Merle Elgar's violin solo was warmly applauded. A dialogue, "Making Christmas Pudding," was followed by "Jingle Bells," with everybody standing to sing, and welcome Santa Claus, who distributed the gifts from the gaily-trimmed tree.

Jolly St. Nicholas was well impersonated by Will Lunn, and Miss Ball had many remembrances from her pupils as the parcels were passed to the happy recipients.

WHITFIELD'S SCHOOL

Whitfield's school house was gaily decorated and lighted on Tuesday evening for the annual Christmas tree and entertainment, trustees, parents, and friends of the pupils filling every available seat.

Rev. H. R. Williams was chairman, the junior pupils presented a "Merry Christmas Acrostic," and all the pupils of the school then came to the front and gave an attractive tableau and carol service. The usual recitations were omitted from the program this year, and instead dialogues were given, which took in a large number of characters. "Mother Goose's Christmas," and "A Christmas Invitation," being particularly well rendered, as was also the pay, "Unexpected Company." A darkey song, "Dar's gwine to be a merry time" created a diversion, the highlight of the evening being the arrival of Santa Claus (Hilliard Lang), in traditional costume, and with merry chime of bells, when the heavily-laden tree was denuded of its gifts, to the great plea sure of the recipients.

Miss Delja Mae Sisco, the popular teacher at Whitfields, was very fully remembered by her pupils, and warmly congratulated on the success of the entertainment.

COTTESLOE SCHOOL

Cottesloe school and Sunday School held their annual Christmas tree last week. A good program consisting of dialogues, recitations and readings, a drill and several choruses by the children was given.

The teacher, Miss Alma McCracken, had charge assisted by other ladies of the neighborhood. Miss McCracken has worked hard during the last year and is carrying on very creditably with a large school, many of them in the primary and beginner's classes. The children for the last year have had the benefits of a course in singing under leadership of Mr. Renaud of Norwood. A marked improvement was apparent and it is hoped the section will continue this course through 1938.

Santa arrived about eleven o'clock and the children sat around the platform while candies and presents were distributed.

WARSAW SCHOOL

Warsaw school closed for holidays on Wednesday. The afternoon was given to an entertainment by the pupils of both rooms, which was very interesting, as the children did most of the preparation themselves. In the singing the results of Mr. Renault's training showed very plainly. The session began with the National Anthem and roll call, followed by a few words from Mr Shan. Two little boys gave a duet, Howard Dacling gave a recitation which was heartily encored, to which he responded. An orchestra of five pupils, led by Ruth Wilkinson, gave several selections; there were some very clever acrobatic stunts, and an amusing dialogue, "The Wonderful Scholar"; three boys says; Dorothy Payne gave a reading, and other little ones gave a pretty play "The Gogs Find Christmas," for which the senior pupils sang. Raymond Clements gave a violin solo, playing from the notes, and responded to an encore; two boys did some magic tricks; Meta Payne, Jean and Mary Watts, Dorothy Payne and Lenore McIlvena sang "Silent Night." Raymond Clements accompanying.

RUSH POINTS

Amid gay Christmas decorations and the jovial Christmas spirit the pupils of Rush Point school entertained a large interested audience of parents and friends on Monday evening. The musical numbers were under the direction of the music teacher, Mr. Wesley Wildman.

After the singing of the "Maple Leaf" and a chorus "Merry, Merry Christmas," Victor Newton extended a hearty welcome to the listeners. The chairman, Mr. Harry Petherick gave a few brief remarks and the following program was presented.—

A dialogue; drill; monologue by Earl Bullock; dialogue, "Junior Santas"; motion song; solo, Donald Bullock; dialogue; recitation, Cecil Larke; music selection by Messrs. Ray McQuigge and Ray Keating and encore; drill (comic), Rush Point athletes; recitations by Three Girls, Geiza Petherick, Ferne Toms and Barbara Pollock; recitations by Grenville Menzies, Gerald Menzies, Bobby Hart, Paul Cook and Garnet Keating; vocal duet, Messrs. W. Wildman and B. McBurney; dialogue; solo, Paul Cook; dialogue; comic song, Mr. Earl Cook with guitar accompaniment by Theodore McArthur; recitation, Donald Newton; pantomime by five girls; recitation by Ora Petherick and Bernice Menzies; musical selection, Messrs. R. M. McQuigge and Ray Keating; solo, Miss Luella Keating; Garland Drill by five girls and five boys; recitation, Gerald Newton; vocal duet, Messrs. W. Wildman and B. McBurney; dialogue, the young people of the section; pantomime, Lois Hart and Birdie Menzies.

On behalf of Miss Buchanan and himself Mr. Wildman thanked the audience and wished all a very merry Christmas. After closing chorus by the school, Burrel Keating bid farewell to the friends. Then the children sang softly and with bowed heads the prayer "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

Then came Santa Claus to distribute the many presents to the anxiously waiting boys and girls from the prettily decorated trees.

FALLIS LINE S.S.

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment of the Fallis Line Sunday School, Mr. Wilfrid Fallis superintendent, and Public School, Miss Ruth Ball, teacher, was held in the church on Tuesday last, with a large attendance, and the building tastefully decorated for the successful occasion.

Rev. A. L. Sisco presided, and other who took part in the program, all of whom were warmly applauded, were pupils who gave recitations including Lindsay Belch, Mary Graham, Herbert Fallis, and Russel Sutton. Choruses by the school were interspersed through the program, the "Milkmaids Song" being especially popular, and individual songs were given by Vera Fallis, Margaret Aiken, the junior boys, and Russell Sutton.

Seasonable dialogues and drills, with carols by the whole school, and a cornet solo by Donald McKnight, led up to the concluding number, a play, 'Rosalind's Wedding," the cast including: Rosalind, Mrs. Leonard Henderson; Mr. Hastings, Rosalind's father, Leonard Henderson; Miss Hastings, the heroine's aunt, Mrs. John Graham; Hilda ,the maid, Ruby Fallis; and the groom, Mr. John Graham.

Sleigh-bells heralded the arrival of Santa (Clarence Ball) and the younger element especially were much excited as the lovely tree was gradually "robbed" of its load of gifts, the teacher coming in for a generous share as personal expressions of appreciation from her pupils.

BANCROFT PUBLIC SCHOOL

A large crowd from Bancroft and vicinity attended the Christmas concert which was held in the Community Hall on Friday evening last, under the auspices of the Bancroft Public school.

The entertainment, which was put on entirely by the pupils of the Public school, was made up chiefly of drills, dialogues, songs and recitations. Both the teachers and the pupils deserve a great deal of credit for the good entertainment which everyone enjoyed.

CHRIST CHURCH, BAILIEBORO

Santa Claus in all his pomp and glory arrived in Bailieboro on Tuesday evening and handed out the numerous gifts from the beautifully decorated tree which was arranged in the basement of Christ church in connection with the event of the annual Christmas entertainment held by the teachers and pupils of the local public and high schools.

Mr. Harry Barnard, chairman of the school board, presided as chairman for the evening's entertainment, which consisted of short plays, readings, duets, solos, a brief minstrel show by the boys and musical numbers including school choruses.

Mrs. George Campbell presided at the piano during the evening and added much to the entertainment by contributing instrumental music.

The basement of the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and much credit for the entire success of the event was extended to the untiring efforts of the teachers, Miss Jessie Anderson and Miss Bessie Barnard.

Mr. Arnold Brown was present as Santa Claus and delighted the children by his good nature and jovial manner.

S.S. NO. 8, DOURO

Mr. James Maloney, teacher, and the pupils of S.S. No. 8, Douro, with the help of some grown-ups, put on a splendid concert and Christmas tree on Tuesday evening. With only ten pupils, most of them quite young, it is more difficult to put on a worthwhile performance such as was given. Music has been taught in this school for a year and a half by Mr. H. Oulette and great success has been achieved by him. A folk dance by the pupils with the "calling" done by another pupil, Raymond Leahy, with megaphone, was outstanding. Dialogues by grown-ups were performed in fine style, a particularly fine number being "From Down East," starring Mr. Frank O'Brien and Mrs. Martin Coughlin.

HASTINGS TRINITY S.S.

The Mission Circle girls of Trinity United church were responsible for the very entertaining concert and treat held for the pupils of the Sunday school on Monday evening. The girls had prepared a beautiful Christmas tree and a treat for each child and Mrs. F. W. Newell, as chairlady, presented the following program:

Spence acting as chairman. A good-sized audience enjoyed the long and varied program of recitations, choruses, drills and dialogues, very capably rendered by the pupils. Gifts from the Christmas tree were dispensed by Santa Claus (Rev. R. M. McMullin) and refreshments were served to the audience at the conclusion of the evening's entertainment.

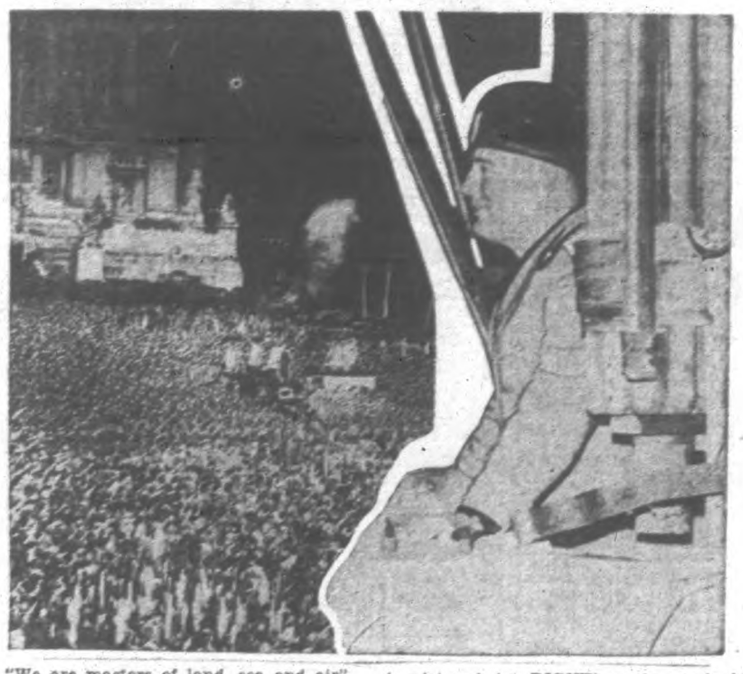
Mussolini Announcing Italy's Withdrawal



"We are masters of land, sea and air" boasted Benito Mussolini as he announced to Romans and to the world that he was withdrawing Italy from the League of Nations to follow an even more intensely nationalistic policy than in the past. Il Duce is pictured (at RIGHT) as he made his historic declaration from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia and part of the 100,000 Italians gathered in the square to listen to his address are shown at (LEFT).

Sea Of Backs As Devout Praise Allah

No traffic travels this Calcutta street this day as devout Moslems bow their heads to the ground in the ceremony of Id-El-Fitr, one of the most impressive in the Moslem religious calendar. As far as the eye can see, a veritable sea of backs, with each worshipper bent to the ground with his head in the direction of Mecca.

LAKEFIELD SCHOOL CONCERT PROVES ENJOYABLE EVENT

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 27.—"One of the best things ever put on in the hall," was the tribute paid by Rev. W. J. Creighton, pastor of St. John the Baptist Anglican church, Lakefield, to the Lakefield Public School Christmas concert held in the Memorial Hall here on Tuesday evening last. The concert, which was the first of its kind to be held by the Public school, attracted a crowd which packed the auditorium to the doors and the hearty applause with which they greeted Mr. Creighton's praise was indication enough that they, like he, thought the performance well above the average.

Mr. F. L. Erskine, chairman of the Public School Board, acted as chairman for the evening and opened the program by welcoming the large audience. He expressed pleasure on behalf of the Board and the school that so many parents and friends turned out to support the teachers and pupils in their undertaking. He then called on the girls of Grades V, VI, VII and VIII who sang a number of delightful choruses under the direction of Mr. C. Renaud, teacher of music in the Public school. Nine little folks in dainty summer dresses appeared and entertained the audience with a motion song, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The children were well trained and put the song across without apparent nervousness or stiffness. One child was so lacking in self-consciousness that she nearly stole the show with her original antics, all of which, from the audience's point of view, added to the performance.

Betty Eagleton was next on the program and her tap dance was especially popular with the children as was the piano duet played by Jean and David Spence.

Grade II Boys (Miss Madill's room) put on a dialogue entitled, "Santa's Pack," which completely charmed the audience by reason of the extreme naturalness of the players. A jolly-looking Santa Claus appeared in the traditional red and white costume and sporting a real beard. He was helped in the task of filling his pack by his band of elves who wore caps and costumes of red, green, yellow and orange paper. A moment of panic occurred when Santa realized he had forgotten his pack, and proceedings were held up for some time while Santa disappeared from the stage in search of it. He was forced to reappear at length with a shopping bag, somewhat smaller than the lost pack, which severely taxed both Santa and his helpers when they tried to stow away in it all the article intended for the pack.

Nancy Spring gave a violin solo and responded with an encore when she played "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear."

The main item on the program was the play, "Santa Claus and His Magic Carpet" which contained varied numbers including dances, drills and dialogue, which gave a large number of kiddies opportunity to express their individual talents. Jean Millar, Joan Kelly, Mabel Hopkins, Maxine Hunter and Pauline Blewett played the roles of girls who wished for a princess young and fair to replace old-fashioned bewhiskered Sooty Santa Claus. Charles Earnshaw was the wizard who sought to grant their request. Betty Millage was a princess; Carl Skelcher the green man "Timmy"; Stafford Hill was the nego "Snowball" and Jimmy Fowler was Santa Claus. Betty Lake and Isobel Miller were sailor captains and during the play danced the 'Sailor's Hornpipe" in a manner far from amateurish. Jean Millar did a tap dance in her inimitable style, and a sailors' chorus and a beautiful Christmas drill, plus a crowd of fairy attendants, two pages and six lovable Christmas dolls made up the rest of the attractions in the altogether unusual and decidedly delightful play. No trouble was spared and the teacher responsible are to be congratulated on their work.

Mr. Copp, inspector of schools in Peterborough county, spoke briefly, congratulating the school teachers and pupils on the quality of their concert. He mentioned the new course of studies began this year which, he said, is "designed to do something to make the boys and girls happier. It is intended to teach them how to grow healthfully, happily and hopefully.' The emphasis behind the new point of view is to give the pupils something which will help them solve the problems they meet in the outside world. The Christmas concert is a part of life, therefore it can be given as a part of the curriculum." Mr. Copp concluded.

Grades V and VI then sang a medley of songs and a number of pupils from Grade IV danced a pretty folk dance, singing as they kept time to the music. A chorus by Grades VII and VIII and a few words by Rev. Creighton preceded "Go Save the King."

TORONTO, December 27.—(CP)—Scores of Canadian men each year make it a point to be in custody for Christmas so they will be sure of Christmas dinner, though the number of Christmas season and winter guests has been greatly reduced since old-age pensions and relief, fairly easily obtained, became the rule.

C. F. Neelands, senior official in charge of Ontario-controlled penal institutions, estimates that somewhere around two per cent. of inmates are in for Christmas dinner by their own wish. These are the men, young an, old, who have looked forward to a happier Christmas in jail than they would know anywhere else.

These two per cent. or so represent an oddly-assorted group of derelicts in the social order. Young men and old men they are, of fixed habitation, the responsibility of no municipality, and who during the milder weather are shunted from city to town to village and back again, bed and breakfast in each place, and then the open road.

The subject was brought to the fore recently when the Warden of Middlesex County complained of the cost to the county of keeping in jail persons who wanted to be there for the winter, men who asked to be locked up as vagrants or who had committed some petty offence for which they are [illegible] punishment.

At Ingersoll, Ont., recently, a man, who for eight consecutive years has appeared and asked to be sent to jail, was up again. He got six months. At Hamilton, Ont., a 74-year-old man, deported from the United States after many years there, asked jail for Christmas and the winter.

At Port Arthur, Ont., Edwin Merrick, tired of the struggle to earn his living, threw a street parking sign through a window. He waited for police. They didn't come. So he went to the station and reported the offense. He's in jail for Christmas and the cold weather.

Christmas Day has special attractions even in jail. Food is not on the menu for Provincial institutions, but there are other special treats. Day started with bacon and eggs instead of gruel, bread and tea. In the morning there were concerts, visitors and inmates participating.

At noon hour, roast pork, unknown at other times of the year, was on the menu. There was plum-pudding, nuts, candies and all the other trimmings. As each man left the dining-room the province handed him a Christmas gift. In it was a cigar, cigarettes, candy, oranges, apples and other good things.

JAP CRUISER SHELLS PORTUGUESE-OWNED ISLAND

1937 COUNCIL IS RETURNED IN OTONABEE

$6,000 Surplus Expected Says Reeve Anderson

Otonabee council was re-elected by acclamation at the township nominations in Keene community hall Monday afternoon. The members of the present council whose record of service was unanimously endorsed are: Reeve William A. Anderson; Deputy-reeve Harry A. Reid; and Councillors David McIntyre, Robin Thorn and Peter Mather.

The nominations received by J. J. Moore, township clerk, were: For reeve—W. A. Anderson by Fred A. Eason and W. A. Drummond; Harry Reid by Albert Speirs and Harry Elliott.

For Deputy-reeve—Harry Reid by Harry Elliott and Albert Speirs; Peter Mather by John E. Manley and Harold Weir; Percy Davidson by J. J. Crowley and Wm. O'Leary.

For Councillors—Peter Mather by Harry Reid and David McIntyre; Robin Thorn by J. A. Stewart and W. D. Hutchison; David McIntyre by R. S. Davidson and J. S. Henderson; Wm. McElroy by J. F. Comrie and W. O'Leary; Percy Davidson by W. O'Leary and J. J. Crowley.

Although there had been an increase in the township road expenditure this year, the ratepayers were obviously well satisfied with the administration of their affairs by the council, and especially by the reduced tax rate. In that reduction, Reeve Anderson said, the council was entitled to a share of the credit which had been largely assumed by some politicians in the October provincial election campaign. The county council was also mentioned by Reeve Anderson as having done its part in removing some of the burden of taxation on property.

Report of Road Work

Ambrose Doris, township road superintendent, reported that the net cost of work done on the township roads was $11,122.10 this year. Expenditure for maintenance, including grading, brushing, resurfacing and so on, was $6,939.63, and for construction $2,579.65. Other items

G.M. DROPS 30,000 PLANS 3-DAY WEEK

DETROIT, Dec. 28.—(AP).—William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, announced to-day employment in General Motors plants throughout the United States would be reduced by approximately 30,000 employees effective Jan. 1.

The reduction in Michigan, he said, will approximate 20,000 employees.

Knudsen said "the recession in business makes a readjustment of the working force necessary."

He explained the General Motors plants would operate on a three-day-a-week basis, each operating a total of 24 hours a week. That will be the working schedule for those employees who are retained.

Canadian Trade Normal.

Knudsen said no reductions had been ordered in Canadian General Motors plants because "business is normal there."

In an interview Knudsen said "the used car market is stopped, and when that is stopped our employment stops."

Asked if a revision of prices on new motor cars might ease the market problem, he said: "A cheaper market will do no good if we can't sell used cars. Purchasing power is down—there is no question about it."

Asked for his explanation of the general business recession, he said: "The price level rose too fast in the spring of 1937 and we just couldn't digest it."

Jobs In November Drop 34,444

Index Dec 1. of 121.6, is 17.1% Up on Jan. 1; With Manufacturing, Mining, Logging Leading

OTTAWA, Dec. 28—(CP)—Industrial employment in Canada dropped by 34,444 persons during November, exceeding the average for the period in the last 15 years although smaller than in 1929 and 1930, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The bureau reported "a large seasonal contraction" at December 1 from 1,194,171 the preceding month to 1,159,727.

The crude index, based on the 1926 average as 100, fell from 125.2 at November 1 to 121.6 at December 1, while the seasonally-adjusted index declined from 120.3 to 119.1.

"This corrected index," the bureau said, "was then higher than in any other month since the autumn of 1929, with the exception of October 1 and November 1, 1937. Despite the curtailment at the beginning of December, industrial activity there continues at a high level."

"In the years since 1920, the crude index at December 1 has been as follows: 1397, 121.6; 1936, 110.1; 1935, 104.6; 1934, 96.9; 1933, 91.8; 1932, 83.2; 1931, 99.1; 1930, 108.5; 1929, 119.1; 1928, 116.7; 1927, 108.1; 1926, 102.3; 1925, 96.5; 1924, 91.9; 1923,

Weidmann Probe Points To Canada

VERSAILLES, France, Dec. 28 —(AP)—After examining voluminous correspondence seized in the villa of Eugene Weidmann, police said today they might send an agent across the Atlantic to check on possible connections of the "Murder-for-Profit" syndicate.

Nearly 500 letters were found in the villa, many written in English and coming from addresses in Canada and the United States. Police said they included letters between Weidmann—confessed killer of six, including the Brooklyn dancer, Jean de Koven—and persons who appeared to be members of his band.

A majority, however, were from women in various countries with whom Weidmann got in contact through advertisements.

Nazis Plan School For Brides As Key To Happy Marriages

Three Months' Training Expected To Centre On Making Girls Good Cooks

BERLIN, Dec. 28 (AP)—The Nazi women's organization is to have a "school for brides" in the belief proper spiritual preparation for matrimony is the backbone of happiness in life-long marriage.

The Japanese idea of carefully instructing girls to become perfect spouses will find practical application when the first bride school opens in January with the consent of Nazi authorities.

Schools for mothers will continue to be separate from those for the brides-to-be, however, since they need other instruction to mould "hausfraus out of office girls."

Authorities defined purpose of the brides' school thus:

"In circles of 20 students, the young girls should attend courses at the institute, preferably two months before their wedding day, to recuperate spiritually and physically, to forget the daily worries connected with their previous professions, to find the way and to feel the joy for their new lives as wives."

$40 Bonus Given

Moulding the factory girl and office worker into a housewife is the school's main aim. The government expects results to be such that it will grant a graduate an additional $40

Saves Baby Chicks Then Dies In Fire

Hazelton, B.C., Dec. 28 (CP)

OSCAR Lund, 73, saved his baby chicks, but lost his own life when fire destroyed his cabin near here yesterday.

Lund rushed into the burning building and carried the chicks outside, then ran back, apparently for personal effects. His body was found inside the front door, near a cupboard where he was believed to keep his money.

First Woman Mayor Gets Third Term Ready To Try Politics Next

Webbwood, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP)

BARBARA Hanley, Canada's first and only woman mayor, today began her third term as head of this northern Ontario town. The nomination meeting last night brought no opposition to Mrs. Hanley and the clerk declared her elected by acclamation.

Twice has this wife of a locomotive fireman and the mother of a daughter won victories at the polls in mayoralty contests but this time no one opposed her. Her administration has been marked by harmony in the town's affairs and the chagrin of the male electors at having a woman running things has just about disappeared.

"Just a natural urge," was how she described her motive in entering public life. She has announced that if she felt she could be of greater service to her friends and neighbors in provincial or federal politics, she would move into them.

COLD, YOUNG WIFE CUTS LANDLORD'S INFANT'S THROAT

GREENBROOK, N.J., Dec. 28 (AP)—Their infant slain and laid under the Christmas tree with the presents after they had a dispute with a tenant over heat, a village florist and his young wife wept hysterically today at the home of neighbors who kept them in seclusion.

Womenfolk of the community took turns laying strong but gentle hands on Mrs. Louis Bordolon after she found the body of her five-months-old Christina in a pool of blood among the gifts she and her husband had bought for their first born.

County Detective Charles Allegar said Mrs. Sophie Arcuri, 24-year-old mother of a two-months-old boy, confessed she slit the throat of the landlord's five-months-old baby with a paring knife because "their baby was warm and mine was cold."

Returning home from a Christmas visit with relatives in Port Chester, N.Y., Mrs. Arcuri became angry because "someone let the fire go out," the detective said. Her anger rose as the house grew colder.

Going to the boiler room where Mrs. Bordolon had left her daughter while she served customers who called in her husband's absence, Mrs. Arcuri carried the baby to her own kitchen and slit her jugular vein, Allegar said.

200 Marines Land On Property Near Hong Kong

Tsingtao, Rich Shantung Seaport, Mobilizes With Invaders Rapidly Surrounding City

HONG KONG, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Reports from Macao, Portuguese colony off the South China coast, said today a Japanese cruiser had shelled Wongkam Island, over which Portugal claims jurisdiction. Several huts were set on fire.

After the shelling 200 Japanese bluejackets were said to have landed from a cruiser and two destroyers. Purpose of the landing was not known.

(Wongkam is across Canton river estuary from the British crown colony of Hong Kong. It is just south of Macao.)

The Hong Kong government issued a regulation prohibiting the use of wireless by merchant ships in Hong Kong harbor. The decree was believed aimed at Japanese vessels.

Tsingtao Mobilizes.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 28 (AP).—The fall of Tsingtao, rich Shantung Province seaport, isolated by advancing Japanese forces, seemed imminent today.

Tsinan, provincial capital 200 miles to the west, was in Japanese hands. Other Japanese columns raised the Rising Sun flag over Weihsien, railway point less than 100 miles west of Tsingtao.

Provincial forces of the Shantung War Lord, Han Fu-Chu, took up positions on nearby White Horse Mountain after their feeble resistance at Tsinan. In Shanghai, 400 miles to the south, observers raised the question of whether General Han had made a deal with the Japanese.

Chinese here were quick to point out that only provincial Chinese troops were defeated at Tsinan. They said strong central army forces occupied positions at Taian, 32 miles to the south, and Lincheng, another 85 miles along the route to Kiangsu Province.

(Japanese reports to Tokyo said General Li Tsung-Jen, former enemy of Premier Chiang Kai-Shek, and now co-operating with General Han, had issued a proclamation saying the fall of Tsinan did not mean the loss of Shantung Province.

(The proclamation called for a general mobilization. Tsingtao was said to be in a state of war, with foreigners and Chinese fleeing and fougouts and other defences being built.

QUEBEC MINIMUM WAGE RATE READY FOR ALL WORKERS

QUEBEC, Dec. 28.—(CP).—Mr. Justice Ferdinand Roy, chairman of Quebec Province's Fair Wage Board, announced to-day an ordinance setting minimum wage rates for practically all Quebec workers will be made public to-morrow.

Sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, the ordinance will apply "except in certain instances, to all the employees and consequently to all the province's employers," said the chairman.

Its "main object" will be "general regulations of salaries and other working conditions" and "will cover wage earners of all categories throughout Quebec."

The ordinance of the Fair Wage Board, at work since Sept. 1, will fix "a minimum wage for those at the mercy of unreasonable employers who insist competitive conditions in their industry justify certain practices," according to the chairman.

"Other wage earners who may not be receiving sufficient salary but are not in actual need will not suffer salary cuts but their present pay generally will be increased, in a small but appreciable measure."

Provided Last Session.

Establishment of the Fair Wage Board was provided for in Quebec's Fair Wage Act passed during the last session of the Legislature. Since the five-man body became effective in September it has "carried out as diligently as possible its function as tribunal of conciliation but its first

Close Of Coronation Year Stirs Sigh Of Relief

Strain of December, '36, Fades Under Healing Cloak Of Time

LONDON, Dec. 28 (CP)—The new year means the end of coronation year, and that is perhaps a thought as welcome as it is restful for the people of the United Kingdom. It was a zealous business, a time of strain as well as celebration, a time of subdued anxiety.

The events of December 1936 moved quickly, so quickly that the world marvelled at the steadfast pace of a people who changed their King overnight. But the abdication act in itself was not the be-all and the end-all, and for weeks after in every home in every county men reflected on the significance of Dec. 10.

Edward's leaving had not been publicly anticipated in England as in America, and it was not until after the tide had swept away precedent and monarch that the average man delved deeply into the problems that had for weeks obsessed the prime minister and the unhappy king.

More than the usual new year's resolutions occupied the Englishman on Jan. 1, 1937. He was in the throes of reasoned articles by prominent writers in the daily press and in the reviews setting forth with varying detail but nearly unanimous viewpoint the case of Edward VIII vs the people.

Rumors Prove Baseless

The year gathered pace rapidly. Discussion resolved into predominant agreement that all had been for the best, and yet unbridled rumor of the new king's ill health, of differences in the cabinet, of Edward's future, led the controversy down

Terrier Guards Pal Injured On Road

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 28 (AP)

POLICE officers told today how a wire-haired fox terrier stood guard over a prostrate Pekinese in a busy Buffalo street, snarling at rushing automobiles that passed too close to its fallen companion.

Detective Arthur Gibbons and Lieutenant Nelson Cateline, approaching in a police patrol car, said they blocked traffic with their machine to relieve the terrier of its vigil and took the injured Pekinese to an animal shelter.

White Trappers Doom Indians Expert Of The Wilds Claims

Poison, Invasion Of Natural Nurseries By Air Depleting Natives' Livelihood

WINNIPEG, Dec. 28 (C.P.). — If those who write hunting laws make New Year's resolutions, Philip H. Godsell, Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, and author, hopes they remember the forgotten Red Man whose hunting grounds are slowly being robbed by the white brother with his ingenious ways of earning a dollar.

The tall, broad-shouldered wanderer of Canada's frozen frontier who came to the Dominion from England 30 years ago because he wanted a war bonnet and peace-pipe, to-day scanned records of Northern experience and found one jarring note in songs he could sing of those who live in the Land of the Snows. And the white man's airplane hummed the most disturbing tune.

Godsell said faith has not been kept by those who signed the treaty with the Indian and swore hunting and fishing would be for as long "as the waters ran and the sun shone."

Through numerous hunting licenses given to white trappers the Indian is steadily being pushed into low morale, poor health and impoverishment, Godsell, who has trekked from Labrador to Alaska and learned to speak six native dialects, declared.

"I know of Indian families to

THREE ARE NAMED FOR REEVE'S CHAIR IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

Notwithstanding a record crowd of ratepayers which overflowed the County Council chamber, a Smith township nomination meeting which saw three nominated for the reeve's chair, four for the deputy-reeve's chair and six for council seats produced nothing of a controversial nature Monday afternoon. Smith's assessment under the County equalized scheme appeared to be the principal subject on the voters' minds.

As the hour for nominations closed and those named took the floor for their addresses to the gathering, it became apparent that Reeve George E. Mullen, in seeking re-election, would be faced with competition by one and possibly two past members of the municipal body, Allan B. Mann and Charles Westlake. Mr. Mann announced he would see the chair on the platform of seeking re-adjustment of Smith township's assessment. Mr. Westlake said he was undecided.

It appeared also that all three 1937 members of the council might be found seeking promotion in a contest against Deputy-reeve Fred Armstrong for the deputy-reeveship. The six named as candidates for council seats included no former member.

Nominations

Nominations and movers and seconders were:

George E. Mullen, for reeve, by William Bickell and Gordon Hancock.

TORONTO MAY TRY STOPPING EVERY 20TH CAR

Out to Get Drunk Drivers Also Reckless Walkers

TORONTO, Dec. 28 (C.P.). — A new method to trap drunken drivers on New Year's Eve was being considered to-day, Police Inspector Edward Dunn announced. The method would be the stationing of policemen at certain points to stop every 20th or 25th car.

The Inspector said motorists unfit to drive would soon be spotted by his method. Police would drive their cars to side streets, take the keys and lock them up. The motorist would be sent on his way by taxi or street car.

"It's a stern measure, but the serious situation calls for something stern," said Inspector Dunn.

Inspector Dunn said "reckless walking" will also be curbed by the police on New Year's Eve. Jaywalking is bad enough any time, but unsober jay-walkers make things even worse, he added. Every available policeman will be on duty New Year's Eve.

Inspector Dunn said he would even favor impounding cars of drunken drivers and charging storage fees along with the court fine.

Attorney-General Conant said the impounding scheme was worthy of consideration. He said the Ontario Government was considering plans to tighten Traffic Act against drunken drivers.

"Any scheme that will be effective in keeping down and minimizing the dangers of drunken driving is of supreme importance," he said.

DUCE'S EDITOR TAUNTS STATES

MILAN, Dec. 28 (A.P.). — A taunt at the United States and a charge that Great Britain, France, and Russia were keeping smaller European countries from recognizing Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia appeared side by side to-day in Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia.

One article suggested democracy's "faults" had been proved by opposition of the Washington Government to a proposal to require a national referendum before the United States could declare war.

The other said:

"The British comment that the three Great Powers remaining to direct the Geneva Sanhedrim (High Court of ancient Jerusalem) are kept from recognizing Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia by the attitude of the small states does not correspond with the truth.

"It is the Great Powers of the League which impede the moves of other states toward recognition of an indisputable fact which sooner or later must be recognized."

The reference to the United States was made in connection with a discussion by the newspaper of United States-Japanese relations following the bombing of the gunboat Panay. The newspaper said Washington had "liquidated" the Panay incident because "really nothing can be done against Japan."

Landslides, Gales, Ice, Snow And Rain Whip Pacific Northwest Coast

Seattle, Dec. 28 (AP)

GALES, ice, snow, rain and landslides crippled travel and communications as the year's worst and most widespread storm lashed the Pacific Northwest to-day.

Traffic was halted on Portland, Ore., streets as 4.47 inches of rain—heaviest fall since 1911 — was recorded in 24 hours. A small tugboat, the Ben Hur, overturned and sank in Portland Harbor. Two men aboard were rescued.

Pioneer residents of the Idaho Panhandle said the two-day snowstorm was the worst in their memories. The 15-inch snowfall at Wallace closed several mines.

Rebel Relief Column Nearing Teruel

Government Lines Reported Broken in North As Franco Presses to Rescue of Besieged Garrison

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 28.—(AP)—General Miguel Aranda's relief column was reported today to have driven through Spanish government outposts northwest of Teruel in a fierce counter-action to deliver 6,000 men, women and children besieged within the fallen city.

Dispatches reaching the French frontier said Aranda's men were "fighting without pause."

Insurgent sources said Aranda's advance guard might soon reach the seminary-fortress, the Bank of Spain building and a civil governor's palace where 3,000 insurgent officers and soldiers and about as many civilians fought hunger, thirst and a blasting siege.

Advices from both insurgent and government sides told of heavy fighting outside the provincial capital, captured last week in a surprise offensive after it had held 17 months in insurgent control.

Barcelona dispatches said opposing patrols were still fighting inside the city, with government forces apparently controlling the greater territory.

(Teruel, whose insurgent forces long had threatened to spear into vital government territory, is 135 miles east of Madrid.)

VICTOR TOPPING DIES IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Dec. 28 (CP).—A varied career as civil engineer, aviator, athlete and lawyer ended here yesterday with the death of Victor Topping, an Englishman who was graduated from University of Toronto as a bachelor of science in 1917. He later studied law and was graduated as a barrister three years ago.

While serving overseas in the Royal Flying Corps, Mr. Topping was injured as his plane came down in flames. He also at one time engaged in transportation research work for Yale University, travelling extensively across the continent. On returning to Toronto in 1926, he gained national prominent as a tennis and badminton player.

A graduate of England's Wolverhampton school, he came to Canada in 1913, and after obtaining his bachelor of science degree, was associated in a study of aero-dynamics and the construction of an experimental wind-tunnel. He was also at one time resident engineer for the Toronto Harbor Commission and directed lakeshore reclamation work.

In 1923 he married Dr. Agnes White of Chislehurst, England. He leaves also his father, Robert Topping, and three sons, all of Toronto.

CURB ON RELIEF BALANCING KEY OF U.S. BUDGET

Roosevelt Unlikely To Set Expenditures

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP). — Usually well-informed officials said today President Roosevelt would tell the United States Congress next week that the 1938-39 budget can be balanced if relief expenditures can be held within bounds.

The budget which he will submit January 4 is not expected to contain a definite relief estimate. Because of uncertainty about the severity and duration of the current business recession, the President probably will give only a tentative figure.

Some members of Congress have expressed the opinion relief costs will run so high that a balance between Federal income and outgo cannot be reached. Treasury officials, however, indicated that expenditures for other items than relief and national defence would be sliced liberally in an attempt to bring about a balance.

88 REEVES GIVEN AN ACCLAMATION ACROSS ONTARIO

TORONTO, Dec. 28 (CP). — A growing tendency in rural Ontario municipalities to avoid elections for reeveships was noted today as nominees for civic offices in more than 139 towns, villages and townships prepared to qualify for next week's elections.

Eighty-eight reeves were elected by acclamation yesterday, nomination day in those municipalities which did not hold their elections last December 6, when most of the larger towns and cities in the province voted. Then, some two-score reeves were elected without the necessity of an election.

Six mayors were elected by acclamation when nominations closed last night. Mayor Charles W. Cox, member of the Ontario Legislature for Port Arthur, was re-elected as that city's chief magistrate for his fifth term. The five others were: Robert McVittie, in Southampton; G. C. Townshend, Perth; E. T. Austin, Coniston; E. A. Collins, Copper Cliff, and W. J. Abell in Brampton.

Most Voting on Monday.

Several hundred candidates were nominated for various municipal offices yesterday, but today's qualifications were expected to result in sharply reduced lists. Nominees have until 9 p.m. to qualify. Voting in most municipalities will be next Monday.

In Welland, four men were nominated for the mayoralty: N. G. Michener, John R. Boyce, W. McQuitty and W. L. Valencourt. Mayor A. S. Hughson, seeking re-election in Napanee, probably will be opposed by Dr. C. M. Stratton, Victor Cowling, R. H. McFarland and A. S. Kimmerly.

EMPLOYMENT OFF DURING NOVEMBER

96.9; 1922, 96.3 and 1921, 88.3," the report stated.

Construction Down.

"Manufacturing (notably of food and lumber products), communications, transportation and construction showed seasonal recessions at December 1, 1937, those in construction and maintenance being especially pronounced. On the other hand, logging, coalmining, and retail trade reported substantial improvement, also of a seasonal character.

"The staffs of the 10,106 firms making returns for December 1, 1936, had aggregated 1,044,969, a decline of 8,579 from the preceding month; the loss in employment then recorded had been exceptionally small for the time of year.

"A brief survey of the situation at the end of 1937 shows that the general index of 121.6 at December 1, was 17.1 per cent. higher than at the opening of the year; since the average advance between January 1 and December 1 in the last 16 years has been just over eight per cent., the improvement effected during the last 12 months has considerably exceeded the normal.

"Outstanding features of the 1937 situation have been the continued activity in manufacturing, mining, and logging, together with further advances in communications, services, and trade.

Better Than Last Year.

Construction was also decidedly brisker than in 1936, while transportation showed little change. Employment in the Maritime provinces, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia continued at a high level, while in the prairie area no general change from 1936 was recorded."

In Ontario manufacturing, mining, communications, transportation and construction reported substantial reductions, those in the last-named being especially marked. Within the group of factory employment, tobacco and beverage and non-metallic mineral product factories showed market improvement, but there were larger seasonal losses in the vegetable food and lumber divisions, together with smaller declines in leather, rubber, textiles, electrical apparatus and some other classes.

Logging and retail trade recorded seasonal improvement. The 4,632 firms making returns for Dec. 1, 1937, had 490,413 employees, compared with 508,193 at the beginning of November. This decrease exceeded the usual seasonal loss experienced in Ontario in the years, 1921-1936. The index, at 126.8 at Dec. 1, 1937, compared favorably with that of 112.9 at the same date in 1936; the 4,499 employers whose reports were then compiled had 438,641 persons on their paylists.

High School Girl Gulps Ice Cream And Swallows 6-Inch Spoon

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP)

IT'S common for babies to swallow pins and button's accidentally.

But when Miss Bernice Guervitz 17-year-old high school girl swallowed a six-inch teaspoon while eating ice cream, physicians were a bit puzzled. They said it was the first time in Chicago medical history.

X-ray photographs showed the spoon in the girl's stomach. A surgeon removed it.

LIBERAL CARRIES LOTBINIERE SEAT BY 5,000 MARGIN

STE. CROIX, Que., Dec. 28.—(CP).—The Habitant electors of Lotbinière county put aside talk of war and armaments to-day. The by-election that brought the war question to their firesides was over, with Joseph N. Francoeur established as their House of Commons representative by a record majority.

Possibility of Canada becoming enmeshed in foreign conflict was the pivotal issue of the campaign that closed at the polls yesterday with the veteran Liberal the victor over young Paul Bouchard, Quebec city publisher. The 30-year-old Bouchard, Independent Nationalist, had insisted Federal armaments expenditures were paving the way for war; his opponent denied it.

With returns missing from three of the county's 107 polls Francoeur's unofficial majority was 5,102, heaviest ever given a Federal candidate in Lotbiniere. Individual figures were not available.

The figure was substantially better than the previous high majority of 4,380 given J. A. Verville, Liberal, in the 1936 general election. Verville died a few weeks ago.

The result left Lotbiniere in the same political column it had occupied since Confederation.

Most of the farmer-voters drove through deep snow by horse and sleigh. The cold weather forced some of the country's womenfolk, who have the franchise in Federal election only, to stay by their stoves.

The contest was orderly. Support-

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 28. — Brisk export purchasing of United States corn, with Buenos Aires corn prices shooting skyward 5 cents a bushel, made corn the grain trade leader yesterday.

Chicago corn values soared 2½ cents maximum to the highest point reached in several months, but were far outdone by quotations at Buenos Aires, where January and February corn went to nearly 20 cents over the December delivery here. Estimates currently indicated that considerably more than 1,000,000 bushels of corn from Atlantic and Gulf ports of the United States were bought yesterday for shipment to Antwerp and Rotterdam.

Wheat was responsive to corn strength, and at various stages showed gains of 1½ cents. Late in the day however, much of the wheat advance was lost, owing to sympathy with downturns of securities. Assertions that 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been bought for export could not be confirmed.

Rye and oats took their cue from wheat and corn.

Provisions reflected hog market downturns.

QUEBEC MINIMUM WAGE RATE READY FOR ALL WORKERS

care in a legislative role was to ratify conditions achieved by the province's female workers and correct injustices done to male workers," Chairman Goy asserted.

"Lack of cohesion in previous decrees affecting labor invited confusion," he said, "and legislation of a transitory character and passed in haste applies only to a small minority of workers.

"The new ordinance, drawn up in a uniform text, will be more easily understood by the employer and should be easier of application. Its authors moved by complaints from all parts of Quebec have tried to remedy some of the evils from which a large majority of employees, particularly day-laborers without influence and support, suffered."

$26,000,000 in Raises

MONTREAL, Dec. 28—(CP).—An order-in-council to be made public to-morrow will provide wage increases totalling approximately $26,000,000 for 670,000 Quebec province workers, according to George Cromp, vice-chairman of Quebec's Fair Wage Board.

Of that sum, $15,000,000 will go to persons who have not benefitted previously through decisions of the board, Cromp added. The remainder will be received by those who have obtained wage increases under previous enactments.

More than 155,000 women workers will benefit.

JAPANESE EXPLAIN TO GREAT BRITAIN

of Nankink, crossed the Yangtse river porth of Taiping and advanced toward Pukow. Because of a previous warning, they thought foreign nationals had evacuated the zone of fighting.

Observing more than 10 large steamers fleeing up-river, the Japanese High Commander believed them to be retreating enemy forces and ordered the artillery to fire on them; but the shells did not reach the ships, which escaped. Thereupon he ordered Japanese units at Wuhu to attack them.

Thought Smoke A Screen

A detachment, after a forced night march, opened fire on four large steamers. Observing the steamers sending up dense smoke, the Japanese decided they were trying to hide in a smoke screen. Japanese shells struck two steamers, the others escaped. One vessel advanced toward the Japanese forces, whereupon a British flag was detected and an order given to cease firing. When it reached the wharf it proved to be the Ladybird.

The same night, through a mistake, one shell was fired on a ship hoisting the British flag, but did not strike it. This proved to be the gunboat Bee. Rear-Admiral Holt, the British consul and several officers landed. The Japanese commander explained it was a mistake. He said it was his duty to sink all enemy vessels and that he did not know the ships were British.

The Japanese note was given to Sir Robert after being approved by the cabinet and then submitted to Emperor Hirohito by the foreign minister.

FOUR MAY RUN, HAVELOCK REEVE

HAVELOCK, Dec. 28. — Four names were placed in nomination for reeveship and nine for the four seats on the village council, at the nomination meeting last evening in the Havelock Town Hall.

An election is practically assured with present Reeve Ernest Seeney seeking re-election and ex-Reeve E. J. Leeson also declaring his intention to run. Ex-Reeve Richard Sanderson and Everard Chiles, a present member of the council, also nominated for Reeve, declined to stand. The nominees for council besides the present council, James Squire, Everard Chiles, James Wilde, and Wm. J. McBurney, were Messrs. Fred Pollock, E. W. Seeney, D. A. Forde, Gordon Ames and Robt. McCutcheon. The present council will seek re-election, Fred Pollock also stating that he would stand. E. W. Seeney and D. A. Forde declined the nomination and Gordon Ames and Robt. McCutcheon were not present.

There were two acclamations to the Hydro Commission, D. R. Brennan being appointed for the term of two years and Richard Sanderson to succeed the late F. J. Squire, for the remaining term of one year. Walter Nobes, also nominated, withdrew in favour of Mr. Sanderson.

Nominated for the three vacant seats on the school board were Mrs. Clare Price, Mrs. Walter Nobes, Charles Taylor, Dr. G. H. Gardner, Geo. Rigby and L. G. Hagerman. Mrs. Price, Geo. Rigby and Mr. Taylor (a member of the Public School Board for five years), all declined the nomination. Dr. Gardner was absent and Mr. Hagerman did not state his intentions.

Miss Louise Spriggs Gives Delightful Tea.

Miss Louise Spriggs was hostess at a most charmingly planned tea at her home on Charlotte street yesterday afternoon, attended by over forty of the younger set.

Lit only by candlelight, Christmas decorations showed with pretty effect in the attractive rooms, and in the dining room the tea table was arranged with novel beauty. As a centrepiece for the lace edged cloth, red, green, blue and silver Christmas balls pyramided on a silver plate, gleamed in the flickering light from tall green tapers in silver holders. On the buffet, slim red tapers glowed from the centre of a holly wreath.

The hostess received the guests in the living room with her mother, Mrs. Leila Spriggs, and her aunt, Miss Olga Haskill.

Mrs. R. V. Dawson presided at the tea table, and Mrs. C. Sherwood cut the ices. Assistants were Miss Dorothy Turner, Miss Phyllis Dawson, Miss Leone Comstock and Miss Jean Dorris. Miss Margaret Baird attended the door.

Woodcock-Deyell.

A very pretty wedding was quietly solemnized in Knox United Church manse, with the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt performing the ceremony, when at half past one today (Tuesday), Lila Luella Deyell, only daughter of Mrs. Mary Deyell of Omemee and the late William Deyell, became the bride of Maurice C. Woodstock of Listowel, son of Cecil Woodstock of Haliburton.

The bride wore a becoming jacket frock of aquamarine blue triooline, and a turban made entirely of feathers in the same shade as her dress, and with short veil attached. Her slippers matched her costume and she wore white gloves and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Her attendant was Mrs. Orville Deyell, who wore a dress of navy blue heavy silk crepe, hat and accessories to match, and a corsage of violets and lilies-of-the-valley. The groom was attended by Stanley Moore.

Following the ceremony, a reception and a wedding luncheon for members of the immediate family were held at the home of the bride's mother, in Omemee. Mrs. Deyell was gowned in black tricoline, and received the guests with Mrs. Harry Deyell, who was wearing a frock of black crepe.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Woodcock left later on a motor trip to Toronto, Hamilton, Detroit, and other points. For travelling the bride donned a black caracul fur coat. On their return the happy couple will make their home in Listowel.

Kennedy-Daley.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral at eight o'clock this morning, when Marie Georgianna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Daley, of Sault Ste. Marie, became the bride of Daniel Joseph Kennedy, son of Daniel Kennedy and the late Mrs. Kennedy, of Ennismore.

The Rev. Father P. J. Kelly performed the ceremony, and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

Lovely flowers were arranged on the altar, and the wedding music was played by Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M.

The bride wore a charming gown of navy blue taffeta, made on princess lines, with square neckline, and long sleeves puffed to the elbow. Her off-the-face hat was of navy velvet, and a short veil fell to her shoulders. She wore white kid gloves, and carried her mother's Communion Book, and her paternal grandmother's Rosary. Her corsage was of red roses.

Miss Irene Torpey attended as bridesmaid, and was gowned in martini wine velvet, made on fitted lines, with V-neckline and short jacket, having sleeves puffed at the shoulders. She wore a matching turban with short veil, long white gloves, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Mark Kennedy.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party breakfasted at the De Luxe Cafe, and later, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kennedy left for St. Catherines. The bride wore for travelling, a burgundy knitted suit, a black coat and accessories, and a green hat. The young couple will reside at 501 Parkhill Road, this city.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DOUBLE DUTY DONE

LOW PENALTY doubles serve many purposes besides merely punishing hapless overcalls. Most important is the fact that they show secure stoppers in the suit. The time this helps especially is when your side is vulnerable and would therefore ordinarily prefer to make its own game than secure a small set against opponents who are not vulnerable.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a team-of-four match and the bidding differed at the two tables. At one table South started with 1-Diamond, West overcalled with 1-Heart, North bid 1-Spade, South 2-Clubs, North 2-No Trumps, South 3-Clubs and North 3-Diamonds. Reading this as merely a preference for diamonds and having no particular fit for his partner's spades, South decided to pass this.

At the other table, however, South received more information from North and was able to land in a game contract. After South's 1-Diamond and West's 1-Heart, North doubled. South now bid 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades and South tried 2-No Trumps, which North took to 3-No Trumps.

Had North not doubled, indicating stoppers in hearts as well as in the spades which were later shown, it would have been impossible for South to have reached this contract with his singleton heart.

The Major Bennett Dance

One of the most eagerly anticipated social events of the winter season, the annual dance of the Major Bennett Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Canadian Legion Hall on Monday evening.

The decorations were delightfully novel. Among red and white streamers, black silhouettes of Mickey and Minnie Mouse cavorted gaily around the walls, accompanied on the wide blue panel behind the orchestra by the "three little pigs". At the entrance, Mickey and Minnie directed traffic with the help of a sign post. Lovely gowns, and lovely music, supplied by Eddie Stroud's Orchestra, helped to make the dance one of the most successful this winter.

The guests were received by Miss Ann Mackenzie, regent of the Chapter, with the patrons and patronesses, who included, His Worship, Mayor George A. Macdonald and Mrs. Macdonald, Lt. Col. W. Gordon Hall and Mrs. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Clarke. Prizes awarded for novelty dances were won by Miss Isobel Skitch and Cameron Gorry for the Spot dance, and by Miss Olga Westbye and Bun Kingdon. The prizes were donated by Soden's Book Store, Grafton and Company, Ltd., The Smart Set Shop, and Schneider Bros., Jewellers. The supper was catered for by the Porter S. White Co., with Miss Dorothy Rickard in charge.

Miss Anna Mackenzie was convenor of the dance committee; Miss Betty Lytle, had charge of the invitations; and the decorations were in charge of Miss Mackenzie, Miss Ivy James, Miss Bertha Inch and Miss Lytle. Other members of the Chapter assisting were, the Misses Margaret Skitch, Jean Beilleghem, Margaret Weir, Phyllis Cruthers, Lorraine McCarrell, Isabel Skitch, Dot Morrow, Alice Davern and Kay Elliott.

THE STARS SAY

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Wednesday, December 29

Much sturdy progress should be made on this day in the way of solidifying the fortunes and interests, judging by the lunar aspects. Old and lagging projects may receive definite spur, with elders or old established institutions ready to assist in such security of finances and property interests, as well as in putting the social position upon a sounder basis.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which they may be able to feel solid ground under their feet after a period of depression or inertia.

A child born on this day may be studious, deep steadfast and industrious, with energy and enterprise for putting over solid propositions and carving out a place of security in business and in his personal life. Elders should be disposed to assist in this.

This Is Not Christmas

It does begin to look as though Christmas was degenerating. It would be more correct to say that the manner of its observance is suffering from that process. To many people it is becoming just another holiday; a time for mad celebration; an occasion for getting drunk; a period when car traffic becomes dangerous and more fatal.

In United States records show that 405 persons were killed during the Christmas week-end, and admittedly the records are not complete for a good many of the injured ones are expected to die. Death rode on the highways; in other cases men who hated each other thoroughly selected Christmas as the season for using revolvers and machine guns.

Last year Toronto had what was termed a "black" Christmas because there were so many accidents from people driving their cars when drunk. This year it was even blacker. Three people were killed, and 67 were injured over the Christmas holiday. It is recorded that several of the police stations were visited by car drivers seeking for the keys of their cars which officers had removed because the drivers were drunk. By this method at least 30 intoxicated drivers were prevented from having opportunity to add to the accident list.

Something wrong in all this. It is all out of joint and out of touch with life at its best. It is black and ugly; it is unkind and miserable. There is nothing of Christmas in it.

One does not have to be a temperance advocate to see what was wrong with the Toronto record. There was too much liquor, and the Liquor Control Board went out of its way this year by extending the hours of sale to make certain there would be more than usual sold.

There are two departments of the Ontario Government which ought to sit down in the same room for a while, close the door and talk things over to see if they can get any light on a situation in which each is equally interested—or ought to be. Those two departments are the Liquor Control Board and the Department of Highways. The Department of Highways has extended its efforts almost to the point of exhaustion to try and cause drivers to go safely when in charge of cars. And the courts of our province are also interested because we have magistrates here and there every week announcing they have been forced to increase the penalties for drunken driving.

The Liquor Control Board is working to undo what the Department of Highways and our magisterial courts are seeking to do. The Board is making it easy and convenient for people to get drunk. One Peterborough gentleman who attended a hockey game in Toronto on Saturday night (Christmas) said the confusion following the game was disgusting because there were so many people trying to get their cars out who were in no condition to do so. Toronto had a black week-end because too many people were drunk. And the policy of the Liquor Control Board made it mighty easy for them to get drunk.

The Ruling Is Plain

There has been a misunderstanding about the qualification of those who seek to enter the municipal contest, and the same question has arisen in other places. It has to do with the payment of taxes or rent. If an individual is living in a house on which the landlord has not paid the taxes, then the tenant cannot qualify as a candidate for municipal office. That may seem like visiting the sins of the landlord upon the tenant, but it is the law of the land. It is possible to contemplate a condition where a good deal of hardship might come from such provision. A landlord might own an apartment house in which there might be a dozen or twenty tenants, and if the landlord was behind in his taxes then all the tenants would be disqualified if they desired to seek municipal office.

It was in 1935 that the changes were made to the Municipal Act, and under such changes those disqualified include:

(r) An owner or tenant against the land in respect of which he qualifies there are at the time of nomination any taxes of a preceding year or years overdue and unpaid.

(s) A tenant who at the time of the nomination owes more than three months rent upon the property in respect of which he qualifies.

(3) The said subsection 1 of section 53 is further amended by adding thereto the following clause:

(u) A person whose taxes in respect of an assessment for income or business at the time of the nomination are overdue and unpaid.

A good many people have the impression that qualifications may be submitted at a certain hour of the day following nomination. That is, that the nominee has a given time in which to make up his mind as to whether or not he will qualify for the contest, but it will be noticed that in the provisions regarding taxes or rent quoted above it says in each case, "at the time of the nomination." The reason for that is that an election contest is considered to have started at the time of the nomination and not at the time of the dead line set for candidates to signify their intention of accepting nomination. Those who may be disqualified according to this provision have no doubt acted in good faith, but the law is there and it is very plain upon that point.

Letters To The Editor

There are people who write letters to newspapers for publication who do not believe the paper is liable for anything contained in the letter if there is a name signed to it. It might be pleasant enough if newspapers could shift their responsibility as easily as that. The dull fact is that a newspaper itself is primarily responsible for anything which appears in its columns. If there is a libelous statement in a letter the newspaper's responsibility is made none the less actual because a name is signed to the letter.

We have on occasion met people who object to having their letters edited or changed. A newspaper does not necessarily share the views of the letters it publishes, but it does reserve the right to insist that statements made in letters are in accordance with fact, and it is also the plain duty of the newspaper to make certain that its columns are not being used by those who seek to make attack on some individual for no good reason.

The best letter for publication is one which discusses a question fairly and without bitterness.

We Want None Of It

When Premier Duplessis of Quebec made his address at Shawinigan he brought down on himself a generous amount of criticism from a good many places in the Dominion. We believe it was deserved. He mentioned among other things that Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes were tired of being run for the benefit of the West, and that the cure was a drawing together of the provinces of Eastern Canada for the purpose of imposing their will upon the Federal government at Ottawa.

Some of this speech was denied; Mr. Duplessis said he had been misreported. Whether the questions referred to by the Quebec premier had been discussed at the conference between Ontario and Quebec premiers is something which is not definitely known. But it becomes plain enough that Premier Duplessis was saying at Shawinigan what a large element in the province of Quebec wanted said. In a recent issue of the French language newspaper L'Illustration Nouvelle (Montreal) there was this comment:

> Mr. Duplessis spoke as all the Quebec population had wanted for a long time . . . As we have repeated a number of times during the past two years a collision was inevitable between the new federal mentality and the traditional national mentality. The collision has taken place. Positions are taken. Everyone knows what is what. Ottawa will have to change entirely its policy or face the fighting front of a coalition which includes already more than 70 per cent. of the population of the country. Out of that struggle, if it takes place, the provinces will easily come out victorious."

Ontario and Quebec have slightly over 60 per cent. of the population of the Dominion, so the Quebec idea must be that to these two provinces will be added the numerical strength of the Maritimes, and this Eastern coalition of provinces would then be sufficiently strong to dictate the policy of Ottawa and let the West get along as best it can.

There is so much dynamite in the policy, so much of danger and of plotting, that the wonder is it would be spoken of so openly and so freely in the Montreal paper. And yet that paper says frankly that this form of pitting groups or provinces against the central government at Ottawa is exactly what the Quebec population has wanted for a long time.

We believe Ontario would feel more comforable if it were known definitely and finally that its representatives at the provincial conferences had no part in this scheming, and that they would place themselves on record as being unchangingly opposed to it if the matter were ever mentioned. Ontario wants nothing to do with Quebec in the way of an alliance or an understanding on that basis.

He Said Too Much

Emperor Hirohito of Japan made the customary speech from the throne at the opening of Japan's parliament, and in one part he said:

"We feel greatly gratified to see that the relations between Japan and her treaty powers are growing in friendship and cordiality."

The Emperor may have been encouraged to make his address because the trouble following the sinking of the U.S. gunboat Panay had been settled, but there can be no increase in the amount of cordiality and friendship which is felt for Japan or extended to that nation.

We doubt whether any government could in an official note to Japan adequately express the feelings of the people. It is not possible that there should be approval of what Japan has done and is doing. Therefore there must be disapproval.

Nor can there be admiration for the manner in which Japan has been bombing and blowing to pieces women and children. So where there is no admiration there must be nothing short of disgust.

One cannot be in agreement with a military policy which has chased hundreds of thousands of Chinese from the places where they were able to make out at best only a miserable existence, and drive them off to places where nothing but positive starvation is ahead of them. So where there is no agreement there must be disagreement of the most marked variety.

When the Emperor of Japan addresses his parliament and speaks of "growing friendship and cordiality" with other nations he is giving evidence that his high hope is equalled only by his ignorance of world feeling.

He Bears A New Name

It is true enough that a newspaper man will fit into new surroundings and conditions as rapidly as any other individual. He does that because he feels it is necessary. He must become identified with a new community and become part of it.

By way of illustration: In the Christmas mail (a day late) was a card from Timmins, and the covering thereof was done in gold (at least it looked the same as we always imagined gold would be like.) This gold card was from the office of the Timmins Daily Press and bore inside the signature: "Hardrock" Grafton.

Now this "Hardrock" Grafton has adopted the style and phrasing of the land to which he went as managing editor of the Timmins paper. For many years in London, Ont., he was known pleasantly as Charlie Grafton. On the evenings when there was parade at the Armouries or other events which smacked of military color he appeared in the trappings of his rank and was then known as "Major" Grafton. And that of course was no honorary title for he had earned it and won it and therefore owned it.

Today in the mining region of the north he is neither Charlie nor "Major," but now he is "Hardrock" Grafton. He must be saturating himself with the atmosphere and feeling of his new environment. But we are still wondering where he got the gold which went fore and aft on his card of greeting.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A pedestrian had a good Christmas in Toronto if he managed to keep out of the hospital over the Yuletide weekend.

Probably if the penalties for drunken driving included the loss of the right to drive there would be less of it.

A stone face has been discovered by archaeologists on the site of ancient Troy. It will probably turn out to be that of an old-time poker player.

Two Brantford homes were ransacked, and the unkind information was published that "nothing of value was taken."

The Duke of Windsor spent $300 on flowers which he sent to the Duchess for Christmas. Sad part of it is she has not a home of her own to put them in.

Pupils of the Delaware public school are probably convinced that there was something wrong with the timing when the school burned down early in the Christmas holidays.

Choir boy in New York was allowed to sing Christmas carols although he had a black eye. The little lad was probably well and truly representing a good many sections of this troubled world.

The United States government now regards the Panay case as a closed incident, although so far as the guilt of the Japanese is concerned it seemed an open-and-shut case from the first.

The mayor of Buffalo has laid down new rules for the civic employees. One is that the public must receive prompt and courteous service at all times and that is a good regulation for any municipality.

NICE ROOM

(By A. R. K.)

¶ That house of Jake's looks rather old, no paint in years so I've been told, no credit to the town; the porch he has around the rear, will have to be jacked up this year, or it will tumble down.

¶ The parlor rug is far from new, a sort of faded red and blue, and patches in it bare; Jake ought to fix up things like that, nor let his house go stale and flat, should have a new rug there.

¶ Jake's chairs are all so big and old, a goodly person they will hold, nor does one have to squeeze; but style and beauty they all lack, and some are shaky in the back, and wheezy at the knees.

¶ For years his kitchen's been the same, just like it was when first he came, the same old kitchen range; that's something Jake should ought to do, go out and purchase something new, and give his wife a change.

¶ There's ancient furniture upstairs, the beds and wash stands and the chairs, they've passed the useful stage; they stand like monuments I know, of things that happened long ago, and they are ripe with age.

¶ But when I get a meal at Jake's, I clean forget all these mistakes, it's clean and smart and neat; they stack the victuals high and wide, and Jake announces with some pride — we get enough to eat.

THERE WAS something in this column a few days ago about hobbies. It is a subject about which has been written and more probably will be and an interesting slant is that a hobby has much in its favor and brings the maximum of satisfaction when it can lead to a creative and financial success.

For example the late C. Francis Jenkins, inventor of the prototype of the motion picture projection machine used today in theatres throughout the world once wrote that nearly all inventions developed from hobbies. To prove his point he cited many mechanical and scientific inventions which originated during inventor's hours of relaxation. Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, was by profession a cabinet maker. George Stephenson, who developed the locomotive was employed as a coal miner in Wales. The telescopes of Herschel were made while he was earning his living by playing the violin at dances and concerts.

Samuel F. B. Morse, by profession a portrait painter accelerated communication throughout the world by his momentuous invention of the telegraph. The celebrated Wright Brothers, Wilbur and Orville, both earned their livlihoods as bicycle repairers. In spare hours they made small gliders and flew them as a hobby.

* * *

Professionally a school teacher specializing in tuteisage of the deaf, Alexander Graham Bell became interested in the problem of sound. After school hours he made the first important contribution to sound which later led to the perfection of the telephone.

* * *

While Thomas A. Edison was employed as a telegrapher he co-ordinated his knowledge and developed a telegraphy device on the side. This netted him a cheque for $36,000 thereby enabling Edison to spend his life at his hobby.

* * *

George M. Westinghous, who, like Edison, turned a hobby into riches, had been taught the trade of machinist. Mechanical things had always absorbed his interest. At the early age of 19 he invented a "frog" for setting back derailed cars on the track. At 21 he startled the mechanical world by producing the air-brake.

Use a Lot of Soap.

THE MOST effective medium for driving the dirt out of our lives soap is consumed in huge quantities in Canada. We have to thank the C. I. L. Oval for the information that every year seventy-five pounds of soap gurgle down the kitchen and bathroom drains of the average Canadian household; 2,500,000 pounds are used by the laundries in dislodging the dirt from our linens and thousands of bars are lathered away to nothing during the business of keeping offices and factory departments clean. All told it takes 167,000,000 pounds of soap a year to maintain a state of cleanliness in this country and although 80 per cent. of the national soap production is accounted for by eleven plants the 38 factories are busy producing it.

Soap is necessary because of a little matter called surface tension. Under ordinary circumstances water will not wet a surface covered with a thin film of oil or grease because its surface skin is too strong. Soap weakens this skin, allowing it to flatten out and wet the grease. When the soap and water are agitated the grease breaks up into tiny particles which are carried away suspended in the lather and that, briefly, is the function performed by soap.

* * *

As to what soap is the answer simply is that soap is a compound of alkali and fatty acids, obtained from animal and vegetable oils to which perfumes, coloring matter and medicaments are added which such cleansing agents as sodium silicate and sodium cabonate are usually present in the cheaper grades. Certain vegetables oils which enter into its composition impart emollient properties while others are used for their free lathering characteristics. During the last 50 years the soap chemists have searched the world for the most suitable oils for these purposes.

* * *

More than half the world supplies some ingredients for soaps. From the Philippine Islands and from China and Ceylon comes copra, the dried meat of coc-nuts, while in tropical Africa dusky natives swarm up palm trees to secure the soft and pulpy fruits from which palm oil and palm-kernel oil are derived. Australia supplies the beef and mutton tallow and further south fleets of whalers ply the Antarctic seas for whales from which an important oil is obtained. Other components are green olive oil and peanut oil, the former from the Mediterranean countries and the later from Senegal and China.

Some Steel Siftings.

MORE THAN $10,000,000 was spent by the United States steel industry during the present year for research work, 20 per cent. more than was spent in 1929.

* * *

The first iron produced in America in Lynn Mass, was cast into a one-quart pot which is still in existence.

* * *

Some steel companies buy thousands of young saplings a year from farmers to use in stirring ladles of molten steel.

* * *

The largest open-pit iron ore mine in the world, near Hibbing Minn. contains over 70 miles of railway tracks over which ore is hauled to the surface.

* * *

The United States government has granted sizable subsetitutes to local city administrations in the Virgin Islands in an effort to rehabilitate the distressed natives.

Animals Are Crowding News Columns

Wolf Glared at a Man For a Full Twenty Minutes; Pet Deer Got Locked Out of the Barn on Cold Night

(From the Toronto Star)

FOR AT LEAST twenty minutes" —as long, almost, as a Hollywood kiss—a man and a wolf are said to have stared at each other in the Hockley Valley near Orangeville before the wolf turned tail.

The fact seems to be that the creatures of the wild are coming south into older Ontario and acting in most remarkable ways. The glassey-eyed wolf who entered the outgoing marathon with the Mono farmer may perhaps have been on the trail of the elk and deer reported so plentiful of late. The Fergus News-Record tells of an elk in South Garafraxa which goes to a farmer's barn, eats out of a feed box intended for the cattle, plays around with the sheep and lambs, and permits itself to be photographed.

Then there is the pet deer of Woodford, owned by George Best. The other night it was locked out when the barn door blew shut. A rescue party started off to find it, and it was discovered bedded down in a sheltered snowdrift. Whenever it is reported missing a general alarm goes out.

From the eastern part of the province comes word of another invasion from the north. The Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer says that Reeve James Brownson, of Mayo, reports bright orange pheasants, supposedly from the National Parks, "the first of their kind to be seen around these parts." Reeve Brownson also claims that bears are behaving in a peculiar way. Some that have been shot have fully distended stomachs instead of the shrivelled tummies that usually precede the Winter's sleep. And somewhere in the reeve's bailiwick a dog and a bear were so frightened of each other that they hadn't even enough sense left to run in opposite directions. So they sped along side by side, and the bear actually outran the dog.

That dog was not as intelligent as one owned in Dundalk. The Herald of that place says it could not eat all the biscuits it was given, so cached one in each of three beds. "In each case the dog had shoved back the quilts, deposited the biscuits, and put the quilts back in position again." Bird dogs are common, but there must be something of the squirrel about that one.

The menagerie would not be complete, however, without reference to the Meaford jack rabbits. The Mirror says they have become such a pest in that district that the fruit growers are offering cash prizes for the biggest kill of the season. One grower has screened 1,000 tree trunks.

Rabbits, of course, are often kept as pets. But according to the Walkerton Herald-times, a lady of that town has a more unique favorite. It is a fly. She feeds it sugar and is said to have it so well trained that it never tickles her face or lands on the butter. But its days are numbered. Its mistress is leaving town for the Winter, and no one wants to take it in.

Aberdeen Says No Kilts For the Ladies

And Reasons Are Given Which Seem Quite Final; One Barrier Which the Ladies Cannot Beat Down

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

A MOMENTOUS question came up for decision before the Aberdeen Kilt Society recently. It was a question which has been propounded before organizations of other kinds in all parts of the world in recent years —should women be admitted to membership? In most cases the women have beaten down the barriers. If they did not succeed at first they tried again. But these hard-headed Scots, who exist to preserve and promote the wearing of the kilt, decided by a two to one majority against admitting the ladies.

Not only that, some of the men spoke strongly against women wearing the kilt at all. The kilt has for hundreds of years been associated with clansmen and Highland regiments which have fought Scotland's and Britain's battles. It typifies the courage and sacrifice of thousands of Scots who have died for Scotland, for Britain and the Empire.

But a more devastating and insurmountable objection to women than that was offered. "Their whole anatomy is against it!" They are, said one member, too long in the leg between the ankle and the knee.

So there you are, ladies. Your anatomy is against you. Even if slimming and Eton crops help to give you that boyish appearance, your bone structure is such that you cannot move bone to where it isn't or take it away from where it is.

That leg objection is really most important. All other objections aside, no one can just "wear" the kilt without "having the leg" for it. The leg for the kilt should be neither too long nor too short, and, of course, bow or bandy legs are ridiculous. Not being in the ready-to-wear business, nor having appraised and measured ladies for the chorus, we are unable to verify the statement that there is too much spread between a lady's ankles and her knees, but we'll accept this Aberdonian's expert view on the matter.

But we have no hesitation in saying that the spindly type of shank is unsuitable for such heroic costume. The right leg is sturdy, with well-turned calves, and sinewy. The Scotch inherit that kind of leg through generations of culture, just as breeders of pure stock develop the equine and bovine stock that takes the prizes at the big shows.

Ladies may accept the consolation, however, that the Aberdeen Kilt Society has no objection to them wearing tartan dresses.

But not so short, please, that they look like a kilt.

POINT IN LANGUAGE.

(New York World-Telegram)

"YOU CAN go to hell", from a woman automobilist to a policeman who hands her a summons, is quite all right, rules Magistrate Mark Rudich. The "can" makes it "almonpure statement of fact." Without the "can" it might be improper wish or command.

How about "may?" Would a delicate ambiguity as between permission and possibility make it better or worse? Maybe public-spirited motorists will supply test cases for judicial ruling on still subtler verbal distinctions.

We are reminded of the story of the Senator who, ordered by the Senate to apologize for giving a fellow member the lie direct, made his apologize thusly:

"I said he is a liar, and I am sorry for it."

As Topsy summed it up to Miss Ophelia: "Words is so curis."

GEORGE THE SIXTH

Like well-known heroes from seclusion called,
He left its pleasures and assumed his place
Amid Earth's monarchs—and a world enthralled,
Accorded homage to his kingly grace.

A lesson all may learn—He stood the test,
And gladly at the Empire's hallowed shrine
Gave sacrifice of all he valued best
To act as guardian of your peace and mine.

REVIVE DROOPING FAITH

The greater number of loads of coal tested at the city weigh scales were found to be over weight instead of under. This news will revive a drooping faith in human nature generally.

DECEMBER

The year has almost gone, December days are here,
Mid dreams and memories who says these days are drear?
The air so cold and crisp bespeaks of strength and health,
That blessing that compares, competes with any wealth.
Each hour the harp of hope resounds a note of cheer,
Each season sings her song, telling that God is near.
The Autumn winds have left the trees so cold and bare,
Now Nature's willing hand does more of beauty share.
Jack Frost has dressed again with silvery lace of light,
Draping with crystal beads each twig and branch in sight.
As over all the earth, God, only could bestow,
This gift of loveliness, Heaven's purest mantle-snow.
It is the time of joys, when children's hearts are thrilled,
With wishes realized and highest hopes fulfilled.
The harvest has been reaped, the luscious fruits displayed,
Like old folk who have lived to see their works repaid.
There is a love that lives, no time or space divides,
That lifts the soul to God, there is a faith abides.
That future life will hold a rapture yet to know,
Like fairest flowers in Spring follow the Winter's snow.
It is the month when all the world joins hands to sing
Their gratitude to God for His Christmas Gift—The King.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

HE RESTORETH my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. . . . .

Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy. . . . . They wandered in the wilderness in a solitary way; they found no city to dwell in. Hungry and thirsty, their soul fainted in them. Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and he delivered them out of their distresses. And he led them forth by the right way, that they might go to a city of habitation.— Ps. xxiii: 3; cvii: 2, 4-7.

And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.— Gen. xxxii: 24, 26, 28, 30.

To the Editor

DISQUALIFIED

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I wish to explain to the citizens who have extended to me their expressions of support in offering their votes, cars and personal help to have me elected. My reason for not being a candidate is as follows:

It is perhaps a month ago I called on S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, to learn if I could qualify. He told me without a doubt that I could. I called on Mr. Cooper on Dec. 22nd and both he and Mr. Fraser read me a part of the act on city elections, said section of the act not having been shown to me by Mr. Armstrong.

I saw Mr. Armstrong and he said there was that section but it was a section he did not know existed and if this requirement was met by 9.30 p.m. on Friday, I could qualify. The said requirement was met on Friday at 4.30 p.m. and imagine my surprise when told it should have been done previous to nomination. Although some may not agree with Hon. G. N. Gordon in his views in public life I must say when he heard of my difficulty he spared no trouble to find some way out for me. I believe Mr. Armstrong owes myself and the citizens an apology. If I had been given the full truth of the matters, what was done too late by the requirements of the Act, could just as well have been done weeks ago. Also if he wishes to help me prove I was not bribed it is I believe in fairness to every one concerned to make a public statement that it was a mistake. I wish to thank all that have been so kind in so many ways that would have given me, I am sure, a total of votes of which I would have been proud.

I am mailing Mr. Armstrong a copy of this letter and will say that very few, if any, are free of mistakes and in this case I must suffer through those made by a city official.

Yours truly,
MAURICE E. KETCHESON.

ELECTION IS SURE IN HASTINGS AS MANY ARE NAMED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 28. — This village was assured of a municipal election when a public meeting was held in the Town Hall on Monday night, following the nominations at noon. There was an extra heavy list of nominees for councillors, fifteen in all, four for Reeve and two for Hydro Commission.

The nominees are as follows:

Reeve—L. E. Kelly, H. G. Fairman, Charles Lynch, Dr. J. H. Hess.

Council — H. W. Dodd, J. L. Doherty, George Smullin, Dr. D. C. Hay, S. Stevenson, W. Wills, Charles Lynch, Iden Bond, Sr., W. N. Beavis, Alexander Brown, James Colberry, Jr., Harry M. Fowlds, John Tripp, L. E. Kelly, and W. McEachnie.

Hydro Commission — H. A. Stephenson, and W. M. Fowlds.

The evening session saw a good many questions directed to the 1937 Council by ratepayers. Two main questions seemed to be regarding an equal distribution of relief moneys between the merchants and why the Council had voted themselves a salary. Reeve Fairman explained that there was a clause in the Relief Act stating that the money spent on relief could be left with merchants who had been carrying them previous to their going on relief, and that in all fairness to these merchants they should receive the bulk of the trade. The Reeve also stated the money he had spent in the year gone by in the town's interests would far exceed the amount he received as Reeve from the municipality.

Nominees Head.

Each nominee present was called to the platform. Members of the 1937 Council gave an account of their year's activities.

Reeve Fairman — Signified his intention of running again for 1938 Council. Claimed his salary did not cover expenses. Gave a month by month statement of relief dealt out.

Councillor Charles Lynch — Read a financial statement regarding the money spent on the village streets, as chairman of Finance Committee. He was questioned regarding the relief money being spent with some merchants and none with others. Reeve Fairman explained and cleared up the situation. Declined to run for Reeve, but signified his intentions as running for the Council.

Councillor H. Dodd — Will run for 1938. Gave an account as chairman of Property Committee.

Councillor S. Stevenson — A short address, stating he had no portfolio and had helped all committees.

Councillor L. E. Kelly — Stated he had served the municipality for six years as councillor and that it was time he either contested the Reeve's chair or stepped out. He will run for Reeve, but holds no spite against the present Reeve, and runs for love of the municipality.

J. L. Doherty—No present.

George Smullin — Will run for councillor, he stated.

W. Wills—Not present.

I. Bond, Sr. — Signified his intentions to run for the Council.

W. N. Beavis—Not present.

A. Brown—Will not run for councillor.

J. Colberry—Not present.

NEW CARETAKER NAMED BY BOARD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 28. — The School Board, at a special meeting held in the Assembly Hall of the Continuation School just previous to the Christmas vacation, engaged E. C. Richards as caretaker of the school building at a salary of $50 per month. Mr. Richards was elected on a unanimous ballot, and replaces George McCorry, who has filled the position for several years.

Fifteen tenders for the position were received. On motion of Dr. J. W. Wright and J. E. Allen, the Board voted a bonus of $25 to Mr. McCorry for his many years of faithful service.

W. M. Fowlds—Will run for Hydro Commission, but not for councillor.

John Tripp—Will run for councillor.

W. McEachnie—Will not run for Council.

Mr. J. H. Hess—Will not run for Reeve, but believes relief money should be spent with those who bore the brunt of expense and not to those whom previous bills were owing.

Hydro Commission — W. M. Fowlds — Signified his intentions as running for Hydro Commissioner, and was subject to questioning regarding the statements which should have been placed before the public at or previous to nominations. He said that the worst job any Reeve could have was the handling of relief, and suggested that a Relief Board of five or seven members should take this over.

H. A. Stephenson — Will run for Hydro Commissioner.

THREE NOMINATED FOR MAYORALTY IN CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28.—The strong hope that Campbellford would see a reduced tax rate next year was expressed by Mayor F. F. Long in accepting the nomination for the office in 1938. "My public duties have taken much more of my time than in previous years" said the mayor, who thanked the council for co-operation of the past year.

"It is not beyond the realm of possibility," he said, "that we should have a lower tax rate with the outlook of a $10,000 grant from the Water and Light Commission to apply to the reduction of the general taxes.

Speaking of the value of the parking lot on the east side of the town he suggested that there was an urgent need for a similar accommodation on the west side and indicated that the grounds around the armouries would make an excellent place for this.

Reeve E. C. McKeel who was nominated both for the office of Reeve and Mayor did not state for which of the two offices he would qualify, but nevertheless took strong opposition to any capital expenditures during the year 1938 and drew the attention to the resolution passed by council during the past year to authorize the paving of Rear street. "What we should have is a memory test of what is said at nomination meetings and what is done through the year," said Mr. McKeel.

Deficit Cut.

Faced with a deficit of $19,500 three years ago this has been cut to $10,000 this last year Councillor N. A. McColl, chairman of the Finance committee, told the electors in giving an account of his stewardship during the past year. Mr. McColl said he intended to qualify for the position of councillor again.

Chairman J. O. Benor of the Water and Light Commission, who was re-elected by acclamation, gave an interesting account of the difficulties of the present waterworks system which was invariably hampered by anchor ice during the winter and suggested that the only remedy was water storage—"an expenditure which could not be entertained for at least two more years."

Chairman W. Roy Loucks of the School Board, reminded the audience that the Board was faced with the necessity of installing complete new heating equipment for the Public schools within the next two years "as the system is completely inadequate with the janitor firing from 2.30 a.m. it is sometimes impossible to get the temperature in some of the class rooms above fifty degrees."

Councillor P. M. Locke expressed his intention to qualify for deputy-reeve, and Councillor P. J. Kelly stated his desire to be re-elected to the council. Mrs. Euphemia Hollings said she would be a candidate for School Trustee.

Hong Kong Tense As Japan Moves Forward

In the south of war-torn China, thus far untouched by the Sino-Japanese hostilities, lies the British crown colony, the city of Hong Kong, an island acquired by Britain in 1841. Looking down from the peak we see the busy city with its docks and business houses. Away to the left on the mainland is Kowloon. The attitude of the city is one of watchful waiting. It is felt that any attack on the city would have international and, perhaps, world-wide repercussions.

ROTARIANS PLAN TO HOLD CARNIVAL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28.—The accounts for Christmas baskets were approved and passed at Monday's meeting of the Rotary Club held in the St. Lawrence Hotel.

President Charlie Davidson made known the club's intention to hold its annual ice carnival again this year and made the suggestion that the Rotarians should organize a hockey team from among the club members and pit their skill against some other group of men in the town as a special attraction on this occasion.

N. Alex McColl again drew attention to the fact that Rotary International was counting on the local club to organize a group in the village of Brighton. He suggested that the members should familiarize themselves with the various points which made the work of Rotary a value to the community and be prepared to speak briefly on one or more of these services at the meeting in Brighton.

SEYMOUR EXPECTS EXCITING CONTEST

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28.—The purchase of shade by the Township of Seymour again took the spotlight at the annual nominations held in the high school auditorium on Monday afternoon when one of the largest crowds on record attended to make sixteen nominations for the six positions on the township council. An election is practically assured with William J. Duncan, a former reeve of the township aspiring to the office again and with Robert Innes also in the field against Reeve William J. Duncan the contest will be a keen one. Nominated for deputy reeve were Robert Innes who held the position last year, and William Rowe, Frank Lee and W. J. Ross, all of whom sat on the council in 1937. Those receiving nominations for councillors were John Kelly, William Duncan, Melville Wight, William Rowe, Frank Lee, W. J. Ross, R. Bateson, Thomas Fry, and W. S. Milne.

All those receiving nominations have until 9 o'clock on Tuesday night to qualify, Wesley Stephens, clerk, told the meeting.

Speaking to the Examiner John Currie refused to state definitely whether he would be in the field and when asked for his opinion of the proposed purchase of the Presbyterian Church sheds stated that he was in favor of its being done but, that the town of Campbellford should be the purchasers and the township should have the use of them by paying a small grant each year.

The mill rate was 5, the same as it has been for the past four years said Mr. Currie pointing out that with the government rebate of one mill the township had been able to spend this year $2300 on roads without increasing the mill rate.

HIS JINX YEAR

HARLAN, Ky., Dec. 28—(AP).—Deputy Sheriff Allen Bowlin will not be sorry to see 1937 pass off the calendar, because:

Last January, his right arm was broken in a fall.

To the Electors of Peterborough!

Ladies and Gentlemen:

In asking you to return me to the City Council for another two year term it is only fair on my part to lay before you some of the policies that I feel are in the best interest of this community and which I will endeavour to push through to completion if honored by your confidence.

In the first place I stand firmly for a progressive and persistent policy of seeking new industries, believing that it is only by adding new plants to the local industrial setup or through the expansion of the existing fine plants that Peterborough can expect to grow and prosper. A new factory at the present time would take up a great deal of the slack of unemployment.

To get new factories we must adhere to a fair and friendly policy toward industrial concerns. Bargains that we have made with local firms must be honestly and completely carried out so that Peterborough's reputation as a city that welcomes and supports her industries may be firmly re-established. We cannot afford to have any other kind of reputation if the Industrial and business future of our community is to be assured.

I promise to co-operate in every way in an endeavour to secure new industries for Peterborough if I am returned to the council.

This is an important election—make sure your vote is polled.

Yours faithfully,

R. M. GLOVER.

HAVING been nominated for the two-year term, I am a candidate for the office of alderman.

During the two years now closing I have endeavoured to serve my fellow citizens in such a manner as I felt was in their best interests. To this end, I discharged all my duties conscientiously, having in mind a bigger and better Peterborough.

Constant reference has been made to the fine position in which our city finds itself financially and otherwise. I should like to point out that this has not been the accomplishment of any particular Council or group, but is the result of cooperative effort on the part of many Councils and interested men and women from all walks of life, who have worked steadily and consistently with one end in view, namely, to make Peterborough a better city for all.

I feel that the present is an opportune time for further development and also that we are in a pre-eminent position to take whatever opportunities present themselves and turn them to good advantage. If we are to succeed in this, the same cooperative spirit, which guided our efforts in the past, must continue to be our rule for the future, and if elected I shall continue to work along constructive lines and to serve in such way as will give the city clean, sane and efficient administration.

1937 COUNCIL IS RETURNED IN OTONABEE

for superintendence, repairs to machinery, etc., were $2,051.06, making a total of $11,570.34.

For work on township boundary roads Asphodel had paid $186.25, and Douro would pay $262.99, amounting to $449.24. This sum subtracted from the gross expenditure, left $11,122.10. Mr Doris said that three miles of new road had been made this year.

"We put 7,206 cubic yards of gravel on the roads at a cost of $3,762.30," Mr. Doris said. "The cost worked out at 52 cents per cubic yard including loading and hauling, and at times we had to draw it six, eight and ten miles."

Mr. Doris spoke of work done by the Law Construction Company in reducing two hills on the fifth line, and also on other roads from which gravel was obtained by the company for their contract on No. 7 highway. "Cutting down the two hills on the fifth line didn't cost us five cents. The company finished up early, and we put on enough gravel to carry the ratepayers in the Spring. That gravelling cost us $86. Afterwards some wheel scraping cost $152. What the company did would have cost us around $1,000 if we had to pay for it."

Similar work on the seventh and ninth lines could not be completed until Spring, Mr. Doris said. It might be a temporary inconvenience to the ratepayers, but the entire lowering of grades by the Law Construction Company had saved the township thousands of dollars, and the benefits would be felt by the people when the finishing touches were made next year.

Replying to one of the ratepayers, Mr. Doris said the road expenditure amounted to slightly more than $11,000 as compared with $7,500 last year.

"We'll soon be a roadin' township not a farming place," George Fife remarked.

Mr. Doris replied that in 1936 the government had paid back 40 per cent. of the cost, and the refund this year was increased to 50 per cent.

Reeve Anderson

"I think the council can report a satisfactory year from a municipal standpoint," Reeve Anderson said in his review. "Some people may think we spent a lot on roads, but we never had so many people asking for road work since I have been in the council. This year was the only time in the history of Otonabee that we had a construction company reduce the grade of hills at no cost to us. And people have been using those hills for eighty or ninety years.

In the forepart of this year things looked like a boom, but they are not so bright just now. However, we are more prosperous than we were and it is to hoped that prices will not go to the same depth as before. We levied three-quarters of mill for roads this year, because there have been more demands for both township and county roads work. If the people want more and get more, of course it costs a little more. I think we have been able to catch up some on back taxes."

Reeve Anderson said there had been a splendid decrease in Peterborough county's taxes this year. Rates have to be struck in June on estimated expenditure before the year is half gone. The estimates of the county for 1936 were $139,414, and for this year $104,519, a reduction of $38,866. All departments of the county did not show a reduction. The House of Refuge was $2,200 more than in 1936 when the county received a revenue for the maintenance of old people from Northumberland and Durham at $4.50 a week until the new Counties Home was completed. Children's Aid Society was $1,100 more than in 1936; jail $400 more, county roads $235 more and some other items were higher. The net result was a reduction of $33,150 in county taxes.

The government assumed $5,800 old age pensions and $9,100 mother allowances, a total of $14,900, which should be subtracted from the $33,000. Charging the cost of education back to the village took $6,600 off the county's bill, and that sum would have to be made up this year by the Lakefield, Havelock, Norwood and Ennismore, the municipalities having high schools. "We paid half the cost of their pupils before," Mr. Anderson said

After two annual payments of $10,000 on the provincial highways account of $60,000 in 1934, the council last year sold debentures to spread the payment over a period. The cost this year was $3,844 less than in 1936. The township had a deficit of $1,429 in 1935 and a surplus of $3,277 last year, a total of $4,806, Mr. Anderson said, so all of the reduction in municipal costs was not due to the government.

The county road rate was one-tenth of a mill less than last year, but with the higher assessment it produced $256 more this year. About 16,000 cubic yards of crushed gravel were turned out for use on the county roads at a cost of 66 cents a cubic yard The production was 6,000 cubic yards more than the crusher had ever before yielded in one year, Mr. Anderson said.

One thousand feet of snow fence had been purchased at a recent meeting of the township council for use on township roads, Reeve Anderson continued, and the council desired to know what was the opinion of the ratepayers toward that outlay. Ratepayers on side roads have to pay their share of keeping up the county roads but they don't get any benefits on their own lines.

"If there is any objection to buying some road fence now is the time to tell us to stop. The county buys about one mile a year. Harvey, Smith and North Monaghan have probably bought a little. We haven't done anything with the 1,000 feet we bought. The problem is to decide where to put it."

George Fife said the township might be able to make snow fence at 15 cents a yard for its own needs. The price for the manufactured product is 9½ cents a foot and 52½ cents for posts. In conclusion Mr. Anderson said he was interested in several undertakings that were not yet completed, and he was offering his service again to the ratepayers if they wanted him to carry on.

Deputy-Reeve Reid

Harry Reid, Deputy-reeve, recalled the equalized assessment debate in the county council. Otonabee used to pay one-quarter of the county taxes, but by the new equalization its contribution is less than one-fifth.

"We agreed to take one-fifth or $2,000,000," Mr. Reid said, "but the rest of the county council wouldn't accept that, so we really came out better than we were expecting."

Otonabee's share of the county taxes in 1936 was $32,709.89, and this year $20,491.20, a total reduction to the township of $12,218.69. The government had saved the county about $15,000 in old age pensions and mothers allowance this year, and Otonabee's part of that would be $3,000. Subtracting that sum from the $12,218.69, Mr. Reid said, left $9,218.69 saved by the municipal council for the ratepayers. He also reviewed the debenture debt of the county, saying it would have been almost wiped out by this year if the debt to the province for highways had not been funded by issuing debentures.

Mr. Reid said the three councillors were young men who had been elected three years ago. He had told them that if any of them wanted to step up for deputy-reeve he would go on for reeve. They were willing to stay as councillors, and Mr. Reid said he would continue as deputy, and asked the support of the ratepayers.

Tax Rate Down $13,806

Peter Mather said this year's tax roll was down $13,806 a fact that made the annual reporting to the ratepayers rather pleasant. Mr. Thorn and Mr. McIntyre also spoke of the township's financial condition after the year's operations and their hope that a gain would be made in paying taxes that are past due.

Percy Davidson, a former deputy-reeve said he would not cause an election this year. He had agreed to accept nomination at the request of quite a number of ratepayers, but he would not stand in the way of the economy of avoiding election costs.

Mr. McElroy was not present, and his name was withdrawn by the men who had proposed him.

J. J. Moore said the township would be in an exceptionally strong position if the taxes in arrears were paid, and Reeve Anderson remarked that when the auditors went over the township's books he expected a surplus of $6,000 or $7,000.

ACCLAMATION IN ENNISMORE.

Reeve James Gifford was re-elected by acclamation in Ennismore on Monday. The nominations for the Council were as follows: Maurice O'Connor, Frank Young, Edward O'Donoghue, and Vincent Murphy, the four old members of Council, and Thomas Cavanagh, Daniel Hickson, and Hubert Flood.

HASTINGS, Dec. 27.—Icy roads in the village accounted for at least one near accident over the week-end. Billie Faux, 14 year old son of Mrs. W. He was thrown clear of the vehicle and escaped unhurt.

THREE ARE NAMED FOR REEVE'S CHAIR IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

cial side of his council's administration during 1937 in reviewing his stewardship. On the 1936 roll was a total of $47,353.28 in taxes to be collected and on the 1937 roll, $41,-961.43, he said. Of the total amount, $46,170.80 was collected on the 1936 roll and $34,650 was collected on the 1937 roll. Yet to be collected on the 1937 taxes is a total of $7,211.43 but the roll has not yet been returned, he said.

Figures

He cited a number of comparative figures to show an improved position in 1937 as compared with 1936. The total assessment in 1937 was $1,872,783 in 1937 against 1,891,-783 in 1936, he said. Pointing to the decrease of more than $5,000 in the collector's roll, he reminded that the county rate was down from $25,-123.09 in 1936 to $21,791.18 in 1937. The total general rate for the township was down three mills at 18.1 mills compared with 21.1 mills in 1936, he said.

Mr. Mullen hinted he might be accorded the wardenship of the County Council this year if he is returned to the reeve's chair. He told the gathering he had served the township in one or another public office a total of 23 years and would be pleased to continue as reeve if returned.

Mr. Armstrong, Mr. Fowler and Wilbert Roseborough took the floor briefly to announce they intended to stand for office. Hilliard Dunford was absent. Mr. McIlmoyle stated he would be in the field as long as he was not the cause of an election.

Taking the floor, Mr. Mann declared the increase in the Smith assesment has been "one of Smith township's greatest misfortunes." Owing to the township's position adjacent to the city, the assessment's were raised, he said. At an earlier day such reasoning would have been just, he continued, but with th good roads of the present day a pound of butter is worth as much in Apsley as in Peterborough. Smith's assessment was increased by $248,000, nearly one-seventh, yet Otonabee's was lowered by $390,000, he said. Under the assessment schedule now in effect, land in Smith is being assessed at $37 an acre while land in Otonabee is being assessed at $32 an acre. Land in Ennismore is assessed at $17 an acre on an average, he said.

Unfair

"To me, Smith has been unfairly dealt with," Mr. Mann declared. "If elected reeve, I'll make every effort to have this reduced."

Mr. Edmison said he had no intention of standing and Mr. Tedford announced he would run. Mr. Millar, Mr. Westlake and Mr. McConkey said they were undecided.

Ex-Warden J. A. Middleton pointed out that the reeve and deputy-reeve could not be blamed for inaction on the assessment this year since the township was bound to accept it for the year. "But whoever is carrying on, it is up to them to get a more equalized assessment next year," he said.

Clerk Percy T. Udy reported he has written to the Hydro Commission for an adjustment by reason of the fact the Canada Cement power house was lost to Smith township assessment rolls on its purchase by the Hydro.

"How many men are there here who have planted a tree in front of their farms in the last 25 years?" asked T. T. Milburn as he suggested that each farmer in Smith do his part to embellish the roadsides with beautiful trees. "Our side roads are just the same as our fathers left them. Each one of us could plant a tree each year."

END OF CORONATION YEAR STIRS SIGH

new and varying lanes. These petty alarms proved baseless but served nevertheless to temper the strengthening coronation spirit with nervous strains. Feeling for Edward died harder, perhaps, than the press chose to admit. "The Prince of Wales, God bless 'im," had been something more than Prince of Wales in the hearts of hundreds of thousands.

And yet his popularity was preserved at only small expense to the respect and admiration for the new king. George VI made no ostentatious appeal for support yet in his quiet way he reminded everyone of his beloved father—and that proved his greatest strength. He resumed the manners and customs of a king as Britain had known them for 26 years. If he lacked Edward's smile and Edward's personal popularity, he offered in their stead a genuine regard and understanding of his people and a determination to work for their welfare.

Strange May in Parks.

May came to London as it had never come before. The famous parks and gardens of the city had given place to great stands, refreshment tents and temporary buildings to house troops. Trees along the Mall broke their buds only to have their leaves thrust against two inch planks, and the birds of St. James' Park sang an accompaniment to the ring of hammers and the tramping of drilling soldiers.

The world moved to London. The court calendar throbbed a persistent and convincing denial that His Majesty suffered from ill health. State banquets and balls turned a mirror on the majestic social life of bygone days and the streets ran with people and children desperately seeking a glimpse of ladies fair and escorts handsome.

The Coronation procession achieved with all its slow dignity and radiant color the incredible feat of living up to imaginative expectation. The King and Queen gave themselves to the nation in Westminster Abbey with serious mien and sacred intent. And—the King was crowned.

Came a fortnight's jubilant activity. The country joined in the spirit of Buckingham Palace's Royal Ball and a thousand and one fatherings sang God Save the King even while the statesmen of the Empire conferred at round table to strengthen His Empire.

When Their Majesties moved to Balmoral for the quiet and rest they had earned, all England cried "so be it" and settled down to work, and since "work" at that time meant, for most, pouring from the cities for holiday resorts there was naught but happiness in the land.

To conclude the year was easy. With the triumphant Coronation, and all its manifestation of genuine loyalty, died the anxious wondering about Edward and George. Sympathy for Edward will never die, nor perhaps affection. But it will be left to biographers and newspapermen to harp on "the events of December 1936" for the people will have none of it

Ottawa Happy.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28.—(CP)—Members of the government remaining in Ottawa during the holiday expressed satisfaction today in the success of J. N. Francoeur, Liberal candidate in the Lotbiniere by-election.

In the return of Mr. Francoeur yesterday with a large majority Prime Minister Mackenzie King saw "further evidence of nationwide approval of the policies of the federal Liberal administration."

Electors of Lotbiniere, the Prime Minister said, "have not been misled by appeals to prejudice or to sectional interest. They have voted as Canadians, placing the national interest before all else. They have given no countenance to new and unnatural alliances which threaten the unity of Canada."

A special significance was given the outcome of the voting, the Prime Minister said, because of "efforts of the Independent-Nationalist candidate and his supporters in Lotbiniere to inject into the campaign false issues respecting defence and provincial autonomy."

Justice Minister Lapointe, Quebec's leading representative in the cabinet, declared the Lotbiniere verdict was "again the sane voice of Quebec." His comment was given in Quebec City as he departed for a Florida holiday which he delayed in order to take part in the by-election campaign.

Yesterday's was the 16th by-election since 1935 and the result has left the government standing increased by one, Victoria, which went Liberal in the November by-election for the first time in 30 years. The gain was at the expense of the Conservative group.

One by-election is outstanding, that in Montreal-St. Henri where the Liberal member, Paul Mercier, was appointed to the Montreal district court bench. It is scheduled for January 17.

Sir Douglas Hazen Passes In N.B.

SAINT JOHN, Dec. 28.—(CP)—Sir Douglas Hazen, retired Chief Justice of New Brunswick, who served as Conservative member in the House of Commons from the time of Sir John A. Macdonald to that of William Lyon Mackenzie King, died to-day. He was 77.

Stricken by pneumonia, induced by other ailments, Sir Douglas became seriously ill Christmas eve. He lost strength steadily and died at his home.

Death brought to a close more than 50 years of public service during which Sir Douglas served as Premier of New Brunswick, Canadian Minister of Marine, Fisheries and Naval Affairs, Mayor of Fredericton and a member of the Provincial Legislature for a quarter-century.

WHITE TRAPPERS DOOMING INDIANS

years ago who took pride in their ability to derive a living from forests and the stream and be as they thought independent of white men," Godsell said. "To-day, I've seen those same families brought to utter destitution by inroads of white trappers and depletion of areas in which they hunted."

Godsell exploined the 50,000 Indian men, women and children up North had 15,000 breadwinners whose primitive mode of hunting could not match the white man's mechanical bird nor his other tricks of obtaining a living from animals of northern woods and the fish-lined streams. One of these "diabolical" tricks in trade was use of poison.

23,681 Licenses To Whites.

In season 1935-36, he said, 23,681 hunting and trapping licenses were issued to white trappers in Quebec, Ontario, Western provinces and the Northwest Territories.

"Many of these white men used poison to destroy large quantities of animals," Godsell said. "Besides this devilish practice, the white man and his plane soon around north to locate natural nurseries or sanctuaries where animals breed and overflow to populate the Indian hunting grounds. From this very source they are able to smother the Indian's livelihood."

This friend of the red man had suggestions for remedying the ills of the red skin.

"Hunting and trapping privileges should be restricted in all Northern Canada to the Indian and Eskimo population. The white trapper must be elliminated if justice is to be done the northern Indians and unless they are to become entirely dependent on the taxpayer."

The former Huhson's Bay Company fur-trader sketched a picture of "Indians and their families dejected, broken-down, spiritless specimens of depravity, totally at a loss to know how to meet economic disaster with which they are faced."

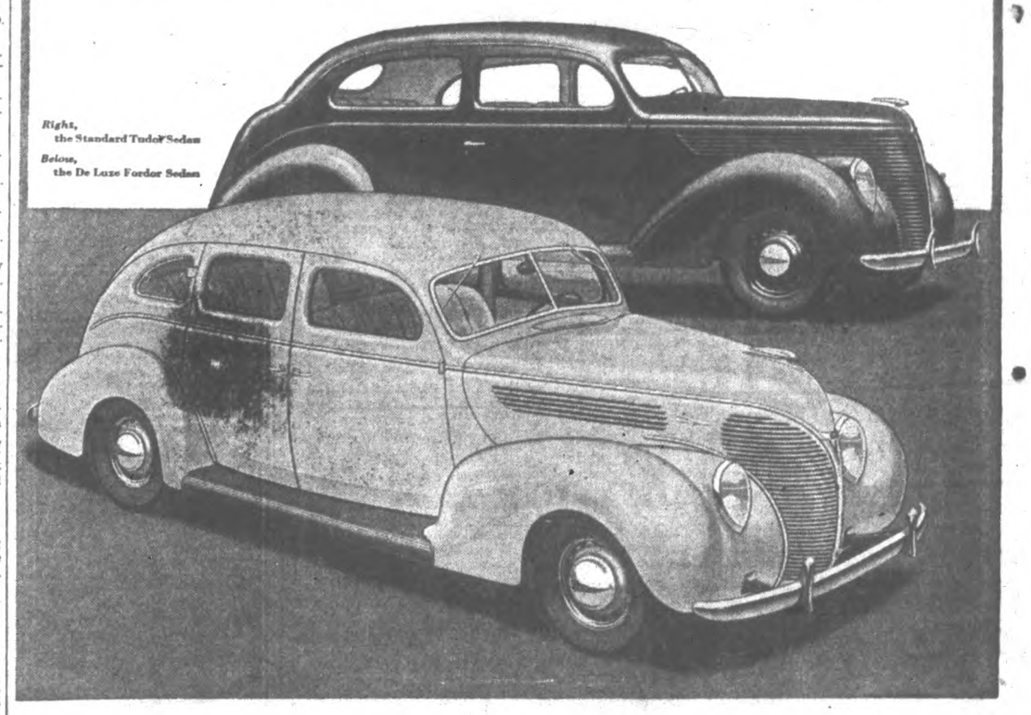
FOR 1938

FORD OFFERS TWO NEW CARS and keeps their PRICES LOW



Right, the Standard Tudor Sedan

Below, the De Luxe Fordor Sedan

THERE are two new Ford cars for 1938 — the De Luxe and the Standard — differing in design, appointments and price — but built on the same generous 112-inch Ford wheelbase.

Both are big, impressive cars, and thoroughly modern in appearance. Both have the famous Centre-Poise Ride and Ford Easy-Action Safety Brakes. Both bring you the basic advantages and the smooth, effortless performance of the 85-horsepower Ford V-8 engine.

Step Up to the V-8 Class

V-type 8-cylinder engines were used only in expensive cars before Ford made them available in The Universal Car. Eight cylinders give great smoothness and flexibility. Compact V-type construction leaves more room for passengers and luggage.

Both new cars are economical to operate. The facts of Ford V-8 economy are confirmed by the findings of owners, who have reported 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline. And both new cars are priced low. Low price, like economy, is a Ford tradition. Ford founded the low-price field 30 years ago and keeps Ford prices low today.

The De Luxe Ford costs slightly more than the Standard Ford, but provides extra room and style. Both cars, in proportion to price, represent unusual values. Both are built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence. Both bring you the comfort and pride of ownership you expect of a Ford.

Building on Last Year's Success

More people bought the 1937 Ford V-8 than any other 1937 make. It was a good car. But these are better cars, because Ford improvement goes on constantly. You'll realize that when you see and drive either Ford V-8 for 1938.

FOR LOW DELIVERED PRICES SEE YOUR LOCAL FORD DEALER

De Luxe Ford V-8 models are Coupe, Tudor Sedan, Fordor Sedan, Convertible Coupe, Club Coupe, Convertible Club Coupe, Phaeton and Convertible Sedan.

Standard Ford V-8 is available in three models: Coupe, Tudor Sedan and Fordor Sedan.

Ford sells a fully equipped car at the lowest possible price. The prices on De Luxe models include twin tail lights, two windshield wipers, two sun visors, twin electric horns, cigar lighter, de luxe steering wheel, glove compartment clock and lock, chrome wheel bands, in addition to front and rear bumpers and guards, spare wheel and tire and tube, tire lock, and headlight beam indicator.

Prices on Standard models include front and rear bumpers and guards, spare wheel and tire and tube, tire lock, one tail light, one windshield wiper, one sun visor, cigar lighter, headlight beam indicator, and two horns.

Two Boys Escape With Ducking In Rescuing Toy Airplane

Model Airplane Equipped With Motor Built By Boys

When their ski-equipped Curtiss Robin airplane made a forced landing on thin ice in the upper reaches of the Otonabee River on Monday afternoon, Ken Rose, 15-year-old owner and his 13-year-old companion, Leo Clancy, escaped with a ducking.

The machine in question is a model airplane built by young Rose, who hopes some day to be a commercial pilot. Specializing in auto mechanics at the Vocational School the young aircraft builder made his working model from parts he imported from the United States.

Having an overall length of 54 inches, the model has a wing spread of 6 feet. It is powered with a single cylinder twin area gasoline engine, which is capable of doing 7,500 r.p.m. The plane can attain a top speed of 90 miles an hour.

Tried Out on Golf Links.

The two lads live in neighboring houses on Water Street. Monday afternoon early, they took the plane out to Peterborough Golf Club property and after warming up the tiny motor, released it on another of many flights it has made during the twelve months or more that Rose has owned the machine.

Making a brave looking sight with its scarlet fuselage and yellow wings, tail and rudder, the little machine flew around in circles above the two lads. As the seconds lengthened into minutes and the machine showed no signs of returning to land, the young owner and his companion began to get anxious.

Their anxiety turned to alarm as the machine straightened out of the circle in which it had been flying and headed out over the Otonabee River. Just as they began to wonder how much longer the gasoline in the lilliputian tank would hold out, the engine gave a little cough and died out.

Dived Into River.

Making a graceful nose dive the machine plunged downward toward the river. Would it land in the water and sink from sight or would it happily hit on one of the thin though convenient shelves of ice that jutted out from the bank? It decided on the latter course and came to a perfect 3-point landing.

Fearful lest the thin ice should not support the weight of the tiny machine, the lads borrowed a boat. Pushing it ahead of them they ventured out on the thin ice after the plane.

Just as they reached the machine and got it in their grasp, the ice gave way and the lads were unable to clamber into the boat before they got their feet and legs soaked.

Reaching shore they hurried home with their plane and got a good rub down. They were little the worse for their adventure. The plane, too, was undamaged. As proof, Rose proudly started up the tiny engine to demonstrate its power to an Examiner reporter.

A few turns of the "prop" and the little motor sprang into action emitting a roar that might have done credit to the motor of a real plane.

GIRL, JUNK DEALER HELD WITH YOUTH IN COHEN MURDER

A girl acquaintance, Frances Ward, 23, and junk dealer Louis Frateur, 43, were held as material witnesses as their stories of handling the revolver with which police allege Robicheau killed Cohen in his store Dec. 17 were probed. From the witness stand at last night's inquest the girl testified nervously that Robicheau had told her of the slaying.

A .22 calibre revolver produced at the inquest was identified by the girl as one she obtained from Robicheau after the killing, carried in her dress for two or three days and finally hid in a wooded property to where she was driven by Frateur at the junk dealer's suggestion. She said she took two empty shells from the gun, hid them in a bedstead leg and destroyed them later. Cohen was shot twice in the side and in the head.

Frateur testified he bought the weapon from Robicheau and sold it back to him before the slaying.

A Robicheau Confession

Police produced a purported confession to which Robicheau allegedly outlined circumstances of a visit to Cohen's store Dec. 17 with intent to rob. The statement said Robicheau obtained a pair of high boots from the merchant, then demanded his money.

Cohen refused and as he started toward the intruder, Robicheau fired, the statement said. The youth fled outside, slipped on the street and dropped a parcel, it continued.

Cohen grasped him from behind the neck, the statement said, and Robicheau fired over his shoulder to "scare Cohen." The merchant fell away and Robicheau raced by a roundabout course to Miss Ward's home, it concluded.

DAINTON IN FIELD FOR CITY COUNCIL

The name of Frederick Dainton was inadvertently omitted from the list of candidates for the two-year aldermanic terms in the Council. Mr. Dainton was proposed by James Garside and seconded by Joseph Welch. He qualified promptly, was among the earliest in the field, and it is regretted that perhaps in the alphabetical arranging of the names of the candidates his was left out.

BRITAIN REMAINS GREAT BULWARK FOR DEMOCRACY

"In the midst of a world wracked with trouble, Great Britain is the only bulwark remaining for the cause of democracy and if it were not for the British navy we, who are so fortunate to live in this wonderful country would not be able to stand up and sing "O Canada!" William J. Stewart, former Mayor of Toronto declared here Monday evening. W.Bro. Stewart was addressing the annual Festival of St. John the Evangelist held in the Empress Hotel by the Corinthian and Peterborough lodges of the Masonic order.

W.Bro. H. T. Cranford was installed as Master of Corinthian Lodge, and W.Bro. E. M. Turner Master of Peterborough Lodge. W.Bro. James Baird, assisted by past masters of the two lodges, installed the new officers prior to the celebration of the festival.

During the installation, a past master's jewel was presented to W.Bro. Ford Turner by the members of Peterborough Lodge.

New Officers

The officers of the two lodges are: Corinthian Lodge.—W.Bro. H. T. Cranford, W.M.; W.Bro. C. Alex. Sollitt, I.P.M.; Bro.W. A. Donnelly, S.W.; Bro. C. H. Crowe, J.W.; Bro. F. E. Kerr, Chaplain; W.Bro. A. J. Throop, Treasurer; W.Bro. R. F. Downey, Secretary; Bro. R. C. Honey, S.D.; Bro. E. R. Shirley, J.D.; Bro. Donald Loucks, I.G.; Bro. W. D. Taylor, S.S.; Bro. S. G. Payne, J.S.; Rt. Wor. Bro. J. F. Allin, D. of C.; Bro. Frank Stevens, Organist; W.Bro. Garbutt Mann, Tyler.

Peterborough Lodge.—W. Bro. E. M. Turner, W.M.; W.Bro. Fred Hills, I.P.M.; Bro. D. T. Crawford, S.W.; Bro. C. H. Elliott, J.W.; W.Bro. W. Anderson, Chaplain; Rt. W. Bro. Alex. Gibson, Treasurer; W. Wilson, D. of C.; Bro. Percy Luther, Tyler.

W.Bro. Fred Hills, the retiring master of Peterborough Lodge, presided during the banquet, while W. Bro. Alex. C. Sollitt, the retiring master of Corinthian Lodge, was largely responsible for the splendid program.

Frank Oldfield of Toronto delighted his hearers with two groups of numbers, and during the dinner the Northrop orchestra played.

Rt. W. Bro. Duncan Walker proposed the toast to the "Visiting Brethren," and this was responded to by Bro. Carman B. Shaver whose roll call revealed Masons present from lodges in practically every section of Ontario.

The toast to the "Sister Lodges" was proposed by Rt. Wor. Bro. W. D. Campbell, and replied to by W. Bro. James Turnbull, master of Royal Arthur Lodge.

W. Bro. R. F. Downey proposed the toast to the "Absent Brethren." The guest speaker of the evening was introduced by Rt. W. Bro. John Comstock.

Take Interest in Politics

Mr. Stewart took as his subject, "The Craft, The Crown, and Citizenship." He deplored the fact that so many people to-day refused to take an interest in political affairs, and he reminded his audience that while they may say 'politics are rotten,' they are just what the citizens make them. Church people in particular came in for special notice by the speaker, who wondered why so many church workers took no interest in anything but the church.

The speaker urged the forming of open forums and clubs where the events of the day could be discussed and the various "isms" thoroughly studied. He feared that very little was being done for the rising generation except that which was being taught in the Sunday schools, and here the speaker urged parents to go to church with their children, not just send them off alone and the parents stay at home.

"In these times, when Canada is threatened from within its own borders, it is a good thing that we have such an organization as the Masonic Order, for it is in such times the Masons are at their best," W. Bro. Stewart declared.

"It is about time we started to investigate thoroughly the propanda that is being spread in our midst," he said. "There are organized efforts to teach our children to disbelieve in God as we know Him and to follow the teaching of the countries with godless 'isms'."

W. Bro. Stewart said that, while he was a great believer in peace, he was totally unwilling to even consider peace programs calling for the disarmament of Britain.

"It is our duty to start by cleaning our own house," he said. "We have not moved a hand to rid our country of several 'isms'."

Bro. James Hamilton thanked Wor. Bro. Stewart for his fine address.

TWEED

IMBIBER FALLS THROUGH WINDOW

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 28. — Apparently somewhat unsteady on his feet, a resident of Tweed fell through the front store window of Frank Bradshaw's shoe store, in the village of Tweed on Christmas Eve. The man, who, it is reported, had been imbibing freely but not well, was desirous of purchasing a pair of shoes and had gone into the store to make the purchase. Unable to inform the clerk of his desired wants, the man is reported to have gone outside to look into the store window, when he lost his balance and fell through the store window. Fortunately the only damage done was one broken window, the inebriate escaping with minor injuries.

Failing to appear in court, after being allowed his liberty, upon his own recognizance to enjoy the festive season, a bench warrant for the arrest of Stanley Graham was requested by Chief Kidd of Belleville and Constable C. J. Hayes of Tweed, on Monday morning. Graham was taken into custory on charges of issuing worthless cheques and attempted fraud. His Worship issued the bench warrant for the apprehension of the accused as requested.

With the light snow over the week-end, the side and county roads became badly drifted, although the main highways have been kept open to traffic. The icy condition of the roads has made travelling difficult, and many automobiles have become stranded in the ditches when they slipped over the shoulders of the roads.

ICE IS HOLDING UP

Many pairs of brand new skates, just out of Santa Claus' bag, are being given try-outs these days on the five city rinks. Good ice surfaces have been maintained.

PATTERSON TAKES CHARGE

The Peterborough County agricultural office was today transferred from A. D. Runions to his successor, F. C. Patterson, R. S. Duncan, director of the Agricultural Representatives branch, spent the day in the city. Mr. Runions leaves for his new post at the Kemptville Agricultural School Friday.

WANTED FOR THEFT

City police here hold a warrant for the arrest of H. Brown for the alleged theft of a purse containing the sum of $250 from the dwelling house of Maxwell Vincent, 622 Park street. The warrant charges the offence was committed on December 26. Brown is believed to reside at Cobourg.

FUNERAL COSTS IN 1879.

A Peterborough undertaker's bill paid on December 13, 1879, amounted to $36.88. A lined coffin and outer box cost $26, one shroud and some other apparel $6.88, and eighteen pairs of gloves $4.06. Apparently it was a custom to provide gloves for mourners and perhaps some others attending the funeral.

MAIN STREET BLINKS.

It may be only fancy, but the main street lights seem to blink and gaze and glow more brightly reflecting the sparkle of some of the beauties lingering a while around some of the restaurants in their dance frocks in the wee festive hours of the mornings. There is nothing like those tableaux nocturne at any other hours around the clock.

TO NOTIFY ELECTORS.

Cards are being sent as usual from the City Hall to the local electors notifying them where they vote on New Year's Day. It is suggested that those entitled to exercise their franchise on this occasion should make a note not only of the place where they vote but of the number of the polling-subdivision because a number of polling booths are located in various rooms of the schools, and to avoid confusion it is necessary to know just what polling-subdivision is wanted.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Two local youths — one of them eighteen the other nineteen years of age, were this morning each fined $10 and 75 cents costs with the option of eight days in gaol, on pleading guilty to intoxication charges before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. Because His Worship was suffering the effects of a severe cold, Constable Gordon Puffer read the charges to the pair, and told the court they had both made nuisances of themselves while a dance was in progress at the Legion Hall the night previous.

SAW DEER ON CHEMONG ROAD

It was either a tough Christmas for the deer or one desired to do a little celebrating in the aura of the city lights is the only solution to the report of a young Lindsay man and two young Toronto men. While returning from Peterborough to Lindsay late Friday evening, Allan James, of Lindsay, Ed. Nelson and Frank Young of Toronto, saw a deer emerge from the ditch near the Chemong corners, where Highway No. 7 joins the road running into Peterborough. The deer was full-grown and headed north towards the lake.

MILD MORNING WIND.

Wind from the western quarter this morning was as bland as a chinook, and soon had water dripping off the roofs, even on the shady side of the house.

WON WATCH

Winner of the watch on the draw conducted by Bert Austin was H. A. Harris of Bank of Montreal. Alderman Robert Cotton made the draw and the winning ticket was No. 539.

MALE VOICE CHOIR

ANOTHER OLD COIN.

J. J. Cocks is another Peterborough man who possesses an old coin. He has an English penny of the vintage of 1797, issued in the reign of King George III., which he carries around as a pocket piece.

MANY DINNER GUESTS.

Many local citizens enjoyed their Christmas dinner at the Empress Hotel, which reports 158 guests for dinner at noon on the holiday, with a large number also on hand for the dinner at night.

PLOWMEN TO DANCE.

Peterborough County Plowmen's Association are planning for their annual dance on Thursday, January 7, in the Canadian Legion Hall. They are not only expecting a crowd from the county, but also from their neighboring association in Durham.

MORE OLD COINS

A few more old coins were reported to The Examiner today. T. H. Squire of 684 Water street has amongst his collection a coin minted in the reign of Charles II and bears the date 1673 while Mrs. Roy Pilling picked up on a street in London this year, 1739 George II half penny.

PEAK UP 1,798 H.P.

A new 3000 KVA transformer has been ordered by the Utilities Commission from the Canadian General Electric Company and delivery is expected about January 15. The need for expansion of the Aylmer street sub-station capacity was demonstrated again when the November peak power demand was revealed at 9,900 horsepower, an increase of 1,798 horsepower over November, 1936.

MINOR COLLISIONS

A number of minor auto mishaps which might easily have had more serious consequences resulted from the icy condition of city streets overnight. At the corner of Park and Charlotte street, a car left the roadway, cleared the sidewalk and tore down a section of fencing along the south-west corner of the intersection. Two cars suffered dents in a collision at the corner of Park and King streets at 9 p.m. A skidding auto on Charlotte street demolished some fencing at the Clinic corner.

Manvers Council Given Acclamation

BETHANY, Dec. 28 (Special). — Manvers ratepayers retained their municipal council in office for 1938 at the nominations at Bethany Monday afternoon. The council is presided over by Reeve J. C. Cummiskey, with W. J. Boggs, Deputy-reeve. The three councillors who were also returned without opposition are Herbert Neale, R. J. Payne and Albert Heslip.

Conference Call With England Took Place Over The Holiday

AN overseas conference call—the first of its kind ever placed through the Peterborough exchange of the Bell Telephone Company, united Alderman James Dutton of this city with his son in Toronto and with relatives in Carlisle, England over the Christmas holiday week-end.

"This is the first call of its kind ever placed from Peterborough and Mr. Dutton has stated that the reception was good", Carman B. Shaver, the company's district manager said.

Another conference call connected Ross L. Dobbin with relatives in Montreal and Toronto. Other long distance calls were completed to Miami Beach, Florida; Winnipeg, Regina, Vancouver, Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario.

While the normal number of long distance calls completed during an ordinary business day is 400 from Peterborough, there were no less than 600 long distance calls on Christmas Eve and 700 on Christmas Day. It was officially stated. On the day preceding Christmas Day there were 35,000 local calls as compared to a normal of 25,000 local calls.

Pope's Recovery Overshadows Vatican Incidents Of 1937

Pontiff Intimates Time For Accounting Near But Refuses To Spare Self

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 27.—(CP)—Pope Pius' remarkable recovery from an illness which the world feared would have a fatal outcome overshadowed other Vatican developments during 1937.

As the year neared its close, however, the 80-year-old pontiff repeatedly intimated his conviction that the time was not far off when he would have to "render an accounting to the Maker." Despite this belief, he persistently refused to spare himself and carried on his usual activities to the point where he often showed disquieting signs for fatigue.

The Pope himself attributed his almost miraculous recovery to the intercession of St. Therese of the Infant Jesus. Thus, when a new basilica was dedicated in July at Lisieux, France, he attested his gratitude to the "Little Flower" by sending his secretary of state, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, to represent him at the ceremony.

Almost before his physicians were certain he was out of immediate danger, the holy father had not only resumed his administrative activities but had actually redoubled them, disquieted as he was by the menacing turn world affairs were taking. In March he gave to the world three ringing encyclicals —on communism, on the church's position in Germany, and on the persecution of Catholics in Mexico.

Hits At Nazis.

These were the first of a series of Vatican rebukes to extremist creeds. In his March encyclicals, while renewing his assault on communism, the Pope did not hesitate to attack Nazism insofar as it was heading toward idolatry of the state and paganism.

In September, in his encyclical of the Rosary, the Pope returned to the attack, denouncing social injustice as the root of class war and heaping equal disapproval on Communist doctrines and on those forces which professed to fight the "red peril" by invoking pagan concepts in violation of all "divine and human" law.

Again, on Christmas Eve, when he held his annual reception for members of the college of cardinals, he protested against the German government's treatment of Catholic priests and declared the church-state clash in Germany was religious, not political. He vigorously denied charges that Catholic dignitaries merited punishment because they were meddling in politics.

If Germany has been uppermost in the Pope's thoughts, he has still found room for deep sorrow over the Spanish civil war, and his compassion has been distributed impartially in both camps while praying for an end to the carnage.

Recognizes Rebels

In September Mgr. Ildebrando Antoniutti's appointment as vatican representative in Burgos marked the establishment of relations with the Insurgents, although relations with the government were still officially maintained. The Pope delegated Mgr. Antoniutti to distribute aid among civil war victims, irrespective of their political alignments.

The year was not devoid of happier developments than the troubled international situation. On Dec. 13 the cardinal purple was conferred on five prelates, including Mgr. Arthur Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster, and Mgr. Guiseppe Pizzardo, papal undersecretary of state. It was Mgr. Pizzardo who headed a special delegation representing the Pope at King George VI's coronation.

The church's relations with Italy continued extremely cordial, although Rome's ties with Berlin provoked some uneasiness in the vatican. Nonetheless, the pontiff in May recognized Italy's Ethiopian empire and endowed it with a special apostolic delegate, Mgr. Giovanni Castelani. In April the Pope bestowed the golden rose on Queen Elena. This prompted a friendly exchange of telegrams between the vatican and the Italian court.

4 SCARRED HULKS ALL THAT REMAIN OF SEALING FLEET

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Dec. 28 (CP)—Four battered wooden ships lay waiting at their moorings here today—waiting for the March call of the sealing hunt to which three of them have responded for more than 50 years. They are all that are left of 57 vessels once comprising the famous "wooden walls of Newfoundland."

During the lifetime of those oldtimers, sturdy oaks and greenheart ships have answered the call to the seals, and sailed away to destruction in the most dangerous of all fishing adventures. Three others have gone into service in other countries— only one has been declared unseaworthy and broken up in port.

If every ships have deserved retirement and a snug anchorage these vessels have. The Ranger is 66 years old, the Neptune 65, the Terra Nova 53, and the Eagle a mere 31. But still they wait for the March day that will send them crashing and battering their way through storm and ice once more, on that ever-dangerous, ever-fascinating trip.

60 Years, Long Record

Sixty years is a long time in the life of a steel ship. It is longer for a wooden vessel subjected to the merciless crash of the ice-pack, and the pounding of northern seas. Yet year after year those products of another day have made the trip, with new history written into their gouged, scarred sides on each return.

Its almost as if they couldn't stop now, for only once has a "wooden wall" stopped travelling until she made her last trip to the bottom—that was the old Thetis, destroyed here last year after 56 years of service. All others have gone to their last resting place, still fighting in the only game they knew.

Some have disappeared completely with all their crew, like the Southern Cross with 173 men aboard in 1914. Others have foundered when their ice-weakened sides have been unable to withstand Atlantic storms.

Ice Gets Most of Them.

Majority of the old sealers, however, went down before the thing which they fought all their lives, crushed and broken by the relentless ice. Exceptions were the Viking and the Tigress, which blew up, with more than 30 lives lost in each case.

But while disaster after disaster thinned the ranks, the other ships continued to make the trip for that was the only work for which they were really suited. Blunt of bow, squat and heavy, with a sickening roll in a rough sea, slow in speed and hogs on coal, they seemed out of place in the ordinary commerce of the world.

Once their oaken stems were crushing against the northern ice, however, nothing could stop them until the last unbearable crush of the pack would write "lost in the ice while sealing," beside the name of yet another of Newfoundland's wooden walls.

Harvey Jackson And Syl Apps Crowd Drillon For Scoring Honors In National League

Sweeney Schriner And Mantha Lead Actual Goal-Getters With Ten

MONTREAL, Dec. 28 (CP) — Though nobody's crowding Gordie Drillon seriously, there's plenty of scrambling for the spots just below the young Toronto Maple Leaf in the National Hockey League scoring standing. This week, there are more Leafs on his heels.

Official league statistics released last night put Harvey Jackson and Sylvanus Apps three points behind Drillon, the leader all season. With them in the second brackets is Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers. The trio have 17 points, against Drillon's 9 goals and 11 assists.

Top Men In Goals

Top men in actual goals are Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans and George Mantha of Montreal Canadiens, with ten apiece. The speedy Habitant piled up his total before he was knocked out with an injury two weeks ago, and he's stayed at the top even though he's been on the bench that fortnight.

Another Canadien, durable little Johnny Gagnon, leads the circuit in assists. The Black Cat has helped out on 12 goals for a point total of 16, just one behind the leading four. Gagnon was in second place with Drillon this time last week, but Jackson and Apps moved out in front of him.

So far, no one is challenging Allen Shields of the Maroons for the penalty aggregate. He has a score of 43 minutes on the penalty bench, six better than his teammate, Baldy Northcott.

HOT SPELL ENDS FOR SAM SNEAD

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Dec. 28.—(AP).—Horton Smith of Chicago and Leonard Dodson, 26-year-old pro from Springfield, Mo., shot a pair of three under par 67's yesterday to share a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $4,000 open golf tournament.

Eleven golfers bettered par over the straightaway holes of this comparatively easy course in a day featured mainly by the first over-par score in nine tournament rounds for Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Snead, winter circuit sensation who won the recent Miami and Nassau opens, carded a 73 as his iron play and putting went sour.

Stanley Horne, slender Ottawa holder of the Canadian Professional Golf Association title, who placed fourth in the Miami meet, was four strokes behind the leaders, with a 71. Dick Borthwick of Toronto shot a 73 and Sam Kerr, also of Toronto, carded a 74.

Y.M. Team Enters Volleyball Series

The local Y.M.C.A. team has entered the Ontario senior volleyball competition for the winter and is grouped with Toronto Central "Y" and the Y.M.H.A. of Toronto. First series is in Toronto on January 15th, second one in Peterborough January 29th and third one February 19th in Toronto. The local prospects are working out regularly, the next practice being held tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 5.30 in the "Y."

COVERT AMONG GOAL LEADERS IN SENIOR RACE

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—For the third straight week Donald Metz of Goodyears holds down first position in the individual scoring race among the players of the Senior "A" Group clubs, according to the official figures released by Bunny Morganson, secretary of the Press Committee for the Senior "A" Group. Metz has scored seven goals and fathered four assists for a total of 11 points.

However, the best gain of the past week has been made by Port Colborne's starry centre player, Red Reynolds, who reaped a scoring harvest in the two games his team played with Kitchener to finish up a close second to the leading Metz with a grand total of 10 points.

CURLING

Echoes From No. '8'
By HERB MARTIN

Our 'hurry up' bonspiel of Monday night went over bigger than anyone expected. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning we could not get a baker's dozen to play in the 'Atrill' competition and yet at 7.45 last evening every available rink was in use and some of the boys had to keep us company on No. 8.

Maybe tomorrow or Thursday we will have the draw for the President-Vice President annual competition to be played on New Year's Day . . . We are pleased to report that the condition of J. T. Braund and A. B. Gates is greatly improved . . . We notice that the Scotch curlers are now on the high seas and expect to land in Canada within a few days.

Bonspiel Winners

First—Chickens. M. Fletcher, A. Paget, T. Ryan, O. McGill, skip. (3 wins plus 11).

Third, cigarettes. A. Nelson, H. Hamley, C. Taylor, Dr. Green, skip. (2 wins, 1 tie, plus 10).

Third, cigarettes. M. McIntyre, R. Payne, A. Jobbitt, L. Turner, skip. (2 wins, plus 7).

Fourth, cigarettes. J. Bearne, J. Welsh, G. Robertson, G. Giroux, skip. (2 wins, plus 6).

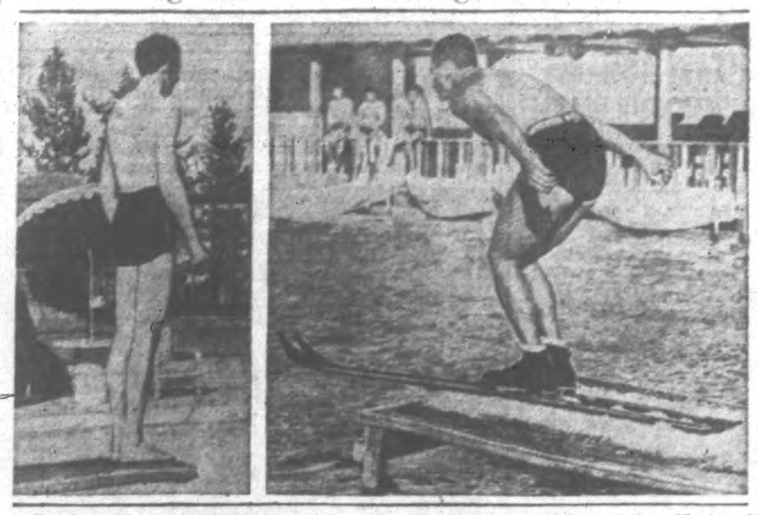
TRIANGULAR "TEST"

MELBOURNE—(CP). — A triangular lawn tennis "test" between teams representing United States, Germany and Australia has been arranged for January. Don Budge and Gene Mako will play for the U.S.

Still Active At 75

The grand old man of baseball, Connie Mack, manager of Philadelphia Athletics, recently celebrated his 75th birthday. He has won nine American league championships and five world series for the A's since coming to the club 36 years ago, and intends to remain active in baseball until he is 80. He is pictured here, at a party given him by baseball writers, players and a group of old timers.

Bathing In The North – Skiing In the South



Here's another paradox for the weather man. At the LEFT the camera is trained on Sun Valley, Idaho, a winter resort in the snow belt. Lo and behold, we see a young man about to leap into an outdoor pool, framed by a panorama of snow-covered mountains. On the RIGHT we see a ski fan at—of all places—Miami Beach, Florida. It is a special form of service, catering to winter sports enthusiasts who can't stand the cold. The skier is sliding down an incline covered with crushed ice. He lands in the swimming pool. The water-skier in this case is Captain Papana.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

DESPITE THE odd crack from critics that sports scribes do not accurately cover games, we have frequently been asked by out-of-town coaches for the clipping of our account of a game, and by local coaches for the clipping of some sports story from out of town. Generally where a game concerns teams which have not yet met the team coached by the guy who asks us the favor. The idea being that the coaches—who really must line up as much info on the coming team as possible—can learn something of the rival players via the sports scribe's account of the previous game. Or do we sound too complicated?

• • • • • •

IT IS simply a case of those in charge of sports placing a lot of faith in the game accounts by the writers. They know that the sports scribe will give a pretty fair and accurate account, pointing out a team's weakness, its style and its stars. So they can delve through the account and get a good slant on the team before said squad appears. This is true in hockey, rugby and also regarding boxing bouts. Not so much in baseball—since a box score tells the whole story to the baseball wise. Of course, writers can be wrong and make mistakes—also at times omitting an important fact—but, generally speaking, their accounts are pretty accurate and unbiased. And those who make sports their business realize this.

• • • • • •

THERE ARE a few new O.H.A. rules out this year, one being a red line across the ice 30 feet from each goal line for penalty shots. The player may skate any distance up to this line and let it go. Goalies cannot hold the puck this year nor toss it forward to a buddy—they couldn't last year—but if they toss it forward to a rival player, then play goes on. No player on a defending team, which is equal to or superior in numerical strength to the other team, shall deliberately shoot the puck across two blue lines, while defending, though a team which is weaker in numbers may do so. The puck must be deliberately shot by the defending team equal or stronger—and note that word "deliberately". We suppose the idea is to get away from the kitty-bar-the-door angle and make for more rushing and less stalling.

• • • • • •

NOT MORE than two players and the goalie may stand stationary inside their own defence zone before an attacking team carries the puck in, so a squad can't pack three or four defencemen in their own area. If any player, even goalie, throws his stick in the defence zone, a goal is awarded the other side. Referees are to check strictly on fighting, rough stuff and ragging the puck. The puck cannot be shot back from the centre area to the defence zone by one player to a teammate. Otherwise, the rules are pretty much the same.

• • • • • •

FORCED TO bust a union rule—by working overtime—the Petes opened their O.H.A. senior "B" schedule in Belleville last p.m. with a 4-3 victory over the Redmen. In a speedy struggle on a fine sheet of ice before about a thousand noisy cash customers. Yeah, a lively opener with both sides dishing up a lot of dash, though a bit rusty on the fine points of hockey. The Redmen had it over the visitors on condition but lacked the man-power, so it was pretty even all around. One Quinte sub was on the sick list, the R.C.A.F. refused to let Elliott perform for Belleville and McGuire, though listed, wasn't observed in action at all. The melee was mostly on even terms throughout, neither side showing much advantage—though later the Petes should win handily.

• • • • • •

NO SCORE in the first frame, 1-1 in the second session and 2-all going into the overtime spasm. The Petes jumped over the boards in the extra heat and really went to town for a few minutes, scoring twice fast. But Belleville got another just before the curfew rang. A bit rough in spots but nothing serious. Ned Vitarelli drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty once, but the team was penalized just two minutes. Joe Smith, ye referee, says Ned shot the puck at him but the fiery little Italian claims he didn't—that he just shot it down the ice in disgust when a play was called back.

• • • • • •

COACH PICK Hines of the Petes was experimenting in this fray and likely learned a lot. He used six of last year's intermediates, two ex-juniors and three newcomers. Of the latter, Barnes was easily the best. This scrappy defenceman bumps and blocks well back of the blue line and he can sure dangle when toting the rubber disc. He figured in on two goals and played a hard, rushing game all the way. He will help out a lot on defence. Williamson, shy on condition, nevertheless dished up a dandy defensive joust, bodying 'em around in oldtime form. He and Barnes—along with Weir—will be regulars on the rear guard this winter. Red Creighton and Brown were used to sub defence last eve, but both are forwards and failed to fool anyone on their defensive ability—though both tried hard enough.

• • • • • •

OF THE forwards, the second trio of Eddie Starr between Ned Vitarelli and Les Burton, outplayed the McDougall-Gratton-Coughlin line all the way. Starr stepped up to senior and showed the same speed and pepper he did in junior. Ned is as much of a pest to rivals as ever and will tangle with 'em all. Burton figured in on two goals as he kept dashing in, though he muffed a couple of nice chances, too. McDougall will have a good winter but will take a tilt or two to get started, as usual. Coughlin and Gratton tried hard but weren't clicking too well in this initial fray—but both should come along later.

• • • • • •

AND THAT'S the way the team looked in their debut for the '38 season. They skated hard and surprised us with the promise shown so early. They've had only a few workouts but kept stepping right with the Redmen. The wings checked back well, and young Ray Harding played a bangup game in goal, kicking out a flock. Clarke will be given a trial between the pipes next tussle and then the goaltender for the season will be named. The Barnes-Williamson-Weir defence is set, with one other to be named. We won't guess at the forwards yet as the coach is probably mulling the matter over in his noggin for the time being. Calladine and Kingdon are liable to be on the list shortly, too. We imagine the Petes will go good in a nice group within the next week or so. Belleville Redmen aren't bad either and may make quite a splash in the puddle before St. Patrick's Day in the morning.

Boston's 'Kid' Line Better Than Patrick's Front String

Records Show Bruins' Trio Have Definite Edge So Far In Campaign

BOSTON, Dec. 28 (CP).—Art Ross, major-domo of Boston Bruins, was ready, willing and evidently able to claim a victory today over Lester Patrick of New York Rangers on one count—that he has a better "kid line" than hockey's famous silver fox.

Of course, it's asking a bit too much to get the silver-thatched Rangers pilot to agree with that, but the records show that Boston's crack line of Milt Schmidt, Porky Dumart and Bobby Bauer has a definite edge so far in National Hockey League campaigning this season over Clint Smith, Bobby Kirk and Bryan Hextall, the youthful Rangers trio.

Probably the best indication of the Boston line's smoothness is shown in the fact each member has scored an even eight points to date. Schmidt made his total with five goals and three assists, Dumart with four goals and four assists, and Bauer his two goals and six assists.

16 For N.Y. Trio.

In contrast to the 24 scoring points piled up by the budding Bruins, the New York trio has 16 scoring points. Smith is tops with four goals and seven assists, while Kirk has two goals and has helped in another. Hextall has been held to lending help on two counters.

The fans in Bruin town will have the chance tonight to see these two ace lines in action when Patrick brings his Rangers there to play in one of the night's three games. Toronto Maple Leafs play New York Americans in another, while Montreal Maroons and their intra-city rivals, Canadiens, in a game originally scheduled for Christmas night but postponed.

Coach Jack Adams took another step yesterday in his attempts to find out what is wrong with his slumping world champion Detroit Red Wings by sending Goalie Normie Smith to a specialist to have his eyes examined. The pudgy backstop passed all tests with flying colors.

Adams had some good news handed him when an X-ray examination showed that Ebbie Goodfellow, absent several weeks because of a fractured wrist, will be back in harness for a Thursday game against Chicago Black Hawks. However, this good news came with the information two other rearguards, Doug Young and Scotty Bowman, might not play in the game. Bowman has a fever from influenza, while Young has a sore throat.

FISTS AND FIGHTS GALT JUNIOR GAME

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 28 (CP). —Liniment and adhesive tape were at a premium today both here and at nearby Galt as the junior hockey teams of the two cities recovered from one of the wildest battles in years.

Stratford Midgets defeated Galt's Junior Terriers 7-1 last night in a game that was labelled as 'exhibition' fixture after the visitors forfeited it, but the score was just a secondary consideration in the boisterous encounter.

Referee Charlie Talbot of Preston handed out 29 penalties, including four five-minute trips to the cooler, a misconduct and a match penalty. Several players were injured.

The boys had to take time out to way through the second session while a doctor patched up two Galt players. They had been cut in a fight involving every player on both clubs and about 50 spectators.

In the dressing-room, Coach Himes of the visitors decided to forfeit the game by removing Sarkisian and Jack Cassidy, the injured players, and using another player who had not been in uniform.

Fighting resumed about five minutes before the final whistle. Albie McPadden of the Midgets was carried off the ice with blood streaming from a gash. Guy Veteri of the Terriers drew a match penalty for the affray.

Terriers are deep in the cellar of the Big Five Ontario Hockey Association group.

Skiing was good over the week-end, reports showing fair snow conditions at Nassau, the Rifle Ranges, Bethany, and Jackson Park. Most skiers took advantage of the fine weather, and a large number of new outfits were tried out. One young lady had a very tough time with a pair of new skis, which showed a marked tendency to slide when she was climbing. Sort of a one step ahead, then two back idea. We need a ski-tow for cases like this.

Class to-night for everybody at Victoria Park at 7.30 p.m. And the wise ones are attending these instruction periods.

Budge's Lackadaisical Tennis Play Is Criticized By Australian Fans

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 28. — (AP).—Pleading "a man can't be at the top all the time—I'm no machine," Don Budge offered today to meet Jack Crawford to make up for a listless defeat in exhibition tennis at the hands of Baron Gottfried von Cramm.

Bryan Fullest, president of the New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association, announced the red-headed Californian's apology to angry White City tennis fans over the loudspeaker and told of Budge's desire to make amends tomorrow by playing Crawford, the Australian star.

Budge, who appeared hurt by the bitter criticism of officials, press and the public, explained his lackadaisical game yesterday in which Von Cramm of Germany defeated him, 6-1, 6-3.

"I don't want to be keyed up when nothing is hanging on the match," Budge said. "If I am beaten at home in an exhibition they aren't concerned.

"They naturally say, 'Why should he kill himself in an exhibition?' I took the same outlook here.

"I'm sorry the public expected so much and I'm sorry I disappointed them," Budge said. "But I did as well as I could—it was not intentional."

Petes Open Schedule With A 4-3 Victory Over Quinte Squad

Locals Forced To Go Overtime In O.H.A. Opener To Cop Decision

With a 4-3 overtime overture, the Senior "B" Petes opened their O.H.A. season in Belleville last evening. With the score tied at two-all at the end of the third period, the Lift-lock crew rammed home two goals to Belleville's one to cop the duke before a thousand fans. It was a lively opening on a good sheet of ice with plenty of speed and action shown by the oldtime puck rivals.

The Petes had a tough battle on their hands all the way through. They entered the game shy on condition and with a tentative team starting—Coach Hines being unacquainted with the local prospects and uncertain as to the ability of his players. Belleville had more condition but were short of sub players. Hence, the game was about even in every respect.

Lot Of Speed

Both squads flashed a surprising amount of speed and class for so early in the season. They did not dish up a high class of hockey but the exciting action had the fans yelling a good part of the fray. There was no score in the first frame, both scored once in the middle heat and both tallied in the third. The visitors ran in two quick ones in the overtime heat of 10 minutes and then the homesters made it close again with another counter. Play was fairly clean throughout, the Redmen drawing four of the seven penalties — though Vitarelli drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty in the first frame.

Harding, ex-junior goalie, played a bangup game in the locals' senior net, kicking out a bunch in veteran style. The defence work of Williamson and Barnes was first-rate, neither Brown nor Creighton—converted forwards—proving at home on the rear guard. The second front line of Starr, Vitarelli and Burton outplayed the starting line most of the way, but all tried hard throughout. Both Barnes and Burton figured in on two goals each. The Jackson twins went good for the homesters with Murphy and Watt also rating a mention, and the rest worked their heads off in a losing cause.

No Score In First

Play was fast from the first and quite even through the first period. A Barnes-Burton rush nearly netted the disc, and when C. Jackson went off for tripping the Petes swarmed around the rival cage but failed to tally. Wilson and C. Jackson came close and then play was up and down for a time on even terms. W. Jackson got the gate for tripping and the visitors again made it hot for Watt but could not dent the twine. Vitarelli drew a misconduct penalty for shooting the puck at the referee when play was called back at the blue line. The team was just penalized two minutes, McDougall taking the rap. Belleville pressed for a time till Murphy went off for cross-checking near the close.

There was redhot action to open the second stanza and both goalies had to jump to keep the bootheel out. Finally the Redmen broke through to tally, W. Jackson taking Storms' pass at defence to give the cage custodian no chance. It was fast, hot and exciting most of the way with the Petes giving Watt plenty to do and then checking back well. Both sides had some neat chances set up for them in close but muffed them through poor passes. Near the end of the heat, Vitarelli rapped in Burton's rebound on nice work by both inside the defence. It was still hot and pretty even at the whistle.

Both Get One

Within a minute of the third period's opening, Starr scored on Barnes' fine pass across the mouth of the goal. A few minutes later, Belleville again sewed up the score when C. Jackson took W. Jackson's pass at defence to skirt them and go in close for his shot. Play shifted rapidly from end to end of the rink and the goalies were hard pressed at times when combination rushes broke around the defence. A Creighton-Gratton-Coughlin rush looked good but failed to click, and then Baines got the finger for tripping. The visiting squad ganged up hard till Coughlin was chased for tripping and Harding had to go off for a cut jaw for a few minutes. Murphy nearly got through on a solo effort and play was hot the rest of the way with both sides in turn threatening.

They played five minutes each way in overtime. Early in this session, Barnes batted in Burton's rebound. Harding robbed Storms and then Coughlin scored on McDougall's rebound as Watt came out to block the local centre. McDougall went off for tripping and Belleville ganged up desperately but Vitarelli helped pass the time with neat stickhandling stalling. At full strength, both teams battled hard with the Belleville bunch ganging up and forcing the locals to shoot down the ice. They finally scored on the Petes with half a minute to go, W. Jackson taking a pass from Bentley in close to tally. But the Hines-Coached crew kept a one-goal margin the rest of the way.

The teams:

Petes—Goal, Harding; defence, Williamson and Barnes; centre, McDougall; wings, Gratton and Coughlin; alternates, Starr, Vitarelli, Burton, Brown and Creighton.

Belleville—Goal, Watt; defence, Bentley and Murphy; centre, C. Jackson; wings, Wilson and W. Jackson; alternates, Baines, Storms and McGuire.

They Like Hockey Over In England

LONDON, Dec. 28.—(CP Cable)—Excited English hockey fans stormed Empress Hall in the Earl's Court district of London last night to see Earl's Court Rangers and Harringay Racers play a National League game.

A section of the crowd forced an entrance into the building, knocking down the doorkeepers on the way. After the game, which Racers won, 2-0, the exuberant spectators swarmed on the ice and it took officials an hour to clear it.

In other National League games last night Wembley Lions defeated Streatham, 6-3, and Harringay Greyhounds beat Brighton Tigers 6-1.

METZ MAINTAINS SCORING HONORS IN SENIOR O.H.A.

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—(CP)—Two of the three Senior 'A' division games in the Ontario Hockey Association this week bring together clubs that have not met before this season.

Brantford Redmen entertain Toronto Goodyears to-night, for their first meeting while Wednesday the Goodyears play at Kitchener for their first match with the Greenshirts.

The games match the top club of the loop and the clubs tied for the cellar position. Kitchener and Brantford have yet to win a league game this year, while the Toronto club has yet to be beaten.

The third game this week comes when Oshawa G-Men play at Brantford. The Oshawa club beat the Redmen in their other game this year. The game scheduled for Dec. 31 between Port Colborne and Toronto Goodyears has been postponed until a later date.

Statistics issued by the O.H.A. yesterday showed Don Metz, Goodyears, maintained the scoring leadership for the third straight week. Metz scored seven goals and made four assists to beat Red Reynolds of Port Colborne for the top berth by a point. Metz hasn't been penalized this season, while Reynolds has spent 11 minutes in the cooler.

SYL APPS GETS FIRST POSITION IN CANADIAN POLL

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—(CP)—The outstanding Canadian athlete in 1937 was Syl Apps, whose feats at centre ice for Toronto Maple Leafs earned him the award in the annual Canadian Press poll. It was the first time a hockey player won the distinction.

Sports writers chose the 23-year-old Apps over such long-distance running stars as Walter Young of Verdun, Que., and Scotty Rankine of Preston, Ont. But there was no doubt as to their choice, Apps drawing more votes than the other two together.

For Apps, it was another honor to the many he earned in a brilliant hockey, football and track career at McMaster University and the ones he gained at the Berlin olympics in 1936 when he placed sixth in the pole vault.

The big centre-ice star apparently has lost no ability in his second season in the National Hockey League. He is right up with the leaders for the scoring championship, a spot he missed by only one point in his first crack at the pros last season. Then he was awarded the Calder trophy as the N.H.L.'s outstanding rookie.

In Second Position

Young was given a slight edge of ranking for the second spot while behind these two the selectors voted evenly for Bob Isbister, star kicker of Toronto Argonauts, Canadian football champions, and Sandy Somerville of London, who won the Canadian amateur golf championship for the sixth time.

Most major sports had their nominees for the best-athlete-of-the-year honor. Besides Apps, hockey placed Babe Siebert of Montreal Canadiens and Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, the N.H.L. scoring champion, in the vote while football was represented by Sarnia's Hugh Stirling and Winnipeg's Bob Fritz and Fritz Hanson as well as Isbister.

Stanley Horne of Ottawa, Canadian P.G.A. champion, drew attention. So did Johnny Loaring of Windsor and Sigurd Nellsen of Saint John, N.B., track men; boxing's Baby Yack of Toronto and Eddie Wenstob of Edmonton and swimming's Bob Pirie.

HAS NOTABLE RECORD

SWINDON, England—(CP)—Sam Allen, secretary of Swindon Town Football Club, became associated with the Wiltshire team in 1895 and has not missed a dozen matches in his 42 years' service.

There is someone who wants what you have to sell.

And there is always someone who has what you want to buy.

In either case the short cut is an Examiner Classified Ad.

Simply telephone 1600.

NOW THEY HAVE MONEY TO SPEND . . . .

and their buying starts when they read the Local Daily . . .

This evening in thousands of Ontario homes, thousands of families are considering increased expenditures. This is particularly true of families in the smaller city trading zones.

The most simple, direct and effective method to get your share of these increased expenditures is to make use of the Local Daily. No other medium can approach its uniformly high degree of reader interest. That's why —

- The purchase of your product starts when the prospect reads your message in the Local Daily

WHAT DO RETAILERS SAY?
"When national advertising plans call for a schedule in our Local Daily, you can bet your life I'm interested in the product."
Ask your salesmen. They will tell you this is a true representative opinion.

CHAPTER 25

I FELT VERY sorry for Bernice. And I felt, I'll confess, a bit uncomfortable. I had been bred to reticence. And it seemed to me astounding that Bernice could pour out her heart to me about Lionel. I knew that she suffered. There shadows under her eyes, and she fingered nervously a string of pearls which she wore about her neck. They were beautiful pearls, and to break the silence which had fallen upon us, I remarked, "What a charming clasp!"

"Of my necklace? Isn't it?" She unfastened it to show me. It was a shamrock in emeralds. "My grandmother was Irish, and these came from her. I don't often wear them. But they suit this gown. Lionel likes me in green."

"Lionel likes you in anything."

"Does he? You're a comfortable person, Jerry."

"Am I? Oh, look here, Bernice. You mustn't be downhearted! Lionel can do big things, if he is willing to work. He has real talent."

"Yet he—plays bridge," with some bitterness.

"I believe he'll buckle down. Especially if we sell the play. You'll see."

"Do you really think he will?"

"Yes." Then plunging in blindly, I said the thing I felt ought to be said, "But you must not marry him, Bernice, until he has made good."

"I'll marry him and help him."

"I wouldn't if I were you. It isn't wise."

Her voice shook, "It isn't easy to do wise things, Jerry. Not when you have always done the things you want to do. Lionel and I haven't been trained for hardness."

Well, I had been trained for hardness. Yet I wondered if anything could make me give up my dreams of marriage with Mimi.

So we sat there, Bernice and I, two young things oppressed by problems which are as old as the ages. And from the walls the simpering Queen and King and Knave who for a century had watched people come and go and win and lose, looked down on us with cynical eyes.

Lionel lost every rubber. He came over and told us when the game was ended. "I shall have to pawn my jewels," he said, "if this keeps up."

But while his tone was light his eyes were moody. Bernice put a comforting hand on his arm. But though it lay there like a snowflake ,he made no sign that he saw it.

On Sunday night, for the first time I met Mimi's mother, and from the moment I saw her I knew that it was war between us. She greeted me pleasantly enough, but there was no real warmth in her manner. She was a slender little woman, so young-looking that it seemed incredible she should have a grown daughter. She was, perhaps, the same age as my mother, yet there might have been a generation between them. Mrs. Le Brun's gay air of fashion, the touch of rouge on her cheeks, the glint of her hair, her smooth, fair neck girdled with pearls, these things seemed to divide her by years from that tiny gray ghost which haunted our old house.

The little apartment in spite of its cramped six rooms was most attractive. The furniture was excellent—inherited treasures. And Mimi's colors were evident in the blue of the draperies, the burnished green of old porcelain, the copper of certain bowls and candlesticks. There were little saffron roses in the copper bowls. Andy had, I learned, sent them.

But she wore my violets!

Andy was there, of course, and while he had little to say to me, his manner had in it nothing of open enmity. When I knew him better, I found that, while his temper was hot and got beyond him at times, he did not, as a rule, fight in the open. I think that, too, in cold blood he refused to look upon me as a rival. His pride would not admit that Mimi's interest in me could match her interest in himself.

At supper I sat beside Mimi. It was a most informal meal—Lionel presided at one chafing dish, and Mrs. Le Brun at the other. It interested me to see Lionel's deftness. I had never been among men who counted the making of a rarebit a fine art. I had melted cheese more than once in my mother's kitchen, and had toasted the bread over the glowing coals. The contrast between the two backgrounds came to me as I sat there in the tight little rooms with their effect of luxury, and I wondered if there wasn't something to be said for the beauty of that low, wide kitchen, which pretended to be nothing, but which was really so much.

Yet with Mimi beside me, I had little time for memories. She told me of her adventures since the morning we had walked together.

"I am worn to a frazzle, Jerry. I've had to stand for hours, trying on. But my things are beautiful."

"You are beautiful," I told her. "You'd be lovely in calico."

She shivered. "I shouldn't, I need silky things, Jerry, and shiny, sparkling things, and flippity-flopping trains. You ought to see my maid-of-honor dress."

"Show it to me," I said promptly.

"Shall I?" she considered it a moment, then raised her voice to command the attention of the others.

"I am going to show you my new gowns," she proclaimed.

"Mimi," her mother protested, "you're not."

"Yes, I am. Everybody who wants to see them, hold up their hands."

All the hands went up. There was much laughter.

Mimi made them a little bow. "It was Jerry's idea. He has never seen a maid-of-honor gown. And I want to dazzle him."

Andy darkened. And Mrs. Le Brun's swift glance crossed the table like the flash of a sword.

"Mimi," she emphasized, "everything is in boxes, or wrapped up in sheets."

"Everything will be out of boxes and unwrapped from sheets in a minute, Mother."

She pressed all of the men into service, and formed us into a procession from the living room to her own room, and we came back with fragrant silken armfuls, making half a dozen trips before all of the boxes were emptied.

Being mere man, how am I to describe what followed? The lovely robes heaped on chairs and tables—Mimi in the midst of them—holding

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY IN THE DEN

"Please let me go, Mr. Fox," begged Uncle Wiggily of the Bad Chap who was hurrying the rabbit gentleman along through the woods.

"No!" snarled the Bad Chap. "I've caught you at last and I'm going to keep you. Not all for myself, though. I'm going to take you to my den. The Bob Cat and Wolf are waiting there for me to come back. I said I was going out and catch you and I did."

"Did you catch cold?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Cold? No. What do you mean?"

"I thought I heard you say—katch-oo!"

"I said I was going to CATCH YOU—say, it does sound like a sneeze, doesn't it?" For once in his life the Fox almost laughed.

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily, "it does But I'm glad you aren't catching cold, Mr. Fox. You will be kinder then, and let me go."

Wouldn't Speak

"I tell you I won't let you go, so don't ask it!" snarled the Fox. "What would the Wolf and Bob Cat say if, after I had caught you, I let you go? They'd never speak to me again."

"I wish they'd never speak to me again, and you, too," thought the rabbit gentleman. But he didn't say it as the Fox hurried him along through the woods. At last they reached the den.

"Don't let it bite me!"

"Oh, so you caught him, did you?" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Wolf, showing all his teeth. "Uncle Wiggily at last! How did you catch him, Foxie?"

"Oh, I'm smart!" said the Fox, pushing the rabbit into the den. "He wanted me to let him go but I didn't."

"It's a good thing you didn't," snarled the Wolf.

"Did he offer you anything to let him go?" asked the Bob Cat.

"No, not exactly," the Fox answered. "Pretended to be glad I wasn't catching cold. But he has something with him."

"What?" asked the Wolf and Bob Cat together, like twins, though they weren't at all, except they were both Bad Chaps.

"He said it was a toy Christmas engine," went on the Fox. "He told me it wasn't good to eat."

"Probably it is and he was trying to fool you," said the Wolf.

"Of course!" agreed the Bob Cat. "Let's see it."

"He wants to eat it himself!" yapped the Fox.

Hand It Over!

"Believe me, gentlemen," said Uncle Wiggily (calling the Bad Chaps gentlemen, which they were far from being), "believe me, gentlemen, a toy Christmas electric engine isn't good to eat."

"That's what you say!" sneered the Wolf.

"Just pretending," whispered the Bob Cat.

"It may be good sauce for the rabbit stew we are soon going to have," chuckled the Fox, looking at Uncle Wiggily's ears. "No more fooling, now. Hand over that toy engine!" the Fox growled.

"Well, here it is," said Uncle Wiggily, setting on the floor of the den Buster's toy Christmas engine. Uncle Wiggily had just bought powerful, new electric batteries for it. "Here is the electric engine, but I'm telling you it isn't good to eat."

"You're only trying to play a trick on us," said the Fox.

The Bad Chaps gathered around Uncle Wiggily and the engine. All of a sudden it started to go. It went right at the Fox, who jumped back and fell down. Then the engine steered for the Wolf lickity split!

"Wow! Dont let it bite me!" howled the Wolf and he fell down.

Next the engine steered right at the Bob Cat.

"Mew! Mew! Mew!" he howled and he turned a back somersault. And then Uncle Wiggily, who knew how to do it, stopped the engine, picked it up and ran out with it. Ha! Ha! Ha!

So if the pussy cat doesn't wash the face of the clock instead of its own tail I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's shock.

LITTLE COASTERS CLOSE TO DEATH AS CAR IS HIT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Dec. 28.—Bobbie, the seven-year-old son of Alex Davis of Norwood is suffering from a slight concussion of the brain and his five-year-old brother, Carl, sustained bruises of the head and shoulder as the result of what might very easily have been a fatal coasting accident here Monday afternoon.

The two little fellows were sleigh-riding down Victoria street where it crosses No. 7 highway and ran into a car being driven east by Bert Hull of Buffalo.

No blame it attached to the driver of the car who, in an attempt to avoid the crash, veered his machine to the east side of the road going over an embankment at the Orange Hall and damaging the fenders, running-board and brakes of the car. The injured boys were taken to Dr. Carlton's office for first aid. The accident was investigated by Constable Harry Baker.

PEACOCK FEATHERS

this one up so that we might see the lines of it—arraying herself in splendid cloaks and capes, spreading out the train of the maid-of-honor dress — pearl - embroidered, fur-edged. Andy's eyes on her, gloating. Mrs. Le Brun, smiling, but watchful and intent.

For Mimi kept saying, 'Do you like this, Jerry?' and "This is a design of silver peacock feathers, Jerry," and "The ermine on this cape was Mother's, Jerry. She wore it when she was queen of love and beauty over 20 years ago."

Yet in spite of her friendliness, I was oppressed by it all. It seemed to me that Mimi, the child Mimi, was being smothered in velvet and fur and weighed down by heavy embroideries of gold and silver and pearl; that all of this extravagance was the chain which bound her to a life of luxury, and which would drag her towards marriage with someone who could wrap her always in purple and fine linen. And I, impotent to break that chain, must see her torn away from me...

Perhaps my face showed something of what I felt, for while young Sylvester in gorgeous cloak and feathered hat, amid the laughter of the crowd, was giving an imitation of Mimi making her first bow to society, she left the centre of the stage, and came and sat beside me.

"You are as solemn as an owl, Jerry. What's the matter?"

"I am not used to such grandness. It makes me feel miles away from you."

Her voice was sharp. She was tired, excited. "You know I am not miles away from you. But I shall be if you don't want me to enjoy pretty things."

"I want you to enjoy them."

"No, you don't. I am afraid you are a prig, Jerry, and a Puritan."

If she had struck me in the face she could not have more astounded me. I was too inexperienced in the ways of women to understand that the exacting and difficult days just past had brought her a state of mind which made her actually hysterical. She was hurt, too, to the heart, by my lack of response to her mood.

"Why shouldn't you enjoy things with me?" she went on rapidly. "This is my life and I—love it. I hate poverty—and cheap clothes."

Sylvester was calling her, and whirling away from me, she was again the centre of the crowd. Yet I was aware presently that the zest of the thing was ended for her, and at last she threw up her hands in a little gesture of despair. "Isn't everybody tired of me? I know I'm tired of myself. Let's do something else."

Her mother exclaimed, "Not with everything in such confusion, Mimi."

"I adore confusion, Mother."

"But Mimi—."

"Oh, well, I'll let the boys work for us. They can put everything back in the boxes."

"I shan't work," Sylvester declared, "unless I know what the prize will be."

They gathered around her—Andy and Lionel, Stiles and Sylvester, with the other youths who made up the crowd. Mimi was sitting on the arm of a carved mahogany soft—swinging a slippered foot, a shining lovely figure with her burnished blue dress, and red-gold hair.

She glanced across at me, glanced away. I had not moved from my seat. She spoke in a high hurried tone. "I'll give a —kiss... to the one who does the best work... and Jerry shall be one of the judges... and Katherine... and Bernice..."

In the midst of a roar of laughter, I said, "I shall not be a judge. I shall compete." I laughed with them. I flung it off lightly. None of them should know my awful sense of disillusionment. It was as if the Blessed Damosel had bartered her favors.

SANTA BARRED IN MELBOURNE

Berlin Enjoys 'One-Dish' Dinner

Every Sunday in Germany is "one-dish" day, the day that loyal Germans prepare their dinners of a single dish. The object is to conserve the Reich's dwindling food supplies and to supply relief for the poor. Here is a street corner scene in Berlin as the army joined householders in the enterprise to collect victuals for winter relief. Army cooks are serving customers with the day's dish, in this case stew, from rolling kitchens.

Enraged Lover Shoots Ex-Girl Then Runs Over Her

Finished Her With Piece Of Steel When She Refuses To Marry Him

NEWARK, N.J., Dec. 28 (AP). — Police quoted a 26-year-old factory worker as saying today that unrequited love led him to beat and shoot to death pretty Antoinette Imperiale, 22.

Enraged over her refusal to marry him, Vincent Franco drove his automobile over the girl's body after she had fallen with two bullet wounds, Detective George Meagher said.

Meagher said the slaying yesterday occurred when Franco, sitting in his car with the girl, asked:

"When are you and I getting married?"

Her reply was "Never, I've got another boy-friend."

The detective quoted Franco as describing the slaying:

"I pulled the gun out of my pocket and hit her twice on the head. She got away from me and jumped out (of the car) as I fired a shot at her.

"She ran up the street and I followed her, hitting her over the head with the gun. She fell down. I fired some more shots at her, but she got up and ran inside some bushes.

"I ran and jumped in the car, made a wide circle, drove over the curbstone and ran over her where she lay in the bushes. She got up again. Then I took a piece of steel and got out of the car and began to beat her with it until she was out."

WHITE LEAD CAUSE OF CATTLE'S DEATH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 28.—The strange death of five cattle on English Brothers' farm last week is believed to be solved, although a sixth died over the weekend and a seventh is quite ill. A can containing white lead, used for painting the house last summer, was found in a clump of bushes in the fields, and since its removal, no cows have taken sick.

The discovery came as a result of an examination showing poison in the system. The animals are valued at $60 each.

Tuberculosis is returning to South Africa, once freed from the disease.

Lad Gets First Sleep In Fourteen Years

Sharbot Lake, Ont., Dec. 28. KENNETH Donnelly, 14, slept with closed eyes Christmas eve for the first time since he was 10 month old when he suffered burns which left one arm practically useless, disfigured his face and scorched off his eyelids.

Three weeks ago he was taken to Kingston where Dr. L. Noble Armstrong, eye specialist, and Dr. Stuart Houston, plastic surgeon, took diamond-shaped pieces of skin from two to three inches in sizes from his leg and grafted them on to his eye-lids.

Kenneth can now open his eyes only slightly as the muscles are at the stage of development reached when he was 10 months old.

MONTREAL, Dec. 28—(CP). — Decrease of $464,044 was shown today in Canadian National Railways' November net revenue of $1,919,227, compared with $2,383,271 in the corresponding month last year.

Operating revenues increased $621,353 to $16,773,527, against $16,-151,674 in the 1936 period, but a gain of $1,035,897 showed in operating expenses of $14,854,300, against $13,-768,468 a year ago.

Increase of $3,651,414 showed in net revenues of $15,878,665 for the 11 months ended November 30, compared with $12,227,251 in the corresponding 1936 period. Operating revenues of $182,177,183 were $12,-790,919 higher than those of $169,-386,264 a year ago.

Operating expenses advanced $9,-139,505 to $166,298,518, against $157,-159,013.

CONTROL BLOOD BY BARRAGES

Hong Kong, Not Gobi Caravans Worrying Japanese

Chinese Aid Via Northern Trails Too Slow But British Port Held Different

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP). — A good deal of importance is being attached by some to reports Russia is playing Santa Claus to China by sending war supplies to the hard-pressed Celestials.

The idea is fascinating. It smacks of red-blooded adventure the sending of aid down through towering mountain passes, along caravan trails so old that their origin is lost in antiquity, and across the drifting wastes of the Gobi Desert.

Still, for those who have pro-Chinese leanings, it is a case of the wish being father of the thought. That primitive northern route, marked by the whitened bones of thousands, isn't practicable for rapid movement of large quantities of supplies. It doesn't worry the Japanese military command much.

What the Nipponese are worried about are mountains of supplies which they charge are reaching the Chinese through Hong Kong, far to the south. This British Crown colony is one of the world's greatest seaports.

Warning From Japs

A couple of months ago the "council on the current situation"—a highly placed though unofficial group of more than 100 Japanese—issued a warning in Tokyo to Great Britain. The council alleged that Britain was aiding the Chinese, and threatened that if this didn't cease Japan might be forced to sever diplomatic relations.

Recent indications have been that the Japanese Army command, having conquered Northeastern China, intends to strike for the far south. One purpose of such a move would be to isolate Hong Kong and so shut off the stream of trade into China. This would be a ticklish operation, though it could be carried out without laying violent hands of British territory.

Even in ordinary times trading vessels from all ports of the world swarm the waters of Hong Kong. A huge amount of trade pours into the Chinese interior through this funnel. The colony, in British hands for a century, covers 390 square miles in its great harbor. It is a free port, open to all nations on equal terms.

ST. MARY'S A.Y.P.A. WELCOME GUESTS

LIFFORD LINE, Dec. 28.—On Thursday evening last, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sisson and family entertained the members and friends of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A., numbering about twenty-two to a jolly Christmas gathering. The usual devotional exercises were observed and preliminary business transacted.

The program, which had been carefully arranged by a special committee for this particular annual event, was quite novel, games in variety being the highlight of this part of the arrangements. Progressive games exclusive of cards were played with the guests seated at five tables and prizes awarded to the winners.

The Christmas spirit was emphasized during the evening by beautiful seasonal decorations throughout the home. Chief among these was a gay Christmas tree well laden with gifts, the members having carried out their customary exchange of gifts from names drawn at the previous meeting.

Two long tables were daintily arranged in the spacious farm kitchen and looked very attractive in a timely color scheme on snowy linen and laden down with all manner of seasonal dainties. When luncheon was concluded one of the members arose and distributed the gifts to the guests while they remained seated. These were unwrapped and a jolly social time spent in happy conversation. The young people planned to hold their initial fortnightly meeting for the new year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hannah and family, eighth line.

The Sisson family were heartily thanked for their kind hospitality in providing so pleasant and profitable entertainment for the young people.

MILLBROOK PAPER BUYS NEW OFFICE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 28. — The Messrs. Barringer, of The Millbrook Reporter, have purchased from Dr. H. A. Turner the building formerly used by him as a drug store, medical dispensary and doctor's office, with the living apartment upstairs, and expect to move their printing plant immediately after the new year, to their new premises.

Dr. M. E. Hobbs is moving his dispensary and office to his residence on Tupper street, formerly the Elson homestead, since the sale of the building where he and Dr. Turner were associated in their medical practice. This change of office will be completed by January first, 1938.

Older residents recall that it is probably more than thirty years since the late C. H. Richards moved here from Omemee, and established his printing plant at the corner of King and Union streets, continuing to occupy these premises until his death, when his son, B. L. Richards, carried on until the sale of the entire plant to Barringer Brothers, of Peterborough.

Following the death of W. S. Given, for many years editor and publisher of the Millbrook Reporter, Mr. Richards purchased his paper and plant, combining the two local weeklies under the title, "The Omemee Mirror and Millbrook Reporter." Since the recent turnover, the new owners publish the local paper each Thursday as usual, but have reverted to the former heading, "The Millbrook Reporter."

Tank Utilized To Tow Russia's Skiing Riflemen In Siberia

Diligently training her soldiers for the wintry conditions they must face should war break out in her remote Siberian territories—a menace that she feels is growing from the Japanese-controlled state of Manchukuo—Russia equips them with skiis for speedy travel over snow-buried road and plain. Here a fast tank, one of the fastest in the highly-mechanized Red army, is utilized to tow a squad of the ski-equipped riflemen during manoeuvres "somewhere in the Far East". Men and munitions are being concentrated along the Siberian-Manchukuon border, according to Moscow reports, as relations with Japan grow more strained.

Britain Turns Down Jap Version Of Ship Attack

Not in Accordance With Government's Report, Says Ministry, After 1,200-Word Note of Apologies

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(CP Cable)—The British government rejects the Japanese army's version of the attack on the British gunboat Ladybird. This version is considered here unacceptable as it is not in accordance with the British government's own report of the incident.

The foreign office today received a 1,200-word note of apologies from the Japanese government. The note is now being distributed to members of the cabinet for consideration. Its text will be made public tonight or tomorrow.

The Japanese army version which was not officially communicated to the British government asserted that H.M.S. Ladybird, with other British vessels on the Yangtze, was fired upon by the Japanese because they appeared to be hiding behind black smoke and landing men in launches.

One British sailor was killed in the incident, which occurred on the Yangtze river on the same day the United States gunboat Panay was bombed.

Foreigners Menaced Anew.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 29 (AP).—Japanese army claimed "in principle" today the right to extend provisions of its military law into Shanghai's international settlement and French concession, where thousands of Britons and other foreigners make their homes.

The Japanese army spokesman announced the claim, under which troops could enter foreign areas still outside Japanese control and arrest and try "all persons" suspected of crimes against Nippon's armed forces.

Japanese forces would proceed cautionally in any cases where foreigners holding treaty rights to be tried by courts of their own nations were suspected, the spokesman said.

He said the basis of the Japanese claim was "de facto" military occupation and specified it would be enforced in occupied territory.

Tsingtao, Shantung's main seaport, virtually was cut off by Japanese troops closing in on the north central city where destruction of some $100,000,000 of Japanese property brought a Japanese threat of punitive action.

Japanese troops pushing southward from Tsinan, conquered Shantung capital, attacked Taian, 30 miles from Tsinan on the route to Shanghai.

Be Three Ballots Given Electors

ON New Year's Day the polls in Peterborough will open at 9.00 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. Every voter will be handed three ballots, one for the two-year term aldermen, one for the one-year aldermen and one for daylight saving bylaw. On the two-year aldermanic ballot there will be 14 names and electors can vote for five and MUST vote for at least four. On the one year aldermanic ballot there will be six names and electors can vote for one, two or three men but no more. The Daylight Saving bylaw can be voted on by answering either yes or no on the ballot as it reads "Are you in favor of having daylight saving time in the city of Peterborough from midnight of June 14, 1938, until midnight of September 5, 1938.

FIFTY OFFICERS COMB 3 COUNTIES FOR ROBBER TRIO

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (C.P.).—Fifty police at noon were scouting in three counties for three robbers in a stolen motor car, the back punctured by police bullets, who fled from a gasoline station here when the appearance of a policeman interrupted a gasoline station hold-up.

Police of a dozen municipalities have been joined by all available Provincial Policemen. The hold-up car was last seen at 10.45 a.m., more than four hours after the attempted robbery, when it outspeeded Highway Traffic Officer Hodgson at Brampton.

An hour and a half earlier a car had driven into Dan Williams' Service Station at Victoria, seven miles north of Brampton. The son of the proprietor was about to fill the gasoline tank when he noticed bullet holes. Sensing his suspicions, the car drove away.

Brampton police were notified and authorities at Guelph, Orangeville, Acton, Cheltenham, and other places were notified to be on the lookout. The stolen car bore 1937 license place 834H7, and is owned by William Edwards, Toronto, who is in Cobourg.

The Fun Begins.

The chase started after three men drove into a Yonge Street gasoline station, bought 10 gallons of gasoline, and then told William Burnett, 21, attendant, to "sit down before you're knocked down." At this moment, Constable Donald Barton appeared at the corner. Two of the men rushed to the car. The third, police say, may have been left.

Constable Barton shot several times at the car as it pulled away from the station. A radio alarm went out. A few minutes later another gasoline station attendant, further north, said three men, who appeared agitated, had bought two gallons of gasoline. He gave police the car number.

A few minutes later a police scout car sighted the auto believed to contain the fugitives. Police lost sight of the car in about 20 minutes but another scout car caught it just north of the city limits, but lost sight of it at Lansing.

ARABS GO RAIDING

JERUSALEM, Dec. 29 (CP-Havas)—Armed Bedouin bands to-day were reported to have carried out a series of raids in the Beersheba and Hebron regions, Southern Palestine.

The terrorists extended their activities as far as Ramleh, on the coast, forcing residents in scattered villages to hand over money and valuables. A bomb was hurled at the home of a policeman at Safed, but failed to explode.

Logged 1,000 Stations

Through the loudspeakers of the radio receivers at which he sits, Roland Halcrow, 16, of 629 George street, has logged more than 1,000 stations of America and far countries of the world while pursuing his hobby as a DXer. Fifty foreign stations are on his log. On the wall in the background are to be seen the array of verification cards he has received from far stations to which he has sent reports of their reception in Peterborough. High proficiency in reading Morse is, of course, a pre-requisite to successful DXing.

Hint New Road Laws To End Slaughter

Outraged Public Opinion Will Force Change, Warns Middlesex County's Crown Attorney

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 29—(CP)—Newspaper reports indicate that an outraged public opinion may bring about stringent legislative action to curb highway deaths in Ontario, Crown Attorney Norman Newton said in Middlesex county police court here today, hitting out at alleged "lack of care and caution" on the part of drivers.

Possibly 40 deaths on the highways and city streets have been dealt with by London courts during the past year, Mr. Newton estimated.

The record of Christmas traffic in Toronto, and even in Middlesex county, indicates that "a certain portion of our population do not seem to appreciate the grave responsibility they have when driving," the crown attorney declared.

ROOSEVELT AIMS TO BOLSTER NAVY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP)—President Roosevelt announcing the projected construction of two new battleships and 16 lesser craft, left a distinct impression to-day his "growing concern" over international conditions might prompt him to ask Congress for even more naval armament.

"Facts are facts, and the United States must recognize them," he said in a letter yesterday to the chairman of the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee.

Citing the failure of his own efforts to arrest the world armament race, the President added: "The fact is that in the world as a whole many nations are not only continuing but

New British Rifles Death To Tanks

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(CP-Havas).—Rifles of a new type, weighing three times as much as those now used and of double their calibre, will soon be distributed to the British army, the Daily Herald said today.

Explosive bullets fired from this rifle are capable of piercing the armor of tanks and killing the occupants, the article declared.

Military experts are now studying plans of a light artillery piece capable of destroying tanks, the newspaper said.

Hope To Fix Lowest Pay For Men Says MacBride

Watching Quebec Action and Proceeding Slowly; Nothing for Well-Paid or Highly Organized Trades

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 29.—(CP)—Hon. M. M. MacBride, Ontario labor minister, said today it was hoped next week to be able to announce the basis on which minimum wage schedules for male workers on Ontario's textile industry will be fixed.

Mr. MacBride said Ontario was watching closely Quebec's action in fixing minimum wages for men but would proceed slowly and seek to avoid hasty action.

"The industry and labor board has for some time been studying working conditions, wage schedules and classifications in the textile industry which is closely inter-related between Ontario and Quebec," he said.

"We have been watching what is transpiring in Quebec and next week we'll have all the data and information to make some announcement in connection with our own findings in the textile industry. We hope to reach something on which to set a minumum wage scale for the industry and that will be a basis for the board to proceed in other industries.

No Foolish Moves

"We're not doing anything hastily. We want to be sure that what we do is economically sound. We will study what Quebec is doing and proceed gradually."

The minister said close attention was being given by the board to the boot and shoe and rubber industries and early action might be expected. In the last two months, the board had worked quietly to settle difficulties in 21 Ontario industries and agreements had been reached in all, he said.

The labor minister, who is mayor of Brantford, is spending the week in his mayor's office preparatory to turning it over to his successor Friday.

Ignore Higher-Paid.

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (CP).—E. J. Young, chairman of the Ontario Industry and Labor Board, said today forthcoming minimum wage orders would not affect workers in highly-paid, highly-organized trades.

CHINESE TROOPS BEGIN DESTROYING PORT OF TSINGTAO

SHANGHAI, Dec. 29.—(AP).—Chinese, apparently preparing to abandon the threatened Shantung port of Tsingtao, to-night began a campaign of destruction in that city, blowing up all telegraph, cable and radio terminals.

This is the policy the Chinese troops have followed in other cities when Japanese occupation seemed imminent.

The explosions, which shook the entire city, cut off all communications and resulted in great tension among the populace, which includes a number of foreigners who have not yet evacuated.

A British cruiser and two United States warcraft were lying close inshore ready to take out British and Americans in the event of sudden necessity.

Rich Chinese Flee.

Four British coastal ships departed for Shanghai, jammed with foreigners of various nationalities and hundreds of Chinese, mostly of the well-to-do classes.

Fearing a breakdown of local authority, foreigners were organizing vigilantes to take control of the city, if necessary, before the expected Japanese entry. They decided to remain unarmed, except for batons, thereby seeking to avoid clashes with armed elements, either Chinese or Japanese, but at the same time preventing further looting and suppressing panic.

A Japanese transport and a destroyer were lying offshore, but it was not learned whether many troops were aboard.

Paralysis Menace Rated Second To Cancer

Epidemic Afflicting 4,000 In Canada, Mostly Children, Leaves 1,000 In Splints

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (CP)—Second only to cancer, infantile paralysis presents a problem which the Canadians Medical Association proposes to attack through nation-wide, long-range research. More than 4,000 Canadians were afflicted in a five-months epidemic late this year.

The poliomyelitis epidemic — to give it its scientific tag—was the worst in Canada's history. It swept Saskatchewan and Manitoba, western and central Ontario and parts of the Maritimes. In the United States approximately 10,000 persons were stricken.

Most of Canada's 4,000 sufferers were children under 14. The epidemic raged from June through October, leaving more than 1,000 patients in splints or on frames for many months due to after-effects.

While aimed chiefly at cancer research, the Canadian Medical Association's proposal to co-ordinate branch of the present national remedical and scientific effort in a search council also embraces study of infantile paralysis.

The medical association is recommending to the Rowell Royal Commission on Dominion-provincial affairs the establishment of a medical research council and will cite facts regarding the 1937 epidemic to drive home its recommendations. The C.M.A. brief will be presented at Ottawa sittings of the commission next month.

A hundred childish faces, lined with dismay, broke into smiles. A dishevelled Santa went about the business of distributing his gifts.

VALERA INCLUDES WHOLE OF IRELAND IN HIS NEXT SET-UP

DUBLIN, Dec. 29 (CP).—When the new Irish Constitution came into operation this morning, the 26 counties known since 1921 as the Irish Free State became the State of Eire, or Ireland in the English language.

Introduced by Eamon de Valera in April and approved July 1 by a plebiscite in which 685,105 votes were cast for and 526,945 against, the Constitution gives the Free State an entirely new status, though it is not quite clear what it is.

The State came into being amidst belief it shortly will face its second general election inside a year. Eamon de Valera, who now becomes the Taoiseach (Prime Minister) instead of his former, corresponding, position of President of the Executive Council, controls but 67 seats in the Dail (Parliament) against 69 for the combined other parties.

An election for the newly created post of President of Ireland also looms, probably coincident with Parliamentary elections. Possible opponents for the new post, which will have many functions of a Governor-General, are Seal O'Kelly, Vice-President of the Executive Council, and Lord Mayor Alfred Byrne of Dublin, an independent who most likely would receive support of the Fine Gael, William T. Cosgrave's Party.

No Mention of King.

The new constitution, which went into operation without public fanfare, contains no reference whatever to the King or the Commonwealth of Nations by name, but provides that the Government may "avail of or adopt any organ, instrument or method of procedure used or adopted for the like purpose by the members of any group or League of Nations with which the State is or becomes associated for the purpose of international co-operation in matters of common concern."

Legislation has been passed recognizing King George VI. and his successors for the purpose of foreign relations so that, perhaps, Ireland might be said to be a state extremely associated with the British Commonwealth.

At any rate, it is not without significance that the Government has

100,000 STRIKE TYING UP PARIS IN ALL SERVICES

Troops Called to City As Red Plot Suspected

PARIS, Dec. 29 (A.P.). — More than 100,000 public service workers —from street cleaners to subway operators — disabled Paris with a general strike to-day. Premier Chautemps ordered an emergency Cabinet session to deal with the situation.

With subways and buses paralyzed by a shutdown and with water, gas and electric services running on reserves, the Premier called a full session of the Cabinet.

Mobile guardsmen moved into the capital from the provinces. They joined the blue-caped gendarmerie guarding vital centres of the capital while the strike mushroomed.

Troops of "The Military Government of Paris," the army region surrounding the Metropolis, were ordered to remain in readiness at their barracks.

"Chautemps is determined to maintain order," a government spokesman announced.

The overnight declarations and strikes of transportation, water, gas and electricity workers were backed by walkouts of street cleaners and garbagemen and some municipal office employees.

Officials said the population might be requested to reduce water consumption to-night if the strike continued. Unemptied garbage pails lined the capital's unswept streets.

Army trucks continued to supply the central food markets and deliver newspapers in connection with the persisting strike of truck drivers.

Thousands of other workers were still idle in strikes at the Paris Goodrich rubber factory and grocery warehouses.

Many Traffic Jams.

Fleets of taxicabs and lines of private cars pressed into service to carry Parisians to work caused heavy traffic jams on main thoroughfares.

MINE TERRORISTS GET 4 YEARS EACH

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 29. — (CP).— Thirteen men in a dynamiting conspiracy arising out of Illinois mine union warfare to-day began serving four-year prison terms. They were sentenced to the maximum allowed by law by Judge Charles Briggle yesterday. They were also fined $20,000 each.

The defendants were found guilty by a farmer jury on Dec. 18 at the completion of a 33-day trial, in which 388 witnesses testified as to five years of inter-union dynamitings and terrorism throughout the Illinois coal fields.

Most of the men convicted were members or former officials of the Progressive Miners of America, which is fighting John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers of America. Twenty-six railroad and mine bombings were the basis of the charges.

Speedy Apprentices Set Shaft Record

Halifax, Dec. 29. (CP)

WHAT was believed to be a record in shaft-sinking and a "rich" ore strike at the Nova Scotia Government's apprentice project at Lacey Mine, Chester Basin, N.S., were announced today by Mines Minister Dwyer.

A crew of 18 apprentices under the supervision of shift bosses, sank a shaft 26½ feet in one week. As far as officials could determine, this constituted a record with men working three shifts—six men and a shift boss to a shift.

When a crosscut on the 200-foot level cut the apex of the anticline a new vein of rich ore was found. Although no assay reports were available, Mines Department officials said ore "rich in gold" had been found.

All Stratford Joins In Drive For Mishap-Free Utopia

Citizens Take Hold To Help Keep Record Of No Traffic Deaths In Past Two Years

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 29—(CP) After one of the most tragic Yuletides on record in Ontario as regards to automobile accidents, Stratford—a city which has not had one traffic death in more than two years—takes on the appearance of a mishap-free Utopia to harassed officialdom trying to halt the motor car carnage.

Main theme in the system responsible for this enviable record is that of co-operation. Men on relief, civic officials, the courts, and, most of all, the citizens themselves join with the police in an effort to help make the city accident free.

Chief Constable Robert Beatty inaugurated a two-week check on brakes, windshield wipers, lights and tires of all motor cars. Cyclists are kept under strict surveillance, particularly as to the carrying of lights and reflectors on their bicycles at night.

Schools Specially Watched

40,000 Traffic Deaths In U.S. During '37 To Set New All-Time High

Chicago, Dec. 29 (AP)

THE National Safety Council predicted today traffic deaths in the United States during 1937 would approximate 40,000, an all-time high. The traffic toll was 37,-800 in 1936, and 37,000 in 1935, the council said.

During the first 11 months of 1937 traffic deaths numbered 36,-610, a six per cent increase over the toll in a corresponding period of 1936.

On a mileage basis, the council reported, there has been "no actual increase in the traffic death rate." Gasoline consumption, the means of estimating mileage, increased six per cent, approximately the same as traffic deaths for the 11-month period.

Ontario's Roadside Samaritans Gain World-Wide Fame

Volunteers Organized on Windsor-Quebec Highway Credited With 3 Lives in 10 Months

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (CP)—Fame of Ontario's roadside samaritans, organized to give first aid to injured motorists, has spread around the world and their example is being followed in British Columbia, Quebec and nearly half of the United States. In addition the plan may be adopted next year in Nova Scotia, New Zealand and India.

The garage workers and farmers who took first aid training during the past five years in order to qualify as voluntary samaritans in Ontario's rural areas, were credited today with having saved three lives on one provincial highway during the first ten months of this year.

Organized at rural garages 12 to 15 miles apart on the Ontario highway between Windsor and the Quebec border, the voluntary workers refuse payment but are ready 24 hours a day to aid the injured. Between Jan. 1 and Oct. 31 they gave medical treatment to 125 accident cases, 20 per cent of whom were "serious emergency cases."

Trained by the St. John Ambulance Association, six to 18 men are available at each station to give emergency roadside treatment. Each station is equipped with stretcher blanket and large first aid kit, the cost being borne equally by the St. John Ambulance Association, the

Nashau Paper Company Comes To Aid Of The Examiner When Roller Breaks

THERE are a number of things which might go wrong in the turning out of a daily newspaper, but fortunately they do not. But the mat roller did go wrong in the Examiner office, and that in itself is just about enough to bring everything to a stop. After a page has been completed in type and locked up it goes through this roller to make the mat from which the printing plates are cast. If it is not possible to roll mats then there can be no plates, and if no plates then no paper.

Getting the needed part is not as simple as might be thought, because the nearest point where such things are kept is in New York. Mat rollers are not made in Canada. A telephone call was sent for the part and it was put on a plane and sent to Buffalo, then to Toronto and finally to Peterborough.

Meantime our rebellious mat roller found that its ailment had not bro: ht operations to a standstill. Fortunately in the splendid equipment of the Nashau Paper Co. there is a roller whose business it is to do work similar to that turned out by the one in the Examiner, and through the kindly services of E. G. R. Clarke of that company the pages from the Examiner were trucked to the Nashau Co. plant and "rolled in" there, after which the rest of the operation was completed in this office.

The result of this kindly assistance from the Nashau was that the paper went to press only a few moments late. The Examiner publicly says a sincere "thank you" to the Nashau Co. Had it not been for the existence of this, similar equipment in that plant the Examiner might well have been—just plain stuck.

DOMINION SLOWLY IMPROVING BACON RATING IN BRITAIN

TORONTO, Dec. 29—(CP)—While the Canadian hog does not obtain entree to all the best homes at present, he is slowly improving his rating in the London market, the hog's social register, and in time may expect to be received in the most exclusive bacon circles.

Explaining today why a Canadian porker, rated 100 per cent quality at home should be given a 90 per cent rating in London, N.J. McLean, general manager of Canada Packers Limited, said it was mainly a question of building up a taste in Britain for the Canadian product.

He pointed out that the market in Britain for Danish bacon—the bon ton of hogdom—had been laboriously fostered over a long period of years. Breeds, feeding, slaughtering and marketing methods had been raised to a high standard. Mr. McLean believed select Canadian bacon hogs were the equal of any in the world but in the average the Canadian product fell slightly below that of Denmark. But progress was being achieved steadily by Canadian farmers and in time he felt Canadian bacon would command a price nearer the top in London.

The latest bacon quotations in London are 95 to 100 shillings (per 112 pounds) for Danish sides; 93 to 100 for English, 90 to 101 for Irish; 91 to 94 for Swedish; 92 to 97 for Dutch; 86 to 90 for Baltic and 85 to 89 for Canadian sides.

Mr. McLean expresses the opinion that Canada's competitors have a slight advantage in being closer to the British market, permitting deliveries to be made in top condition. Another factor affecting quotations was the increased flow of Canadian bacon to England since the Ottawa agreements of 1932. Shipments were now running 30,000 to 35,000 hogs weekly and could be raised to 50,000 weekly, the quota limit. As offerings increase the tendency was to keep prices easy.

TERUEL GARRISON CONTINUES FIGHT

MADRID, Dec. 29 (AP).—Government troops closed in today for occupation of two dynamite-battered buildings from which the insurgent garrison of Teruel has blazed defiance for a week.

At the same time the insurgent army which lost the strategic provincial capital to a government surprise offensive made desperate efforts to recover it by mastery of the air.

Four insurgent planes were brought down in flames yesterday in a spectacular air battle — outmanoeuvred and beaten off in two attempts to break through the government's air defences.

The insurgents hoped to use their aerial strength in ousting government forces in control of Teruel except for two thick-walled buildings.

Believed to house the 3,000-man garrison and an equal number of civilians.

The besiegers had reduced by one the number of insurgent fastnesses in the old quarter of the city. The besieged still clung to the Civil Governor's Palace and the Bank of Spain building.

Niagara Requests Pollution Probe

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 29 (A.P.). — The City Council to-day had asked State Health and Conservation Departments for a complete investigation of Niagara River pollution.

The Council last night adopted a resolution declaring a need for keeping the water clear of industrial refuse for the sake of having good water in Niagara Falls, for the sake of the fish and so that expenditures for sewage disposal plant would not be jeopardized.

In Washington, Secretary of State Hull informed Representative James Meal (D-N.Y.) of Buffalo the State Department was studying pollution conditions in the vicinity of Buffalo "with a view to determining whether it would be appropriate to arrange to have these conditions investigated by the International Joint Commission."

are enlarging their armament programs."

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized at a press conference, however, the prospective increase in the United States fleet was not a part of a "preparedness program."

Number Undecided

The number and type of new vessels which may be recommended, the President said, still are subjects of study. Naval officers said the fleet is most deficient in auxiliary vessels and under-age destroyers. They also said battleships soon to reach over-age status should be replaced.

The United States fleet now stands second in strength among the world's navies. It is outranked by Great Britain in both total tonnage afloat and construction now in progress or appropriated for.

The latest estimates of the Navy Department showed comparative tonnage as follows: Great Britain, 1,216,398; United States, 1,083,330; Japan, 745,594; France, 469,346; Italy, 396,683; Germany, 147,632; and Russia, 250,000 including many obsolete ships.

Sleeping cars for third-class passengers are to be in stalled in Italy.

ROME UNEASY

ROME, Dec. 29—(CP-Havas). — British plans to broadcast foreign language news programs as an antidote to anti-British radio propaganda brought forth a warning from Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist spokesman, in The Giornale d'Italia to-day, that Italy will know how to retaliate should these programs assume a "provocative and disturbing tenor."

"Britain is taking the initiative against Italy in this attack," he asserted, adding the Bari station did not spread anti-British propaganda as charged in Great Britain.

B.C. STORMS MOVE OVER TO PRAIRIES

VANCOUVER, Dec. 29—(CP). — The Western Canada weather picture was dotted strangely to-day with moderating temperatures and scattered snow flurries forecast for the Prairies.

Rains and melting snow disrupted communications in British Columbia yesterday, a Chinook wind sent the mercury soaring in Southern Alberta and a blizzard howled in parts of South Saskatchewan.

Engineer Robert Winter was killed when the locomotive and tender of a Canadian National Railways freight train plunged through a bridge at Wolfe Creek on Vancouver Island yesterday. He was scalded by a bursting steam pipe.

Conductor C. Woods suffered a broken collarbone and two fractured ribs when the bridge, weakened by high water, collapsed under the locomotive's weight. The freight cars braked to a stop on the brink of the broken bridge head. The train carrying 15 workmen, was the first over the storm-blocked division in five days.

Elsewhere on the Pacific Coast rail and wire communications were disrupted by ice, snow and water. Heavy rain yesterday rapidly melted last week-end's deep snow.

A snowslid near North Bend, B.C., trapped the Canadian Pacific Railway's No. 3 westbound train, burying half of one coach. The passenger train was returned to North Bend after workmen dug it free, but much work on the grade was necessary before it could proceed here.

JOHN SCOTT DIES

PETROLIA, Ont., Dec. 29—(CP). —Funeral services will be held to-day for John Scott, 93, who died here on Sunday. Born near Kingston, Ont., Mr. Scott came here in 1871 and a year later returned to live here the rest of his life.

When a boy he ran away from home to sail the Great Lakes. He was impressed at the possibilities for oil drilling here on his first visit and when he returned he learned the well-drilling trade and brought in many wells. He drilled the well-known Deluge Well at Marthaville which pumped 600 barrels of oil a day for several weeks.

Old Saw "The Poor Fish" Is Harpooned, Expert Says "Finnies" Are Smart

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)

CHARLES Jackson, deputy commissioner of fisheries, sank a verbal harpoon today into that derisive figure of speech—"the poor fish."

"It's all wrong," he said. "The fish is not a boob. He's smart."

"We have cases of the Columbia River salmon swimming down to Monterey and then returning not only to the river of birth, but wiggling into the very hatchery door.

"American and European eels meet annually in the Sargasso Sea. Though they mingle by the millions, those from North America always return to our waters and th from the old world go back to theirs."

MAJORITY REEVES, MAYORS RECEIVE AN ACCLAMATION

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (C.P.). — A four-day election campaign opened to-day in more than 200 towns, villages, and townships throughout Ontario. But in the majority of municipalities which vote next Monday citizens will ballot only for council members, School Board trustees, and minor civic officers.

Acclamations for the Mayoralty and Reeveship were the rule rather than the exception yesterday as nominees qualified for the elections. Some 180 Reeves and 25 Mayors were elected by that method as opposing candidates dropped out. In some municipalities, the entire slate of officers for 1938 was put into office by acclamation.

A flip of a coin saved Preston the expense of an election. Robert Bleth was accorded an acclamation for the Mayoralty. The Reeveship, the Deputy-Reeveship, the School Board and the Light and Water Commission were filled without opposition. Then seven candidates qualified for the six Council seats.

Six of the seven qualified candidates were in the town clerk's office when Arthur Pitcher telephoned the absentee, Wilfred Williams, and offered to toss a coin, the loser to drop out. Commissioner George Haid tossed the coin. Williams called "tails" over the 'phone, and won. Pitcher was signing his withdrawal papers as the clock struck 9 p.m., the deadline for qualifications to be filed.

Woman Mayor Back

Mrs. Barbara Hanley, Canada's only woman mayor, was re-elected to her third term in the northern Ontario town of Webbwood Monday night when no other candidate was nominated.

All municipal offices in north-western Geraldton were filled by acclamation. The mining town was incorporated last Sept. 1 and the 1937 council was unable to prepare an assessment roll and voters' list in time for the election. It was believed election of a new council would have to be validated by order-in-council.

Duncan Munn was given his 15th acclamation as reeve of the Bruce County village of Ripley when qualifications closed. With the exception of one year, Mr. Munn has been reeve of Ripley since the village first was incorporated. In 1935 he was warden of the county.

HOPING TO FIX MALE MINIMUM

"From what the newspapers tell us, I think Quebec has done a good job," said Mr. Young. "I shall be interested to learn whether their hours of work will be uniformly applied in urban and rural centres. The matter is made difficult by the fact that, broadly, Ontario's scale is so much higher than Quebec's. It would take Quebec some time to catch up and there is no intention of reducing wages here."

LEAGUE SOCIETY GROWS

OTTAWA, Dec. 29—(CP). — Establishment of a new branch office in Hamilton and appointment of two full-time secretaries to its staff were announced to-day by the League of Nations Society in Canada. The society hopes to continue during 1938 the policy of expansion on which it has been acting during the past year.

The Hamilton office will be the fourth branch office established by the society and will open on January 1, under the direction of Miss Muriel Jacobson, formerly of Hamilton, but recently on the staff of the Research Branch of the Department of Labor at Ottawa.

CATCHES EAGLE

NANTON, Alta. — (CP). — Cecil Lemley of the Nanton district, about 60 miles south of Calgary has an eagle-catching science all his own. He spied a large eagle on a fence post, turned his flashlight in the bird's eyes and with the eagle blinded grabbed it by the legs and hauled it home. It measured seven feet six inches from tip to tip.

Is Under Fire

Members of a committee of the New Jersey State Assembly will recommend that the record of their investigation of the municipal affairs of the town of Wildwood, under the administration of Mayor Doris M. Bradway (shown), be referred to the proper authorities for possible prosecution. The report of the committee, which was handed to the assembly, branded the regime as "corrupt, selfish and unthinking." In answer to the charges, Mayor Bradway charged that the assembly committee was formed principally for political purposes, and claimed she was denied the right to put in her defence.

A 65-YEAR MISTAKE

DETROIT, Dec. 29—(CP)—Sixty-five years after casting his first vote in Michigan, Jacob Erik Lundquist, 86, Detroit, has taken the oath of allegiance as citizen.

Lundquist came to the United States from Finland in 1872 and went through a ceremony before a Justice of the Peace which he thought made him a citizen, and entitled to a vote. He has voted regularly since then, until 1932, when his vote was challenged. Investigation proved he was not a citizen.

HINT HIGH HONOR FOR TWEEDSMUIR

LONDON, Dec. 29—(CP Cable).—Rumors about the New Year honors list abound, but the list will not be published until Saturday and such reports cannot be verified.

Several political correspondents of London newspapers, however, intimate that the Order of Merit will be awarded to a distinguished servant with both political and aesthetic qualifications for distinction. Earl Baldin, Winston Churchill and Lord Tweedsmuir are three names suggested.

David Lloyd George is the only famous politician now belonging to the Order, the membership of which is limited to 24. Lord Baldwin is the only other ex-Premier living and he holds a Knighthood of the Senior Order of the Garter. The Order of Merit was instituted in 1902 and is awarded to British subjects who have rendered exceptionally meritorious service in the Army or Navy, or in Literature and Science.

Mr. Churchil is linked to another strong rumor which says he is going to join the Cabinet shortly as it is believed he is developing a closer friendship with Prime Minister Chamberlain and is prepared to drop his extreme anti-German attitude. It is possible he will replace Viscount Swinton at the Air Ministry or else enter the Cabinet without portfolio.

The honors list is expected to include a number of officials who were responsible for the successful Coronation arrangements.

OUT OF FRYING-PAN

PARIS — (CP). — Explaining he had deserted because army discipline was "too strict," a German soldier in full uniform marched into a French frontier town and announced he wanted to join the French Foreign Legion. He joins the next contingent at Marseilles.

Where Can He Go?

Milton B. Agnew is 27 years of age. Married man and the father of a daughter of four years. He lives and works in Rochester, N.Y., but his wife and daughter reside in Toronto. It is the desire of all that they live together in Rochester, but Milton Agnew presents one of those problem cases where tangles are frequent.

Agnew was born in 1910 and his parents then lived in Rochester. He was adopted when one year old by Mr. and Mrs. Simon Agnew. He remained in United States until 1930 when he went to Toronto and was married there in 1932.

A year ago Agnew returned to United States where he secured a new position, but immigration authorities would not allow his wife and child to accompany him. Mrs. Agnew was born in Germany, but became a British subject when her father was naturalized as a Canadian citizen. But she cannot enter United States as a Canadian citizen as that country regards her as a German.

Agnew has spent weeks searching for some proof that he was born in Rochester, the city where he was adopted when one year old, but he can find nothing which names the location of his birthplace. So there he is and that one little slip-up makes him a man without a country. If he cannot prove he was born in United States he has no right to stay there. Nor can he apply for naturalization papers because he cannot prove where he was born. As we understand it he would not be entitled to enter Canada to rejoin his family. So what is Milton Agnew to do? There is nothing against his record. He is just an average man with a wife and daughter and he wants to establish a home, and established homes are the background of any nation.

People who interpret immigration laws did not make the laws, and it is hard to believe that the people who framed them in the first place did so knowing they would break up decent families. In this case the law of a land becomes higher than the law of God. In the name of justice it is actually doing an unjust thing.

The Issue Is Plain

E. K. Goodman, chief of the police department in Hamilton, found three people had been killed and the hospitals filled with injured folk after the Christmas holiday week-end. Chief Goodman explained he had every available man out on duty but contended that if he had an officer in every block the accidents could not have been prevented. Hamilton had its share of drunk drivers.

The cure suggested by the Hamilton officer is that all motor vehicles be banned from the streets on the eves of Christmas and New Year's, exception being granted only to those which may be on urgent business.

That suggestion has received considerable notice in several cities, but it does not meet with unqualified approval. Nor should it. The principle involved would be that of following the lines of least resistance. Certainly if there were but a few cars on the street and all of them driven by men on business who would be sober the number of accidents should come down to the zero mark.

But that plan would be the same as punishing all auto drivers on account of the nonsense and pigheadedness of a small minority. It would leave the real situation untouched and it would do nothing whatever to demonstrate that the law, as reflected in the control of traffic by the police department had the situation in hand.

It is plainly necessary for police and courts to face the issue which is being forced on them by drivers of cars. Appealing to courtesy should place the situation in hand, but the trouble seems to be the supply of courtesy has run low in this country as it has the world over. There is only one appeal left, and that is—fear. That fear will come from a sure knowledge of what awaits the driver who guzzles drink and then proceeds to drive. And that same fear must be made effective for the man who is sober and yet who drives like a drunk. The law must be made so assertive that we will become afraid of its hand when we transgress traffic sanity. Admittedly a hard process, but the only way out.

And on top of that the government, having seen it clearly demonstrated that Christmas and New Year's Eves are seasons for debauchery should never again seek to encourage the sale of liquor by longer hours of sale in the government stores.

He Should Find Out

In a report from Mimico it is recorded that three undertakers received calls to send their equipment to the same address, and the services of none of them was required as there had been no death at the address given. The Mimico report refers to it as the work of "a practical joker."

But it was no such thing. There was nothing practical about it, and there was no joke in it. The incident exhibited only a gruesome outcropping of a perverted mind.

In justice to himself and in kindness to friends and relatives the person who thought of that trick should have an expert drill a small hole some place above the ears and discover whether there is mud stored there or just a vacuum.

Looking For Trouble

United States has been slipping industrially for several months. One report has it that the recent stock market recession was deliberately planned by industrialists in order to stall the work of the C.I.O. The slump would cause it to appear that business was on the way down and therefore in no position to stand further increases in wages or shortening of hours.

Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney-General of United States, and bearing the title of "trust buster," has his own explanation. He says "big business" tried to assure the government that if there were a shortening up of expenditures on government-aid schemes, then business itself would try to take up the resultant slack in the number of people employed. That is, if the government would quit spending so much money on employment schemes, then business would see that the men engaged by the government would be employed elsewhere.

Mr. Jackson charges that big business has not played its part and has made no effort to do so. His claim is that the first consideration has been the driving up of prices and the piling up of greater profits than previously. Taking steel as an example, Mr. Jackson says the increased costs in making steel due to wage and material increases amount to 9.1 per cent., but the increase to the purchasers of steel has been 21 per cent. Jackson's own phrase for this sort of business is that the steel industry is "pricing itself out of the market." And by that he means the price has gone so high there is a dropping off in buying. And that in turn means a shortening up of employment. Going the next step means that the shortening of employment means the government will again proceed with its schemes to hire men. That will cost money and the money will come out of taxation and the taxation will become in large measure the property of big business. If the case is as represented by the assistant Attorney-General then it looks as though so-called big business had been going about with its chin out looking for trouble.

Millbrook's Strong Men

The retirement of Percy Stinson from the reeveship of Millbrook brings to an end his fifteen years of municipal service distinguished by its exceptional quality. After seven years as councillor, he succeeded W. T. Wood in 1930. His promotion to the reeveship was by acclamation, and for eight successive years Millbrook ratepayers have kept him in office without any sign of opposition.

From the time of his entry into the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, Reeve Stinson was an outstanding member, and it was characteristic of him to say privately that if he knew anything about municipal affairs he was indebted to the thorough and well informed training he had received under Mr. Wood. Incidentally both these men in their day won the honor of being Warden of the united counties. They naturally rose to the top. During their long terms, the Millbrook seat at Cobourg has been second only to the Warden's in official recognition. In their personal abilities, especially in the details of municipal financing and to size up a problem quickly and clearly, and also in their fine sense of dignity which they recognized as a tradition of the counties council, these two Millbrook reeves were at least not surpassed by any other of the forty members of the counties council.

So Mr. Stinson at length follows Mr. Wood into a retirement that was voluntary with each of them. One of the notions of democracy is that it is usually "time for a change," and the time comes, too, when reeves realize they should not linger too long in their going. They remember that they moved up from the ranks of the council, and no matter how successfully they have managed local affairs they feel that other councillors have a right to move up after them.

Possibly Millbrook council can keep on turning out men like "Billy" Wood and Percy Stinson. Both of them seemed adequately endowed for posts of higher responsibility than their local and county municipalities afforded them. In the performance of their public duties they have left a splendid record for Mr. Stinson's immediate successor, especially as the representative of Millbrook in the "little parliament" of the counties council.

The Weather At Apsley

Our correspondent at Apsley reports that the folk in his village and district did not agree at all with an item printed in the news columns of the Examiner regarding the official verdict of the Weather Man at Apsley that it had been 17 degrees below zero on a recent cold night. The deepest point of frigidity which Peterborough could admit on the same night was 5 below zero, and the feeling of the Apsley folk probably was that this city was trying to spread its temperature over the entire district.

We know just how the Apsley correspondent and all his neighbors would feel about such an incident. When it gets down to 17 below and one rises through it and shaves through it and lights or shakes a fire through it then he has cause for much complaint if he is confronted by some individual who asserts it was merely 5 below. It may be quite unscientific but we always did have the feeling that the manner in which cold weather invaded the human frame should have something to do with determining just how cold it had been. When a man finds it desirable to hold tight to his lugs when starting out to do the chores in the morning and when it is considered well to rub the end of the snout occasionally to see that it has retained a sense of feeling, then such a man has earned the right to say something about the weather. We would not be moved to blame him if he claimed he could register degrees of cold just as well as any scientific self-marking thermometer that had ever been constructed.

On the Tenth Concession we had no thermometer, but we could tell how cold it had been during the night. There were so many points where registration of cold was made. When the feet were placed on the bit of cold oilcloth at the side of the bed we knew it had been cold. And still was. When we started to lay a fire in the kitchen range it was best to put on mittens. When it was found that the pump, about ten yards out from the kitchen door had become frozen we knew again it was away below zero, and when the frost hung on the hinges inside the kitchen door it was a sure sign of 10 below zero.

On such days it was necessary to use a deal of blowing with the mouth to make a peep hole through the ice on the bedroom window so one could see the outside world and know what the day might bring forth. When it was necessary to tap the ice on top of the water pitcher with the handle of the hair brush before doing a little washing (very little on such a day) it was not necessary to go squinting at a thermometer to know that it had been far below zero. By the time one reached the hen house on the way to the barn and saw the water dish frozen to solidity and mourned the fact that a bird here and there had a comb which would show signs of wilting before the day was over need for a thermometer to add evidence had entirely vanished. It would have been a waste of much needed money to purchase one and a waste of time looking at the thing. We had encountered the cold at every turn and when the hired man stated it had been 15 below zero during the night none there was to deny.

Perhaps the Apsley people feel that way about it. They lived through their 17 below and find it a bit annoying when some one in Peterborough says nay, nay, such a thing could not have been.

NOTE AND COMMENT

While every family may not have a skeleton in the cupboard these are the days when nearly everybody has one in the icebox.

Experts say they have found a new kind of rheumatism which affects the brain. Nothing new about that. Most editors have had it for years.

A Christmas baby born in Toronto weighed less than two pounds. With Santa Claus using the airlines the stork played safe by bringing only a small package.

London has experienced the worst fog in 33 years. And when London really tackles the job seriously she can produce a fog that is almost thick enough to walk on.

The extent to which industry, organized on its present colossal basis dominates the right of a man to work can be judged by the announcement that General Motors in United States plans to drop 30,000 men from the payroll.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus had a joyful eye, when he picked out my Christmas tie, for it is very loud; it baffles words to fair describe, and when I get it squeezed and tied, you'd spot it in a crowd.

¶ Some parts of it I know are green, the strangest shade I've ever seen, I can't just place the thing; it is not heavy like and dark, but makes me think about a park, when buds come out in spring.

¶ And when I pause a while and think, I know some little spots are pink, and they are very gay; I wish the sun would shine out bright, perhaps if there was lots of light, that pink would fade away.

¶ And there are little strips of blue, I think they number quite a few, and little dabs of red; I know that I have far outclassed, all barber poles I've ever passed, at least two jumps ahead.

¶ But I can't chant a hymn of hate, Wee Angus thinks the thing is great, can't leave it on a shelf; he looks each day with gaze of care, to see what tie I'm going to wear, he picked it out himself.

¶ I wear it when I dig the coal, when I pry in some musty hole, so it will do no more; but Angus dusts it off with care, and then each time I do declare—it's brighter than before.

THE STORY of how John Wesley Hyatt discovered celluloid is most interestingly told in a magazine published by the Esso Marketeers. Hyatt was a type-setter and it appears that he sent an apprentice to his locker for liquid cuticle which we today know as collodion. In those days composing room technique—vintage of 1865—was pure manual labor and it literally wore fingers to the bone. Bottled skin restorer was a friend of every type handler.

When the apprentice reached the locker he was dismayed when he saw the receptacle on its side, contents sprawling in a hard shiny mass from its corkless mouth. Printer Hyatt plucked from the hardened liquid the key to major industry because it enabled him to stumble on the basic ingredients of celluloid, the invention of which brought him lasting fame. Hyatt's celluloid which he patented in 1873 practically established the synthetic plastics industry.

At the time he examined the congealed liquid cuticle in his newspaper composing room he had been trying to find a substitute for ivory in the composition of billiard balls, a manufacturer having offered $10,000 to anyone who could invent a satisfactory substitute.

While tinkering with components of nitro-cellulose he conceived the idea of making a synthetic billiard ball with a coating of pyroxylin nitro-cellulose solution. Finding a solvent suitable for this purpose however was no easy matter and it was some time before he finally observed that melted camphor was a satisfactory solvent.

Shortly thereafter he constructed a press in which he subjected a mixture of ground nitro-cellulose, powdered camphor and pink coloring matter to considerable pressure at a high temperature. This process, exceedingly dangerous and hence not previously attempted by chemical investigators brought forth the first plastic, dubbed "Celluloid" by Hyatt's more scholarly brother Isaiah. For this notable contribution John Hyatt received in 1914 the coveted Perkin Medal of the Society of Chemical Industry.

Some Strange People

ON A LITTLE island off the southeast tip of Formosa live the Yami who while undoubtedly Filipinos form part of the Japanese Empire. The group consists of some 1,700 souls who live in seven villages scattered about the narrow coastal plain of the island which consists mainly of rugged mountains.

Their staple foods are taro, millet, sweet potatoes and yams. They live in houses of thatch surrounded by high stone walls and they make splendid plank canoes. The Yami weave loin cloths, short skirts, and short capes and vests like jackets from the fibres of the bark of various plants. They also weave baskets and hats and a kind of armor from rattan and the fibre of the coconut palm and make graceful pottery which is usually unglazed.

✧ ✧ ✧

The Yamis are quite untouched by the great civilizations of either the East or the West but they are far from being only stupid savages. Various mental tests have shown them to be on a par intellectually with Chinese, Japanese and European-American normals.

They have a society in which the individual enjoys personal liberty and in which no man is placed above another man. They have never had head men or chiefs in their villages except those appointed by the Japanese and the last 40 years the Japanese have never succeeded in persuading a single one of them to become an assistant policeman.

Tungsten Resources

ALTHOUGH shipments of tungsten ore concentrates from China have fallen off sharply no serious shortage of tungsten, a metal used to make an important type of alloy steel for high-speed cutting tools, is anticipated in the United States.

About 35 per cent. of the world's production of tungsten ore concentrates is used in the United States although only 12 per cent. of the world output is produced in that country. During 1936 China supplied about 72 per cent. of the nearly 6,650,000 pounds of tungsten ore and concentrates shipped into the United States. British Malaya was the next important foreign source supplying about 11 per cent.

Between 80 and 85 per cent. of the total American production is used by the steel industry, the remainder going into electric light filaments, radio and X-ray tubes etc.

Chinese tungsten ore is generally less expensive than ore from other sources because there it lies free on the surface of the ground and does not have to be mined. Natives pick up pieces of what they call "black stone" and sell these to itinerant dealers, who, in turn, sell to the Chinese government interests which concentrate the ore and supervise distribution and sale abroad.

Tungsten comprises 17 to 18 per cent. of the weight of high speed tool steel. Its melting point—6,150 degrees—is the second highest of all chemical elements and largely for that reason tools of tungsten steel retain a tough cutting edge even when made red hot by the friction from high-speed cutting and machining operations.

Thomas Hardy's novels "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" and "Jude the Obscure" were expurgated when first printed in the United States because of the many so-called obscene passages in them. Soon after its publication too, "Jane Eyre" by Charlotte Bronte was said to be too immoral to be ranked as decent literature.

Arguing About Age of Some Great Trees

Mussolini Has Picked One Said to be the Oldest; Denying the Report May Bring About Another Bad War

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR.—IN A NOT very recent issue of the Star (November 13th), I note you featured an Italian cypress tree (misspelled cyprus), as the "ancestor of all trees." The news item is dated from Italy, and gives the age of the arboreal Methuselah as 1,177 years. It is further credited with sheltering Scipio and Julius Caesar.

The late Col. Lawrence wrote "every Arab believes his own ticks are gazelles." So let it be with Caesar's tree. If Mussolini states it is the world's oldest, a denial may mean war. It is doubtful, however, if Il Duce, who seems to have delved a bit into Roman history, would support your correspondent's claim as to Scipio and Julius C., or even as to the tree being the world's oldest. About 44 B. C., Cassius kept his famous appointment with the Shade of Caesar at Philippi—nearly 2,000 years ago—while Scipio had then been in his tomb nearly a century. Now if this wonderful tree could shadow some heroes eight hundred years before it grew, like its reputation, from a cracked nut, what was the reason the old shirker didn't go a bit farther? What excuse can it give for withholding its grateful shade from Romulus and Remus and the Big Bad Wolf their foster mother, Aeneas, Ananias (yea, verily), the mother of the Gracchi, Hannibal, Baron Munchausen, Sir John Mandeville, and all the other boys and girls, seven-come-eleven-hundred years before it sprouted.

No doubt it is a fine tree as trees go, but it suffers, like great men, at the hands of its biographers. Such claims of age are likely to cause strained relations with the native sons of California, whose Sequoia is often credited with 3,000 to 5,000 years, and has been officially clocked at 1,335. The yew at Ankerwyke, that looked on cynically when King John signed the Magna Charta in 1215, is probably as old as the Italian upstart, while some of the oaks at Croydon may have been silent witnesses of Julius Caesar's masterly advance to the rear when defeated near London while invading England. The Baobab tree of Africa is stated to reach an age of 5,000 years.

In its height of 126 feet, the "Cyprus" is a mere shrub compared with the Sequoia or Douglas fir, in its girth of 16½ feet, a puny sapling. If the Chamber of Commerce of Somma Lombardo has any really old trees to bring to our notice, as Mark Twain would have said, "Let them trot them out." It must be admitted in all fairness that your correspondent may have looked at the tree through the bottom of a Chianti glass, and culled his "history" from the memory of the oldest inhabitant. So do all stories from little "cypruses" grow. But to seek to delude our credulous western world with such a story of such a lowly herb, is unworthy of the correspondent, and the checker-upper, if any, of your valuable paper.

Yours for bigger and better "cypruses,"

BOSS A. STEWART.

Putting the Pressure on the Merchants

Soliciting Advertising Which Does Not Pay; Kingston Merchant Seeks to Find Way of Protection

(Letter in Kingston Whig-Standard)

TO THE EDITOR of the Whig-Standard. Sir: Merchants have become accustomed through the years to the innumerable schemes to raise money which are presented to them in the guise of "advertising" opportunities. Some refuse them altogether, no matter who the sponsor may be. Others try to help local welfare movements, though knowing that as advertising the effort is practically valueless.

Recently in Kingston there was a rather bad example of this sort of thing. An out-of-town organization, in some way, obtained permission to use the name of a very worthy local group. Under that cloak they sold "advertising" in a program to many merchants who felt that they could not refuse this group of Kingston people.

Then to get the audience a sort of high pressure telephone sales system was used, whereby people were called up in the name of the local organization, but I seriously suspect that the caller was a big town professional. This irritated many who felt obliged to buy tickets against their will. Undoubtedly the whole effort would make a few dollars for the local organization but it may cost something in good will, and I feel sure the out-of-town promoters got the most of the money.

I don't want to stress that point. My one thought is that there should be in Kingston an active Retail Merchants Association or Retail Division of the Chamber of Commerce that would look into such plans before they are offered to merchants and that we, as merchants, agree not to buy space or to contribute to any cause until it has received the consent of the committee. Such action would also help to protect the public.

Newspapers Speak of Export of Power

Western Opinion Says the Move is Not a Wise One; Hard Thing to Stop Once it is Placed in Operation

(Winnipeg Tribune)

ACTUALLY exporting power is bad business for Canada. Parliament a dozen years ago discussed the question fully and laid it down as a sound principle that no further export should be permitted. The principle has never been challenged until the present occasion, when close relations between Mr. Hepburn, Mr. Duplessis and the power interests have brought it to the fore again.

There are two sound reasons why power should not be exported. One is that export power tends definitely to create a vested interest, which makes withdrawal of the power exceedingly difficult if not impossible. The other is that cheap power is one of the greatest factors in building up Canada industrially, and our advantage in this respect disappears if the power is exportable.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

IN THIS matter of export of Hydro-Electric power, Mr. Hepburn brings himself within the observation and judgment of an audience much wider than that which is supplied by the electorate of Ontario; and the impression left is of a man who, when he is in a hurry can see nothing but the accomplishing, without delay, of his desires.

In this case Mr. Hepburn, having found it necessary to back away from the policy of cancellation of contracts with Quebec power companies, which he entered upon with great gusto in 1935, turns to the Ottawa Government to help him out of the financial difficulties which accompany this change of policy, by demanding that the surplus power, which the Government is thus obligated to take, be made available for export to the United States, where there is, of course, a market for it.

(Ottawa Journal)

ONE PROMINENT paragraph in one of these letters (the principal one) which Mr. Hepburn wrote Mr. King excites the wonderment of the Toronto Star. Said Mr. Hepburn:

"In my judgment the purchasing power of European and Asiatic countries will collapse with continued dissipation of gold reserves for armament purposes, and this continent will, as a consequence, witness an era of depression comparable to the one through which we have just passed."

Nothing new nor strange about that; other men, more competent to judge than Mr. Hepburn, have been saying the same thing. What strikes the Toronto Star as curious is that Mr. Hepburn, holding such belief, should be loading up Ontario with unsaleable Quebec power which Ontario has to pay for, whether used or not.

Incidentally, a paragraph in one of Mr. King's letters is also worth noting. It says that when Mr. King called on Mr. Hepburn on his way to Washington last March, Mr. Hepburn told him he was contemplating an election.

When, during the course of the election, Mr. Howe suggested that Mr. Hepburn's cheaper license-plates were in the nature of an election bribe, Mr. Hepburn replied: "Why, I forecast cheaper license-plates in my budget speech; I wasn't thinking of an election then."

Well, Mr. King called on Mr. Hepburn on March 4. Mr. Hepburn's budget speech was on March 9.

PRIMING THE PUMP.

(New York Times)

ONE GREAT defect of the theory that we can bring recovery by increased government spending is that it overlooks the enormous importance of psychological factors. It is true that increased government spending, in its early stages, may help to give a fillip to business otherwise stagnant. But when huge governmental spending and deficits have continued for so long a period that they create alarm, regarding either the Government's financial position or the future tax burden, an increase in the governmental expenditures or deficits merely intensifies that alarm and frightens away many times as much private spending as the additional Government spending.

Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? It is as high as heaven; what canst thou do? deeper than hell; what canst thou know? The measure thereof is longer than the earth, and broader than the sea.—Job xi, 7 to 9.

JOY IN FARMING.

(Ontario Milk Producer)

ONLY THOSE who have walked between the handles of a plow, behind a strong and well-trained team of horses, turning a straight and even furrow through sod or firm stubble-land, can understand that there might be glory and joy in that kind of work. That, and similar kinds of work, must be the sources of satisfaction that compensate the farmer for the economic disabilities which he suffers under the rule of a commercial age. At any rate, the farmer is well advised, whether or not his economic rewards are satisfying, to seek and find those other satisfactions which are found in the character of his work and of his surroundings, and which have been through all the ages the peculiar privileges of those who work among living and growing things, above the fruitful soil, and underneath the open sky.

LIKES OUR METHODS.

(Detroit Free Press)

APPLICATION of the lash to two young prisoners in Windsor, who broke into warehouse and did $2,000 worth of damage, will probably cause a chill to run up or down the back of many good people on this side of the line.

The same people will admit that it would be nice if we had as little crime in this country as they have in Canada, but when capital or corporal punishment is proposed as a deterrant to crime in Michigan these same tender-hearted people denounce it as barbaric and inhuman.

Canada has so little crime compared to the United States because it treats criminals like criminals, and not like misguided innocents, who would be scolded for robbery and slapped on the wrist for murder.

HENS WITH LIPSTICK.

The excessive use of depilatories to brighten the faces and create a strong impression was absolutely ridiculous. It did not improve the faces, and was easily detected.

He also condemned the pulling out of feathers.

SEYMOUR'S REEVE IS ROBERT INNES

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 29. — Robert Innes became Reeve-elect of Seymour Township when he qualified for the office on Tuesday afternoon. A surprise came to a crowd of Seymour who were expecting a keen contest between Reeve John Currie and William J. Frank Lee and Bill Ross will contest the office of Deputy-Reeve, both having sat on the council during the past year. Melville Wight, Robert Bateson and John Kelly will be the three new members of Seymour's Council, all three having been given acclamations, leaving the contest only for the office of Deputy-Reeve with the retirement of William Rowe from the council.

British Princesses Would Visit With Grey Owl In Canada

"Friend Of The Beaver People" Finds King All For Protecting His Wild Game

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (CP).—Grey Owl, Canadian Indian naturalist who was "a poor frightened savage" when he first appeared in London on the stage with Buffalo Bill, returned from the Empire's capital yesterday full of "big talk" about his reception at Buckingham Palace by "the great white father."

"I told the King what I was doing toward conservation of his animal subjects," the Indian told newspapermen as he arrived from London in the liner Berengaria, resplendant in beaded buckskins and with a single eagle plume in his black braids. "His Majesty said he was 'all for it'."

"Queen Elizabeth and the princesses, Margaret and Elizabeth, said they would like to come back with us to Beaver Lodge, north of Prince Albert," said Silver Moon. "The princesses are sweet children."

The Canadian north country, said Wa-Sha-Quon-Asin (Grey Owl's Indian name), is the Dominion's greatest asset. To keep it as such, he believes its wild life should be maintained and that the Indians should be given the job of doing it.

"If that were done, the Indian could hold up his head as a solid, constructive citizen of the Dominion."

In 1906 Grey Owl went to London as "a savage Apache warrior" in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show. Since then he has come a long way. He has learned his perfect English. He has become the "friend of the Beaver people."

"I started as a poor frightened savage on a stage in a theatre in London," said Grey Owl.

Has Some Differences.

However, the "Friend of the Beaver People"—people because Grey Owl considers Canada's industrious little animal emblem he most human denizen of the wilds—was not so pleased with some of the "Great White Father's" white subjects.

He referred feelingly to the refusal of the British Broadcasting Corporation to let him deliver a lecture to children last week because he planned to speak against "blood sports," such as fox-hunting. The B.B.C. ruled out that part of the lecture as controversial.

"It seemed to me," the naturalist said, "that the B.B.C. was putting the opinion of a minority over the welfare of children. I do not consider the blood sports human, and in honesty to myself I insisted that the plea to children not to engage in such sports be included in the lecture."

The B.B.C. was adamant. So was Grey Owl. He packed his bags and sailed for a three-month lecture tour of the United States. With him came his pretty, dark-haired wife of 26, Silver Moon or Washe-Ski-Tibi-oun.

"And I ended up talking to King George in Buckingham Palace.... But I want to go back to Saskatchewan's north country. We want to see our five-year-old daughter, Shirley Dawn, and our two best friends—Jelly Roll and Rawhide, the beaver who always stay home."

NEW STRUCTURES TO GRACE OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Dec. 29 (CP)—Addition of two new structures to Ottawa's architectural adornment will make the year 1938 an important one in the long-range program for the beautification of the Canadian capital.

The national war memorial and a new building for the Supreme Court of Canada will be erected during the year. As they will flank the central block of the parliament buildings on either side they will be focal points in the general development scheme.

In a sense the new Supreme Court building will serve as a complement to the parliament buildings and will balance out a westerly extension of government buildings along Wellington street which, Prime Minister Mackenzie King believes, is destined to become one of the most important thoroughfares in the world.

The parliament buildings with their lofty peace tower sit well back from the street and the approach to them is across a spacious lawn with the east block and the west block on either side. Their rear overlooks a steep cliff dropping down the Ottawa River.

The new Supreme Court building will be in a similar setting. It, too, will sit well back from the street on a somewhat lower cliff bordering the river. The approach to it will be between the new justice building and another proposed government office building.

To the east of the parliament buildings the national war memorial will be assembled at the head of a widened street. It too will be a focal point in town-planning as extensive landscaping and street alterations will centre upon it.

The memorial was constructed in England by the famous March Brothers and recently brought to Ottawa. It is stored in pieces and may be assembled any time the ground is prepared and a foundation laid.

NO NEW CLOTHIERS

BERLIN, Dec. 29—(CP-Havas)—The German government announced to-day that new clothing stores cannot henceforth be established in Berlin without special authorization from the Ministry of Economy. Jewish business men will not be granted such authorization in any case.

DOG GUARDS BODY

METCALFE, Ont., Dec. 26 (CP)—With his dog standing guard over him, the frozen body of 74-year-old James McDowell was found yesterday beside a pump on his farm near here, where he lived alone.

A doctor said McDowell died of natural causes and that the body had been lying on the ground for at least 24 hours.

NO REASON FOR WAR

LONDON, Dec. 29—(CP).—Haile Selassie, deposed Emperor of Ethiopia, in a Christmas message broadcast to the United States, declared "no reasons" can ever justify war. Speaking in Amharic, later translated into English, the Negus asked his listeners to remember in their prayers the "weak and oppressed peoples" of the world.

TO THE ELECTORS

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Yesterday I mentioned the need of going after more industries for Peterborough.

Today I wish to call your attention to the need of doing everything in our power to secure for this city greater benefits from what has become one of the greatest of all industries—that is the tourist industry.

The money put into circulation here by the army of summer visitors, directly or indirectly, benefits everyone of us and it is plainly the duty of the civic government to encourage and develop the tourist business in every way possible. I pledge myself to that end if honored with your confidence.

Associated with that question is, of course, the maintenance and development of our tourist camp so that it will be the means of attracting more visitors to this city.

Another problem facing the council here, as it faces the authorities everywhere, is the parking question. This is something that should be studied carefully, both from the viewpoint of the merchant and the motorist, and I believe that we should acquaint ourselves with methods that are proving satisfactory in other centres so that we can deal with the problem effectively in Peterborough.

These are some of th matters which I believe are vitally in the interest of the community to have dealt with and I will, in co-operation with other members of the council, do everything possible to have them disposed of satisfactorily.

Yours faithfully,

R. M. GLOVER.

ALDERMAN

For 1938

SEASON'S GREETINGS TO ALL

To the Electors of Smith Township

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I sincerely solicit your vote and influence on my behalf as Reeve for 1938 and will, if elected, continue to look after your interests both in township and county matters as best I know how.

Wishing you all a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours sincerely,

Geo. E. Mullen

HAVING been nominated for the two-year term, I am a candidate for the office of alderman.

During the two years now closing I have endeavoured to serve my fellow citizens in such a manner as I felt was in their best interests. To this end, I discharged all my duties conscientiously, having in mind a bigger and better Peterborough.

Constant reference has been made to the fine position in which our city finds itself financially and otherwise. I should like to point out that this has not been the accomplishment of any particular Council or group, but is the result of cooperative effort on the part of many Councils and interested men and women from all walks of life, who have worked steadily and consistently with one end in view, namely, to make Peterborough a better city for all.

I feel that the present is an opportune time for further development and also that we are in a pre-eminent position to take whatever opportunities present themselves and turn them to good advantage. If we are to succeed in this, the same cooperative spirit, which guided our efforts in the past, must continue to be our rule for the future, and if elected I shall continue to work along constructive lines and to serve in such way as will give the city clean, sane and efficient administration.

Your Vote Is Respectfully Solicited for ALDERMAN W. F. Huycke

Vote James Juby For Alderman

Having decided to seek a further two years term as Alderman, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence. A Happy New Year to all.

Elect Dr. E. Mark Crough

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am offering my services to you as alderman for the city and I solicit your influence and vote at the polls on New Year's Day.

Always deeply interested in the welfare of this fair city, I will strive for its betterment, ever keeping in mind that Peterborough is to-day the Industrial city that it is because it has lived up to its agreements and promises with the industries that we have.

New industries are what Peterborough needs and in the past year we have failed while rapid strides have been made by Brantford, Kitchener and St. Catharines. We must revert to that friendly but fair policy if we want to grow.

Wishing you the Compliments of the Season.

DR. E. MARK CROUGH

ELECT HERB McCANNAN

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Wishing everyone compilation for one-year term as ALDERMAN, I solicit your influence and support at the polls on New Year's Day.

I firmly believe the time has come when concerted action is needed in dealing with the parking problem, and I will work to secure the numerous available parking lots as parking space and stop the blockading of our main streets. Also I believe something must be done to flush our main streets in summer to get rid of dust nuisance.

Having accepted nominations of the season.

HERB McCANNAN.

With the Girl Guides.

There have been no regular meetings in the past week, but 1st and 2nd Companies got together and gave an enjoyable party to the children from the Shelter and St. Vincent's. We were unable to get Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, but did not mind that when we had such an able substitute in Mr. Lewis and his little friend, Sandy McNabb. This was certainly something new in entertainment for the children.

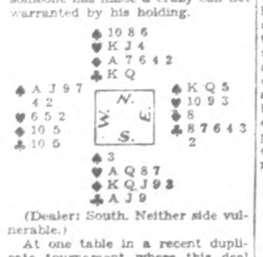
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DOUBT YOUR EYES

IT IS PRETTY hard to believe your eyes sometimes, especially when playing contract bridge. All of the fine card-reading in the world, based upon the idea that sound bids have been made by the other players, can go askew if someone has made a crazy call not warranted by his holding.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

At one table in a recent duplicate tournament where this deal arose, the South player, using the Vanderbilt club, opened with 1-Club, to which North responded with 2-Diamonds. South then jumped into 3-No Trumps without endeavoring to discover just where the high cards shown by his partner were located. He figured, from his own holding, that the spades were stopped in the North hand, but in bidding so hastily he not only was defeated at this contract, but missed a chance to get a diamond slam.

When West led the spade 7 against the 3-No Trumps contract, East put on the queen. When it held, East was quite sure that South had the A-J and that his partner led from the top of nothing, as four cards higher than the seven were in sight and for the no trump bid South surely had an honor or two in the suit. However, after due reflection, East decided that there was no other desirable return and that his king was spotted in any event, so he laid down his spade K. When South showed out surprise was registered by North and glee by the defenders. West took no chance of his partner again leading the suit, but overtook the king with the ace and ran six tricks.

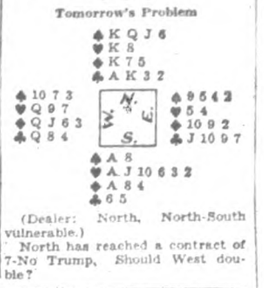
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North has reached a contract of 7-No Trump. Should West double?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Where the first baby laughed for the first time, the laugh broke into a million pieces, and they all went skipping about. That was the beginning of fairies."

—Sir James Barrie, (Peter Pan)

Dear Friends:

In someone told you they could put a good fairy inside of you, so that life would be as you would have it, would you not be glad to accept the gift? Think of all you could do if only you could summon this fairy at any time to do bidding.

And yet we all have just such a thing, but we will not believe it. Like ourselves, it is made up of different parts, as we are with lungs and heart, feet and hands etc.

The first and greatest part of our fairy is, a knowledge of God. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you."

The second part is a belief in ourselves AS children of God. Without that we shall stumble instead of walking, we shall fall instead of staying erect.

The third is a belief in our fellow man. Keep these three together actively, and you have a good fairy whom nothing can down, who will make all your dreams come true.

I do not like to be preached at, as I will not preach at you. But, if I know the most vital thing in the world, the most important, the most dependable—and keep it from you, then I give you less than the best, and that's no good.

So many shudder away from knowing God. They think He will deprive them of their toys, or take all the joy out of living. But He is not like that at all.

But once you do get to know Him, you yourself cast aside the dross and cling to the pure gold. If you thought a king liked you enough to make an intimate friend of you, you would be flattered enough to mind your step.

You will not be vulgar nor coarse. You would not over-eat nor over-drink, for you would not want your friend, the king to be ashamed of you. You would not lie or cheat, for then you would disappoint your friend. You would be honorable for He is the soul of honor.

And in the doing of all this, you would be the gainer. You would think there must be something nice about you, else one so high would not choose you as a friend. So you would get a belief in yourself.

In a little while, you would see others whom the king had chosen as friends also, and you would get a belief in humanity. And then you would find this fairy of belief in God, yourself, and your fellow men would work for you in all ways, so that life would be fairer (fairy-er) fuller, more satisfying.

But—this fairy must be part of your everyday life. You cannot use hit-and-miss methods and get results. Look over your life now and think of the things that give you pleasure. Are any of them permanent? When they leave you or you leave them, what have you to warm your heart?

Get it into your head that God does not want to deprive you of any happiness, He wants to GIVE you some. A person doesn't have to go out into the world much to know that humanity is seething with unrest, and that people everywhere are asking "What is life all about anyway?"

We have sought the wrong things first. Material success, fame, honor, a good living, enjoyment of the senses, all these are good, but the knowledge and love for God should be first, and until we get that, we shall not enjoy even the little we have striven for.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Make Your Party Hum With Lively Games

The perfect ice-breaker! "Hand-Me-Down Hats" provoke howls of laughter—and increase your popularity as a hostess.

Ask each guest to bring an old hat—the more ancient and grotesque the better. To a lively tune the guests briskly pass their hats in paper bags to each other around a circle. The music stops! Each peeks in his bag. If the hat suits him, he gaily carries it out of the circle. The music resumes. Unsatisfied customers pass hats again. At the fifth stop of the music each guest puts on—in the dark—the hat he holds. The funniest gets a prize.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, and, for real results, it is still a very dependable thing for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really superior cough remedy—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such prompt, pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

MARY MOORE'S HELPFUL HINTS TO THE HOSTESS

Good Food Is Sure To Make New Year's Day A Happy One

Roast Goose With Potato Stuffing Makes An Excellent Dinner

By MARY MOORE.

We will all hear the New Year rung in and experience a thrill, no matter how calm or sophisticated we happen to be.

I'll wager there is not one of you who does not make a resolve—silent or spoken—to be or do something better.

I feel a moral creeping up on me but my field is supposed to be cooking—so remember that your best way to SERVE is to nourish your family well—Resolve Number One.

A roast goose with potato stuffing I have never served on New Year's Day but this year it is going to be a reality.

That is all the menu I am going to suggest though because I want room for recipes that can be served for late suppers or unexpected company during these busy calling days.

Roast Goose With Potato Stuffing.

Have goose drawn by butcher—it is best not to buy too large a goose—because much of their excess weight is due to fat. Singe goose and scrub with hot water and baking soda. Rinse in cold water and dry well. Stuff with potato stuffing (below) and truss. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and rub with flour. Place on open pan on trivet and bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 to finish. A medium sized goose requires 2½ to 3 hours. Baste often with fat in pan which drips from goose. If goose is not standing on trivet much of the fat that cooks out of it should be dipped from pan from time to time.

Potato Stuffing

(For Roast Goose or Duck)

Three cups hot mashed potatoes, 1¾ cups soft stale bread crumbs, one-third cup finely chopped fat salt pork, 1 large finely chopped onion, one-third cup butter, 1 egg, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon fresh sage. Saute the onion in the butter with the fat salt pork, slowly for 5 minutes. Then add to remaining ingredients and mix all well.

Emeny's Casserole of Oysters De Luxe

This makes a grand one-piece dish to serve for dinner the Sunday night after New Year's Day.

One pint of oysters, ½ lb. mushrooms, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 1 tablespoon pimiento, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon fresh paprika, a few grains cayenne.

Melt the butter slowly in frying pan and add thinly sliced washed mushroom (stems too) and chopped or grated onion and chopped pimiento and stir about over very low heat until mushrooms are limp but not very shrunken. Drain the liquor from the oysters and make it up to two cups by adding 1 cup cream and some water. Pour this over the sauteed vegetables and stir until it thickens. Add all the seasonings then pour some of this mixture into buttered large casserole, cover with layer of drained oysters, pour over another layer of the creamed vegetables, then another layer of oysters, finishing with cream layer. Top with ¼ cup well buttered fine crumbs and sprinkle top with paprika. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes being careful not to make crumbs too brown. Heat should be on from top and bottom to cook both layers of oysters.

Serve only a generous salad besides a thin soup and dessert course with the above one piece dinner dish.

The following method for preparing potatoes while it is not sensational to taste gives you something a little unusual to surround your roast with both as a garnishment and food. Also looks nice on a special vegetable plate.

Red Cap Potato Cones

Two cups mashed potatoes seasoned with salt and pepper and about ¼ cup milk. If this makes them too thin for handling add 1 tablespoon flour, add ½ cup grated old Canadian cheese. Mould into cone-shaped mounds about 3 inches high and 1¾ inches wide at the base. Roll in more grated cheese and sprinkle top tip heavily with paprika. Stand on buttered baking pan and put in hot oven of 425 deg Fahr. to heat through and become golden. Garnish base of each cone with parsley when serving.

Jellied Egg and Vegetable Salad

I include this here because it can be made one or even two days before it is to be used. Nice to have on hand when you have week-end guests and time in the kitchen is limited.

If those are moulded in individual moulds (your demi tasses are fine for this purpose) they keep nicely without drying out or shrivelling in the ice box.

Two cups canned tomatoes, 1 small onion, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 peppercorns, ½ cup diced celery, 1 cup cold cooked lima beans (save the choicest unbroken ones from some that have been boiled for previous day's meal), 1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 3 hard cooked eggs. Add the peppercorns, salt and onions to the tomatoes and simmer them gently for 10 minutes. Soak the gelatine in the cold water for 5 minutes. Strain the tomatoes over the gelatin to soften it. When partially chilled add the diced celery and whole lima beans. Slice the hard cooked eggs not too thinly and put one slice in bottom of each mould. Add one tablespoon of the vegetables and jelly and let set then add another slice of egg to each and fill moulds with remaining vegetables and jelly and let chill.

Serve these moulds on tender inner head lettuce leaves with true mayonnaise. Very pretty and flavorful with a lamb or veal chop course.

Astor Fruit Salad with Honey Dressing

You need not use the vegetables we suggest but we found these perfect if a little luxurious.

Drained pineapple tidbits, drained canned grapefruit sections, fresh pulp-free segments from Navel oranges or drained mandarin oranges (canned), skinned stoned imported grapes and sliced green maraschino cherries.

Alternative mixture (less costly). Sliced drained canned peaches, drained canned cubed pineapple, oblongs from ripe bananas, sections from fresh grapefruit, red maraschino cherries sliced thinly.

Whichever of these combinations you use drain them well, and chill thoroughly.

Serve about 1 heaping tablespoon of this on a well curled tender head lettuce leaf. Make the dressing as follows.

Honey Dressing (for fruit salad)

Dissolve ½ teaspoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water and stir over hot water until it dissolves. To this add ½ cup honey and stir until mixed then add ¼ cup lemon juice. Beat well then fold in ¼ cup cream which has been beaten until stiff.

If preferred the fruits may be mixed in a very small amount of this dressing before arranging on salad plates. Pass remainder of dressing at table.

Happiest of New Years to you all.

Whether you think to invite them or not many welcome guests will enter your household this Christmas time and you will want to invite them to dinner, a nice meal, too, that has a Christmas touch.

At some of the Jewish grocery stores you may buy spiced or dried beef at more reasonable prices than some of our Gentile stores. A pound of this rich flavored meat may be kept well wrapped in the ice box to answer the call when it is unexpectedly wanted. Make a:

Dried Beef Rarebit

One-quarter lb. dried beef, 3 tablespoons minced onion, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups tomato juice, 1 cup grated cheese, 3 eggs well beaten, salt, toast toasted on one side only.

Shred the dried beef by pulling apart with fingers or forks. Pour boiling water over and immediately drain it. Melt the butter in the top of a double boiler over direct heat. Add the onion and saute for 1 minute then add the dried beef and cook 55 minutes over very low heat moving it about. Then add the flour, stirring, then tomato juice and cook over hot water until smooth and thickened. Add the cheese and stir until melted. Pour the hot mixture over the beaten eggs then return to double boiler and cook 1 minute. Add salt if necessary (the dried beef is rather salt). Serve immediately on untoasted side of buttered toast. Garnish with parsely or green pepper rings.

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I would appreciate your assistance in solving a problem which is giving me some difficulty. I am employed as a pastry cook in a position where I often have to serve cakes, pies, puddings, etc., to a large number of people—nearly 500 on occasion—and in order to get variety I am always on the lookout for suitable recipes.

When I take any standard cook book and refer to a recipe which gives quantities meant for ordinary family I find it difficult to strike a safe and dependable rule for calculating the increased quantities which would be required for the 500 or if one were to increase pro rata it would run the cost up too high.

To illustrate the point we will take a cake recipe which calls for the following: 1 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1¾ cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt. If this would provide say 15 portions then to increase to a point where it would serve 500 one would require to multiply quantities of ingredients by say 33 and this basis would require to use about 8 and one-third lbs. butter, 16 and two-thirds lbs. sugar, 3 dozen eggs, 50 teaspoons baking powder.

I am under the impression that this is not truly practical or economical and as one who has given considerable study to problems of this kind I am wondering if you could provide me with a safe rule and perchance with 500 portion quantities for some suitable cakes, puddings, etc. I will appreciate any assistance.—G.M.S.

ANSWER: Your problem is very interesting and to a certain extent you are right about increasing family size recipes to large proportions being too expensive.

I have selected white and chocolate cakes because they can be made into small cakes; and white cake can be changed to make spice, applesauce, banana, coffee cakes, etc.

White Cake to Serve 288 People

Six quarts sugar, 6 lbs. butter or butter substitute or mixed butter substitute and butter, 3¾ quarts milk, ¾ cup baking powder, 60 egg whites, 9 quarts sifted flour, 2 tablespoons salt. Cream the fat and sugar thoroughly together. Mix the dry ingredients and add alternately to the fat and sugar with the milk. Fold in the beaten whites last. This makes 18 2-layer cakes. But if preferred this amount may be baked in square tins 24 x 24 inches and will fill 3 pans. Where a mixing machine is used it is best to mix the butter and sugar 20 minutes and then add the remaining ingredients as described above.

It is not advisable to double this recipe if you want more—rather make two batches.

If you wish to use the egg yolks too, use only 40 eggs beating the whites and yolks separately, adding the yolks to the butter and sugar after they have been beaten as light as possible.

Chocolate Cake For 160 People

Two and one-half quarts sugar, 3 cups butter or substitute, 8 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon salt, ¾ cup baking powder, 4¼ quarts pastry flour, 5 teaspoons soda, 5 cups milk, 2 tablespoons vanilla, 14 egg whites, 6 egg yolks, 5 cups milks, 12 oz. cocoa. Over double boiler make a custard of the yolks, milk and cocoa beaten together, then stirred until slightly thick, then cool. Cream the fat and sugar thoroughly, add the custard and vanilla. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately with the milk. Fold in the beaten egg whites. This amount will make 10 2-layer cakes, 9¼ inches in diameter, each cakes to be cut in 16 pieces.

Prune Pudding for 480 People

Eight gallons of milk, 8 lbs. cornstarch, 8 dozen egg yolks and whites, ½ cup salt, 8 lbs. sugar, two-thirds cup vanilla, 32 lbs. prunes, 10 cups sugar. Scald the milk, mix and sift the cornstarch and sugar (first quantity) to the milk, stirring constantly. When the cornstarch has thickened add the yolks and salt stirring off the heat. Pour this custard mixture over the prunes which have been stoned and placed in bottom of a pudding pan. Make a meringue of the whites and second quantity of sugar and spread over the pudding and place in slow oven of 300 deg Fahr. to bake and list meringue golden.

A recipe book entitled "Quantity Cookery" by Lenore Richards and Nola Treat, and published by Little, Brown and Co., of Boston, is the source from which I received this recipe. Maybe you could write to these publishers for information where you could get a copy of it.

Hoping these recipes are useful. If you want other specific recipes and do not care to purchase the book, name them and send self-addressed stamped envelope and I will be glad to send them.

QUESTION: As we get your paper I would like to have the shortbread and mincemeat cookies and date drops for Christmas holiday that were in last week's paper. Also Christmas candies recipes I would like any recipes you could send me.

Could you please give me some information on dyeing a tweed coat. It is a very light tan color, and I would like to dye it a dark blue. Thanking you.—Mrs. E. B.

ANSWER: The cookie recipes have been sent to you by mail. Kindly see last week's page for the candy recipes. Since Christmas foods are in such demand now would you mind if we waited until after Christmas to give you the dyeing instructions? Please watch the cookery page after Christmas for it. Come again whenever we can help.

protest against a proposal to reduce automatic wage increases for the lower-salaried municipal employees —a 1938 budget economy move.

William Bertrand, under-secretary of public works and Premier Chautemps' chief assistant in strike matters, hinted a belief that the walkout might have been communist-inspired when he said:

"M. Saint-Genest, one signer of the strike order and secretary-general of the Chauffeurs' Union—who himself handed me that order—was still in Moscow a few days ago."

Rightist newspapers were quick to link Bertrand's statement with the allegations of Eugene Deloncle, accused leader of the Rightist Scar—Comite Secret D'Action Revolutionaire—that a frustrated communist revolution had been set for mid-November with widespread strikes as part of the plan. He said the plot had been nipped by the army.

Premier Chautemps refused to receive representatives of striking public service workers until after work has been resumed. It was rumored the strike would spread to the provinces.

Condemnation of the sudden and crippling labor action was general, even leftist papers joining in the criticism.

PARALYSIS RATED SECOND TO CANCER

alysis "offers one of the greatest challenges to the medical profession, to philanthropists and all others who support medical research."

"Never had Canada been so perfectly mobilized to cope with resultant paralysis as now," he added. "A great deal is being accomplished through the co-operation of provincial health departments and health workers generally, but long-range research is urgently needed if this devastating disease is to be conquered."

He warned that while statistics indicate next year's incidence of polio would, in its ordinary cycle, be less, "No one knows where it will strike. It may perhaps make its greatest attack where it was practically absent this year."

An experiment is nasal spraying of 5,000 Toronto children with zinc sulphate—which the Ontario Health Department found could not be considered a practical public health procedure—was admittedly a disappointment to medical men. But, it served to show the need for more industrious and better endowed research.

But one of the greatest factors in this safety setup, in the opinion of the Chief Constable, is the assistance given by citizens. When children are noticed playing in danger zones, the police are advised promptly by some neighborhood resident or passer-by and immediate steps are taken to stop it.

ONTARIO ROADSIDE SAMARITAN NOTED

Red Cross Society and the Ontario Motor League.

Will Take No Pay

"These men refuse payment for their services," William Butt of the St. John Association reported today. "They have given their time to study first aid work and feel they are making some contribution to mankind. It is just a matter of good will."

Mr. Butt said physicians reported the roadside samaritans saved three highway victims from bleeding to death. One was near Gananoque in eastern Ontario, another near Niagara Falls and a third near Oakville on the Toronto-Hamilton highway. "One of these suffered a severe fracture with arterial haemorrhage, another had an arterial haemhorrage from the temple and the third had an arterial haemhorrage from the left hand," he said.

Ontario hopes to establish first aid stations during 1938 along the number three highway in western Ontario leading from Port Erie to Windsor. "We want to establish them as usual where there are no hospital facilities," Mr. Butt said. "For instance at Tilbury (25 miles east of Windsor) there is no hospital for 20 miles."

Later plans by the committee of the three associations supervising the work include first aid stations on every Ontario highway.

After the singing of carols Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus arrived and all the children were given candies from this jolly pair.

100,000 BUFFALO HOMES GO DARK AS POWER FAILS

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 29—(AP)—Buffalo and its suburbs, representing a population of approximately 700,000, encountered its second serious emergency within a month to-day when electric service failed in more than 100,000 homes. Three weeks ago a winter storm crippled the city and environs.

Hospitals, office buildings and stores also were affected by the power tieup in the state's second largest city, only 20 miles from Niagara Falls, source of one of the world's largest Hydro-Electric Power developments.

Shoppers and office workers were marooned in elevators between the floors in eight downtown buildings.

Many automobiles were put out of commission because filling stations were not able to pump gasoline into empty tanks.

Traffic lights failed.

Six hospitals were without electric service. In several places, however, auxiliary service was brought for use while operations were completed.

A low, rumbling explosion in a large electric distributing plant in suburban Tonawanda followed by fire cut off the electric service of virtually all residential sections.

DOURO ELECTION WILL BE STAGED

Although Reeve Frank D. Leahy and John J. Leahy both of whom were nominated on Monday have decided to drop out of the race, there will be an election for the reeveship of Douro nevertheless. Martin P. Coughlin, former reeve and one-time warden of the county is returning to the political wars and will have as his opponent Jeremiah Mahoney, both candidates having qualified. For council Albert Darling and William Hayes of last year's council and Robert Bolton, a former councillor and Fred Fitzgerald and Michael Whibbs are running.

Locke became Deputy-Reeve of Campbellford at nine o'clock Tuesday night when no other candidate qualified for the office and he thus received the only acclamation for next year's municipal slate. Five names will appear on the ballot for Public School Trustees, with only three to be elected, with Dr. H. O. Richardson, C. W. Pallister and J. A. Irwin, former members being opposed by Hector McArthur and Mrs. Euphemia Hollings.

The retirement of Reeve E. C. McKee is generally regarded with regret by many citizens who appreciated the work done by him at County Council on behalf of the town and although comparatively a newcomer to the municipal field, the hope is expressed that he will again seek office when the pressure of his own business will allow him sufficient time.

HAVELOCK, Dec. 29.— A lively contest is promised for Havelock civic elections, with two candidates for reeveships, and eight for the four council seats. Reeve E. W. HOW TO Win Friends AND Influence People

By Dale Carnegie . . . Author of the famous book of this name . . .

"Of all the sure-fire devices ever invented for destroying love and breaking up a home, nagging is the most deadly.

"An authority on Domestic Relations says that one of the chief reasons why men leave home is because they won't tolerate nagging wives."

"Yes, and many a wife has been driven to desperation by a carping, fault-finding husband.

"Probably, more promising marriages have been wrecked, more homes broken up, by nagging partners than by any other one cause."

"If you are prone to nag, don't try to justify yourself by saying that you have cause. Perhaps you have. But that is not the point.

"The point is that nagging never accomplishes anything you want. Invariably, it only makes a bad matter worse."

"Husbands and wives are human beings—prone to faults and shortcomings. Yet, by adjusting themselves to each other's personalities, lasting happiness is possible.

"Later in this series, I will tell you how these adjustments can sometimes be made. But remember, nagging is worse than useless, always. Avoid it as you would avoid a snake.'

HAVE YOU SMOKED A TURRET LATELY?

IF every nagging wife, and every fault-finding husband would make it a point to "cool off" by smoking a Turret in silence, before saying a single word, many a home might be a pleasanter place in which to live. Turrets are so soothing because they are made from an original and unique blend of fine Virginia tobaccos. Even the package is better—it has a handy calendar on the back to keep you up to date. If you haven't smoked a Turret lately, try a package today.

TEN REEVES ARE RETURNED BY ACCLAMATION IN THE COUNTY

Contest In Havelock Is Expected To Be Sharpest In County Next Monday

Real Live Battles Also Expected In Smith, Harvey, Douro And Dummer

Twelve of the present members of Peterborough county council have been returned by acclamation in their respective municipalities, and elections to decide the six other representatives will be held next Monday in Havelock, Smith, Dummer, Douro and Harvey.

Reeve Frank Leahy has retired in Douro, leaving the township to the ratepayers' choice between Martin Coughlin, a former reeve and Warden of the county, and Jeremiah Mahoney, an experienced councillor. John J. Leahy was also nominated, but he also withdrew, leaving the township without a Leahy as reeve for the first time in quite a number of years.

Possibly the contest in Havelock will be the sharpest in the county next Monday. E. J. Leeson, a former reeve, has taken the field against Reeve E. W. Seeney who has represented the railway village in the county council for the last two years. Richard Tedford is opposing Reeve E. N. McDonald in Dummer, and in Harvey township Reeve Wallace Shearer has a fight on his hands with the decision of Hugh Given, a former reeve of the township, to enter the municipal lists again.

Election In Smith

Election activity has been spurred in Smith by the shift in the equalized assessment which placed the township on the top of the county heap, while Otonabee got a reduction and dropped to second place. Three candidates qualified for the reeveship and four for the deputy's chair.

Reeve George Mullen has an engagement with Allan B. Mann who preceded him in the reeveship, and Charles Westlake who has had considerable experience as a councillor. The four candidates for deputy-reeve are Fred Armstrong, Harry Fowler, Sr., Wilbert Rosborough and Hilliard Dunford.

The three members of Smith Council elected by acclamation are Gilbert McIlmoyle, William J. Telford, and Milton Clark.

Given Acclamations.

Board Of Health Lays Over Request

Deciding the matter requires further study before action is taken, the Board of Health took no action on a request from the Separate School Board for appointment of a combination school nurse and attendance officer, at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon. The request was laid over for future consideration.

A letter from J. E. Sullivan, Separate School Board secretary, informed the Board of the request. Members were taken by surprise, it is understood, and will investigate the extent to which the Board is obligated to follow the Separate School request and the extent to which it may be involved in paying the salary of the appointment.

The Italian writer died of his wound shortly after he had been taken off the stricken United State gunboat in which he was leaving Nanking.

Cabinet Trio Goes South

This trio of Canadian federal cabinet ministers are caught by the camera in Miami, Fla., far from the chill of Ottawa's winter or the busy desks of their parliament building offices. They are Hon. W. D. Euler (LEFT), minister of trade and commerce; Hon. C. D. Howe, (CENTRE), minister of transport, and Hon. T. A. Crerar (RIGHT), minister of mines. 100 YOUNG MEN BEEN REGISTERED FOR YOUTH COURSE

Representative for the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Program, A. C. Dennis arrived in the city today to take over the duties formerly discharged by Mr. Stewart. He comes here from Toronto where his work in connection with the placing of young men and women in industry, was stated to have met with much success.

Carl S. Browne, chairman of the local executive of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Program, intimated that already about one hundred young men are registered under the scheme with Dan Douglas, superintendent of the local agency of the Dominion Employment Service. While no contracts have yet been signed with local employers of labor, Mr. Dennis was planning to contact heads of manufacturing firms in the city and district with a view of getting as many applicants as possible placed in the near future.

Besides Peterborough, Mr. Dennis' territory includes Oshawa, Cobourg, and Port Hope.

BABY CHRISTENED IN ANCIENT DRESS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 29. — Fred William, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. James Linn was christened at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, Bonarlaw, on Sunday last. The baptismal service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Harding, and baby Freddie wore a dress made by his great-great-grandmother more than seventy-five years ago and used for the christening of each of her children, and since shortened and worn on similar occasions by grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The dress itself, a remarkable piece of hand work, is done with tiny pin tucks and a profusion of very fine hand embroidery. Following the ceremony luncheon of dainty Christmas and birthday cake was served, the occasion also marking the birthday of Fred Rutherford and Mrs. H. T. Scott, of town.

The Rambling REPORTERS

NO NEWS FROM SHANGHAI

When a rambling scribe spotted a letter cancelled with the Shanghai postmark, he learned from Y. W. Cheng of the Mayfair Cafe on George Street, that Cheng's father lives in the ill-fated city that was recently captured by the Japanese. With the sang froid characteristic of his race, Cheng opened the letter at the suggestion of his inquisitive visitor, and when asked for the latest news from the beleaguered city, replied: "It is from my friend. He want to know if I got some newspapers he sent me before the city was captured." "Is that all? Does he not speak of anything else," we asked, betraying disappointment and surprise. "No. The Japanese are censoring the mail," the Chinese replied. He admitted after being plied with further questions his friend did state that food was very scarce in Shanghai, but he smiled, "That is old news. I read about that in the newspapers long time ago." Asked if he was not concerned for the safety of his father, Cheng replied, "I not worry about my father. He can take care of himself." And then perhaps, as the shadow of doubt crossed his mind and caused him anxiety, he added, "He is in the British Concession. That is why I don't worry." He made this last remark with such a serious air of assurance as to make any Britisher proud. It was as if with real Oriental diplomacy, Cheng was trying to say on behalf of his oppressed countrymen, "We thank Great Britain and the British Empire that their flag stands for liberty and protection."—R.

CATCH ALBINO DEER

NEW GLASGOW, N.S.—(CP)—An Albino deer, captured alive by Charles R. Smith, is being kept in a corral at his Lower Barney's River home. Although albino deer have been seen several times in Pictou County, this is the first time one has been caught alive.

Kidnapped Child And Nurse Freed

Seized by heavily armed kidnappers from the side of brilliantly lighted Christmas tree, little John Bryan, 3, son of a Centreville, Ind., banker and his nurse, Miss Ruth Schroy, were released a few hours later, when the kidnap plan was foiled by the lad's father. The kidnappers demanded $3,800 ransom, but Banker Bryan, who arrived home as the bandits drove away in two cars, opened fire on the fleeing cars, and they separated. Apparently panicky when his companion failed to rejoin him, the abductor guarding Nurse Schroy and the child pushed them from the car and fled. Neither was injured.

Fifty Different Countries Is Record Of Peterboro' DXer

World Roaming Is The Hobby Of Roland Halcrow, 16-Year-Old Youth

World roaming is the hobby of Roland Halcrow, 16 years of age, who lives at 629 George street. He roams not by ship, train or airplanes but by other wave as he sits nightly at the dials of his powerful all-wave radio receiver.

Probably one of the youngest DXers of this region—DXer is, of course, the radio parlance term for such world roamers—the lad has only been at it a year, yet he has an unusual record of achievement. "When I began listening in September, 1936, I never dreamed of ever receiving verification cards of reception from foreign stations but today I have cards from eighteen different countries," he states. "I have heard over fifty different countries and have cards from five different provinces and twenty states. I have a total of 176 cards from stations and shortwaves listeners all over the world."

Halcrow's first step to establish himself as a full-fledged DXer after he became interested last year was to build himself a three-tube screen grid regenerative receiver. He purchased later a six-tube all-wave receiver and this year bought a four-tube receiver.

Colorful is the imposing array of verification cards he has received from all corners of the world. Countries indicated on the cards are Belgium, Bermuda, Cuba, Canada, United States, Argentina, Portugal, Mexico, Alaska, Venezuela, England, Brazil, Columbia, Bahama Islands, Jamaica, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia and Australia.

"My greatest thrill was when I heard the MacGregor expedition up in Greenland working an amateur operator in the Dominican Republic," he states. "The expedition call OX2QY and the call of the Dominican amateur, H176, came in fairly good. Also I heard the Terry-Holden expedition down in the British Guiana jungle working VP3MR at Georgetown, British Guiana. Both were coming in very clearly. I logged OX2QY on October 26 at 9.50 p.m. and VP3THE on December 3, at 8.15 p.m."

In the orderly manner demanded by standard radio practice, Halcrow has logged all the stations he has heard. The total is 3,016. He is a member of the Radio Signal Survey League, of the Shortwave League of the United States and of the British Shortwave League. His identification is VE7E1.

Given Is Opposing Wallace Shearer

Candidates for council are Darius Hall, Ernest Irwin, Chas. Flynn, John Hill and Arthur Haines. The first four are present members of the council, and Mr. Haines is a new candidate.

W. J. OUTRAM DIES AT HIS RESIDENCE IN HIS 72ND YEAR

William James Outram passed away this morning at his home, 198 Edinburgh street. Although in poor health for the past year, his death came after an illness of a week. He was in his 72nd year.

Born in Bowmanville of English parents, he came to Peterborough as a young man and became identified with the Matthews-Blackwell Company, serving that company and its successors continuously for 43 years. He was for the most of that time manager of the company's store at George and Simcoe streets and director of the company's other two stores in the city.

He was a member of the 57th Regiment, playing cornet when at the turn of the century that organization was winning musical fame.

A man of hobbies he for many years raised racing pigeons and later fancy pigeons, his loft of birds being one of the finest in the province. He also was a chicken breeder of wide reputation, doing much in an unassuming way to improve the breed of fowl in Central Ontario. His home and garden were his chief industries. A keen baseball fan he supported and encouraged the game among boys.

He was a member of George Street United Church and the Men's Club of that church. As a young man he was secretary of the local Salvation Army Corps.

He is survived by his beloved wife and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur E. Emmerson of Toronto, and Mrs. Leo W. Copp, this city; also four sons, Howard and Edward, this city and James and Walter of Toronto.

The remains are resting at D. Bellegheem and Sons' Funeral Home until Thursday at 2 o'clock p.m. Funeral from the family residence at 2.30 p.m. Friday, with the Rev. M. C. Parr officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

DIT CLAPPER'S SON HATES SPOT LIGHT

HASTINGS, Dec. 29 — Donald, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. "Dit" Clapper, who is spending the winter here with his mother, decided he does not want to follow in his father's footsteps—at least not for a year or so.

He and his mother visited the rink to try out a new pair of skates Santa Claus had brought him. When he appeared on the ice, he drew much attention from other skaters—and, well who wouldn't, if his father was a professional hockey player. Donald resented this and immediately demanded removal of his skates. Mrs. Clapper willingly obliged and so Donald's lesson was out short for that day.

Nationally Known Products Flow From Peterboro' Firms

One Of The Best Smaller Industrial Cities In The Dominion

"Peterborough has more industries making nationally known products than any other city its size in Canada. I can name a list of them off hand: Peterborough canoes, Quaker Oats, the extensive line of C.G.E. goods, including their refrigerators, Ovaltine, Raybestos brake linings for motor cars and trucks, DeLaval cream separators, Brinton carpets, and so on.

See if you can make out a similar list of products, equally well known, manufactured in Windsor, Halifax, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Kitchener, Brantford and St. Catharines; name them off just as readily as you can list the Peterborough products. I know you can't, and that gives any person some idea of the importance of this city as an industrial centre."

The speaker was a comparatively young man who apparently came to Peterborough from St. Catharines some time ago. If you want his name ask Earl Armstrong down at the United Cigar store, for he couldn't help listening to some of the ten minute conversation.

"The people of Peterborough don't seem to realize that they are living in one of the best of the smaller industrial cities of this country," he went on. "Why should Peterborough have to take a vote on daylight saving, for instance? Does anyone want to gum up the smooth working of your industries that are forced by their connections in Toronto and Montreal, for instance, to run on summer time? To use a phrase from sport, Peterborough is in the big industrial league. It encouraged those factories to locate here, and it was lucky to get them. Why not play ball with them when experience has shown that they have to move their clocks ahead in summer because that is the established custom in all the big cities on both sides of the border. I know towns that would stop their clocks if necessary, to get the industries you have.

If you didn't have all these big plants you wouldn't have any debate about daylight saving. You'd be just another small village wishing to goodness you could get some factories, even one, to put a little life into the place. I heard all about Peterborough before I came here, and it seems to me if the people here would look at their city from a distance and get the idea of its importance and of how they can make it a bigger place, because that is what it should be, they wouldn't be bothering about village stuff like whether they were going to have daylight saving or not. They would be for it because it is a convenience for the industries where a lot of them work.

St. Catharines got some new industries in the last few years. They engaged an industrial commissioner at around $3600 or $4,000, and that's about the toughest job I know. Criticism all the time. . ." But that was drifting away from the subject of Peterborough which as viewed by a comparative newcomer who remarked that if it were not for Peterborough's strong industrial background a lot of the managers of stores, banks and factories, a lot more of the lawyers, doctors, teachers and so on would not be here. Professional men have found a comfortable practice in this city, just as some Peterborough men have gone elsewhere.

"Take the factories out of your city and what have you?" was another pointed question. "Take the people out, and their places would be filled over night, and you can bet on it, they wouldn't be worrying about whether the whistles blew according to summer time, as long as they blew regularly every day in the week."

Health Minus Germs Impossible "Utopia" Experiment Shows

Chickens, Rabbits, Wheat In Germ-Free Units All Prove Sickly

By Howard W. Blakeslee.
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 29—(AP)—A miniature world completely free from germs—the first ever made—showed scientists here to-day that health without germs is impossible, and that life as man knows it is unlikely without the aid of germs.

This world is made of stainless steel units, each the size and shape of beer barrels. They can be hooked together in long corridors in which animals, plants and insects spend their lives in a germless utopia.

For 10 years at the University of Notre Dame this world has been in the making. To-day its first results were reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The stainless units were shown by Prof. J. A. Reyniers and P. T. Trexler, research assistant.

Guinea pigs, rabbits, rats and mice have been born in the germless world. Chickens have hatched there. Tests have proved that their bodies contained not one germ, no virus, none of the ordinary causes of illness.

They have grown from babyhood in this supposedly strenuous environment. They showed superior growth. But they were seldom healthy. Their bodies lacked something vital, a lack of apparently centring in their digestion of food.

Trouble With Digestion.

Their digestive tracts, Reyniers said, appeared to be delicate. Normally there would have been millions of germs in this tract. Without the germs present, it was difficult for the animals to escape attacks of acidity and other digestive upsets.

What they lacked—that the germs would have furnished—Reyniers said, has not been learned. He said the missing elements might be vitamins, enzymes, or other chemicals which the germs make when they are in the body.

The missing germs included about 20 species and perhaps 100 different types. These germs are all common to man's digestive tract. They are ordinarily referred to by medical scientists as non-pathogenic — that is, harmless to health. It is known that some of these harmless germs become virulent enemies of men and animals, if they happen to get outside the digestive tract into other parts of the body.

The plants grown in the germless world were wheat and corn. They were not even as healthy as the animals. The reasons for the sickliness of the germ-free plants, Reyniers said, are unknown.

Cuba expects to dig 25 per cent more potatoes this season than last.

DIAMOND TRADE REVIVAL FADING

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 29 —(CP)— Visions of a diamond trade revival in South Africa are fading.

While a number of mines and diggings have just reopened, diamond-digging factories in the Union are either closed or on the point of closing.

The manager of a Cape Town diamond factory said that everything in the diamond trade depended on the international situation, and especially on prosperity in the United States. Diamonds were being hard hit from every quarter, he said.

Jewellers in all parts of the world will report on Christmas diamond sales in January. If these reports are favorable the 15 South African factories may be able to reopen.

FAMED COMPOSER RABEL SUCCUMBS

PARIS, Dec. 29—(CP-Havas)—Maurice Ravel, composer of the "Bolero" and other musical works, died here today. He was 62.

His death followed a serious intestinal operation two weeks ago.

Born March 7, 1875, at Ciboure, Basses-Pyrenees, Ravel succeeded better than almost any contemporary figure of equal stature in keeping his private life strictly private.

As a pupil at the Paris Conservatory, then under the stern direction of Theodore Dubois, he was "deliberately bantering, argumentative and somewhat distant," according to a description of him given by Alfred Cortot, his disciple.

He managed to keep even his place of residence a secret for many years. Musical reference books give his address as Villa Belvedere, Montfort - L'Amaury, but anyone who called or telephoned there was invariably informed by the composer's devoted old retainer that "Monsieur isn't here."

The servant spoke the truth. Ravel never really lived at the Villa Belvedere, residing instead in a small hotel here in a quiet street of the St. Lazare quarter—the hotel Athens on the Rue D'Athenes.

"I don't want my music interpreted," Ravel said once to a virtuoso who asked his advice. "It is enough to play it."

For his motto he took these words of Chopin: "No, I have nothing to say, precisely because I am a musician. If I were not a musician, I should perhaps find something to say to you."

Secret Revealed

In 1914 the secret influence dominating his entire life was revealed with the performance of his "Tombeau de Couperin," written in tribute at once to the great 17th and 18th century French composer Francois Couperin and to the memory of young Frenchmen who had died in their country's defence.

When the "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales" were first played by Louis Aubert in 1911, they were presented without a composer's credit line, and some critics attributed them to Ravel's old adversary, Dubois.

Born in the French Basque country, Ravel had an unique understanding of the Spanish character, yet he was the most French of contemporary French composers. His purest works were written on typically French themes: "Daphnis et Chloe," "Ma Mere L'Oye," "L'Enfant et les Sortileges," "Gaspard de la Nuit," and many of his compositions for orchestra and for instruments. His last two works were the "Basque Concerto" and the Concerto for the left hand.

B. B. Dawson, shook up the container, Robert Cathcart made the draw, Johnston Fair being the winner with number 83; this event was an undertaking of the Millbrook hockey club who have been selling tickets for some time past on the handsome wicker basket with its contents.
